A subsidiary label of Victor active for about a year from August 1933. All releases also appeared on Bluebird and include significant blues by DeFord Bailey and Roosevelt Sykes. Most Sunrise issues are unknown to collectors and doubt has sometimes been expressed as to whether many were actually issued.

HOWARD RYE

Bibliography

- Rust, Brian. "A Glimpse into the Past, Sunrise and Timely Tunes." Storyville no. 16 (April/May 1968): 17

Discography: DGR; Sutton

- Dixon, Robert M. W., and John Godrich. Recording the Blues. London: Sudio Vista, 1970; reprinted in Paul Oliver, Tony Russell, Robert M. W. Dixon, and Howard
Rye, Yonder Come the Blues. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2001.

SUPER CHIKAN

b. James Louis Johnson, 16 February 1951; Darling, MS

Born James Johnson in the Delta town of Darling, Mississippi, the multitalented bluesman was dubbed Super Chikan from his childhood preoccupation with the family chickens and his fast cab driving skills as an adult. Like many other Mississippi bluesmen, Johnson's first instrument was a one-string guitar that he made as a child. He learned by trying to emulate the sounds of the chickens and eventually added more strings to play songs he heard by area musicians. Johnson graduated to a real guitar at age thirteen and took lessons from area musicians Little Jenó Tucker and uncle Big Jack Johnson. By nineteen, he was playing bass in local juke joints with Johnson, and he soon began playing guitar throughout the Delta with such notable Delta musicians as Frank Frost, Sam Carr, and Jackie Brenston.

After years of supporting himself by driving cabs and trucks, Johnson caught the attention of Rooster Blues owner Jim O'Neal, and his impressive all-original debut Blues Come Home to Roost was released in 1997. Johnson's catchy R&B-inspired melodies, quirky songwriting, and wry sense of humor were showcased marvelously, and the release established him as one of the most original blues artists on the current scene. A very prolific songwriter (he recorded forty originals during his initial sessions), he followed with a release on Fat Possum in 1999 before returning to Rooster in 2000 with Shoot That Thing. James “Super Chikan” Johnson’s unique ability to capture glimpses of everyday life in the Mississippi Delta make him one of the genre’s most vital contemporary exponents.

GENE TOMKO

Bibliography

AMG (Richie Unterberger); Santelli
Ruskey, John. “Good Day from Super Chikan.” Living Blues no. 132 (March/April 1997): 38–39.

Discography: AMG

Blues Come Home to Roost (1997, Rooster Blues CD R2634).

SUPER DISC

Label in New York City and Washington, D.C., in 1945–1947, owned by Irvin Feld, Izzie Feld, and Viola Marsham and devoted to jazz and urban blues, including Bull Moose Jackson and Elder Lightfoot Solomon Michaux.

EDWARD KOMARA

Discography: McGrath

SUPERIOR

Record label introduced by the Starr Piano Company in December 1930 when the Gennett label was dropped, apparently for sale in chain stores. There were 339 issues up to June 1932. Blues artists appearing, mostly under pseudonyms, include Lottie Kimbrough and Winston Holmes, Alura Mack, Willie “Scarecrow” Owens, and Irene Scruggs. Most material was also issued on Gennett and/or Champion.

HOWARD RYE

Discography: DGR; Sutton

Dixon, Robert M. W., and John Godrich. Recording the Blues. London: Sudio Vista, 1970; reprinted in Paul Oliver, Tony Russell, Robert M. W. Dixon, and Howard Rye, Yonder Come the Blues. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2001.

Kay, George W. “The Superior Catalog.” Record Research, no. 37 (1961): 1; no. 38 (1961): 10; no. 39 (1961): 19;

no. 41 (1962): 11; no. 42 (1962): 11; no. 43 (1962): 19; no. 47 (1962): 19; no. 48 (1963): 10.

Rust, Brian. The American Record Label Book. New Rochelle, NY: Arlington Press, 1978.

SUPERTONE

Label name used in 1924 and again in 1928–1931 by Sears-Roebuck and Company, drawing its catalog from Olympic and Paramount (1924), Gennett (1928–1930) and Brunswick (1930–1931). In 1925–1928, an unrelated Supertone series was issued by Chicago store Straus and Schram, drawing its catalog from Grey Gull, Columbia, Paramount, and Pathé. Issues from Gennett include sides by Willie Baker, Sam Collins, Georgia Tom, Lee Green, Teddy Moss, Ivy Smith, and Tampa Red, most pseudonymous. The Brunswick material includes forty-six race records (S2211–S2256), all released on August 28, 1931, including reissues of Leroy Carr, Jim Jackson, Frankie Jaxon, Lil Johnson, and Pine Top Smith.

HOWARD RYE

Bibliography

Sutton, A. Directory of American Disc Record Brands and Manufacturers, 1891–1943. p. 147. Westport, CT: Greenwood Press, 1994.

Discography: DGR; Sutton

Dixon, Robert M. W., and John Godrich. Recording the Blues. London: Sudio Vista, 1970; reprinted in Paul Oliver, Tony Russell, Robert M. W. Dixon, and Howard Rye, Yonder Come the Blues. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2001.

Rust, Brian. The American Record Label Book. New Rochelle, NY: Arlington Press, 1978.

SUPREME

Los Angeles label founded by Al Patrick in 1947; up until 1950 it issued about fifty singles. Among the artists who had chart hits on the label were Jimmy Witherspoon, Paula Watson, and Eddie Williams with Floyd Dixon. Jim Wynn, Earl Jackson, and Percy Mayfield also appeared on the label.

RAY ASTBURY

Bibliography

Moonoogian, George. “Supreme.” Whiskey, Women, and . . . 16 (Spring 1987): 24–28.

Discography: McGrath

See also Dixon, Floyd; Mayfield, Percy; Witherspoon, Jimmy

SWAN SILVERTONE SINGERS

Formed in 1938 by Claude Jeter as the Four Harmony Kings, they became the Swan Silvertone Singers when offered a job on a Knoxville radio station sponsored by the Swan Bakery. Working from the smooth a cappella harmonies of the 1930s and 1940s to the hard gospel of the 1960s, the group centered around the chilling falsetto voice of Claude Jeter.

First recording in 1945 with King Records with Solomon Womack sharing leads, they subsequently moved to Specialty then Vee-Jay. Joined in 1951 by tenor/arranger Paul Owens, the group moved into a more modern sound, influencing groups as diverse as the Temptations and Simon and Garfunkel.

JIM THOMAS

Discography: Gospel Records 1943–1969

SWEDEN

The recorded interest in blues music in Sweden goes back to the 1940s, when jazz music was discovered by a larger audience.

In the late 1940s Swedish jazz artists made some blues or blues-influenced recordings. At that time blues was considered a part of jazz. However, piano player Charlie Norman emerged and became very popular, recording many straight boogie-woogie tunes. He is still active. In the 1940s the first serious collectors of blues records also had their start by first listening to the few records that happened to find their way into Swedish record stores.

In the early 1950s a very basic twelve-bar blues was a big hit in Sweden. “Gräsänkling Blues” by the Swedish musical comedian Povel Ramel had all the elements expected from a blues recording, even though the lyrics weren’t too serious, being about a man rambling and losing the family maid in a poker game when his wife was away visiting her mother.

In the 1950s some blues was played on the radio as part of jazz programs. The first blues artists such as Memphis Slim, Champion Jack Dupree, and Josh White were brought to Sweden. The visiting artists performed mostly in the folk blues style and represented the jazz people’s opinion of blues artists. The blues scene hadn’t yet achieved its independence from jazz music. The broadcasting in Germany to American soldiers also reached Sweden to some extent, and listeners could hear blues music as part of the R&B and rock ‘n’ roll shows of Alan Freed and other popular American disc jockeys. Radio Luxemburg, which targeted the audience in England, also featured blues and R&B in their evening and night shows and reached some parts of Sweden.

During the 1950s some collectors started to write about blues and R&B in local newspapers, pushing the likes of Roy Brown and Wynonie Harris. A short lived attempt to run a distribution company for imported R&B records was also started in the early 1950s. At the end of the 1950s and beginning of the 1960s the scene changed dramatically.

The breakthrough of English blues and R&B in the early 1960s opened a new dimension among the young people, as it did elsewhere. Almost overnight the blues scene parted from jazz music and became a musical form of its own, more closely related to pop music. Blues LPs were imported by specialist stores and Crown LPs could be found in the cut-out bins at large department stores. The very first blues band was formed by piano player Per “Slim” Notini. His band, Slim’s Blues Gang, released in 1964 the first record by a working Swedish band. Per Notini later acquired international fame playing on some tracks of the legendary Magic Sam LP West Side Soul on Delmark while visiting Chicago. In the early 1970s guitar player and singer Roffe Wikström emerged from the Slim Notini band. He is today the most successful blues artist in Sweden, releasing more than a dozen albums and performing and recording his own material in Swedish.

One of the most important events in developing a Swedish blues scene was the radio broadcast of I Blueskvarter, which occurred during the latter part of 1964. Host Olle Helander, who earlier had presented visiting blues artists on the radio, received an assignment from the Swedish Broadcasting Cooperation to visit the United States to record blues music for presentation on Swedish national radio. He stopped at Chicago, Memphis, and New Orleans, recording then forgotten or obscure artists such as Eddie Boyd, Washboard Sam, Walter Horton, Furry Lewis, and Snooks Eaglin but also new and up-and-coming white artists such as Paul Butterfield and Mike Bloomfield. The show had a tremendous impact on young would-be musicians. Many of them were inspired to start playing blues from these first programs devoted entirely to blues music. Singer/guitarist Sven Zetterberg and singer/harpist Peps Persson, blues artists popular in Sweden today, started out as a result of these shows.

In 1959 piano player and big band leader Gugge Hedrenius started his first Jazz & Blues Big Band, which in the 1960s featured Texas blues piano player and singer Clarence “Candy” Green as the singer; one of their records received four and a half stars in Down Beat in 1964. Clarence Green lived for many years in Sweden and did tours of schools all over the country as part of educational programs before he in 1974 moved back to Galveston where he was born.

The American Folk Blues Festival visited Sweden in the 1960s, 1970s, and 1980s on most of their tours in Europe, bringing serious blues artists to the attention of the Swedish audience.

Another important event was the establishing of Jefferson Blues Magazine, today shortened to Jefferson, by Claes Hedman in May 1968. He was then only sixteen years old. After some years the magazine reached a good following and is today the world's oldest existing blues magazine. Also important was the opening of Smokestack record store in 1971, devoted entirely to selling blues records to the Swedish market. The store still exists today.

In the early 1970s the Telge Blues Band was started in the small town of Södertälje about 30 km from Stockholm. From that band several important artists emerged who are still active today, such as Sven Zetterberg and drummer Stoffe Sundlöf. The Mönsterås Blues Band was also started at that time. The band is today the oldest active blues band in Sweden. The Tottas Bluesband, which was started in Göteborg, was at times very popular and influential, releasing several records.

In 1972 the Scandinavian Blues Association was formed to take over the publishing of Jefferson. The association also started a record label, Jefferson Records, and a mail order operation selling books, magazines, and records. Later the association also arranged tours, bringing Koko Taylor, Philip Walker, Lonesome Sundown, Lowell Fulson, Lightning' Slim, Whispering Smith, and others to Sweden. The association released legal LPs by Eddie Boyd and artists from the San Francisco area.

In 1976 Jonas "Mr. R&B" Bernholm launched his labels beginning with Route 66, reissuing recordings mainly from the 1940s with exclusive agreements by then-neglected artists. Over the years more than eighty highly regarded albums appeared on his labels.

At this same time Sam Charters had moved to Sweden. While living here he collaborated with the Swedish label Sonet, recording American artists for the label.

In the 1970s many blues associations were established in the bigger Swedish cities. The associations played and are still playing an important part in establishing and preserving the interest in the blues by arranging concerts and seminars and even releasing leaflets. The oldest of these associations and perhaps the most important is Stockholm's Bluesförening, which arranges weekly Saturday concerts that give new and upcoming artists the opportunity to perform in public. Stockholm's Bluesförening also worked as the tour arranger in Sweden, taking over the business from the Scandinavian Blues Association, bringing Buddy Guy, Junior Wells, and George Smith among other acts to Sweden.

In the 1970s American singer and songwriter Eric Bibb moved to Stockholm and started performing prewar blues. After a five-year stint in New York in the 1980s, he was back living in Sweden, teaching at schools but also performing.

At this time Sweden also aired its first weekly blues show on the national radio. The show ran for twenty years. In 1978 the independent record label Last Buzz was started, releasing blues, rock, and roots music. The label is still very active today, releasing records by the most popular blues artists in Sweden, such as Sven Zetterberg, Knock Out Greg & Blue Weather, and the Bluebirds.

In the early 1980s the Monaco Blues Band was started. The band enjoyed great popularity, releasing three albums during the decade. The band toured extensively in Sweden and Europe and still exists today but performs very seldom.

The band Blues Down Town was started in the 1980s and is today one of the few bands still playing the traditional Chicago blues or in that style. The band is fronted by singer and harmonica player Thomas Grahn. The band has released several records.

In 1984 the Stockholm Jazz and Blues Festival was started, over the years bringing important artists such as B. B King, Little Milton, Ray Charles, Buddy Guy, Lucky Peterson, Junior Wells, Denise Lasalle, and Latimore to Sweden.

At the beginning of the 1990s interest in the blues declined. The strong U.S. currency made it costly to bring American artists with their own bands to Sweden. The tours were not successful and attendance dropped, resulting in very few artists visiting Sweden. At this time enthusiasts in the small towns of Mönsterås and Åmål started the first festivals devoted entirely to blues music. The first attempts with only local artists were very successful, and the Mönsterås Bluesfestival grew rapidly to become the biggest and most important festival, with headliners such as Roy Gaines, Lazy Lester, Ann Peebles, Sam McClain, Charlie Musselwhite, Earl Thomas, Louisiana Red, Chick Willis, Ricky Allen, Eddie & Jimmy Burns, Deborah Coleman, and Jody Williams. Today the Åmål Bluesfestival equals Mönsterås in stature, featuring artists such as Abu Talib (formerly Freddy Robinson), T Model Ford, Mojo Buford, R L Burnside, Magic Slim, and Larry Johnson.

In the mid-1990s the blues show was dropped from national radio and blues was again integrated into jazz programs. Several of the blues associations in smaller Swedish towns started broadcasting at local stations an hour once a week or once a month. Losing its former position as a major musical form, the blues became more of an underground movement, relying more on enthusiasts than on established media and institutions.

The female singer and harp player Jenny Bohman joined the Monaco Blues Band in 1990. Jenny Bohman later launched a solo career even though she still is a member of this band. Today Jenny performs country blues in a duo setting and modern blues as a leader in the all-female electric blues band Jenny & Bluebeans.

In the late 1990s interest in blues started to rise again; smaller festivals were started in several Swedish towns such as Östersund, Umeå, Eslöv, Norrtälje, and Göteborg, mainly featuring Swedish artists. The new concert hall in the town of Gävle started with big ambitions, bringing Buddy Guy, Otis Rush, and Koko Taylor to Gävle. But in 2003 there were no blues artists anymore.

In the 1990s several important bands were formed. One of the most popular is Knock Out Greg & Blue Weather. Knock Out Greg (Greger Anderson) was at an early age influenced by Sven Zetterberg, starting out playing guitar and singing. Later he switched to harmonica. His band also features his brother on drums and the very skilled guitar player Anders Levén, who introduced jump-blues to the Swedish audience. Losing their keyboard player, they employed two horn players and changed their style toward 1950s R&B. The band tours regularly all over Europe and has also played the Dohenny Bluesfestival in America.

Jump 4 Joy, headed by piano player and singer Ulf Sandström, performs in a jump-blues and boogie-woogie style. The band tours extensively in Sweden and Europe, having released five albums.

The Bluebirds, from the town of Skövde, mostly perform original material, based on blues and R&B with a New Orleans and Louisiana flavor. The band's three latest records have given them widespread recognition. The band also tours in Europe and has even been to Australia.

Eric Bibb's first three albums were released on the Swedish Opus 3 label. In the late 1990s Eric Bibb rose rapidly to international stardom, being nominated for both Grammy and W. C. Handy awards.

One important step in broadening the interest in blues music was the starting in the late 1990s of jam sessions at the club Stampen in Stockholm by the American singer and guitar player Brian Kramer. From these jam sessions at least three very popular artists or band have emerged: Young Guns, consisting of Emil Arvidsson and Daniel Kordelius, the young Little Chris, and the Slaptones, consisting of three sisters playing guitars and bass with their father on drums. All of them have already released acclaimed albums. Young Guns and the Slaptones tour extensively, and Little Chris, now seventeen years old, has played the very prestigious Pori Jazz in Finland and Stockholm's Jazz Festival 2003.

The 1990s also saw the establishment of two independent record labels for blues recordings, Blaze and CeePeeVee Records. Both are releasing records by Swedish artists, with CeePeeVee concentrating on artists playing the traditional Chicago blues. In the 1990s the Scandinavian Blues Association released on its Jefferson label two compilations of the best of the Swedish blues and one compilation of the best Norwegian blues.

At this moment the blues scene in Sweden seems to be more active than it has been for many years. Swedish blues artists have been featured on national television, and there are even plans at the national radio for a program devoted again entirely to blues. During the summer of 2003, the history of Swedish blues ran on national radio, with interviews by artists who started out in the 1960s and who are still active today as well as by some members of the blues associations. Even though most of the bands act on a semiprofessional level, with band members holding daytime jobs, the bands Knock Out Greg, Young Guns, and the Bluebirds as well as Sven Zetterberg, Roffe Wikström, and Peps Person manage as full-time musicians.

Internationally, the band Knock Out Greg and Sven Zetterberg have reached a new milestone being booked as headliners at the Great British R&B Festival in Lancashire in 2003, which shows the true acceptance of the Swedish blues on an international arena. Before that, the Swedish bands were booked as headline acts only in Norway and Finland. Records by Swedish blues artists have received good reviews during the most recent years in the international blues press and are selling quite well in Germany. The Swedish bands are considered technically very skilled and true to the original blues styles.

Very few Swedish bands perform in the style of blues rock. This development, very special to Sweden compared to other European countries, has to a large extent been propelled by the numerous blues associations in Sweden booking only blues bands. The bands have got the opportunity to perform the music they like to an audience understanding the music. To some extent, for good or bad, this has also restricted the development of the formula for blues music or to use blues as a basis for an individual approach. In that sense the blues scene in Sweden lacks an experimental freshness. But as long as Swedes can hear the music or the style of T-Bone Walker, Jimmy Rogers, and so on in very true renditions by young skilled musicians, they shall not complain.

ANDERS LILLSUNDE

SWEET HONEY IN THE ROCK

Black female a cappella vocal group performing jazz, blues, sacred music, and traditional music. It was formed in 1973 at the Black Repertory Theater Company by Bernice Johnson Reagon. Their music serves to point out injustice and exploitation and to bring out love. Through 1989 it recorded for Flying Fish label and since then for Earthbeat.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Larkin

Himes, G. "Sounds of Our Mothers' Mothers: Sweet Honey in the Rock." Sing Out! 38, no. 1 (1993): 8–15.

Sweet Honey website, <http://www.sweethoney.com/> (accessed February 11, 2004).

SWEET MISS COFFY

b. Veetta Smith, 7 July 1956; Chicago, IL

Keyboardist/vocalist. Sweet Miss Coffy moved to Jackson, Mississippi, in her teens and played in church and with the R&B group Love and Soul. Later she toured with Artie "Blues Boy" White, Albert King, and Willie Kent. Currently she leads her own band.

DAVID WHITEIS

Bibliography

Nelson, David. "Sweet Miss Coffy." Living Blues no. 120 (1995): 52–55.

Selected Recordings

Ring-A-Ling-A-Ding-Ding-Dong (1994, Mardi Gras).

SWING TIME/DOWN BEAT

A postwar indie label that peaked early, issuing seminal recordings by Lowell Fulson and Ray Charles before folding at the dawn of the rock 'n' roll era. It was founded in 1947 as Down Beat, leading to clashes with the famed jazz magazine and subsequent rechristening as Swing Time. Run by Texas-born, Los Angeles-based African American businessman and gambler Jack Lauderdale, it specialized in the jazz-inflected urbane blues styles favored by California-based artists of the period.

Lauderdale leased or bought many masters from other indies such as Big Town (Fulson), Exclusive and Excelsior (Charles Brown, Johnny Moore's 3 Blazers, Johnny Otis, Mabel Scott), and Supreme (Jimmy Witherspoon, Floyd Dixon, Eddie Williams, Percy Mayfield). But he also produced many of his own recordings, often utilizing the A&R and bandleading skills of pianist Lloyd Glenn.

Ray Charles was Lauderdale's greatest discovery. During his 1949–1952 Swing Time stint, Charles scored three hits and began to let his gospel-tinged soul butterfly emerge from his Nat Cole Trio-style cocoon. Lowell Fulson was another major Lauderdale signing, waxing top ten hits "Everyday I Have the Blues" and "Blue Shadows" (both 1950). Fulson's recordings featured Lloyd Glenn "at the eighty-eight," and Glenn had his own Swing Time best-seller, "Chicka Boo," in 1951. Lauderdale's roster also briefly included Jimmy McCracklin and Joe Turner, and his labels released a number of Christmas blues perennials.

By 1954, Lauderdale was out of the music business, having lost not only his best artists but also a key business associate to other emerging labels. In the 1990s, Aaron Fuchs of New York-based Tuff City Records acquired the entire Swing Time catalog and reissued much of it on his Night Train International subsidiary.

Bibliography

Nations, Opal Louis, and Jimmy Guterman. Liner notes to The Swingtime Records Story (1994, Capricorn 2-CD 42024).

Nooger, Dan. "Swing Time on the Night Train." Blues & Rhythm no. 65 (November 1991): 4–6.

Stolper, Darryl. "Jack Lauderdale." Blues Unlimited no. 92 (June 1972): 19.

Discography: McGrath

Selected Recordings

Ray Charles. Complete Swing Time and Down Beat Recordings (2004, Night Train 2-CD).

Various artists. The Swingtime Records Story (1994, Capricorn 2-CD 42024); Swing Time Christmas (1995, Night Train CD 7005); A Taste of Swing Time (1995, Night Train CD 1001).

See also Charles, Ray; Excelsior/Exclusive; Fulson, Lowell; Glenn, Lloyd; Supreme

SYKES, ROOSEVELT

b. 31 January 1906; Elmar, AR

d. 17 July 1983; New Orleans, LA

Roosevelt Sykes was born on January 31, 1906, in Elmar, Arkansas, although his family moved to St. Louis when he was still a baby. As a young child he started playing the organ at his grandfather's home and graduated to accompanying morning prayers at school. The little school pump organ, or harmonium, was the instrument on which Sykes learned his first blues, "Single Tree Blues," before his hands were big enough to do more than play simple chords.

By the time he entered his teens he had switched to piano, and he soon ran away from home to work as a musician in the West Helena, Arkansas, area. Helena during and after World War I was a center of blues activity, and Sykes quickly developed in this environment. "They was what you call real blues players, always be playing the blues" Sykes is quoted as saying, remembering in particular "a real stomp-down blues playin' pianist" named Jesse Bell. Around this time he also met and played with the influential pianist Lee Green, whom Sykes credits with putting him on "the blues side."

Two of Sykes's brothers, Jesse and Walter, were also pianists, as was his half-brother Johnny. By the late 1920s Sykes had moved back to St. Louis and was living on Seventeenth Street with his wife Leola. Lee Green lived close by and played at a speakeasy on Seventeenth between Wash and Franklin. Henry Townsend remembers Sykes around this time playing at Jazzland and The Royal Candy Kitchen on Market Street. The latter was a candy shop up front, with "other activities" going on behind. In 1929, Jesse Johnson, the entrepreneur and proprietor of the DeLuxe Record Shop in St. Louis, discovered Sykes and became his manager, arranging recording sessions for him in New York, Richmond, Indiana, and Chicago.

At his first recording session for OKeh he produced, among others, the hit "44 Blues," which he learned from Lee Green, and "I'm Tired of Being Mistreated," on which he was accompanied by a guitarist identified by Henry Townsend as Clifford Gibson (though listed in the record company files and on the label as Oscar Carter).

In the early days, Sykes recorded for several different companies but for contractual reasons used a variety of pseudonyms on his recordings. Thus, although he recorded under his own name for OKeh, he was Willie Kelly on Victor and Easy Papa Johnson on Vocalion. "At that time you could change around, sort of change your name and if you have a different tune why you could make recordings for different people. So I had a contract with OKeh and I did recordings for other companies under different names. One of my names when I was a kid was Dobby [a nickname for someone who was short and stumpy]. They always called me Dobby, so my mother's name was Bragg so I used the name Dobby Bragg." It was under this name that "3-6 and 9 (Three, Six and Nine)" was issued by Paramount. The title refers to an illegal but widespread gambling lottery known as "policy" that flourished from the late nineteenth century until it was supplanted by state lotteries. Other classic recordings from this time include "32-20 Blues" for Victor (1930) and "Highway 61 Blues" for Champion (1932).

Through the recruiting efforts of Mayo "Ink" Williams, Sykes signed a contract with Decca Records in 1934. From then until 1941 Sykes recorded prolifically for Decca, with most of his records bearing the legend "The Honeydrinker (Roosevelt Sykes)," or vice versa. The term "honeydrinker" can also have sexual connotations, and the innocent explanation of his sobriquet given to Paul Oliver may not be the whole truth, since the singer Edith North Johnson also claimed to have bestowed the name on him. Sykes accompanied Johnson on her 1929 recording "Honey Drinker Blues," and Johnson recollected that she had thought of a song title, "but I couldn't use that! So instead of using the right words I changed it to 'Honey Drinker.' And then I tried to sit down and think of some right words that would fit." The Joe Liggins 1940s hit "The Honeydrinker" is a different tune, which was also subsequently covered by Sykes in 1945. Among Sykes's Decca recordings were the popular 1936 "Driving Wheel Blues" and the 1937 "Night Time Is The Right Time," which have both become blues standards.

Throughout the 1930s Sykes retained St. Louis as a base but worked clubs and bars in many cities, including Chicago, Memphis, and Detroit. His companions on these trips were often guitarist Henry Townsend or singer St. Louis Jimmy (who wrote the blues perennial "Going Down Slow"). However, a brush with the law in around 1941 obliged Sykes and St. Louis Jimmy to leave St. Louis and settle in Chicago, where Sykes soon became a house musician for the Victor/Bluebird label. Victor attempted to market him as the successor to Fats Waller, who recorded for the same label and died in 1943, but Sykes was very much his own man.

He found work at the Tin Pan Alley Club and also formed a twelve-piece band, The Honeydrinkers, which toured the South in 1943, playing venues such as the Palace Theater in Memphis. Back in Chicago he worked in local clubs with Memphis Minnie and Little Son Joe. He continued to be in demand for recording sessions and was a seminal figure during the transition that took place between the older blues styles and the modern jump-blues in the mid-to late 1940s. His band at that time included trumpet, alto, tenor horns, and a rhythm section of piano, guitar, bass, and drums. He recorded for Victor (1945–1949), Specialty (1946–1947), Regal (1949), United (1951–1954), and Imperial (1954).

In 1954 Sykes moved to New Orleans, from whence he earned a steady if unspectacular living playing clubs in the city and residences in resorts along the Gulf Coast. He returned briefly to St. Louis in 1958 and moved back to Chicago in 1960, where he recorded for Delmark. The folk blues revival was just beginning, and Sykes was in the right place to take advantage of it. The 1960s saw a rapid resurgence of his career. In 1961, with the burgeoning of interest in the blues in Europe, he toured the United Kingdom and also appeared in the Belgian film Roosevelt Sykes: "The Honey Dripper." A tour with the American Folk Blues Festival in 1965 and several other visits to Europe in 1966, 1970, and 1974 followed.

Once again relocating to New Orleans in the late 1960s, he performed at the Court of the Two Sisters and at the annual Ann Arbor Blues Festival. In the succeeding years he appeared at blues festivals and performed concert tours throughout the United States and abroad, becoming one of the elder statesmen of the blues. Sykes appeared in the French film Blues Under the Skin in 1972 and the BBC series The Devil's Music in 1976. He continued to perform until his death, of a heart attack, on July 17, 1983, in New Orleans.

Although capable of other styles, Sykes was primarily a blues artist, singing with a high-pitched vibrato and skillfully interpolating sparkling piano treble runs between his vocal lines. His distinctive treble runs, frequently started with rapid triplets followed by cascades of notes down the keyboard, were much imitated, and he is often spoken of as the father of modern blues piano style. In the early days, his basses were usually single note runs, or four-to-the-bar chords, with occasional stride tenths. In the 1940s he worked hard to adapt his solo piano style to the formal discipline of a swing band. He recalled in Beale Black & Blue that he "took up harmony, by having me a band. I had to tell the fellows what I wanted them to do But I didn't play what I told them, see, 'cause I never could play anything over again just alike."

His later groups played in the popular jump band style of the day, and he had an influence on the vamps being developed by pianists to underpin the new rhythm, with its heavily accented off-beat. A consummate accompanist, he was very popular with his fellow artists and appeared on records by Walter Davis, Clifford Gibson, Lonnie Johnson, Charlie McFadden, St. Louis Jimmy Oden, Henry Townsend, Washboard Sam, and a host of others.

BOB HALL

Bibliography

- AMG (Bill Dahl); Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli; Southern Harris, Sheldon. Blues Who's Who. New York: Da Capo, 1979.
- Koester, Bob. "Roosevelt Sykes" [obituary]. Living Blues no. 57 (Autumn 1983): 11–12.
- McKee, Margaret, and Fred Chisenhall. Beale Black & Blue. Baton Rouge: Louisiana State University Press, 1981.
- Oliver, Paul. Conversations with the Blues. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1990.
- Townsend, Henry, with Bill Greensmith. A Blues Life. Urbana-Champaign: University of Illinois Press, 1999.

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSFP

SYLVESTER, HANNAH

b. 1900; Philadelphia, PA

d. 15 October 1973; New York City, NY

Singer; recorded with Fletcher Henderson for various labels in 1923. She performed in vaudeville, theater, and revues through the 1940s, with occasional work afterward. She recorded with Lucille Hegamin for the Spivey label in 1962.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Harris

Discography: DGR; LSFP

T

TAGGART, BLIND JOE

Flourished 1920s–1930s; Greenville, SC

Singer/guitarist of sacred music; first name sometimes shown as “Joel.” Taggart recorded for Vocalion, Paramount, and Decca in 1926–1934. During several sessions he was accompanied by Josh White.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

AMG (Eugene Chadbourne)

Discography: AMG; DGR

TAIL DRAGGER

b. James Yancy Jones, 30 September 1940; Altheimer, AR

Gruff vocalist, physical performer, and adept Howlin’ Wolf imitator, Tail Dragger has long been a presence on Chicago’s West Side, in clubs, and at the Delta Fish Market. A truck mechanic by trade, for years he made the rounds of clubs in the evenings as a guest vocalist, befriending in particular Howlin’ Wolf, who said he was always late, “draggin’ his tail.” He recorded “My Head Is Bald” (Leric) in the 1980s and had a CD, Crawlin’ Kingsnake, on St. George. After serving prison time for the 1993 murder of musician Boston Blackie (Bennie Houston), he revived his career locally with an appearance on Rockin’ Johnny Burgin’s Straight Out of Chicago (Delmark, 1997) and his own full-length recording, American People (Delmark, 1999).

JUSTIN O’BRIEN

Bibliography

AMG (Al Campbell)
Sharp, Steven. “Taildragger: Barroom Blues Shaman.” Living Blues no. 117 (September/October 1994): 50–53.

Discography: AMG

American People (Delmark DE-728).

TAJ MAHAL

b. Henry Saint Clair Fredericks, 17 May 1942; New York City, NY

Guitarist, banjoist, harpist, pianist, singer, and songwriter. The most eclectic and international of bluesmen, Taj Mahal began his career as an acoustic traditionalist. More than four decades and two dozen albums later, he had innovatively expanded the appeal and definition of the blues by incorporating South Pacific and Caribbean sensibilities to create a universal music of inclusion. He also popularized the music by fusing the blues with other entertainment media through a variety of multidisciplinary collaborations, including the movie soundtrack for Sounder, the Grammy-nominated

TAJ MAHAL

Broadway production of Mule Bone, and several major television scores.

The son of a gospel-singing South Carolina mother and a West Indies jazz arranger father, Taj Mahal was raised in Springfield, Massachusetts. He played Boston folk clubs in the early 1960s, and after he graduated from the University of Massachusetts with a degree in agriculture he moved to Los Angeles. In California Taj Mahal hooked up with another eclectic internationalist, multi-instrumentalist Ry Cooder, to form the Rising Sons. The group recorded several times, but only one single was released until the later fame of the musicians brought attention to their earlier efforts.

Once Taj Mahal began recording under his own name, he rapidly amassed an extensive catalog. He made his recording debut in 1968 with a self-titled album featuring Cooder and guitarist Jesse Edwin Davis. The Natch'l Blues followed just a few months later, and Giant Step, a double album with one acoustic and one electric disc, was released in 1969. The success of the albums, which became staples of the emerging free-form FM stations of the era, combined with the power of his live shows established Taj Mahal as an unlikely contemporary blues icon.

Early 1970s albums, such as Happy to Be Just Like I Am, and the reggae-inflected Mo Roots, the latter partly influenced by his Jamaican stepfather, presaged his worldbeat blues approach. He played for a different audience with the children's album Shake Sugaree and also collaborated with guests such as Etta James, Eric Clapton, and Bonnie Raitt. He won the 1991 W. C. Handy award for best acoustic artist and three years later his Dancin' the Blues was named best traditional album. In 2001 his Phantom Blues Band won the Handy Award for best blues group.

Several live recordings, ranging from solo acoustic to full electric band, as well as more unorthodox contexts, such as the tuba quartet on The Real Thing, captured sonic snapshots of his musical evolution. His fervent fan base, especially strong in Europe, where he recorded two live albums in the 1990s, rarely witnessed the same show or musical setting two times in a row, but it never lost its enthusiasm for the artist and his experimentation.

In the late 1990s Taj Mahal's recordings, beginning with Senor Blues in 1997, emphasized his fascination with recasting blues in new cultural contexts. Sacred Island in 1998 began an intense exploration of Hawaiian music as he successfully melded the seemingly disparate sounds and sensibilities of the South Pacific and South Mississippi. Hanapepe Dream, recorded with the Hula Blues band in 2003, continued the experiment.

MICHAEL POINT

Bibliography

AMG; Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli; Southern Woodard, Josef. "Taj Mahal: Giant Steps Backward and Forward." Down Beat 58 no. 2 (February 1991): 20–22.

Discography: AMG

TAKOMA

Founded in 1959 in Takoma Park, Maryland; acquired by Chrysalis in 1977; acquired by Fantasy in 1995. Takoma Records began as a way for idiosyncratic guitarist John Fahey to issue recordings of himself. He and label cofounder Ed Denson also tracked down Bukka White and recorded an album by the then-forgotten blues great in 1963. Takoma issued numerous recordings by other blues and rock artists, primarily guitarists. Fantasy continues to reissue repackaged material from Takoma under the label name.

JIM TRAGESER

Selected Recordings

The Best of John Fahey 1959–1977 (1977, Takoma CD-8915-2).

Takoma Blues (1998, Takoma CD-8907-2).

Takoma Slide (1999, Takoma CD-8910-2).

TALBOT, JOHNNY

b. Johnny Tolbert, 12 August 1939; Texas

Guitarist and singer who moved to Oakland in 1951 and formed his own band De Thangs. He recorded very little—singles for In, Modern, and Red Fire and three for Jasman in the period 1962–1972 and, after a long period out of music, an album in 1992.

RAY ASTBURY

Bibliography

Rainsford, M. "Berkeley Blues—The Johnny Talbot Story." Blues & Rhythm no. 102 (September 1995): 4–8.

Discography: LSFP

Selected Recordings

Johnny Tolbert—De Thang.

Oakland Rythmn [sic] & Blues Op'ry (ORBO CD-01).

TALIB, ABU

(See Robinson, Freddy)

TALTY, DON

b. 16 August 1911; Chicago, IL
 d. 24 January 1979; Sandwich, IL

Chicago record company executive and producer. Talty recorded a variety of artists from 1959 through the 1960s for such labels as Chess, Formal, Boyd, and Night Owl. His biggest act was Jan Bradley, with whom he recorded a national hit, "Mama Didn't Lie." He also recorded two vocal groups, the Trinidads and the Masquerades, jazz pianist Earl Washington, guitarist Phil Upchurch, soul singer Ace St. Clair (brother of Johnny Ace), and two blues acts—Guitar Red (Paul Johnson), who hit locally with "Red Hot Red" in 1960, and Willie Mabon, who hit nationally with "Got to Have Some" in 1962. By the early 1970s Talty was out of the record business.

ROBERT PRUTER

Bibliography

Pruter, Robert. "Don Talty and Formal Records." Juke Blues 19 (Spring 1990): 6–11.

TAMPA RED

b. Hudson Woodbridge, 8 January 1904; Smithville, GA
 d. 19 March 1981; Chicago, IL

One of the most influential bluesmen of the early Chicago blues scene, Tampa Red opened doors for many artists, including Muddy Waters and Willie Dixon. He was narrowly categorized as a blues musician in the early years of his career, and although his music is deeply rooted in the blues, his musical eclecticism shows a much larger scope and is difficult to categorize into one all-encompassing genre. Billed as "The Guitar Wizard" in his early years and then publicized as "artist and composer" in the late 1930s, Tampa Red enjoyed a wide variety of musical endeavors throughout his career. There is a valid argument that during the "artist and composer" phase of his career he was being marketed to a white audience and no longer placed solely in the race record category. Nonetheless, these musical excursions led him from roles as a serious guitarist with few, if any, equals to being a session player, bandleader, and even a go-between for the young, country bluesmen who were new to city life and the workings of the established white recording industry.

Red's address at 3432 South State Street served not only as his home but also as a rehearsal hall for other blues musicians in the Chicago area, as well as a place for budding bluesmen, fresh out of the country and off the farm, to stay as they made the transition from country to city life. It was also the place where aspiring bluesmen such as the aforementioned Muddy Waters and Willie Dixon would go to become acquainted with Lester Melrose, the "Godfather" of the Chicago blues scene. Melrose was the A&R man for both Columbia and Victor recording companies in the 1930s and 1940s. Throughout all of these endeavors Tampa Red would ultimately record more 78 records than any other artist in blues history (a total of 335) and, in turn, become a major influence on both pre- and postwar blues artists.

Red was born Hudson Woodbridge on January 8, 1904, in Smithville, Georgia (it should be noted that he gave early blues researchers several inconsistent birth dates, December 25, 1900 to 1908, yet it is the January 8, 1904, date that appears on his 1981 death certificate). His parents, John and Elizabeth, died when he was very young, at which time he moved to Tampa, Florida, to live with his grandmother and adopted her surname, Whittaker, thus becoming Hudson Whittaker. It would be years before he would become known as Tampa, due to his place of origin, and Red, due to his light complexion and reddish hair.

His older brother Eddie played the guitar, and this was all the inspiration the young Hudson needed. He claimed never to have had any formal guitar instruction and that his abilities on the guitar were "just a gift." He also claimed that upon hearing the early 1920s recording of "Crazy Blues" by Mamie Smith, he could just hear it in his head, and although he didn't "know" music, he knew he could play it; this ability illustrates his natural propensity toward music.

In 1925 Red met piano player "Georgia" Tom Dorsey, who had been successful as a session player, songwriter, and traveling musician. It is believed that through their friendship, Tampa met J. Mayo Williams, the African American A&R man responsible for recording Gertrude "Ma" Rainey and Blind Lemon Jefferson. This meeting led to Red's first recording, "Through Train Blues," in May of 1928. It was several months later, however, on October 28, 1928, that Red and Dorsey would record a major hit in the bawdy, double-entendre-ridden song "It's Tight Like That." After this recording, Red and Dorsey went on to record many successful sides together as well as sitting in as a session "team" for artists such as "Ma" Rainey, Frankie Jaxon, and Madlyn Davis. It was not long, however, before

Tampa Red (l) welcomes Leroy Carr (r) to the Bluebird label, Chicago, 1935. (Photo courtesy of Frank Driggs Collection)

Dorsey would leave his collaboration with Red to pursue a career in gospel music, leaving Red to explore further musical opportunities in the burgeoning Chicago blues scene.

Tampa's bottleneck (slide guitar) technique was well known early in his career, as was his use of the newly produced National steel guitar. This particular instrument was designed to create greater volume and "punch" in the days before electric amplification. This allowed for Tampa to play with other musicians and not have his guitar overshadowed by the sounds of the other, naturally louder instruments (a recurring problem for guitarists of the day). Red's use of this guitar would soon impress many other blues musicians of the day, such as Delta blues musician Edward "Son" House, who would utilize this extra volume so as to be heard over the reveling crowds in the numerous juke joints and dance parties he would play. Tampa Red was also one of the first musicians to experiment with the electric guitar ("Anna Lou Blues," 1940).

After parting with "Georgia" Tom Dorsey, Tampa went on to work in several group settings throughout the 1930s. Tampa Red and his Hokum Jug Band and the Chicago Five were groups made up of Chicago blues and jazz session players, and with these groups, in a series of variations, Red recorded nearly 230 sides for the Bluebird and Victor labels between 1934 and 1953. During the early recordings from these sessions, Red stopped placing his musical focus on the guitar and concentrated more on roles as piano player and bandleader. A large part of Red's success during these years can also be attributed to social and technological factors as well as musical ability. In 1933 prohibition was repealed and the choice many tavern owners selected for their entertainment was the jukebox. Red was particularly keen in his ability to interpret trends in popular music and would fashion his next recordings accordingly, nearly guaranteeing his latest endeavors playtime in this new medium. This allowed him to reach a much larger audience than he would have been able to reach via radio and record sales alone.

After 1953 Red's career came to a sudden halt. The death of his wife, to whom he was deeply devoted, along with health problems due to continued alcohol abuse left Red unable to maintain the creative pace of his early career. He briefly attempted to gain mass acceptance once again during the folk/blues revival of the early 1960s. These recordings, however, lack the strength and mastery of his early career.

Tampa Red died destitute on March 19, 1981, in Chicago's Central Nursing Home. His funeral was sparsely attended. However, his legacy has become increasingly appreciated since the mid-1970s. Many popular artists during the last three-quarters of the twentieth century have interpreted his music, among them Muddy Waters, Little Walter, Elmore James, Robert Nighthawk, B. B. King, Chuck Berry, Fats Domino, and Eric Clapton. His clean bottleneck technique and his eclectic musical endeavors will no doubt continue to impress music enthusiasts for many decades.

BRYAN GROVE

Bibliography

- AMG (Barry Lee Pearson); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli; Southern Cortese, Vincent. "Tampa Red." Blues Revue Quarterly no. 6 (Fall 1992): 22–25.
Humphrey, Mark. Booklet accompanying Tampa Red: The Bluebird Recordings 1934–1936 (RCA 07863 66721-2; 2 CDs).
Miller, John. Booklet accompanying Tampa Red: Bottleneck Guitar 1928–1937 (Yazoo 1039; CD).
O'Neal, Jim. Booklet accompanying Tampa Red: The Bluebird Recordings 1936–1938 (RCA 07863 66722-2; 2 CDs).

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSFP

TANGERINE RECORDS

Label established by Ray Charles in Los Angeles, California, in 1963. Devoted to West Coast and jump-blues, its artists included Louis Jordan, Percy Mayfield, Lula Reed, Ike and Tina Turner, and Charles's vocal backup group The Raelettes.

EDWARD KOMARA

Discography: McGrath (45 rpm)

TARHEEL SLIM

- b. Alden Bunn, 24 September 1924; Bailey, NC
d. 21 August 1977; New York City, NY

Versatile postwar electric guitarist and singer. In the late 1950s he performed and recorded with his wife Little Ann.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; Larkin

Discography: AMG; LSFP

TARNOPOL, NAT

- b. 26 January 1931; Detroit, MI
d. 25 December 1987; Las Vegas, NV

Record company executive who during the 1960s and 1970s built Brunswick into one of the most successful R&B labels. Tarnopol was raised in Detroit. He entered the music business in 1956, when in partnership with Al Green he opened an artist-management firm in Detroit. Among their early clients were LaVern Baker and Jackie Wilson. When Green died in 1957, Tarnopol inherited the business and built Jackie Wilson into a major R&B star recording for Decca's Brunswick imprint.

In 1964 Tarnopol received half of Brunswick from Decca; in 1970 he bought the remainder of the label. In 1966, he hired Chicago producer Carl Davis, and Davis revived both the career of Wilson and the fortunes of Brunswick with a seemingly endless stream of hits by such artists as Tyrone Davis, the Chi-Lites, Barbara Acklin, and Gene Chandler. Tarnopol also produced several of Brunswick's acts, notably Jackie Wilson, Lionel Hampton, and Louis Armstrong. In 1976 the company came crashing down when Tarnopol was convicted on fraud and conspiracy charges. Although the conviction was overturned in 1978, Brunswick was moribund by the early 1980s.

ROBERT PRUTER

Bibliography

Pruter, Robert. Chicago Soul. Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 1991.

TARRANT, RABON

- b. ca. 1910
d. 1975; California

TARRANT, RABON

Singer and drummer active in San Diego, Los Angeles, and San Francisco from 1937 through the early 1970s. His best-known recorded work is his hundred sides as drummer with the Jack McVea All Stars during the 1940s, singing on more than thirty of them.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Penny, Dave. "Rabon Tarrant: Blues with a Feeling." Blues & Rhythm no. 59 (March 1991): 7.

TARTER AND GAY

On November 2, 1928, Stephen Tarter (1887–1935) and Harry Gay (1904–1983), walked into a makeshift studio in Bristol, Tennessee, and recorded for the Victor Record Company. "Brownie Blues" and "Unknown Blues" (Victor 38017), the only issued recordings by the duo, are in the standard twelve-bar blues structure, but the duo's highly syncopated and beautifully interlocking two-guitar arrangements reveal the influence of ragtime and string-band music. The lyrics to "Brownie Blues" relate a common blues theme: color differences within the African American community.

Both men were born in Scott County, Virginia, in or near Gate City. Tarter's father, Maryland-born Charles Tarter, was a farmer and is reported to have played several instruments. Stephen Tarter served in the 801st Pioneer Infantry during World War I, and by 1920 he resided on Sullivan Street in Kingsport, Tennessee, just south of Gate City. Tarter met Harry Gay in the mid-1920s near Johnson City, Tennessee. Gay also came from a musical family, but he credited Tarter with teaching him a great deal; Gay always seconded Tarter on guitar. Lesley Riddle, musician and associate of the Carter Family, met both men in Kingsport and reported that "Steve was one of the finest instrumentalists that I ever heard," noting that Tarter "could play guitar, banjo, mandolin, fiddle, anything that had strings on it." Brownie McGhee also remembered Tarter as a fine instrumentalist. The duo played throughout east Tennessee and southwest Virginia, performing for local dances, birthday parties, and at coal camps as a sidelight to other employment.

Stephen Tarter died of heart failure in Gate City on March 19, 1935, and was buried in that city in the Prospect School Cemetery. After the loss of his partner, Harry Gay rarely played music, and he died in 1983 in Johnson City, Tennessee.

GREGG KIMBALL

Bibliography

Lornell, Kip. "Leslie Riddles." Living Blues no. 12 (Spring 1973).
———. "Tarter and Gay." Living Blues no. 27 (May/June 1976): 18.
———, and Roddy Moore. "Tarter and Gay Revisited." Juke Blues no. 8 (Spring 1987): 21.
Smith, Chris. Liner notes to Ragtime Blues Guitar (Document Records, DOCD-5062); includes reissue of "Brownie Blues" and "Unknown Blues" (Victor 38017).

Discography: DGR

TASBY, FINIS

b. 8 August 1940; Dallas, TX

Singer. In 1962 in Dallas he formed the Thunderbirds, playing bass behind singer Z. Z. Hill and, later, Joe Simon. From 1965, Tasby led his band as singer, but also he had them back Clarence Carter, Lowell Fulson, and Freddie King in regional tours. In 1973 he moved to Los Angeles, where he has been recording as lead artist and working in films, including Sharkey's Machine starring Burt Reynolds (1982) and songs on the film soundtrack for The Babysitter (1995).

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

AMG (Richard Skelly)

Discography: AMG (Richard Skelly)

TATE, BUDDY

b. George Holmes Tate, 22 February 1912; Sherman, TX

d. 10 February 2001; Chandler, AZ

An architect of the "Texas tenor" saxophone style that served as a template for the R&B/blues approach to horns, Tate started off on the alto with his family's orchestra but switched to the larger horn as a teenager in the late 1920s to perform with jazz bands in the Midwest and Southwest. These crowd-pleasing groups included McCloud's Night Owls, the St. Louis Merrymakers, and groups led by Troy Floyd, Nat Towles, Andy Kirk, and Ethel May.

In 1934, Tate appeared with Count Basie's Kansas City-based first band. His career break came in 1939 when asked by Basie to replace recently deceased star saxophonist Herschel Evans; Tate's fervent, blues-soaked horn was heard alongside those of fellow Texan Illinois Jacquet, Lester Young, and other notables in the Basie saxophone section until 1948. Musicologists agree that the swinging blues-based music produced by the Basie big band during this period belongs to the most remarkable in jazz history.

After quitting Basie due to the grueling road work, Tate settled in New York City and formed his own band for a twenty-one-year run at Harlem's Celebrity Club; he also kept busy with recording sessions and freelance club work. Starting in 1959, Tate and other Basie veterans, not least blues singer Jimmy Rushing, became favorites of European audiences, particularly the French. Jazz-blues encounters with similarly styled Texas tenor players Illinois Jacquet and Arnett Cobb and alto saxophonist Eddie "Cleanhead" Vinson in the 1970s and 1980s are memorable. Pianist Jay McShann and singer Carrie Smith were other late-career collaborators who shared his natural affinity for the blues. His swinging mainstream jazz band with trombonist Al Grey is remembered as one of the best of the 1980s. Almost to the end, Tate's thick vibrato and special way with blues and ballads was still affecting.

FRANK-JOHN HADLEY

Bibliography

New Grove Jazz

Chilton, John. Who's Who of Jazz: Storyville to Swing Street. 4th ed. London: Macmillan; New York: Da Capo, 1985.

Klett, S. "Buddy Tate: Interview." Cadence 6, no. 5 (May 1980): 15.

Discography: Lord

Swinging Like Tate (1958, London 820 599).

Groovin' with Tate (1959, Prestige 24152).

The Texas Twister (1975, New World LP 352).

Live at Sandy's (1980, Muse LP 5198).

The Ballad Artistry of Buddy Tate (1981, Sackville LP 3034).

TATE, CHARLES HENRY "BABY"

b. 28 January 1916; Elberton, GA

d. 17 August 1972; Columbia, SC

Guitarist in Piedmont blues style. During the 1930s he performed often with Blind Boy Fuller. He cut an album for Bluesville in 1962 and appeared in Samuel Charters's film The Blues (1963) but essentially remained a local musician.

LUIGI MONGE

Bibliography

AMG (Stephen Thomas Erlewine); Harris; Larkin Bastin, Bruce. "Greenville Sheik." In Red River Blues: The Blues Tradition in the Southeast pp. 166–179. Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 1986.

See also Anderson, Pinkney "Pink"; Fuller, Blind Boy

TATE, TOMMY

b. 29 September 1944; Homestead, FL

Southern soul singer in the styles of the 1960s and 1970s. He enjoyed an R&B chart hit with "School of Love" in 1972 for the Koko label. His more recent work was done for the Urgent subsidiary of the Ichiban CD label.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

AMG (Ron Wynn)

Discography: AMG (Ron Wynn)

TAYLOR, EDDIE

b. 29 January 1923; Benoit, MS

d. 25 December 1985; Chicago, IL

Influential postwar blues guitarist and singer Eddie Taylor was born the son of Joseph and Mamie Taylor in the Mississippi Delta town of Benoit, just north of Greenville. Taylor worked on a farm as a boy and experienced firsthand the music of Delta legends Memphis Minnie, Charley Patton, Son House, and Robert Johnson. He taught himself to play the guitar after receiving one as a gift from his mother in 1936. After gaining confidence on the instrument, he began teaching childhood friend Jimmy Reed.

Taylor went on to play juke joints and country suppers around Clarksdale and Leland, Mississippi, through the early 1940s, and often he partnered with Howlin' Wolf, Big Joe Williams, and Son House. He moved to Memphis in 1943 and continued to play in area clubs for several years, working with Big Walter Horton, Elmore James, Johnny Shines, and B. B. King. In the late 1940s, Taylor moved to Chicago and occasionally played on Maxwell Street. He worked regularly throughout the 1950s with a variety of Chicago musicians, including Snooky Pryor, Floyd and Moody Jones, Little Willie Foster, and Horton (who had moved to Chicago with Taylor).

He reunited with Jimmy Reed, who had recently relocated to the city, and in 1953 started what would become one of the most successful partnerships in the blues when he began recording with Reed for Vee-Jay Records. The loping, rock-steady shuffle that is famously known as “The Jimmy Reed Sound” is commonly credited to Taylor, who electrified the Delta rhythms that he learned directly from Charley Patton and Robert Johnson to create Reed’s signature beat. Reed and Taylor would record throughout the next ten years together and produce more than a dozen R&B hits. In 1955, Taylor recorded as a leader for Vee-Jay and cut two of his signature tunes, “Bad Boy” and “Big Town Playboy,” both of which featured his solid rhythm work, stinging leads, and heartfelt vocals.

A much sought after session guitarist, Taylor appeared as a sideman on many recordings for Vee-Jay and other Chicago labels throughout the 1950s and 1960s, most notably with Elmore James, John Brim, and John Lee Hooker. He continued to perform in Chicago clubs throughout the 1960s, both as a leader and a sideman, as well as with wife Lee Vera Burns Taylor on vocals. Taylor recorded for Testament and ABC/BluesWay in the late 1960s and made his first of many trips to Europe as part of the American Folk Blues Festival tour. He recorded for a variety of U.S. and European labels throughout the 1970s and early 1980s, including Big Bear, Advent, L+R, Blind Pig, and Antone’s.

Although a hugely influential guitarist of Chicago postwar blues, Eddie Taylor’s contribution remained largely unrecognized during his lifetime. His death from heart disease at age sixty-two robbed Chicago blues of one of its original architects who helped contemporize the rural, acoustic Delta blues into the amplified urban blues that it is known as today. Three of Taylor’s sons, drummers Tim and Larry and guitarist Eddie, Jr., are active Chicago blues musicians. Vera Taylor died in 1999, shortly after recording her only full-length release on Wolf Records.

GENE TOMKO

Bibliography

- AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli
 O’Brien, Justin. “Eddie Taylor: 1923–1985.” Living Blues
 no. 72 (November 1986): 31–33.
 Brisbin, John Anthony. “Tribute to Eddie Taylor.” Living Blues no. 151 (May/June 2000): 32–51.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

Selected Recordings

- Elmore James–Eddie Taylor. Street Talkin’ (1975, Muse CD 5087).
 Eddie Taylor. I Feel So Bad (1991, HighTone CD 8027).

TAYLOR, EVA

- b. Irene Gibbons, 22 January 1895; St. Louis, MO
 d. 31 October 1977; Mineola, NY

Vocalist; billed as “the Dixie Nightingale” and “Queen of the Moaners.” Her career began on vaudeville. She collaborated with her husband, bandleader Clarence Williams, from the 1920s until the 1940s on revues, songs, and radio broadcasts.

ROBERT WEBB FRY II

Bibliography

- Harris; New Grove Jazz; Larkin; Santelli; Southern Chilton, John. Who’s Who of Jazz: Storyville to Swing Street, 4th ed. London: Macmillan; New York: Da Capo, 1985.
 Smith, Willie (The Lion), and George Hoefer. Music on My Mind: The Memoirs of An American Pianist New York:
 Da Capo, 1978.

Discography: DGR

- “Barefoot Blues”/“Do It a Long Time Pappa” (1923, OKeh 8073).
 “Oh! Daddy Blues”/“I’ve Got the Yes! We Have No Banana Blues” (1923, OKeh 4927).
 “Terrible Blues”/“Arkansaw Blues” (1924, OKeh 8183).
 “My Different Kind of Man”/“You’re a Real Sweetheart”
 (1928, OKeh 41104).

TAYLOR, HOUND DOG

- b. Theodore Roosevelt Taylor, 12 April 1915; Natchez, MS
 d. 17 December 1975; Chicago, IL

Born Theodore Roosevelt Taylor to Robert Taylor and Della Herron, the raucous singer and slide guitarist grew up on a Delta plantation but ran away from home as a boy to hobo throughout the South. In the mid-1930s, Taylor settled in Tchula, Mississippi, and began playing guitar and performing in area juke joints.

His path crossed with many influential Delta musicians around Tchula, and Taylor worked with Elmore James, Aleck Miller “Sonny Boy Williamson II,” and Robert Lockwood. James’s fierce slide guitar playing had an enormous impact on him, and Taylor would later play an important role in keeping that blues style popular after James’s death.

Although originally nicknamed “Nitter” by his mother, he eventually became known as “Hound Dog” due to his notoriety for chasing women. Taylor moved to Chicago in 1942 and worked outside music initially, but after the urging of his sister and musician friend Uncle Johnnie Williams, he began performing on Maxwell Street for tips and in various South and West Side clubs in the mid-1940s. Taylor made his recording debut for the Bea & Baby label in 1960, and a single followed on both Firma and Checker during the next several years, to little success. One of Taylor's unrecorded bandstand instrumentals reportedly inspired Freddie King to record the song as "Hide Away," which became a top ten R&B hit in 1961.

In the mid-1960s, the band that would eventually become world famous as The Houserockers came together. Consisting of Brewer Phillips on second guitar (who had been playing with Taylor since 1959) and Ted Harvey on drums, the pair complemented Taylor's distorted slide guitar and raw boogie blues style perfectly. The trio's reputation as one of Chicago's most exhilarating blues bands spread quickly through their celebrated sets at South and West Side clubs such as Florence's, Pepper's Lounge, and Theresa's.

Taylor made his first trip to Europe in 1967 as part of the American Folk Blues Festival, a tour that included artists Little Walter and Koko Taylor. In 1971, after blues enthusiast Wesley Race failed to convince Delmark Records to record Taylor, avid fan and current Delmark employee Bruce Iglauer stepped in and launched Alligator Records solely to record the guitarist and his band. Cut live in the studio and coproduced by Taylor, Iglauer, and Race, Hound Dog Taylor and the Houserockers captured the raw intensity of the band's live shows and established their reputation nationally as one of Chicago's most electrifying bands.

Iglauer recorded and managed the group during the next four years, and the trio performed at festivals and in clubs throughout the country and overseas. Taylor's seemingly boundless energy and good-time, charismatic stage presence was at the core of every live performance. Periodic disputes between Taylor and Phillips occurred, usually with guitarist Lefty Dizz substituting on second guitar, but Taylor and Iglauer managed to keep the band together throughout the years. In November 1975, Taylor was hospitalized for difficulty in breathing and was subsequently diagnosed with lung cancer. He succumbed to the disease six weeks later at age sixty.

GENE TOMKO

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli; Southern Iglauer, Bruce. "Hound Dog Taylor." Living Blues no. 25 (January/February 1976): 7.

Discography: AMG; LSPF

Hound Dog Taylor and the Houserockers (1971, Alligator ALCD 4701).
Natural Boogie (1973, Alligator ALCD 4704).
Beware of the Dog (1975, Alligator ALCD 4707).

TAYLOR, JOHNNIE HARRISON

b. 3 May 1934; Crawfordsville, AR
d. 31 May 2000; Dallas, TX

Dapper and debonair, smooth yet gritty, oozing soul and showmanship, possessed of a sexy voice and an impeccable sense of phrasing, Johnnie Taylor was a soul-blues performer and recording artist of the highest caliber. Although blues purists and rock critics tended to overlook him, his core audience loved him and made him the top-selling artist on two eras' leading Southern soul labels—Stax during the late 1960s to mid-1970s and Malaco during the mid-1980s to late 1990s.

Raised in West Memphis, a blues hotbed, by churchgoing parents who surrounded him with gospel music, he moved to Kansas City and then Chicago, where, after an early 1950s stint with a doo-wop group, the Five Echoes, he began quite literally to follow in the footsteps of the great Sam Cooke. In 1953, he joined the gospel Highway QCs, Cooke's first group; in 1957, he replaced Cooke in the Soul Stirrers; and in 1961, he followed Cooke into secular R&B, recording for Cooke's own SAR and Derby labels until his mentor's murder in 1964.

Taylor then moved back to the Memphis area and signed with Stax in 1966. During the next two years, working with the Stax house band, he recorded perhaps his deepest and bluest soul-blues material, such as "I Had a Dream" (his first hit) and "Little Bluebird." But he really hit his stride when the label brought in ex-Motown producer Dan Davis to update the Stax sound. The immediate result, in the fall of 1968, was "Who's Making Love," a million-selling up-tempo soul tune that dealt cheerfully with infidelity, a topic he often revisited during an unbroken string of R&B hits during the next six years. Among the highlights of those years were "Take Care of Your Homework," "Testify (I Wanna)," "Love Bones," "Steal Away," "I Am Somebody," "Jody's Got Your Girl and Gone," "I Believe in You (You Believe in Me)," "Cheaper to Keep Her," and "We're Getting Careless with Our Love." During his Stax tenure, he acquired the sobriquet "Philosopher of Soul"; on record, he often referred to himself in the third person as "J. T."

After Stax's demise in 1975, Davis brought Taylor to Columbia, where he was recast as a disco singer, dismaying blues and soul fans but garnering the biggest hit of his career, “Disco Lady,” which topped both the pop and R&B charts and was certified platinum. As the disco era wound down, Taylor recorded briefly for Beverly Glen before finding a new home at Malaco Records, where he eventually recorded thirteen albums, each containing a mix of Southern soul, urban ballads, funk, and blues. Although the sound was updated, anchored by heavy bass lines and sometimes sweetened by synthesizers or strings, Taylor’s vocals still were drenched in his gospel and blues roots. He became Malaco’s biggest-selling artist, outgrossing even Little Milton and Bobby Band. Typical was his 1996 album, Good Love, with its title track, a sensuous slice of contemporary funk, and its outstanding blues cut “Last Two Dollars,” which became a latter-day chitlin circuit staple. Taylor maintained a rigorous touring schedule right up until his sudden death from a heart attack in Dallas, where he had lived since the 1970s.

TAYLOR, JOHNNIE HARRISON

Johnnie Taylor’s similarity in name to Little Johnny Taylor was the source of much confusion throughout both their careers, abetted by their similar styles during J. T.’s initial years at Stax and his cover version of L. J. T.’s signature song “Part Time Love.”

STEVE HOFFMAN

Bibliography

- Larkin; Santelli
Cullen, Thomas J. III. “Johnnie Taylor—Blues from Gospel: The Original Formula.” Blues Revue no. 34 (January/February 1998): 15–18.
Hannusch, Jeff, et al. “A Tribute to Johnnie Taylor.” Living Blues no. 153 (September/October 2000): 38–41.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

Selected Recordings

Taylor, Johnnie. Lifetime: A Retrospective of Soul, Blues, & Gospel, 1956–1999 (2000, Stax/Fantasy 4432; 3 CD).

See also Malaco/Waldoxy; Stax/Volt; Taylor, Johnny Lamar “Little”

TAYLOR, JOHNNY LAMAR “LITTLE”

- b. Johnny Lamont Merrett, 11 February 1943; Gregory, AR
d. 17 May 2002; Conway, AR

Blues and soul vocalist best known for the blues classic “Part Time Love,” Little Johnny Taylor was often confused with the older and more popular singer Johnnie Taylor of Stax, Malaco, and “Disco Lady” fame; both were Arkansas natives with roots in gospel music. Both at times spelled their names Johnnie and Johnny on record, and both recorded “Part Time Love.”

Little Johnny Taylor was raised in Los Angeles from age seven and sang with gospel groups as a teenager before joining the Johnny Otis Show and working the West Coast rhythm and blues club and concert circuit. He cut his first record in 1960 for deejay Hunter Hancock’s Swingin’ label. His biggest success came with Galaxy Records in 1963–1964, when he waxed four singles that hit the Billboard charts, with “Part Time Love” hitting the number one spot. On the strength of his Galaxy hits and five more for Ronn Records in the early 1970s, Taylor toured the country, working the black chitlin circuit venues.

By the late 1970s his career had slowed down, and though he did a little more recording for Ichiban and Nasha, he lived his last few years out of the spotlight in Conway, Arkansas, where he did more fishing than performing. When he died, even the local Conway newspaper erred in its report by confusing the careers and recordings of the two Johnnie/Johnny Taylors.

JIM O’NEAL

Bibliography

- AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; Herzhaft; Santelli
Shurman, Dick. “You Can’t Beat the Original: Little Johnny Taylor.” Living Blues no. 20 (March/April 1975): 12–15.

Discography: AMG; LSFP; Whitburn

TAYLOR, KOKO

- b. Cora Walton, 28 September 1935; Memphis, TN

Singer with a powerful, belting contralto voice and one of the leading blues artists in Chicago since the 1960s. “Koko” is a shortened version of “Little Cocoa,” a family nickname due to her early fondness for chocolate. She was born to sharecropper parents; her mother died when Taylor was four years old, her father when she was around eleven. During her early years, she sang in church and with her musically inclined siblings at home. In 1953 she and her boyfriend Robert “Pops” Taylor moved to Chicago, and soon after their arrival they married. He took a job at a slaughterhouse, and she as a maid. On weekends they would go to the clubs in the Chicago South Side. Over time they became friends with the local musicians, and on occasion she would sing a song with the band.

In 1962, Willie Dixon heard her by chance, and he recruited her to sing on recordings. Their initial recording was "Honky Tonky" for the USA label, recorded in 1962 and released the following year. On Dixon's encouragement, she wrote her first song, "What Kind of Man Is This," which she sang for the Spivey label in 1964 and also at her first Chess label session that same year. In 1965 she recorded her version of Willie Dixon's "Wang Dang Doodle," which previously had been done by Howlin' Wolf in 1960. Soon after recording, her rendition was first played on the radio by Pervis Spann on his late-night WVON show; listener reaction that night led to a quick release by Chess and a massive hit, reputedly selling a million copies. That success led to tours with Dixon, including the 1967 American Folk Blues Festival tour in Europe, and to local gigs with informal pickup bands. She continued recording for Chess until Leonard Chess's death in 1969.

While preparing for her appearance at the 1972 Ann Arbor Blues Festival, she and her husband picked the musicians for her Blues Machine band, whom she would retain full time. Taylor's husband began serving as manager at about this same time. Meanwhile she recorded briefly on Dixon's Yambo label. In 1975 she signed as the first woman artist on the Alligator label and soon recorded the album I Got What It Takes. Her second Alligator LP, The Earthshaker (1978), contains some of her most famous songs, "I'm a Woman," and "Hey Bartender." In 1980 she won for the first of many times the Handy Award for Best Contemporary Female Artist, and in 1984 she received her first Grammy Award.

In February 1988, Taylor, her husband, and the Blues Machine were seriously injured when the van missed a curve and went over a mountain cliff. She broke her shoulder, collarbone and ribs, while Pops Taylor had a cardiac arrest. Later that spring, a benefit concert was held in Chicago to raise money to pay the medical bills for the Taylors and their band; participating artists included The Kinsey Report, Kim Wilson, Robert Cray, Lonnie Brooks, Big Time Sarah, and Valerie Wellington. Taylor made her first postcrash appearance that June at the Chicago Blues Festival. Pops Taylor never fully recovered from the accident, and he died on March 22, 1989.

Since 1990 she has retained her position as today's "Queen of the Blues," with her brassy, belting, growling voice and her distinctive songs. In 1990 she had a cameo role in David Lynch's film Wild at Heart. She continues as a recording artist for Alligator. A retrospective, Deluxe Edition, was released in 2002.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

AMG (Steve Huey); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli; Southern Aldin, Mary Katherine. "Koko Taylor: Down in the Bottom of That Chitlin Bucket." Living Blues no. 110 (July/August 1993): 10–21.

Discography: AMG; LSPF

TAYLOR, MELVIN

b. 13 March 1959; Jackson, MS

Guitarist, singer. Taylor's ability to utilize the full spectrum of sound his guitar could create, combined with his fast and fluid playing and the unusually dramatic dynamics of his soloing, made him a star in Europe before he achieved success in the United States. His energetic and endlessly eclectic live act, featuring everything from jazz passages to wah-wah pedal experimentations, exhibited an expansive and adventurous perspective on blues guitar.

When he was three Taylor's family moved to Chicago, where his uncle, bluesman Floyd Vaughan, provided him guitar lessons. By the time he was fifteen he was working in an R&B band, The Transistors, and backing local blues stars. His blues career began in earnest in 1981 when he was recruited by the Legendary Blues Band for a European tour.

Taylor so impressed European audiences that he was able to return with own band the next year. He also impressed record executives and he recorded Blues on the Run and Plays the Blues for You, both later released by Evidence Records, in Chicago for the French Isabel label in 1980s. The 1995 trio recording Melvin Taylor & the Slack Band was his first true American release and it was followed in 1997 by his best recording, Dirty Pool. Bang That Bell, with a five-piece edition of the Slack Band, was released in 2000. He also found time to record on albums by Eddie Shaw and Lucky Peterson, the latter returning the favor by participating in the sessions for Taylor's 2002 Rendezvous with the Blues, which also featured Mato Nanji of the group Indigenous.

MICHAEL POINT

Bibliography

Larkin; Santelli
Birnbaum, Larry. "Melvin Taylor: The Best Kept Secret in Blues?" Guitar Player 27, no. 4 (April 1993): 18–19.

Discography: AMG

TAYLOR, MONTANA

TAYLOR, MONTANA

b. Arthur Taylor, 1903; Butte, MT
d. 1954

Singer and pianist in barrelhouse style. Taylor moved with his family initially to Chicago, then to Indianapolis. After teaching himself piano, he performed at rent parties and in small bars and clubs in Indianapolis and Chicago. He recorded for Vocalion in 1929. He was rediscovered in Cleveland, Ohio, by jazz listeners in 1946, after which he made additional recordings for the Circle label.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

AMG (Eugene Chadbourne); Harris; Larkin; Santelli

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSPF

TAYLOR, OTIS

b. 30 July 1948; Chicago, IL

Otis Taylor is an eclectic innovator who moved to Denver at an early age and was exposed to many musical genres at the Denver Folklore Center. He formed two blues bands as a teenager and later played with Tommy Bolin and the Colorado-based band Zephyr. He quit music in 1977 and became an antiques dealer but returned to music in 1995. Taylor won the Best New Blues Artist Award at the 2002 W. C. Handy Awards.

GAILE WELKER

Bibliography

AMG (Robert Hicks)
Cleveland, Barry. "The Real Deal: Otis Taylor's Deep-Trance Blues." Guitar Player 37, no. 9 (September 2003): 39–40.
Van Vleck, Philip. "Everything Old Is New Again." Dirty Linen no. 103 (December 2002/January 2003).

Discography: AMG

TAYLOR, SAM "BLUZMAN"

b. 25 October 1934; Mobile, AL

Guitarist/vocalist/songwriter; son of saxophonist Sam "The Man" Taylor. Taylor boxed as a young man.

He took up guitar in the mid-1950s and played in Joey Dee's Starlites in the early 1960s; he later worked chitlin' circuit shows with various soul and R&B acts. From the early 1970s, he led blues/R&B bands on the West Coast before moving to Tucson, Arizona, in 1986. He currently is based in Long Island. His songwriting credits include "Mother Blues," recorded by Son Seals, and "Do It ('Til You're Satisfied)," which earned a gold record for B. T. Express in 1974.

DAVID WHITEIS

Bibliography

AMG (Richard Skelly)
Alvarez, Tina. "The Sam Taylor Story." Tina Alvarez on Music, Entertainment Magazine.net website, emol.org/music/tina/samtaylor2.html, 1998.
"Sam Taylor." Arizona Blues Hall of Fame website, members.cox.net/jjp62/staylor.htm.

TAYLOR, SAM "THE MAN"

b. 12 July 1916; Lexington, TN
d. 5 October 1990; Westchestertown, NY

Saxophonist best known for his rhythm and blues "honking" style in the 1950s. His early work was as sideman for Scatman Crothers (late 1930s), Cootie Williams and Lucky Millinder (early 1940s), and Cab Calloway (1940s). In the 1950s, he recorded much rhythm and blues music, on his own, and as side musician to Ray Charles, Big Joe Turner, and Louis Jordan. In the 1960s he formed his band The Blues Chasers, and in his commercial recording work he turned to romantic music (such as The Bad and the Beautiful, 1962, Prestige label).

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

AMG (Ron Wynn, Dave Nathan)

Discography: AMG (Ron Wynn, Dave Nathan)

TAYLOR, TED

b. Austin Taylor, 16 February 1934; Okmulgee, OK
d. 23 October 1987; Lake Charles, LA

An underrated but extremely demonstrative and intense singer, Ted Taylor's dramatic style and flair have influenced many Southern and Southwestern contemporary blues and soul singers. He cut some memorable material for a number of regional labels, with his best arguably being sessions done for Stan Lewis's Jewel and Paula companies, some of which appeared on a boxed set a few years ago.

RON WYNN

Bibliography

Larkin; Santelli
O'Neal, Jim, and Dick Shurman. "Living Blues Interview: Ted Taylor." Living Blues no. 25 (January/February 1976): 10–16.

Discography

Leblanc, Eric, Jim O'Neal, and Robert Pruter. "Ted Taylor Discography." Living Blues no. 32 (May/June 1977): 5.

TEDESCHI, SUSAN

b. 9 November 1970; Norwell, MA

Guitarist, singer. A successful modern popularizer of the music who incorporated rock, pop, and R&B, Tedeschi solidly established her blues credentials before enlarging her audience. Prior to her mainstream breakthrough Tedeschi won the 1999 W. C. Handy Award for best new artist as well as for best contemporary female artist, a category she won again in 2000.

Tedeschi played guitar and sang in her church choir. Barely in her teens when she began actively playing, she formed her first band before she finished high school and established herself as a regular on the New England club circuit while also attending Berklee School of Music and singing with a gospel group. Her recording debut, overlooked at the time but later rereleased as Better Days, came via an independently released album.

Tedeschi, hiring teenage guitar star Sean Costello for her band, toured steadily before relocating to Atlanta, Georgia. Her career was significantly elevated by the release of her Tone-Cool Records debut Just Won't Burn, featuring Costello, who had left her band. The album became an instant airplay favorite, gaining Tedeschi recognition outside the blues community and garnering her a 2000 Grammy nomination for best new artist in the process.

She married guitarist Derek Trucks in 2001. In 2003 Wait for Me, co-produced with Tom Dowd, secured her another Grammy nomination as it successfully built upon her crossover fan base.

MICHAEL POINT

Bibliography

AMG (Richard Skelly); Santelli
Petreycik, R. "Ear Candy: Susan Tedeschi." Guitar Player 32, no. 6 (June 1998): 47.

Discography: AMG

TELARC

Founded 1977, Cleveland, Ohio, by musicians Jack Renner and Robert Woods as a high-end audiophile outlet for classical music, Telarc has expanded its vision through the years to take in jazz and blues. In the process, Telarc has become a prominent and important midlevel blues label, with an impressive roster and the same high technological standards as it applies to its jazz and classical recordings.

For its first twelve years, Telarc focused on classical music and Broadway; in 1989, the label released its first jazz recording and in 1993, its first blues side, "Better Off with the Blues" by Chicago legend Junior Wells.

Since then, Telarc has recorded artists ranging from Kenny Neal and Son Seals to James Cotton and Deborah Coleman, from Eddie Kirkland and Robert Lockwood to Charlie Musselwhite and Otis Taylor. The label seems more comfortable signing established artists than in seeking out new talent but provides its artists with absolutely first-rate production, promotion, and distribution.

JIM TRAGESER

Bibliography

Telarc website: <http://www.telarc.com/> (accessed December 21, 2004).

Selected Recordings

James Cotton. Baby, Don't You Tear My Clothes (2004, Telarc 83596).
Kenny Neal. Blues Fallin' Down Like Rain (1998, Telarc 83435).
Junior Wells. Better Off with the Blues (1993, Telarc 83354).

TELEVISION

The Early Period

The earliest traceable evidence of any blues on television is probably Gladys Bryant's 1952 appearance on the game show You Bet Your Life, when host Groucho

Marx, to his credit, recognizes her name (“Not the Gladys Bryant?” he asks) and allows her a few seconds to sing and dance before taking part in the show itself.

Beyond that wild anomaly, we have to wait until the syndicated broadcasting of the series Showtime at the Apollo (see the Films entry) first screened in 1955 for any evidence of blues on the small screen. In November of that same year Ed Sullivan introduced a short segment of his syndicated Sunday night show featuring Bo Diddley, among others, to illustrate a “typical” night at the Harlem Apollo. Convinced that Bo was the man who had sung “Sixteen Tons” (then a hit for Tennessee Ernie Ford), he reportedly became enraged when Bo, despite clear direction, sang his signature tune instead of the song Sullivan expected. Bo remained convinced for some years that this incident kept him from further appearances on the major networks. The truth is probably that Sullivan wielded no such punitive power. The networks simply ignored blues the way film had before them.

With the advent of rock ‘n’ roll, and most especially Dick Clark’s Beechnut Show and American Bandstand, black musicians became a little more high profile, but most were performing within the R&B/rock area, even to the extent that Frankie Lee Sims’s only TV appearance is firmly attached to his backing Jimmy McCracklin performing “The Walk” on Bandstand.

Local TV stations often featured local artists. St. Louis was able to experience Ike Turner’s Kings of Rhythm thanks to the efforts of entrepreneur George Edick. Wilmington, Delaware, oddly enough, played host to a rock ‘n’ roll show with much African American input. Chuck Berry, Little Richard, and many others appeared on it, but no footage is known to have survived. There was also a Johnny Otis TV show in Los Angeles at about the same time, and in all likelihood there were other appearances of interest around the country, but evidence is rare and surviving footage even more so.

In an isolated incident in 1958, the syndicated arts show Perspectives focused on a history of Beale Street; among the interviewees were music promoters Robert Henry and Howard Yancey, WDIA disc jockey Nat D. Williams and, astonishingly, Memphis Jug Band alumni Will Shade and Charlie Burse, who performed a four-minute version of “Kansas City Blues.” This is probably the earliest videotape—as opposed to film or kinescope—of any blues performance.

Blues in Europe

In Europe Big Bill Broonzy appeared on British TV once, in 1957, and on Italian TV once that same year.

Brownie McGhee & Sonny Terry turned up on the BBC in London in 1958, and Rosetta Tharpe followed the next year. But all in all the 1950s were a vast global wasteland if televised blues was your sole interest.

However, by the beginning of the 1960s there was a shift of interest, as a predominantly young white audience began to involve itself in folk music. The definition was a very broad one, and some of the material embraced was quite shallow, but a by-product of this focus was to bring blues into sharper relief. This was especially true in Europe, and in a kismet situation, German promoters Horst Lipmann and Fritz Rau were able to bring a package of blues singers to Europe in the fall of 1962 that not only succeeded in filling auditoriums in Britain, Germany, and France but also attracted the attention of German SudWestFunk television in Baden-Baden.

Hence, that fall German TV viewers were able to see T-Bone Walker, Shakey Jake, Brownie McGhee & Sonny Terry, Memphis Slim, and Helen Humes perform both live and good examples of current blues. Even accepting that some of the sets constructed by the TV company were a touch hokey, the music itself was excellent. Shakey Jake performed “You’re Looking Good” in the then-current Chicago West Side style, while John Lee Hooker’s solo electric guitar version of “Hobo Blues” is astonishingly similar to his recording of fourteen years earlier and is one of the best of all Hooker’s filmed performances. T-Bone Walker, ably backed by Memphis Slim, Willie Dixon, and Billie Steptey, delivered a superb rendition of “Don’t Throw Your Love on Me So Strong,” while Slim himself demonstrated both blues and boogie piano that is as delightful now as it was when first broadcast.

The show made enough impact to become a regular feature on SudWestFunk for the next three years. As with all subsequent SudWestFunk American Folk Blues Festival (AFBF) shows, the videotapes remain intact and in good condition, and many were rebroadcast during 2000 in a special retrospective.

In the meantime the British “R&B Boom” as it was sometimes called, encompassing everything from the Rolling Stones through Tamla, Stax, and Atlantic and back to Chess and Vee-Jay artists, was starting to reach large audiences. From its public emergence in late 1962 it was, by 1963, a considerable force within the British music industry. On its coattails rode some excellent traditional blues.

Thus, in the fall of 1963 the second AFBF, containing Muddy Waters, Sonny Boy Williamson, Otis Spann, Big Joe Williams, Memphis Slim, Matt Murphy, Lonnie Johnson, Victoria Spivey, and Willie Dixon, toured Europe once more, with a higher profile, appearing at more venues and also on British, as well as German and possibly French, TV. Individual spinoffs and guest appearances also occurred that year; Sonny Boy Williamson, Memphis Slim, and Matt Murphy appeared on Belgian TV, and Muddy Waters and Sonny Boy Williamson guested on early evening news shows in the United Kingdom.

Also in 1963 British ATV launched a show called Ready Steady Go, aimed at the teen markets and featuring an eclectic mixture of rock, soul, pop, and R&B. A glance at the roster of artists who appeared during its three-year life reveals not just current beat groups but also Sugar Pie DeSanto, Jesse Fuller, Buddy Guy, Howlin' Wolf, Little Walter, Jimmy Reed, and Tommy Tucker in addition to Ike & Tina Turner, Otis Redding, Wilson Pickett, Marvin Gaye, and a host of others.

The following year, BBC launched a little-seen competitor, Beat Room, little seen because it was appearing on BBC-2, the "new" channel that much of the country could not then receive. Howlin' Wolf, Tommy Tucker, Sonny Boy Williamson, and others appeared live on it, but today only the episode featuring John Lee Hooker appears to have survived and is available on Vestapol Video/DVD 13035.

In 1964 the pace was kept up with the European tour, in May, of the Blues & Gospel Caravan, featuring Muddy Waters, Rosetta Tharpe, Cousin Joe Pleasants, and Brownie McGhee & Sonny Terry. Strange bedfellows in an American context, perhaps, but seen in Europe as essentially an "R&B package." In Britain, the Manchester-based TV company Granada employed producer Johnny Hamp and director Phil Casson—who had collaborated on the 1963 televising of the AFBF—to produce a show called The Blues & Gospel Train.

How they went about it says a great deal about the mindset and approach of Europeans to blues at that time. They took over a deserted suburban railway station, Chorlton-cum-Hardy, in Manchester and decorated it to resemble their view of a Southern whistle-stop. Bales of hay, "wanted" posters, live chickens, a goat, and a name change to "Chorltonville" were all employed to add ambience to the next phase of the plot, which was to load the musicians and about two hundred young fans onto a steam train at Manchester and send it into Chorlton station. On-board scenes were filmed to run under the opening credits, and the arrival, disembarkation, and subsequent musical events on the platforms were videotaped.

Thus, Muddy Waters's version of "Blow Wind Blow" was performed as hundreds of young fans flowed off the train and around him, attempting to get the best seats for the ensuing performances. While Cousin Joe Pleasants sang "Railroad Porter Blues," accompanied by bassist Ransom Knowling and drummer Willie Smith, a sudden and prolonged cloudburst descended upon both them and the audience. Joe continued, trouper that he was, to sing despite being drenched. Rained poured off the roof directly onto Ransom Knowling's head, who reached for his hat only after the song was finished. After the storm, Sister Rosetta Tharpe arrived in a horse and carriage, complete with fringe on top, talking, laughing, clapping her hands, the now-evident sun shining, to take up her electric guitar, demand a key, and then launch herself into a blistering version of "Didn't It Rain," bringing immediate and positive reaction from the audience.

Muddy reappeared to sing his then-current hit "You Cant Lose What You Ain't, Never Had" on the platform, followed by Sonny & Brownie singing to the goat; the massed company then joined together for a jam session version of "He's Got the Whole World in His Hands." Muddy at least must have realized in that moment that his career path was altering.

That year, 1964, also brought the return of the AFBF, with Lightnin Hopkins, Howlin' Wolf, Aleck Miller "Sonny Boy Williamson," Sunnyland Slim, and others. In Britain the live performance at Manchester's Free Trade Hall was videotaped and broadcast as a two-part program, copies of which still reside in the British Film Institute. In Germany SudWest-Funk spent a lot of money building a special set, a sort of cleaned-up barrelhouse with a front porch attached, for AFBF members to perform in.

The ailing John Henry Barbee's only filmed performance stems from this show. In the company of Sleepy John Estes and Hammie Nixon, providing the string band setting he was familiar with from his Maxwell Street years, he delivers a superb, ragged, blues-drenched version of "Can't You See What You Done to Me." Barbee was too ill to continue with the tour and thus returned to the United States, dying in tragic circumstances the following month. This now-familiar annual blues festival also probably appeared on television in Paris, East Berlin, and Moscow, although if tapes survived they have yet to see the light of day.

In the British TV program Juke Box Jury, a safe-format panel show, celebrities passed judgment on newly released pop records; after one such review a mystery guest would appear to either embarrass or be congratulated by the panel. In November 1964 the panel, consisting of socialite Lady Isabel Barnet, comedian Jimmy Edwards, and skiffle musician Lonnie Donegan, listened to and reviewed Howlin' Wolf's "Love Me Darling." Only Donegan knew enough to give an informed opinion, and then to his delight and the others' clear discomfort, Wolf appeared from behind the curtain. Towering over everyone, he shook hands with the panel and was then asked by the proto-smooth host David Jacobs why he had "such a rough voice." "I was born with the voice" Wolf answered, turning to wave at the camera before exiting.

The following year the AFBF again appeared in an elaborately erected set for German TV, providing posterity with rare footage of J. B. Lenoir, Fred McDowell, Eddie Boyd, John Lee Hooker, Doctor Ross, Roosevelt Sykes, Buddy Guy, Big Mama Thornton, and others. For reasons now lost to us, the British ignored the AFBF that year.

The year 1966 saw the return of the AFBF to Europe, and again the British and German TV companies videotaped live performances, at London's Albert Hall and in a theater in Baden-Baden. Joe Turner, Otis Rush, Junior Wells, Little Brother Montgomery, Roosevelt Sykes again, Sippie Wallace, Robert Pete Williams, and Sleepy John Estes for a second time, accompanied by Yank Rachel, all appeared that year.

The AFBF in 1967 was ignored by all the European TV stations except, oddly, the Danish, which broadcast a somewhat antiseptic half hour that opened with three major proto-blues men, Son House, Skip James, and Bukka White, then segued into the Modern Chicago sound with Hound Dog Taylor, Koko Taylor, and Little Walter, and ended with Sonny & Brownie. The AFBF in 1968 was ignored by everyone except the BBC, which never broadcast the results of the tapes they made at their White City studios.

The Germans returned to the AFBF in 1969 but took a different approach. They made a two-part cinema verité documentary about life on the road in a tour bus, with Chris Strachwitz playing roadie and giving on-camera explanations of the blues in fluent German. Without this film there would be no visual evidence of Magic Sam. The final Lipmann-Rau tour was in 1970, although a variety of blues festivals would continue to play through Europe for some time to come. German TV filmed the 1970 concert live, exposing its audience to Larry Johnson, Carey Bell, Margie Evans, and others, but the eight-year period of almost annual interest in televising the AFBF effectively ended that year.

Blues in the United States and Canada in the 1960s

Meanwhile, U.S. TV was still largely ignoring the product of its own back yard. Howlin' Wolf had appeared on the teen-oriented rock 'n' roll show Shindig, but only at the insistence of the Rolling Stones, who, flexing their newly acquired muscle, said they would do the show only if Wolf appeared on the same episode. They got their way.

Elsewhere in the United States, networks were offering very little. Shindig featured some black acts—the Coasters in 1965, for instance—but almost no blues. PBS fared a little better. In 1965 the show Camera Three investigated the blues by having Son House and Buddy Guy in the studio at the same time to demonstrate their art—good performances by both artists—and the show closed with Guy accompanying House on acoustic guitar. Guy has never lost his Delta roots and can be seen returning to them quite regularly in later films.

Elsewhere on U.S. TV that year, Pete Seeger hosted Rainbow Quest on PBS, an informal folk music show that featured wonderful performances by Mississippi John Hurt, Brownie McGhee & Sonny Terry, and Reverend Gary Davis, all now available once more on several Vestapol Video/DVDs. When one looks at Seeger's other contributions, he emerges as something of a pioneer of recording folk music visually. Beyond blues, his show hosted a large number of traditional, old-timey artists, including the blues-drenched Rosco Holcomb, as well the first Cajun band to be aired on a network show. His library of visual accomplishments looks quite handsome in retrospect.

But the most important contribution to blues on TV in 1966 came from Canada. For three days in January, CNBC-TV in Toronto played host to an astonishing array of blues talent in a relaxed and informal setting. Muddy Waters and his band, including Otis Spann and James Cotton, Sunnyland Slim, Brownie McGhee & Sonny Terry, Big Joe Williams, Mabel Hilary, Jesse Fuller, Willie Dixon, and Bukka White (in his earliest surviving visual performance) all sang, played, swapped stories with each other, and responded to questions from anchorman Barry Callaghan. The broadcast result, Festival Presents the Blues, was aired later that same month, using perhaps only twenty-five percent of what was videotaped. Important because it captured the blues at a cusp of change and because the relaxed atmosphere coaxed some excellent performances from everyone, a selection of this material is now available on Sanctuary 88330 video. The rest still lies in the archive awaiting use, including extraordinary performances by Big Joe Williams that surely deserve attention.

During the spring and summer of that year a Dallas-based syndicated show called The Beat!!! appeared for a total of twenty-six episodes. Hosted by deejay Bill "Hoss" Allen, it featured exclusively African American artists rendering a broad mixture of then-current soul, R&B, and urban blues performed largely live but occasionally mimed. For the live performances the house band, The Blue Beats, was under the direction of Clarence “Gatemouth” Brown. Freddy King appeared regularly, and all his performances have been gathered together on Vestapol Video/DVD 13014. However, much remains unused, including Big Amos, Little Milton, the obscure but wonderful Cleo Randall, Robert Parker, and a long set by Louis Jordan, the only known color footage of him. The show did not survive its initial season but is still archived.

Into the 1970s and 1980s

The 1970s opened with the making of Chicago Blues in January by director Harley Cokliss. Wonderful if frustratingly incomplete performances by Muddy Waters, Johnny Lewis, Buddy Guy & Junior Wells, and Floyd Jones adorn this essentially political documentary about life in the ghetto. Now something of a period piece, it still contains what many believe to be Guy and Wells’s finest filmed performances.

The decade continued with a generally more open approach to putting some form of blues on TV from time to time. The arrival of B. B. King on the wider music scene at the start of the decade ensured his appearance on shows such as The Flip Wilson Show and, later, Family Ties as well as in movies and in an astonishingly good short documentary, B. B. King at Cook County Jail. Blues artists touring Europe showed up with some regularity across Europe, and a few who settled there—such as Jack Dupree, Sammy Price, and Eddie Boyd—became, if not familiar faces, at least recognized ones on their adopted countries’ airwaves. From 1972 onward, the Montreux Jazz and Blues Festival was routinely broadcast on Swiss TV, often live and unedited. Archiving began immediately, and the archives contain important material by Freddy King, Bo Diddley—playing a set of almost straight blues, Brownie McGhee and Sonny Terry, Louisiana Red, T-Bone Walker, and many others.

In January 1976 BBC producers Giles Oakley and Maddelena Fagandinni, accompanied by a small film crew, toured the United States from Chicago to St. Louis, on to Memphis, and into the Delta to film performances for a major production to be called The Devil’s Music, probably the first serious overview of the subject in visual form. They captured stellar performances by many important artists that, a few short years later, would have been impossible to make. Big Joe Williams, Sam Chatmon, Little Brother Montgomery, Houston Stackhouse, Sonny Blake, Joe Willie Wilkins, Billy Boy Arnold, the Aces, and Fenton Robinson were all filmed in color, performing complete songs and often interviewed as well.

When the five-part series appeared two years later, the original film shot seemed woefully underused, snippets here and there interspersed with archival footage, rostrum camera work, and talking heads. However, two years later the BBC revisited this substantial archive and aired a four-part show simply called The Blues, in which Alexis Korner introduced complete performances by all the artists filmed. The best of the rural material is now available on several Vestapol Video/DVDs, but the urban songs remain unissued commercially.

The Mississippi Authority for Educational Television produced, in 1978, the generally excellent documentary Good Morning Blues. Hosted by B. B. King—always a genuine enthusiast for the music—it took the viewer into the Delta to explain how and why the blues began. It contains the only known footage of the then-101-year-old Nathan Beauregard, as well as perhaps the finest performances ever captured on film by Big Joe Williams. Performing live in a juke joint in Crawford, Mississippi, the electric atmosphere and sheer sense of enjoyment translates well into the film. Made initially to be shown for schools, it remains one of the few truly classic blues documentaries.

Documenting the blues in the 1980s became a more regular event. Jim Gabbour’s excellent New Orleans-based series All Alone with the Blues provided posterity with excellent sets by Boogie Bill Webb, Henry Grey, Cousin Joe, Robert Lockwood, and others; the country music show Austin City Limits made a regular feature of blues, including Taj Mahal, Robert Cray, Buddy Guy, and an extraordinary set by the archaic Texas barrelhouse pianist Robert Shaw. Maintenance Shop Blues, a mid-1980s PBS series, featured John Lee Hooker, Muddy Waters, Lonnie Brooks, Koko Taylor, and others. The list goes on at some length and depth, segueing into the 1990s and beyond, to a point where lines begin to blur in several directions.

The Twenty-First Century

During the fall 2003 PBS television season was Martin Scorsese Presents the Blues, which presented seven films broadcast on consecutive nights. The director of each film devoted himself to one topic: Martin Scorsese on African antecedents of the blues; Charles Burnett on blues and sin; Richard Pearce on contemporary blues in Memphis and north Mississippi; Win Wenders on Blind Willie Johnson, Skip James, and J. B. Lenoir; Marc Levin on Chicago and Chess Records; Mike Figgis on British blues of the 1960s; and Clint Eastwood on piano blues. The series was released on video and on DVD, with a companion book and various compact disc reissues of the artists featured in individual episodes.

As global media grew and integrated in the last quarter of the twentieth century, the old separations that had existed between various media essentially disappeared. Film became television, television became film, and home video and then DVD allowed greater participation by amateurs, and in that technological melting pot the blues both profited and suffered some loss. While on the one hand it offered many more opportunities for the music to be seen and heard, its dissemination was at times poorly handled by people with a less than adequate grasp on what they were doing. Because at the same time the lines between contemporary urban blues and the rock that it had generated were also blurring and cross-feeding each other, some, at least, of what was offered as blues was closer to rock. Thus, the person in the street knows who B. B. King is but is more likely to have been exposed to rock disguised as blues.

There is, in and of itself, nothing wrong with that, but the roots of the music were often lost amid the clamor of the music industry's need to sell the latest product to the widest audience in the fastest time possible. Witness, on another level, the elevation of Robert Johnson to posthumous superstardom while his mentors went largely uncredited.

However, that we still have blues of any shape or form a hundred years after its emergence is testimony to the staying power of the music. That we have a cache of historic, if unsystematically documented, visual performances available to us is perhaps more than we could have hoped for. Let us therefore be grateful for what there is rather than being in mourning for what was lost.

PAUL VERNON

Bibliography

Vernon, Paul. African American Blues, Rhythm and Blues, Gospel, and Zydeco on Film and Video 1926–1997. Aldershot, U.K.: Ashgate Publishing, 1999.

Videography

Chicago Blues (1972, reissued on Vestapol Video 13095; dir. Harvey Cokliss) American Roots Music (2001; Palm Productions, released).
All Alone with the Blues (Storyville 6045).

The American Folk Blues Festival 1962–1969, Volumes 1–3 (Universal Music & VI; DVD).

Best of Austin City Limits: Country Music's Finest Hour (Sony Columbia).

Festival Presents the Blues (aka Colin James Presents the Blues Masters) (Sanctuary 88330).

Freddy King: The Beat!!!! (Vestapol Video 13014).

John Lee Hooker: Rare Performances (Vestapol Video 13035).

Maintenance Shop Blues (issued on Koch Entertainment videotapes; individual tapes feature Albert King, Willie Dixon, Taj Mahal, Muddy Waters).

Martin Scorsese Presents the Blues (Sony Music Video 55808).

TEMPLE, JOHNNY “GEECHIE”

b. 18 October 1906; Canton, MS

d. 22 November 1968; Jackson, MS

Singer and guitarist Johnny Temple was born and raised on a Mississippi farm and moved to Jackson in about 1920 with his family. He learned mandolin and guitar as a boy and played house parties and picnics around the Jackson area during the 1920s, often with Skip James.

Temple relocated to Chicago in the early 1930s and frequently worked with Charlie and Joe McCoy in area clubs. He made his first recordings in 1935 for Vocalion and had a hit the following year with “Louise Louise Blues” for Decca. A popular recording artist, Temple made numerous recordings throughout the 1940s. He returned to Jackson in the early 1950s and continued to play area jukeboxes until his death by cancer in 1968.

GENE TOMKO

Bibliography

AMG (Cub Koda and Stephen Thomas Erlewine); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli
 Evans, David. “The Johnny Temple Story.” Blues Unlimited no. 56 (September 1968): 7–8.

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSPF

TEMPO-TONE

Chicago label active in 1948 owned by club owner Big Earl. Issues 1001 and 1002 were by Sunnyland Slim, the second with assistance from Muddy Waters, Little Walter, Floyd Jones, and Leroy Foster.

EDWARD KOMARA

Discography: McGrath

TEN YEARS AFTER

Key participants in the British blues scene, Ten Years After was formed in 1965 in Nottingham. The group, originally called the Jaybirds, comprised guitarist/vocalist Alvin Lee, organist Chick Churchill, bassist Leo Lyons, and drummer Ric Lee. Their material was primarily blues based—covers of Aleck Miller “Sonny Boy Williamson” and Willie Dixon appeared alongside their twelve-bar-oriented originals—but the band worked in jazz and rock influences with equal aplomb. One of their early signature songs was a bluesed-up cover of Woody Herman’s “Woodchoppers Ball.”

The band’s live work won them a reputation for exceptionally energetic delivery, largely owing to Alvin Lee’s virtuosic guitar playing. Dubbed “the fastest guitar in the west,” Lee accelerated Clapton-style blues-rock guitar to unprecedented levels of velocity. Their self-titled debut album was released in 1967, but the band was elevated to star status by their stunning eleven-minute performance at Woodstock of “I’m Goin’ Home.” Following this performance, the albums Ssssh (1969), Cricklewood Green (1970), and A Space in Time (1971) sold well, although by 1975, after years of nearly nonstop touring, the members of Ten Years After parted ways.

Alvin Lee pursued a middling solo career, but the band reconvened for one more album in the late 1980s, during the Stevie Ray Vaughan–led revival of blues-rock. Unfortunately, it failed to make much impact. Though the group crafted some catchy riffs and singles for example, 1971’s “I’d Love to Change the World”, the band’s dynamic blues work is best appreciated live, as evidenced on their concert recording Undead (1968).

CHRIS McDONALD

Bibliography

- AMG (William Ruhlmann); Larkin
Dima, J. “Goin’ Home: Ten Years After.” Variety 325
(December 31, 1986): 26.
Gill, Chris. “Alvin Lee Zooms Back.” Guitar Player 26
no. 12 (December 1992): 16–17.

Discography: AMG

Selected Recordings

Ten Years After (1967, Deram 820 532-2); Undead (1968, Deram 18016); Ssssh (1969, Deram 18029); Stonehenge (1969, Deram 18021); Cricklewood Green (1970, Deram 18038); Watt (1970, Deram 18050); A Space in Time (1971, Columbia 30801); Rock & Roll Music to the World (1972, Columbia 31779); Recorded Live (1973, Columbia 32288); Positive Vibrations (1974, Columbia 32851); Goin’ Home! Their Greatest Hits (1975, Columbia 50008); Anthology (1976, Columbia 1107); Classic Performances (1977, Columbia 34366); Hear Me Calling (1981, Decca 24); About Time (1989, Chrysalis F2-21722); Essential Ten Years After (1991, Chrysalis 21857); Live 1990 (1994, Demon 1093); Live at the Fillmore East 1970 (2001, EMI 533297).

TENNESSEE

Nashville label with subsidiaries Republic and Dixie Jamboree, owned by Howard Allison, William Beasley, and Alan and Reynold Bubis. Active 1951–1952. Artists included Christine Kittrell, with local blues and gospel groups.

EDWARD KOMARA

Discography: McGrath

TERRY, COOPER

b. Verl Cooper, Jr., 22 January 1949; San Antonio, TX

d. 17 December 1993; Antioch, CA

Harmonica player. He became interested in blues through coworkers, including Jerry Portnoy at the University of California Medical Center; also through them he met and took harmonica lessons from Sonny Terry. From 1971 through 1991 he was based in Milan, Italy, touring Europe as a blues musician and recording six albums. Diagnosed with AIDS, he returned to the United States in 1992 to be with family.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

- Potrero, Ken. “Cooper Terry” [obituary]. Living Blues no. 114 (March/April 1994): 75.

TERRY, DOC

b. Terry Adail, 14 December 1921; Sunflower, MS

d. 24 August 2001; St. Louis, MO

Harmonica player in the style of John Lee “Sonny Boy” Williamson I. He served in the U.S. Army in the Pacific during World War II. After discharge he moved to St. Louis, Missouri. He and his band the

TERRY, DOC

Pirates were local favorites from the 1940s until his death.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Harris

Rowe, Mike. "St. Louis Blues, Part 2: 'I'm Strictly for the Blues': Doc Terry Interview." Blues Unlimited no. 121 (September/October 1976): 18–19.

TERRY, SONNY

b. Saunders Terrell, 24 October 1911; Greensboro, NC
d. 11 March 1986; Mineola, NY

Superb singer and harmonica player. He lost sight of one eye at age five, the other at eighteen. To earn a living, he began playing harmonica on the streets, and by 1937 he was performing and recording with Blind Boy Fuller. After Fuller's death, he began working with Brownie McGhee. They became especially famous during the 1960s folk boom, but they slowed the frequency of their appearances by the end of the 1970s. Terry's vocal "whoop" may be heard in imitations by Buster Brown and Neal Pattman, among other harmonica players.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli; Southern

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSFP

See also McGhee, Brownie

TESTAMENT

Independent record label founded by Pete Welding (1935–1995), specializing in country blues, jazz, black folk song, and sometimes field recordings, since 1963. Welding had his own folk music program on radio station WHYI, in Philadelphia, and showcased some unknown blues artists on the program. Since 1961, Welding also wrote LP liner notes for Vee-Jay and OJL (Origin Jazz Library), plus reviews and articles in magazines such as Down Beat and Blues Unlimited.

Recordings on the Testament label were mostly collected by Pete Welding and sometimes by David Evans. Among the earliest titles, Testament issued the LP Down on Stovall's Plantation, containing the first field recordings of the unknown McKinley Morganfield (who would become Muddy Waters), made in 1941 and 1942 for the Library of Congress. The Archive of Folk Song of the Library of Congress also supplied the tapes from 1970 for Jack Owens and Benjamin "Bud" Spires's album, titled It Must Have Been the Devil (1971, Testament T-2222), plus some "primitive" recordings of "fife and drum band music" made in Georgia, Alabama, Texas, and Mississippi from 1942 to 1970, titled Traveling Through the Jungle: Negro Fife and Drum Band Music from the Deep South, offering syncopation and polyrhythms on African American minstrel pieces and spirituals ("When the Saints Go Marchin' In," "Jesse James") owing much to traditional African folk and old British military sounds.

Most original LPs released on the Testament label were first distributed by OJL (mostly by direct mail orders), and many are now reissued on CD by HighTone Records, sometimes in extended versions, in the HighTone Testament Series, featuring Mississippi Fred McDowell (Jesus Is on the Mainline), Eddie Taylor (Peach Tree Blues), Robert Nighthawk (I'm Gettin' Tired), Johnny Shines (So Cold in Vietnam), Bill Jackson (Titanic Blues), Johnny Young (All My Money Gone), Mississippi Fred McDowell (Goin' Down South), Big Joe Williams (Annie Mae), and many others.

YVES LABERGE

Bibliography

HighTone Records website, <http://www.hightone.com/>; on-line catalog of many reissued Testament recordings on CD.

Leblanc, Eric. "Peter John Welding," <http://www.island.net/~blues/pwelding.html>.

Nelson, David, Bruce Bromberg, and Raeburn Flerlage. "Pete Welding." Living Blues no. 126 (March/April 1996): 59–60.

Welding, Pete. "Testament Records." Blues World website, <http://www.bluesworld.com/PWTessay.html>; history of the label as told by its founder.

———. "The Testament Story." Blues World no. 42 (Spring 1972): 3–4; no. 43 (Summer 1972): 3–4; no. 144 (Autumn 1972): 3–6.

Selected Recordings

Jack Owens and Benjamin "Bud" Spires. It Must Have Been the Devil: Mississippi Country Blues (1971, Testament LP T-2222; HighTone CD 5016).

Muddy Waters. Down on Stovall's Plantation: The Historic 1941–42 Library of Congress Recordings (ca. 1966, Testament LP T-2210).

Various artists. Traveling Through the Jungle: Negro Fife and Drum Band Music from the Deep South (ca. 1971, Testament LP T-2223).

See also HighTone; OJL (Origin Jazz Library)

TEXAS

Geography

Given the vast expanse and diverse geography of Texas, it's not surprising the state has been home to all hues of blues. In square miles Texas is roughly the same size as France, and it possesses as many blues regions as there are French wine regions. And, in a similar fashion, each has a special character directly linked to the soil and surroundings of its origin.

The sheer physical size of the state, not only fifty thousand square miles larger than France but also equal to the combined size of California, New York, and Florida, is overwhelming. Texas, which adjoins four states and shares a thousand-mile-long border with Mexico, is 790 miles long and 660 miles wide at its most distant points. The southern tip of Brownsville is a thousand miles closer to Mexico City than it is to Washington, D.C., while the state's easternmost point is closer to the Atlantic Ocean than to its westernmost metropolitan area of El Paso, which resides in the Rocky Mountain time zone.

Southern sensibilities prevail in the rich farming land of East Texas, which also incorporates pristine piney woods. The rolling hills of Central Texas, where ranching is prominent, have more of a Western feel, while the south, where the Gulf Coast Plain meets the Gulf of Mexico, is heavily influenced by Hispanic culture.

The topography of the state ranges from the sandy dunes of its Gulf Coast shoreline to a southern extension of the Rocky Mountains called Trans-Pecos, where Guadalupe Peak, at 8,749 feet, is the highest point in Texas.

History

Texas, as the only state to exist as a sovereign nation in its own right, has an extraordinarily rich and colorful history that has been the subject of multitudes of movies, books, and popular songs. From the Alamo to the first astronauts, Texas has established an identity of adventurous self-reliance that is reflected in blues stylings that are similarly bold, proud, and original.

In addition to its iconic lone star state banner, a half dozen flags have flown over Texas, beginning with the early colonial emblems of France, Spain, and Mexico. Each affiliation, however brief or involuntary, left an enduring influence on the state's culture.

Beginning in the 1530s, Spanish exploration parties led by Cabeza de Vaca, Francisco Coronado, and Hernando de Soto passed through the state, but it wasn't until 1682 that the first Spanish settlement appeared near what would become El Paso. Under constant attack by Comanche and Apache raiding parties, the settlement didn't last long, but the Spanish eventually established a presence in the state. A French expedition under the leadership of LaSalle landed on Galveston island in 1685 and planted its flag, but little came of subsequent colonization efforts by France.

Texas began to take shape in 1821, the year the territory was ceded to Mexico when it won independence from Spain. That's when Stephen F. Austin led three hundred families to the state to create the first major American settlement. Even before Austin's settlements in the Colorado and Brazos river valleys were officially established, more Americans were streaming into the state. Within a decade Americans, primarily Southerners, outnumbered Mexicans three to one in the region.

The combination of Anglo aspirations for autonomy and increasingly repressive territorial rule by Mexico led to the revolution of 1835. The eight-month campaign started badly, if heroically, for the Texans with the siege at the Alamo, but Sam Houston's defeat of the Mexican army at San Jacinto secured independence. The Republic of Texas existed until 1845 before joining the United States with a provision authorizing secession should the state change its mind in the future.

After the Civil War, during which Texas was the only Confederate state not overrun by Union troops, the state's economic base and cultural character became heavily intertwined with cattle ranching.

Texas was transformed at the beginning of the twentieth century by an oil boom that began with the Spindletop gusher in 1901. Although ranching and agriculture would continue to be prominent, the nature of the state's economy soon became an urban industrial one instead of one with the prior rural planter emphasis.

The completion of the Houston ship channel in 1914 gave the state one of the leading ports in North America and led to an energetic economic expansion that continued unabated through most of the century, including the depression, which Texas, with its history of self-reliance and abundant natural resources, weathered relatively easily.

The space age arrived early in Texas via the state's leading role in NASA exploration. Several decades later the state was on the cutting edge of a high-tech boom centered on Austin's semiconductor and computer industry that effectively created the twenty-first-century Texas economy dichotomy of down-to-earth commodities such as oil and cattle coexisting with computers and spacecraft.

The image of Texas as a frontier where economic advancement is possible has made it a magnet for immigration from the beginning of its history, and it has assimilated numerous cultures into its all-inclusive social fabric. That tradition, which began when the Caddo and Comanche tribes in the 1600s relocated in advance of influxes of immigrants from Spain, Mexico, and the United States, continues to the present day as the state has welcomed large numbers of Asian and Central American refugees.

Pre-Blues Era

Before the music had a name, it had a following. “Songsters,” the itinerant entertainers who performed live overviews of African American popular culture, presaged the blues even while they preserved its seminal sources. It was the songsters who segued slave songs into blues by creating a populist, all-inclusive folk art form that served as the musical core of most twentieth-century American entertainment.

A songster was usually a one-man revue capable of coming up with something for everyone. That required an unusually expansive musical repertoire, as well as a bit of theatrical ability. In addition to providing an encyclopedic array of dance styles, the songsters performed every form of popular music, mixing ballads, rags, field chants, spirituals, and any and everything else that either caught their fancy or generated a positive audience response. Much of the material mandated storytelling expertise, and the most successful songsters soon discovered the best stories were always autobiographical. Their travels imparted credibility to their image of having seen and done it all, and it was this subtle personalization of the music that created the context within which most blues would ultimately be constructed.

Henry “Ragtime Texas” Thomas may have been the first to make an enduring name for himself as a songster because his 1874 birth date predates even the legendary Charley Patton. Thomas left the family farm in his teens and was performing steadily before the turn of the twentieth century. Blues were just one aspect of the Thomas show, one that featured him performing on the “quills,” a version of pan pipes popular in the South in the 1800s. Thomas’s material, which he did not record until the late 1920s, found its way into modern blues through remakes by Taj Mahal, Bob Dylan, and Canned Heat, among others.

The best-known modern Texas songster was Mance Lipscomb, the son of an Alabama slave. Lipscomb, who was born in 1895 and later renamed himself after a local elder named Emancipation, didn’t record until he was sixty five. By that time his vintage folk-blues sound, firmly ingrained with sharecropper sensibilities, was as fully developed as it was personalized and unaffected by outside music trends. But while Lipscomb’s music may have been pure, it certainly wasn’t primitive. The fascination with the authenticity of his oral history songcraft served to obscure his advanced talents as a guitarist. His mastery of the multiple styles necessary for the songster’s role was impressive, but it was his ability to recast tunes in different keys and tempos that set him apart from more conventional guitarists.

The last true Texas songster was an unlikely one since he wasn’t an acoustic guitarist. Roosevelt “Grey Ghost” Williams maintained the tradition into the 1990s, reprising the century-old repertoire from behind the piano. In his prime he had become legendary for appearing out of nowhere to play dances and social functions and then disappearing into the night as he hopped a train to the next music-hungry gathering. He was brought out of retirement in his later years in Austin, recording and regularly performing tunes that fans from six or seven decades before would recognize and enjoy.

Prewar Era

Classic Vocalists

The full-throated, demonstrative vocals of Alger “Texas” Alexander reverberated forcefully through the Texas folk-blues tradition for most of the twentieth century. Alexander was widely known in Texas for his dramatic live act long before he made his recording debut in 1927. Alexander’s passionate singing style combined with the ability to endlessly improvise new verses made him a popular attraction wherever he played, whether at a county fair or on a street corner. His vocal virtuosity was very influential on the generation of younger folk bluesmen, including movement leader Lightnin’ Hopkins, who popularized the music years later. Alexander, who played no instrument, also provided employment for numerous guitarists who accompanied him, most of whom, including in addition to Hopkins everyone from Blind Lemon Jefferson to Lowell Fulson, would go on to successful careers of their own.

Alexander recorded throughout the 1930s, but his career momentum was destroyed in 1940 by a prison stay for the murder of his wife. With the help of Hopkins he made a half-hearted and only partly successful comeback attempt after his release.

Shreveport, Louisiana, native Elzadie Robinson, already a popular entertainer at age twelve, served as a trailblazing pioneer for Texas female blues singers. Usually accompanied by pianist Will Ezell, she recorded almost three dozen country-tinged blues songs in 1926–1929, exhibiting a strong, sure voice and poised, professional manner. Always backed by outstanding musicians, such as guitarist Blind Blake and clarinetist Johnny Dodds, she melded Gulf Coast sensibilities with those of her adopted Chicago in songs with surprisingly prim and proper lyrics for an era when sexual innuendo was almost mandatory for female blues singers.

Guitarists

Acoustic The sensationalistic saga of Leadbelly (Huddie William Ledbetter) and his prison days made him the best-known guitarist from the pre-war era. But it was virtuoso guitarist Blind Lemon Jefferson, whose advanced abilities as an improviser amazed both fans and fellow players, who was most admired and subsequently most influential on the generation of musicians who ultimately fashioned the fabric of Texas blues. And Jefferson was even directly responsible for Leadbelly's musical development since he taught the older musician slide guitar during a brief performing partnership.

Jefferson was unquestionably the most musically advanced guitarist in the region. He combined his guitar virtuosity with a strong voice and an inherent grasp of showmanship, becoming as popular with fans as he was influential on other musicians. Collecting tips in a tin cup, Jefferson played Dallas street corners in the dangerous Deep Ellum district, often causing so much congestion with his sidewalk serenades that the police were called. He was a local legend for years before his recordings brought him to national attention, ultimately making him by the late 1920s the best-selling male African American artist in the United States.

Jefferson's enlightened guitar technique moved the instrument out of its previous rhythmic role and into the spotlight by breaking with the tradition of having it merely repeat and reinforce vocal lines. His imaginative improvisational solos gave the guitar its own voice, and his technique laid the foundation for T-Bone Walker's pioneering electric guitar work.

Leadbelly, although born a decade earlier than Jefferson, outlived him by twenty years. He was a polished performer, proficient on multiple instruments but most accomplished on the twelve-string guitar, by the time he hit his teens. He met Jefferson in 1915, and for a short while the region's two most important blues figures played as a duo. But Leadbelly was in a Texas prison two years later. He played for the governor to get a pardon but was back in prison in the 1930s. Once he was able to stay out from behind bars, he achieved major national success.

Blind Willie Johnson, born on the outskirts of Temple, was the premier sacred slide guitarist of the region. Johnson had wanted to be an evangelical musician from an early age, and his testifying blues style, featuring searing pocketknife slide licks and emotion-charged vocals, made him popular with both sacred and secular audiences. Much of his playing was done in the Baptist church, but he also played for tips in Beaumont and traveled enough to catch the ear of other musicians, becoming an inadvertent musical influence while seeking to save souls.

Slide guitarist Willard "Ramblin'" Thomas, who lived up to his name by being a man in almost constant motion, performed his passionate country blues throughout the region in the 1920s and 1930s.

Electric It's not just another Texas brag to say the first and, arguably, most influential blues musician to play electric guitar was a native son. T-Bone Walker was not just the primary blues popularizer of electric guitar; he was the creator of both the instrument and the technique with which to play it, as well as the most artful explorer of its inherent musical possibilities.

Walker's enlightened, expressive electric guitar work had enormous and enduring influence throughout the blues world, but in Texas his status was almost godlike, especially to the first generation of guitarists aspiring to emulate him. His sophisticated stylings were beyond the ability of some, but for most, including numerous legendary disciples, they became the framework for the modern evolution of the music. Walker even had an impact on the development of jazz through his boyhood friend and later musical protégé Charlie Christian, the legendary guitarist given credit for popularizing the instrument in that genre.

The dominance of Walker's sound in Texas was almost total for two decades. It wasn't until the modern era, when innovators such as Albert Collins came up with a new sound or someone emphasized outside influences, such as Freddie King's Chicago energy, that the sound of Texas electric blues guitar and the sound of T-Bone Walker weren't one and the same.

Texas Western Swing

The quintessential blues style of the Lone Star state, the Texas Shuffle, is characterized by a lean and limber swing that is often as much country jazz as it is basic blues. It, like most Texas music, was the product of the almost inadvertent stylistic cross-pollination generated by the frequent interaction of the state's musicians.

The music style, originally called "Texas Swing" because of its immense, but localized, popularity in the state, found its way into the blues scene in several ways, but the primary facilitator was the shared sensibilities and shared audiences of the genres. Western swing, like Texas blues, began and thrived as small town dance music, entertaining rural fans in shows at roadhouses and county fairs.

Blues, of course, had already had its influence on Western swing via the jazzy rhythms at the base of the sound. It also could be heard in the bowing technique of the fiddlers, who produced the signature sound of the style by using long, smooth strokes instead of the staccato tapping approach common to country music.

The strong Texas tradition of African American cowboys, as well as the fiddle's enduring popularity as an African American instrument, especially in Central Texas, also figured in the blues assimilation of Western swing. Musicians such as Clarence "Gatemouth" Brown, a country fiddler in addition to his blues guitar prowess, mixed and matched melodies and styles from the beginning of the twentieth century until its conclusion.

Postwar to Present, by Region

East Texas Rural

In the postwar boom the attraction of larger audiences and the opportunity to record pulled most established blues musicians out of the deep woods of East Texas and into the cities, primarily Houston and Dallas, although some relocated out of state to Shreveport, Louisiana, and Little Rock, Arkansas. The ones who remained close to home played mostly at local social functions and church dances and were rarely recorded in their prime, despite belated attempts by ethnomusicologists.

Other than Mance Lipscomb, the Navasota folk bluesman who achieved late life success, not recording until he was sixty five, the best known East Texan was probably country bluesman Melvin "Lil Son" Jackson. Like Lipscomb, he was indebted to Lightnin' Hopkins for his professional breakthrough, one that came when he was holding a day job as a mechanic in Dallas. Jackson, born in Tyler in 1915, recorded in Houston after sending an unsolicited demo to Hopkins's label. His blues approach, autobiographical and permeated with references to African American culture and traditions, was highly representative of the East Texas rural sound. Jackson, however, ultimately gave up the blues for spiritual reasons.

Guitarists Frank Robinson and Guitar Curtis played in and around the Crockett area for years, and Andrew "Smokey" Hogg, who worked with slide guitarist Black Ace at dances around Greenville in the 1930s, remained active as a performer and recording artist throughout the 1950s. But once the big farming communities modernized, the distinction between rural and urban blues became meaningful only to academics as the music and its fans broadened and dispersed.

Houston

Houston, as the jumping-off spot for the musical migration to California, was the epicenter of the postwar Texas blues scene. Much of what would be played in California was premiered in Houston as major artists such as Charles Brown, from nearby Texas City, Amos Milburn, Percy Mayfield, and Ivory Joe Hunter all established themselves through performing and recording in Houston before leaving to create the West Coast scene.

Dallas had previously dominated due to the lack of recording opportunities in Houston, but the advent of local labels such as Gold Star, where Lightnin' Hopkins first recorded, and, most important, Peacock, where controversial entrepreneur Don Robey built a blues empire, radically altered the situation.

Peacock, originally intended as a showcase for Clarence "Gatemouth" Brown, escalated blues activity in Houston, especially after the label acquired Duke Records and its roster of artists, which included Bobby "Blue" Bland and Junior Parker. Their success meant steady session work for talented sidemen such as pianist Teddy Reynolds and guitarists Clarence Holliman and Wayne Bennett, among many others, and their presence in Houston considerably deepened the live music talent pool in both quantity and quality.

Everyone didn't record for Duke/Peacock, as guitarist Goree Carter, vocalist Peppermint Harris, and singer/guitarist Lester Williams were among the early recording artists in the city. And, of course, Lightnin' Hopkins, possibly the most widely recorded bluesman in history, also regularly made the rounds of Houston studios, collecting a cash per-song fee up front and then moving on to another label.

Hopkins's pervasive presence in the city gave Houston a rare combination of country blues purveyors, as similar artists such as Lil Son Jackson, Juke Boy Bonner, and Nathaniel “Bill” Barnes successfully plied their trade, and electrified urban stylists. The city aspect of the city/country dichotomy came primarily from an assemblage of classic Texas guitar greats and contemporaries, including Albert Collins, Johnny Copeland, Pete Mayes, Johnny “Guitar” Watson, Hop Wilson, Joe “Guitar” Hughes, and Johnny Brown, among others.

It was the excitement generated by Collins and his fellow “guitar slingers” that gave Houston its modern blues identity, but there was no shortage of other noteworthy instrumentalists, including saxists Grady Gaines and Eddie “Cleanhead” Vinson, among many others, and keyboardist Katie Webster.

Houston, the birthplace of Sippie Wallace, also has an unusually strong female vocal heritage that features Big Mama Thornton, Esther Phillips, Lavelle White, and Carol Fran. As the westernmost stop on zydeco tours coming out of Louisiana, the city also developed an active scene focusing on swamp sounds.

Depleted by the deaths of its founders and unable to compete with the crossover excitement of the Austin scene, Houston’s blues significance suffered in the closing years of the twentieth century, although a healthy live scene continued to exist.

Dallas/Fort Worth

The Metroplex blues scene of Dallas and Ft. Worth developed numerous major blues talents, but it never developed a distinct identity. It came closest in the 1920s and 1930s when its Deep Ellum district was the home base for a litany of seminal folk blues legends, including Blind Lemon Jefferson, Leadbelly, and Lonnie Johnson. Dallas also established itself as a recording center during this period, as well a regular stop for touring national acts.

T-Bone Walker stepped in after the decline of Deep Ellum and dominated the Metroplex blues scene with his unprecedented combination of musical innovation and crowd-pleasing showmanship. His relocation to California physically removed him from the local scene but his music was a pervasive presence for decades afterward.

Guitarist ZuZu Bollin and vocalist Frankie Lee Sims were local stars and influences but their fame didn’t travel far. Pianist Alex “Whistlin” Moore was belatedly discovered decades after his prime, while stylish guitarist Cornell Dupree later carved out a prolific career as an R&B and jazz recording session star. And, of course, the rocking blues of Freddie King was a major modern influence, especially on Metroplex guitarists, even though he moved to Chicago.

The early modern scene coalesced around the Bluebird club in Fort Worth and its roster of up-and-coming young blues talents, such as the biracial band the Juke Jumpers, roadhouse singer Delbert McClinton, and the dynamic duo of guitarist U. P. Wilson and singer Robert Ealey.

Soul-flavored singers such as Z. Z. Hill, Al “TNT” Braggs, and R. L. Griffin always flourished in the area, and guitarist/vocalist Tutu Jones kept the tradition alive with regular recording and performing activity into the twenty-first century.

Many of the musicians, including the Vaughan brothers, vocalist/bandleader Paul Ray, vocalist Lou Ann Barton, and drummer/singer/songwriter Doyle Bramhall, who would create the blues boom in Austin, began their careers in the Metroplex area.

The contemporary scene has been dominated by the long-running bands of journeyman guitarists Anson Funderburgh and Smokin’ Joe Kubek.

Austin

Although known as a guitar town in modern times, keyboards set the tone early on in the state capital, with pioneer pianists such as barrelhouse master Robert Shaw and his keyboard compatriots Lavada Durst, Erbie Bowser, and Roosevelt “Grey Ghost” Williams being the best-known local bluesmen.

During and immediately following World War II, a thriving live music scene that capitalized on the proximity of Central Texas military bases evolved in the African American neighborhoods of East Austin. At historic venues such as the Victory Grill national touring acts were performing, a singing soldier from nearby Fort Hood named Bobby “Blue” Bland was winning the amateur talent contest, and guitarist T. D. Bell’s high-powered band the Cadillac was the cream of the local crop, although Blues Boy Hubbard wasn’t far behind.

Sonny Rhodes, from nearby Smithville, perfected his lap steel guitar stylings in Austin and recorded his first single there in between gigs as a bass player for Albert Collins and Freddie King. Guitarist Pee Wee Crayton, from neighboring Rockdale, also worked out his jazz-inflected style on the scene before relocating to California.

A new generation of young Anglo blues players took over in the 1970s with acts such as Paul Ray & the Cobras and Southern Feeling, the former featuring guitarist Stevie Ray Vaughan, the latter including singers W. C. Clark and Angela Strehli, developing faithful followings. The arrival of Antone’s nightclub, and, later, its record label, energized and educated the blues scene as owner Clifford Antone aggressively pursued blues greats, even bringing some out of retirement, for bookings. The opportunity to learn from and play with them radically upgraded the quality of a scene already almost overstocked with major musical talent.

Austin became the home base of modern swamp blues proponent Marcia Ball, who, with Strehli and Lou Ann Barton, gave the city an unusually talented trio of female blues stars. Sue Foley joined their ranks after Antone imported her for recording. Stalwarts such as guitarists Denny Freeman and Derek O'Brien, bassist Sarah Brown, and drummer George Rains anchored an active scene that attracted still more blues players, both aspiring and accomplished.

The phenomenal success of Stevie Ray Vaughan in the 1980s, which built upon the attention gained by the Fabulous Thunderbirds a few years earlier, solidified Austin's reputation as a regional blues center.

The tragic 1990 death of Vaughan, who had moved back to Dallas months earlier, didn't derail the Austin scene. Vaughan's Double Trouble rhythm section of drummer Chris Layton and bassist Tommy Shannon kept the name alive, amassing extensive recording credits and touring behind Buddy Guy and others. W. C. Clark successfully delved deeper into southern soul with a series of successful recordings, while Jimmie Vaughan, who left the Fabulous Thunderbirds for a solo career, continued to record and perform, usually with Barton as a vocalist.

Hard-working Omar Dykes, who relocated to Austin in the mid-1970s and established Omar & the Howlers as an international touring attraction, harpist Gary Primich, folk bluesman Steve James, multi-instrumentalist Guy Forsyth, and no-nonsense guitarist John McVey formed the core of the city's blues scene at the end of the century. A talented younger generation, including Nick Curran, Ruthie Foster, Jake Andrews, Gary Clark, Jr., and Erin Jaimes, carried the Austin blues banner into the twenty-first century.

Port Arthur and Beaumont

The crossover success of Janis Joplin and brothers Johnny and Edgar Winter would be enough to put the Beaumont/Port Arthur/Orange area on the blues map. But the Louisiana border region, known as the "Golden Triangle" during its postwar heyday as a petrochemical and shipbuilding center, also produced an eclectic array of other artists. Singer/songwriter and left-handed guitarist Barbara Lynn had her first hit as a teenager and was still going strong five decades later. Wildman guitarist Long John Hunter moved away to achieve fame, while his guitarist/vocalist brother Tom Hunter kept the family name active in the area. In similar fashion guitarists Lonnie Brooks and Phillip Walker carved out accomplished careers after leaving the area, while one of their major local influences, Ervin Charles, had a lower profile after opting to stay on his home turf.

The proximity of Louisiana infused strong elements of zydeco and swamp blues into the Golden Triangle sound. Clarence Garlow, as a performer, promoter, and deejay, was an influential popularizer of a hybrid style that integrated a deep, muddy Excello Records sound with the wide-open Texas approach. The Winter brothers, active in Beaumont from when Johnny formed the family band at age fourteen, provided a racial as well as generational bridge that further unified the region's blues scene and sound.

The area, also home to a large number of horn-powered R&B groups, produced an additional succession of distinctive Gulf Coast guitar stylists, including Ashton Savoy, Isaac Payton Sweat, and contemporary star Little Ray Ybarra.

Lubbock

Although singer Angela Strehli, who was instrumental in the Antone's scene in Austin as a performer and recording artist when she wasn't running the club, was a Lubbock native, as was roadhouse soulman Delbert McClinton, there isn't much of a blues heritage in the windswept stop on the western plains. The most prominent blues figure in the modern era was a cook, barbecue genius C. B. Stubblefield. His restaurant became the crossroads of the West Texas blues scene as he went from just feeding the musicians to staging shows. Stubb's, as the barbecue and blues establishment was known, soon attracted attention far beyond West Texas, and a steady stream of national blues acts dropped by the out-of-the-way spot to eat and/or play. But most of Lubbock's most accomplished musicians, including Strehli, Joe Ely, Jesse Taylor, Butch Hancock, and Jimmie Dale Gilmore, began to relocate to the more active Austin scene.

Stubblefield eventually followed the musicians to Austin, setting up shop at Antone's before opening a new restaurant a few years before his death. His name, now used for one of Austin's major outdoor concert venues, remains one of the most beloved in modern Texas blues.

San Antonio

Texas blues has long benefited from a unique cross-cultural advantage afforded by its assimilation of Mexican culture. San Antonio, where Robert Johnson recorded many of his classic compositions in the 1930s, became the center of a multiracial blues boom in the 1960s that produced singer/guitarists Randy Garibay and Doug Sahm and saxist Clifford Scott, among others. The San Antonio sound was usually reinforced with horns, frequently mixing big band and mariachi sensibilities. At the same time Long John Hunter was creating another style of Tex-Mex border blues in Juarez across the Rio Grande from El Paso. Hunter's no-holds-barred showmanship and authoritative guitar work made him the most popular blues act in West Texas.

MICHAEL POINT

Bibliography

- Antone, Susan. Antone's Presents Picture the Blues: Eleventh Anniversary. Austin, TX: Blues Press, 1986.
- Bastin, Bruce. "The East Coast and Texas." In New Blackwell Guide to Recorded Blues, edited by Paul Oliver and John Cowley. Oxford: Blackwell Press, 1996.
- Campbell, Randolph B. Gone to Texas: A History of the Lone Star State. New York: Oxford University Press, 2003.
- Damora, Robert. "Houston Zydeco: From Churches to Clubs." Living Blues no. 116 (July/August 1994): 44–47.
- Ginell, Cary, and Roy Lee Brown. Milton Brown and the Founding of Western Swing. Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 1994.
- Govenar, Alan B. Living Texas Blues. Dallas, TX: Dallas Museum of Art, 1985.
- . Meeting the Blues: The Rise of the Texas Sound. Dallas, TX: Taylor, 1989.
- Grossman, Stefan. Texas Blues. New York: Oak, 1984.
- Jackson, Bruce. Wake Up Dead Man: Afro-American Work-songs from Texas Prisons. Cambridge, MA: Harvard University Press, 1972.
- Oliphant, Dave. Texas Jazz. Austin, TX: University of Texas Press, 1996.
- Shurman, Dick. "Post-War Texas and the West Coast." In New Blackwell Guide to Recorded Blues, edited by Paul Oliver and John Cowley. Oxford: Blackwell Press, 1996.

THACKERY, JIMMY

b. 19 May 1953; Pittsburgh, PA

Electric guitarist, initially with the Nighthawks, then in a high-profile solo career. He has recorded for the Blind Pig and Telarc labels.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

AMG (Richard Skelly); Larkin; Santelli

Discography: AMGTHARPE, SISTER ROSETTA

b. 20 March 1915 or 1916; Cotton Plant, AR
d. 9 October 1973; Philadelphia, PA

Rosetta Tharpe—better known as "Sister" Rosetta Tharpe in the church—was a gifted singer and guitarist who distinguished herself as gospel music's first superstar. Tharpe was not a blues musician in the traditional sense, identifying herself as a religious performer throughout most of her career. Yet her musical sensibility was deeply rooted in blues, and her influence radiated beyond gospel, touching performers of blues, rhythm and blues, and early rock 'n' roll.

Tharpe was born to Katie Bell Nubin on a cotton plantation in the Delta region of Arkansas. She received her earliest musical training at the local sanctified church, where her mother sang and played mandolin in day-long worship services that featured rollicking, improvisational, and heartfelt congregational music-making. Their denomination, the Church of God in Christ (COGIC), distinguished itself from others by welcoming a variety of instruments—including string instruments, brass instruments, and drums—into the church. It also actively encouraged women musicians.

By 1921, Tharpe and her mother had moved to Chicago and joined the Fortieth Street Church of God in Christ, where Tharpe, a guitar prodigy and accomplished pianist, gave her first public performances. In Chicago, Tharpe also briefly attended public school, although she abandoned her formal education to join her mother as a COGIC evangelist. Throughout Tharpe's teenage years the two traveled constantly, singing and playing at revivals. By the late 1930s, when New York talent scouts heard her performing at a Miami tabernacle, Tharpe had developed into an accomplished soloist, attracting listeners from the greater Miami area.

Tharpe was lured to New York by the prospect of larger audiences and a well-paying musical career, as well as by the desire to escape a failing marriage to her first husband, a COGIC minister. By 1938, she had appeared with the Count Basie Band and had become a regular in the Cab Calloway Revue at the Cotton Club, the city's most prestigious (and a whites-only) nightclub. Her success there landed her a recording contract with Decca, a publishing deal with Mills Music, and a place in the lineup of John Hammond's vaunted "Spirituals to Swing" concert at Carnegie Hall that December. She also introduced her swinging spirituals to crowds at the Savoy, Café Society, and the Apollo Theater. Collectively, these accomplishments were unprecedented and turned Tharpe—a musician adept at channeling the charisma of the sanctified church in secular performances—into gospel's first "entertainer" of national stature.

Tharpe's popularity skyrocketed in the 1940s, in concert with a number of significant collaborations. In 1941 she toured briefly with Louis Jordan's band (preceding Dinah Washington and Sarah Vaughan), and teamed up with the Lucky Millinder Orchestra, with whom she produced swing hits, including "I Want a Tall Skinny Papa," a racy number that led some in the church to recoil from her music. Her work with the Sam Price trio led, in 1944, to "Strange Things Happening Every Day," a song that made the "race" charts and heralded early rock 'n' roll with its steady beat and spare instrumentation. Tharpe's pairing, beginning in 1947, with Marie Knight, a young gospel singer from Newark, New Jersey, gave rise to such gorgeous gospel duets as "Didn't It Rain," "Up Above My Head," and "My Journey to the Sky." The partnership with Knight lasted the better part of the decade and was Tharpe's most significant, musically and personally.

Tharpe performed her most memorable concert in July 1951 at Griffith Stadium in Washington, D.C., where she played before a crowd of more than twenty thousand fans who had come to see her get married to her third husband, Russell Morrison (Tharpe had suffered a disastrous second marriage in the 1940s). The "wedding concert" made national headlines in the black press and was recorded by Decca, which released a recording of the concert, wedding vows and all. Despite her ability to attract stadium-sized crowds, however, the 1950s brought setbacks in Tharpe's life and career. She lost the Richmond, Virginia, house that she had purchased in the 1940s with Marie Knight and saw her popularity eclipsed by stars such as Mahalia Jackson and the Clara Ward Singers.

Like a number of blues and gospel musicians, however, Tharpe saw the flame of her career rekindled in Europe, which she visited first in 1957, at the invitation of English bandleader Chris Barber. The tour—which featured Tharpe reaching into her old repertoire for songs such as "Precious Memories" and "Peace in the Valley"—was a huge success, and ardent English fans (later joined by French fans including Hugues Panasié) hailed her as a genius in the tradition of Muddy Waters and Big Bill Broonzy. Tharpe basked in the adulation, insisting in the British press that blues and gospel were the products of the same tradition.

Sister Rosetta Tharpe in the 1950s. (Photo courtesy Frank Driggs Collection)

European tour dates—including appearances at Montreux and the American Folk Blues Festivals—occupied Tharpe for most of the 1960s, although she made her home in Philadelphia, in the same neighborhood where gospel singers Marion Williams and Frances Steadman lived. Tharpe was playing a concert in Europe in 1970 when she suffered a stroke that led to the amputation of a leg. Yet she soldiered on, singing and playing guitar in a wheelchair at Lincoln Center in 1972 and planning new recordings, until she died of diabetes-related illness in 1973.

The most notable quality of Tharpe's music is its blending of blues and religious sounds. Tharpe injected into all of her gospel material, from her earliest recordings ("Rock Me" or "I Looked Down the Line") to recordings made at the height of her career ("Daniel in the Lion's Den," "Precious Lord"), a blues sensibility that distinguished her from other gospel soloists of the time. She also played guitar in a finger-picking style as visually arresting as it was audibly thrilling. Among fans, Tharpe was well loved for her ability to make the guitar “talk.” Her success as a woman singer who accompanied herself on guitar is paralleled only by Memphis Minnie.

GAYLE WALD

Bibliography

- AMG (Jason Ankeny); Larkin; New Grove Jazz
 Gilmore, Lea. “Sister Rosetta Tharpe: The Original Soul Sister.” Sing Out! 47, no. 4 (Winter 2004): 47–53.
 Heilbut, Anthony. The Gospel Sound: Good News and Bad Times. New York: Simon and Schuster, 1971.
 Jackson, Jerma A. Singing in My Soul: Black Gospel Music in a Secular Age. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press, 2004.

Discography: AMG; DGR; Gospel Music 1943–1969

Reissues

Complete Sister Rosetta Tharpe, Vol. 3: 1947–1951 (Frémeaux & Associés FA 1303; complete Decca output from 1947–1951; also includes previously unissued recordings from 1938 Carnegie Hall concert and Tharpe’s recordings as “Sister Katty Marie”). Sister Rosetta Tharpe: Complete Recorded Works. Vol. 1: 1938–1941 (Document Records DOCD-5334); Vol. 2: 1938–1944 (Document Records DOCD-5335); Vol. 3: 1946–1947 (Document Records DOCD-5607) (reissues in chronological order of all of Tharpe’s output from Decca until 1947; includes soundtrack for three soundies with the Lucky Millinder Band as well as AFRS Jubilee broadcasts).

See also American Folk Blues Festival; Arkansas; Bessie, Count; Black Sacred Music; Broonzy, Big Bill; Calloway, Cab; Decca; Guitar; Jordan, Louis; Mandolin; Memphis Minnie; Millinder, Lucky; Price, Sammy; Rock ’n’ Roll; Washington, Dinah; Waters, Muddy; Women and the Blues

THEARD, SAM “SPO-DEE-O-DEE”

- b. 10 October 1904; New Orleans, LA
 d. 7 December 1982; Los Angeles, CA

Comedian and novelty singer in the blues and jazz idioms. Theard began his career in the circus, eventually working regularly the black vaudeville circuit. He recorded more than fifty songs from 1929 to 1940, notably “Let the Good Times Roll,” “I’ll Be Glad When You’re Dead You Rascal You,” and “Spo-Dee-O-Dee,” which gave him his nickname. During much of his career, he performed in major black and tan clubs, notably the Club DeLisa in Chicago. In the 1970s, Theard developed a career in Hollywood, appearing on the TV shows Sanford and Son and Little House on the Prairie and in such films as Which Way Is Up? and Norman, Is That You?

ROBERT PRUTER

Bibliography

- O’Neal, Jim. “Sam Theard” [obituary]. Living Blues no. 55 (Winter 1983/1983): 38–39.

Discography: DGR

THEATER, BLUES IN

Despite the fact that classic blues artists recording early in the twentieth century, such as Gertrude “Ma” Rainey, Bessie Smith, and Ida Cox, were contemporaries of “New Negro” writers including Alain Locke, Countee Cullen, Arna Bontemps, and W. E. B. DuBois, with the notable exceptions of Sterling Brown and Langston Hughes, very few saw the value of the blues as folk expression. Instead, those who deemed themselves to be at the vanguard of the black cultural arts movement shunned the blues and its proponents. Many members of the newly emerging black middle class drew distinctions between “high” and “low” art based largely on opportunities for formal education and economic conditions. Hughes, however, loved the “little people” and the blues.

Hughes came to the attention of W. E. B. DuBois when at age eighteen his play The Gold Piece was published in The Brownies’ Book (1921), a children’s magazine started by DuBois along with the editors of Crisis. Mulatto, Hughes’s first professional production, was performed on Broadway in 1935. While Mulatto tells the story of the tragic irony of miscegenation in the deep South, a number of his plays resonate with the tenor of the blues. Comedies such as Little Ham, Simply Heavenly, and Tambourines to Glory reflect the characteristic blues strategy of masking the pain of poverty and privation with humor.

On the other hand, the influential DuBois thought that art should forward a political agenda, and he did not believe that the music created by black people held much political saliency. He included only one essay about music in The Souls of Black Folk. His concern, like so many others of that era, was focused on “high culture,” and as a result we must wait until the latter part of the twentieth century before we see significant scholarly contributions in the area of black music as it relates to literature and theater. However, DuBois was interested in the development of black theater. DuBois published his requirements for Negro theater in Crisis, stating that it must be as follows:

1. About us. That is, the plays must have plots that reveal Negro life as it is.
2. By us. That is, the plays must be written by Negro authors who understand from birth and continuing association just what it means to be a Negro today.
3. For us. That is, the theater must cater primarily to Negro audiences and be supported and sustained by their entertainment and approval.
4. Near us. The theater must be in a neighborhood near the mass of ordinary Negro people.

Seemingly, it was the work of African American women playwrights that most closely aligned with DuBois's expectations. DuBois approved of plays written by women such as Mary T. Burrill, Georgia Douglas Johnson, Marita Bonner, Shirley Graham, and Alice Childress because they met the values he identified. Many of these women published plays in Crisis during this era.

Over time, however, African American women playwrights gradually moved audiences away from the issues reflected in the work of the Harlem Renaissance to center on issues of home and family rarely depicted by male authors. Meanwhile, the call for a "black aesthetic" that had been identified by Alain Locke's The New Negro (1925) had not yet been satisfied. As the century began to wind down, the scholars coming of age after the Renaissance challenged earlier assumptions about the blues. Writers such as Larry Neal, Addison Gayle, Amiri Baraka, and Houston A. Baker, Jr., argued that if a distinct black form existed, it would likely emerge from the folk. The blues, they suggested, was such a performance that both lay outside dominant expressive formulations and embodied the wisdom of "black" sensibilities. Baker's seminal work Blues, Ideology, and Afro-American Literature: A Vernacular Theory (1984) helped introduce the language of the blues to scholarship. In this text, Baker argues that, more than a mere musical formulation, the blues transcends folk culture to become an ideology that informs other forms of cultural productions.

Playwrights such as LeRoi Jones (Amiri Baraka), James Baldwin, August Wilson, and Suzan-Lori Parks use the blues to inform the stories they tell. The blues serve as a means of bringing historical circumstances to bear on current or even future situations. While the blues may appear on stage as music, with its traditional three-line stanzas, more frequently it appears as an ideology that informs the action of the play. Characters utilize blues sensibilities as a coping mechanism when they find themselves grappling with a situation peculiar to the African American condition.

Richard's murder is the impetus behind the action of James Baldwin's Blues for Mister Charlie (1964). While his murder takes place before the action begins, we gather the events of his life that led to his death in a series of flashbacks throughout the play. His death is tragic in spite of its predictability (or perhaps because of it). In a conversation with the Reverend Meridian Henry, Richard's father, Parnell James, the editor of the local newspaper, expresses his concern about the level of hostility seething within the black community after the murder:

Parnell: I've never seen you like this before. There's something in your tone I've never heard before—rage—maybe hatred—

Meridian: You've heard it before. You just never recognized it before. You've heard it in all those blues and spirituals and gospel songs you claim to love so much.

Like other African American music, the blues masks the rage characters feel and translates the emotion into something outsiders can bear to hear.

The blues also speak of change. Movement is one of the dominant characteristics of the blues. The call of the whistle and the rattling over the rails signal the sorrow of departures and the hope of a new direction for the agents of the blues. LeRoi Jones's Clay from Dutchman (1964) is a young traveler, the next generation of bluesmen. Symbolically, he has left the railway junctures for the subway train of the urban North. In a moment of anger against an only partially imagined white enemy and fellow traveler, Lula, a "liberated white woman" who targets him as a mark, he begins a diatribe in which he rails, "They say, 'I love Bessie Smith.' And don't even understand that Bessie Smith is saying, 'Kiss my ass, kiss my black unruly ass.'" It is unclear if Clay is referring to any particular song recorded by Bessie Smith or if Jones intentionally slips in order to suggest that Clay, in fact, has become alienated from his culture (certainly, Ma Rainey shows the world her "black bottom" in Ma Rainey's Black Bottom). Later, Clay suggests, "If Bessie Smith had killed some white people she wouldn't have needed that music."

Lula critiques Clay for his social privilege, suggesting that as a result of his economic class, education, and youth he is more removed from the "black experience" than she is. He counters by suggesting that without the soothing effect of the blues, he is precariously close to homicidal rage. Jones's Clay is just one generation removed from Richard Wright's Bigger Thomas, who murders Mary Dalton in Native Son. Clay is wrong, however. He is a false prophet whose angry words are overshadowed by the anger Lula conceals. While Clay believes that his race makes him heir to the blues, it is Lula who ultimately acts out Bigger’s legacy of blues by stabbing Clay twice in the chest as if to avenge the murder of Mary.

Perhaps more than any other playwright, August Wilson draws his material from the blues. The influence of the blues is evident in nearly his entire oeuvre, including: The Piano Lesson, Fences, Joe Turner’s Come and Gone, and Ma Rainey’s Black Bottom. Wilson sees the blues as a sacred means of transferring history, wisdom, culture, and values. In Ma Rainey’s Black Bottom (1981), Wilson explicitly critiques the recording industry that took advantage of blues artists. His fictionalized Ma Rainey is absent throughout a significant portion of the play. This absence serves as a metaphor for her exploitation as an artist. We see as she explains to Cutler, the lead member of her band, however, that she is not deceived: “As soon as they get my voice down on them recording machines, then it’s just like if I’d be some whore and they roll over and put their pants on.” After the men finish gratifying themselves, Rainey suggests, they will walk away with as much regard for her as they would have leaving a prostitute.

Another talented member of her band, Levee, never comes to understand the reality that the white recording industry has little respect for black musicians. Levee believes the blues might provide him with a way of gaining economic control. What he fails to understand is that Ma Rainey gains control because she uses the blues to “fill up that empty space a little bit” that Levee is never able to fill. Levee seeks validation for his blues from Sturdyvant, the record producer. Once Sturdyvant insults him by offering him only five dollars for a song. Levee has no blues to tame the fury raging inside him; his frustrations boil over and he kills Toledo, another member of the band, ostensibly for stepping on his toes. It is, of course, not Toledo but Sturdyvant and the white men who, in his childhood, came in to rape his mother who are the real culprits.

Suzan-Lori Parks creates a modern-day Cain and Able story in Topdog/Underdog (1991), which won the 2002 Pulitzer Prize for drama. Two brothers, Lincoln and Booth, live in a one-room apartment trying to overcome a history of abandonment. First their mother and then two years later their father leave the young brothers to fend for themselves. After one of his friends is murdered, Lincoln gives up his pastime as a three-card hustler for a job impersonating Abraham Lincoln. He enjoys the work: “It’s a sit-down job. With benefits.”

In one scene, after coming home from work Lincoln picks out a blues tune on the guitar. When Booth asks if he’s just made the song up, Lincoln explains that he makes up songs in his head. While the blues only appears explicitly in this one scene, the drama centers around the sentiment of the blues. Booth marvels at Lincoln’s talent when singing this song because Booth’s only talent is shoplifting and he has no skills. Without the blues or any other such expressive devices, Booth does not have a means of venting his frustrations. He kills Lincoln for hustling him out of his “inheritance,” the only thing he has left from his mother.

Although music has undergone many transformations, including the shift to rhythm and blues, rock ’n’ roll, soul, and hip-hop, the blues is the means of expression many modern-day playwrights choose. Born of a unique amalgam of racism, sexism, privation, and hopefulness, no one can say with certainty from where it originates.

VALERIE SWEENEY PRINCE

Bibliography

- Baldwin, James. Blues for Mister Charlie. New York: Random House, 1964.
- DuBois, W. E. B. “Krigwa Players Little Negro Theater.” Crisis 32 (July 1926): 134.
- Jones, LeRoi. Dutchman and the Slave. New York: Perennial, 1964.
- Parks, Suzan-Lori. Topdog/Underdog. New York: Theater Communications Group, 1999.
- Wilson, August. Ma Rainey’s Black Bottom. New York: Plum, 1981.

THERON

Chicago label owned by Connie Toole in 1952–1956. Artists included were Byllye (Billye) Williams and Leon Washington.

EDWARD KOMARA

Discography: McGrath

THIERRY, HUEY PETER “COOKIE”

- b. 16 August 1936; Roanoke, LA
d. 23 September 1997; Lake Charles, LA

Singer and leader of Cookie and the Cupcakes. In 1952 he joined a Lake Charles group, the Boogie Ramblers, which later changed its name to the Cupcakes. Their two national hits, “Mathilda” (1958, Lyric) and “Got You on My Mind” (1962, Lyric) have been credited by historians as a basis of the Louisiana swamp pop style.

From 1965 to 1992 he lived in California and worked outside music. In 1992 he joined the reunited Cupcakes for appearances until his sudden 1997 death from a heart attack.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Hannusch, Jeff. “Cookie Thierry” [obituary]. Living Blues no. 137 (January/February 1998): 50.

Discography: LSFP

THIS TRAIN (MY BABE)

Willie Dixon is often considered one of the greatest songwriters in the blues genre. While he had had some success in the preceding years, in 1955 Little Walter’s recording of “My Babe” was the first Dixon composition to reach number one on the R&B charts, a position it held for an impressive five weeks in the spring and summer of that year. But as is so often the case in blues, “My Babe” did not spring fully formed from the imagination of a lone individual.

The direct predecessor of “My Babe” was the traditional gospel standard “This Train.” One of the earliest recordings of the theme was by Bryant’s Jubilee Quartet in 1931, and a version by the popular Golden Gates Quartet in the mid-1930s achieved widespread popularity. Sister Rosetta Tharpe was widely popular from the late 1930s onward and recorded “This Train” several times during her career, the first time in 1939. There were also other gospel numbers that used variations on the lyrical theme but the above versions all followed the standard gospel chord changes I–V–I–IV, the arrangement that would later be the basis of “My Babe.”

This train don’t carry no sinners . . . ,

In the postwar years “This Train” remained a popular number both in black churches and recording studios. In 1954 Elder Beck recorded his only session for Chicago’s Chess Records, and one of his two songs that day was “This Train.” Willie Dixon was brought in to play bass on that session, and his participation may have provided the inspiration for his reworking of the lyrics from the gospel theme

This train don’t carry no sinners, this train . . .

to the secular

My babe don’t stand no cheatin,’ my babe. . .

Another likely factor contributing to Dixon’s motivation was the success of Ray Charles’s recording “I’ve Got a Woman,” a song that was then somewhat controversial because of its pioneering use of traditional “gospel changes” (the same chord progression later utilized for “My Babe”) to convey a secular message. “I’ve Got a Woman” was riding high on the R&B charts the week Dixon took part in the Elder Beck session, which was followed immediately (possibly even later the same day) by the Little Walter session that produced “My Babe.”

In his autobiography, Dixon stated that he wrote “My Babe” specifically with Little Walter in mind, but that he had a hard time convincing Walter to record it. A first, awkward attempt utilizing similar lyrics but an unchanging, Howlin’ Wolf-ish droning musical arrangement was recorded in July 1954 but went unreleased. But with an unknowing nudge from Elder Beck and Ray Charles, Dixon’s stars aligned in January 1955, resulting in one of the biggest hits of that year and of his career.

The success of Little Walter’s recording of “My Babe” led to dozens of cover versions over the years by artists as diverse as Elvis Presley, rockabilly cats Dale Hawkins, Narvell Felts, and Sonny Burgess, pop singers Cliff Richard and Ricky Nelson, 1960s pop-folk duo Peter & Gordon, country stalwarts Ronnie Milsap and Conway Twitty, jazz artists Ramsey Lewis, Grant Green, Coleman Hawkins, and Gene Ammons, British Invasion acts the Animals and the Spencer Davis Group, plus the Steve Miller Band, Lou Rawls, Ike & Tina Turner, and countless others. Chess Records, which had released the original version on its Checker subsidiary, even “updated” Little Walter’s original 1955 recording in 1961 by overdubbing a female vocal chorus and reissuing it as a new single. Although many blues fans feel that this was tantamount to painting a mustache on the Mona Lisa, the revised version actually achieved some success by crossing over from R&B onto the Billboard pop charts briefly that year.

SCOTT DIRKS

Bibliography

- AMG; DGR
 Dixon, Willie, with Don Snowden. I Am the Blues—The Willie Dixon Story. New York: Da Capo Press, 1989.
 Ruppli, Mike. The Chess Labels. Westport, CT: Greenwood Press, 1983.
 Whitburn, Joel. Bubbling under the Hot 100, 1959–1981. Menomonee Falls, WI: Record Research.
 ———. Top R&B Singles, 1942–1995. Menomonee Falls, WI: Record Research.

THOMAS, BLANCHE

b. 16 October 1922; New Orleans, LA
 d. 21 April 1977; New Orleans, LA

Singer; performed with jazz and blues musicians in New Orleans from the 1940s until her death. Among her notable appearances outside Louisiana were the Elvis Presley film King Creole (1959) and a USO tour of Vietnam and Thailand with Louis Cottrell.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Harris

Discography: Lord; LSFPTHOMAS, CHRIS

(See King, Chris Thomas)

THOMAS, EARL

b. Earl Thomas Bridgeman, Jr., 29 August 1960; Pikeville, TN

Earl Thomas first began gigging in the 1980s at clubs in Arcata, California, while attending Humboldt State University. By the early 1990s, he had relocated to San Diego and was a mainstay of the local music scene.

Heavily influenced by Ike and Tina Turner and other 1960s rhythm and blues acts, Thomas has a powerful, classically trained voice coupled to a strong pop sensibility. He writes highly melodic songs in a classic 1960s soul style. While Thomas tours and performs regularly, his recorded output has been sporadic, making it hard for fans to follow him.

When his mother died in 2001, his father, Earl T. Bridgeman, Sr., relocated from Tennessee to San Diego and began performing and recording as a blues singer-guitarist under the family name.

JIM TRAGESER

Bibliography

AMG (Steve Huey); Larkin
 Trageser, Jim. "My Music Is Blues, Because That's Where It Comes From." Living Blues no. 111 (September/October 1993): 26–32.

Discography: AMG

Blue ... not Blues (1991, Bizarre/Straight 70366).
Extra Soul (1994, Bizarre/Planet Records 40106-2).

THOMAS, ELMER LEE

b. 18 December 1946; Oakland, CA

Son of Elmerlee Thomas who sang with folk group the Gateway Singers. Thomas worked in various styles of music from the 1970s, but from the mid-1980s he devoted himself to acoustic blues as vocalist and guitarist. He recorded three albums between 1992 and 1996 and also one backing his mentor, Brownie McGhee.

RAY ASTBURY

Bibliography

Jung, Maureen. "Acoustic Blues in Oakland: Elmer Lee Thomas." Living Blues no. 126 (March/April 1996): 37–39.

Selected Recordings

Elmer Lee Thomas Blues Revue. Radio Blues (MOT 1220CD).

THOMAS, FRANK, JR.

b. 12 February 1937; near Jackson, MS
 d. 23 October 1976; Chicago, IL

Chicago West Side guitarist; influenced by Muddy Waters and Jimmy Rogers. He performed in the Illinois Flames in the late 1950s, then with various groups in the 1960s. From 1963 to 1973 he was in Mississippi, most of that time in prison, allegedly for a shooting. He returned to Chicago in 1973. He was murdered in 1976 by his mother's boyfriend after an argument over who loved Thomas's mother more.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Wisner, Steve. "Frank Thomas, Jr." [obituary]. Living Blues no. 30 (November/December 1976): 7, 41.

THOMAS, GEORGE

b. ca. 1885; Houston, TX
 d. 1930; Chicago, IL (also shown as 1936; Washington, DC)

Aka Clay Custer. Thomas was the brother of Hersal and Hociel Thomas and of Sippie Wallace. He was partner with Clarence Williams in a music publishing firm in 1914–1919. As a pianist he is credited with recording an antecedent if not early example of a

THOMAS, GEORGE

“walking” boogie bass in “The Rocks” (1923, OKeh 4809).

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Larkin; Santelli

Discography: DGR

THOMAS, HENRY “RAGTIME TEXAS”

b. 1874; Big Sandy, Upshur Country, TX

d. Unknown

Thomas was one of the oldest singers to be recorded, a pre-blues singer who laid down a rich recorded legacy of blues, folk songs, dances, and ballads. He was one of nine children and left home to wander rural communities, playing for his livelihood. Some reports have him appearing at the Columbia Exposition in 1893 and the World’s Fair in St. Louis in 1904.

He recorded twenty-three sides for Vocalion between 1927 and 1929, demonstrating a rich, expressive voice and a percussive strumming guitar style and, on eight tracks, playing the ancient panpipes or quills, once a common instrument among slave populations but rarely heard in blues. It is easy to trace the instrument back to African roots, but Thomas uses it as a blues singer would, punctuating the melody or adding special effects. It all adds to his special appeal as a first-generation bluesman.

Despite the archaic nature of much of his music, Thomas could play the blues as well as anybody, as evidenced on “Shanty Blues,” which is played with a driving slide guitar accompaniment that builds enormous tension. But it is the older material, such as “Charming Betsy,” “Old Country Stomp,” and others that preserve fragments of another age and that make Thomas’s material so valuable to folklorists.

According to researcher Mack McCormick, Thomas may have been active as late as 1949, perhaps even been recorded on a wire recorder. In any event, Thomas’s ultimate fate is unknown.

DAVID HARRISON

Bibliography

AMG (Barry Lee Pearson); Harris; Larkin; Santelli McCormick, Mack. Notes accompanying “Ragtime Texas” Henry Thomas: Complete Recorded Works 1927–1929 in Chronological Order (1975, Herwin H 209, two-LP set).

Discography: DGR

THOMAS, HERSAL

b. ca. 1910; Houston, TX

d. 3 July 1926; Detroit, MI

Hersal Thomas was inspired to learn piano by his older brother, pianist-publisher-composer George Thomas. By age twelve he was playing regularly at house parties and socials. Hersal played for his sister, blues singer Sippie Wallace, at New Orleans clubs until the two moved to Chicago to live and work with George in 1923. While in Chicago, Hersal recorded with Wallace and his niece Hociel Thomas (George’s daughter) as well as recording some of his own material in 1925. He would also get the chance to work alongside jazz greats such as Louis Armstrong and King Oliver. Hersal’s life was tragically cut short at age sixteen due to food poisoning.

ROBERT SORICELLI

Bibliography

Larkin; Santelli

Discography: DGR; Lord

THOMAS, HOCIEL

b. 10 July 1904; Houston, TX

d. 22 August 1952; Oakland, CA

Singer and pianist; daughter of pianist George W. Thomas, aunt of pianist Hersal Thomas, and niece of Sippie Wallace. Thomas moved to New Orleans in 1916 to live with Wallace, and there she began singing. It is believed she moved to Chicago in about 1924. Her four 1924–1925 recording sessions for Gennett and OKeh are with Hersal Thomas as pianist, and two of them with cornetist Louis Armstrong.

After Hersal Thomas’s sudden death from food poisoning in 1926, she maintained her career through theater appearances through the early 1930s, then apparently was inactive in music through the mid-1940s, moving to Oakland in about 1942. Shortly after World War II, she was rediscovered by jazz record collectors, and she revived her performing from 1946 through 1948, playing piano as well as singing. In 1948 a fight with her sister left her blinded and her sister dead; in the ensuing trial, she was acquitted of charges of manslaughter. She died of heart disease in 1952.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

AMG (Uncle Dave Lewis); Harris; Larkin
 Hofer, George. “Tragedy Mars Comeback of a Former Blues Star.” Down Beat 16 (December 16, 1949): 11.

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSFPTHOMAS, IRMA

b. Irma Lee, 18 February 1941; Ponchatoula, LA

Soul and gospel singer nicknamed the “Soul Queen of New Orleans.” Young Irma Lee was discovered in 1959 by bandleader Tommy Ridgley, while she was a waitress at the Pimlico Club. From 1960, Irma Thomas released several singles for small labels such as Ronn, Bandy, Minit, Chess, Canyon, Roker, and Cotillion. Her first single was recorded when she was only nineteen, “You Can Have My Husband (But Please Don’t Mess with My Man),” and among her early R&B successes was “Ruler of My Heart” (1962), composed by Naomi Neville and later adapted by Otis Redding for his song “Pain in My Heart.” In the early years of her career, Irma Thomas was a protégée of producer Allen Toussaint.

A song appearing on the unnoticed B-side of her 1964 Imperial single, “Anyone Who Knows What Love Is (Will Understand),” became a huge hit in England when the Rolling Stones recorded it and later performed it on The Ed Sullivan Show; its title was “Time Is on My Side.” Irma Thomas’s overlooked, original version of “Time Is on My Side” was intense and spirited, with fine backing vocals, organ, and a similar guitar solo, in the tradition of R&B. The overseas cover of the song did not help Thomas’s career; because she was not the author of the song, she did not earn any royalties. For some time, she avoided singing that title on stage.

Thomas continued her career but did not attain the level of success she desired. She more or less left the profession in 1970 but came back after a few years. Among many recordings, she issued a fine live album, Irma Thomas Live, recorded in 1977, taken from a television program made for WVLA-TV in Baton Rouge. In a synthesis of soul and soft rock, Irma Thomas revisits some of her 1960s songs (“It’s Raining,” “Gone”) and often proves that she can be a powerful singer, with stunning performances of “Cry On” (composed by Allen Toussaint) and “Don’t Blame Him.”

During the 1990s, she did her first European tour and released a CD with ten gospel and Christmas songs, titled Walk Around Heaven: New Orleans

Gospel Soul (1994), with her own version of “Holy Night.” Her song “It’s Raining” was rediscovered when it appeared on the soundtrack of the Jim Jarmusch movie Down by Law (1985). Her later CDs are catchy, and she has earned much praise since her affiliation with songwriter Dan Penn.

YVES LABERGE

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Larkin; Santelli
 Cohodas, Nadine. “Irma Thomas: The Stage Is Her Home and Her Throne.” Living Blues no. 128 (July/August 1996): 20–31.
 “Irma Thomas.” Soulful Kinda Music website, <http://www.soulfulkindamusic.net/ithomas.htm>.

Discography: AMG

See also Toussaint, Allen

THOMAS, JAMES “SON” “FORD”

b. 14 October 1926; Eden, MS
 d. 26 June 1993; Greenville, MS

Delta bluesman and folk artist James “Son” Thomas was born a sharecropper in the hills of Yazoo County, Mississippi. Thomas learned guitar from his uncle as a child and would often sneak off to see Elmore James and Aleck Miller “Sonny Boy Williamson II” in area juke joints. Inspired by Tommy McClennan and Arthur Crudup, he developed his raw guitar style and expressive singing voice by playing house parties and local clubs. In 1961, Thomas moved to Leland, Mississippi, and continued to play music while working as a gravedigger to support himself, an occupation he would hold for thirty years.

In the late 1960s, Thomas was discovered by blues researcher William Ferris, who recorded and filmed him and featured him extensively in his book Blues from the Delta. Thomas appeared as the subject of a 1971 documentary and performed at festivals throughout the 1970s. In 1980, he was recorded at his home in Leland for the L+R label, and albums followed on the Swingmaster, Black and Blue, and Rooster labels.

Thomas’s material consisted largely of Delta standards, but his plaintive vocals and occasionally suggestive lyrics made him one of the most popular traditional Delta bluesmen of the 1970s and 1980s at festivals at home and abroad. He was also renowned for his clay and plaster of Paris sculptures, with showings at galleries in New York, Los Angeles, and Washington, D.C. His health drastically declined in 1991 when he was operated on for a brain tumor. In 1993, Thomas suffered a stroke and died shortly after in a Greenville, Mississippi, hospital at age sixty-six.

THOMAS, JAMES “SON” “FORD”

GENE TOMKO

Bibliography

AMG (Ron Wynn); Harris; Larkin; Santelli Ferris, William. Blues from the Delta. London: Studio Vista, 1971.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

Selected Recordings

James “Son” Thomas. Hard Times (2000, Black and Blue CD BB440.2).

Various artists. Living Country Blues—An Anthology (1999, Evidence ECD 26105-2).

THOMAS, JESSE “BABYFACE”

b. 3 February 1911; Logansport, LA

d. 13 August 1995; Shreveport, LA

Blues singer and guitarist. Jesse “Babyface” Thomas is the younger brother of Willard “Ramblin’” Thomas. In his teens Jesse was influenced by Blind Blake and especially Lonnie Johnson. In 1929 Jesse recorded four songs, and he made postwar recordings from 1948 onward. In the late 1950s Jesse moved back to Shreveport, Louisiana. In the final years of his life he made a comeback and even performed in the Netherlands in 1990.

GUIDO VAN RIJN

Bibliography

AMG (Bruce Eder); Herzhaft; Larkin Bonner, Brett J. “Jesse Thomas.” Living Blues no. 124 (November/December 1995): 56–57.

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSFP

THOMAS, JOE

b. 19 June 1909; Uniontown, PA

d. 3 August 1986; Kansas City, MO

Tenor saxophonist; not to be confused with New Orleans musician “Brother Cornbread” Joe Thomas (1902–1981). Thomas’s early success was with Jimmie Lunceford from 1933 through 1947, paving the way from swing to rhythm and blues with his flashy saxophone solos. He later led his own groups, including an octet with which he recorded “Tearing Hair” for the King label in 1948.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Penny, Dave. “Joe Thomas” [obituary]. Blues and Rhythm no. 23 (October 1986): 14.

THOMAS, LAFAYETTE JERL “THING”

b. 13 June 1928; Shreveport, LA

d. 20 May 1977; Brisbane, CA

Lafayette Jerl Thomas was born June 13, 1928, in Shreveport, Louisiana, and was encouraged musically by his uncle, Jesse “Babyface” Thomas, whose brother was country bluesman Willard “Rambling” Thomas. The family moved to San Francisco soon after his birth, and there he learned to play both piano and guitar. In the 1940s he played with Al Simmons’s Rhythm Rockers, Candyman McGuirt’s band, and Little Bob Young’s band. He was nicknamed “The Thing” due to his acrobatic style of playing. He started working club dates with Jimmy McCracklin’s band in 1948, eventually replacing guitarist Robert Kelton. He remained intermittently with McCracklin for most of his career. His first records were for Sam Phillips and were issued on Chess Records under the name L. J. Thomas and His Louisiana Playboys. During this period he played on records by Jimmy Wilson, Juke Boy Bonner, James Reed, and Big Mama Thornton.

His own records were made for small labels such as Jumping, Hollywood, and Trilyte, also cutting titles at McCracklin’s 1950s sessions for Modern, Peacock, Chess, and King. He moved briefly to New York in 1959 to work for pianist Sammy Price and cut sides for Savoy before returning to the West Coast. While in New York he also did session work for the Prestige label, appearing on records by Little Brother Montgomery and Memphis Slim. His final recordings found him sharing one album session with pianist Dave Alexander and L. C. “Good Rockin’” Robinson in 1968 for World Pacific. He remained semiactive in the early 1970s, working with Sugar Pie Desanto and again with Candyman McGuirt’s band. He died on May 20, 1977, in Brisbane, California, of a heart attack.

JEFF HARRIS

Bibliography

- Larkin
 Harris, Sheldon. Blues Who's Who. New Rochelle, NY: Arlington House, 1979.
 Leadbitter, Mike, ed. Nothing But the Blues. New York: Oak Publications, 1971.

Discography: LSFP

See also Chess/Aristocrat/Checker/Argo/Cadet; McCracklin, Jimmy; McGuirt, Clarence "Candyman"; Modern/Flair/Meteor/Kent/RPM; San Francisco; Thomas, Jesse "Babyface"; Wilson, Jimmy

THOMAS, LEON

- b. Amos Leon Thomas, Jr., 4 October 1937; East St. Louis, IL
 d. 8 May 1999; New York City, NY

Vocals, composer, percussion. Leon Thomas emerged in the 1960s as a uniquely powerful vocalist who incorporated West African-styled yodeling passages into his attack. His collaboration with Pharoah Sanders, The Creator Has a Master Plan, is a jazz classic. Thomas worked with Grant Green, Jimmy Forrest, Hank Crawford, Count Basie, Mary Lou Williams, Randy Weston, Rahsaan Roland Kirk, Oliver Nelson, Pharoah Sanders, Freddie Hubbard, Louis Armstrong, and Carlos Santana.

JOHN SINCLAIR

Bibliography

Larkin; New Grove Jazz

Discography: Lord

Karma (1968, Impulse; with Pharoah Sanders); Facets (1969, Flying Dutchman); Spirits Known and Unknown (1969, Flying Dutchman; 2002, RCA-Victor); In Berlin (1970, Flying Dutchman; 2002, RCA-Victor); The Leon Thomas Album (1970, Flying Dutchman); Gold Sunrise on Magic Mountain (1971, Mega Records); Blues and the Soulful Truth (1972, Flying Dutchman; 2002, RCA-Victor); Full Circle (1973, Flying Dutchman; 2002, RCA-Victor); Precious Energy (1987, Mapleshade Records); Leon Thomas Blues Band (1988, Portrait Records); The Leon Thomas Anthology (1998, Soul).

THOMAS, ROBERT

- b. 1929; Hurtsboro (Russell) County, AL

Acoustic guitarist and partner of Albert Macon from ca. 1959 until the latter's death in 1993.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

- Cauthen, Joyce. "Albert Macon and Robert Thomas: Boogie and Blues from Alabama." Living Blues no. 101 (January/February 1992): 25–30.

THOMAS, RUFUS

- b. 26 March 1917; Cayce, MS
 d. 15 December 2001; Memphis, TN

Singer, broadcaster, comedian, and Memphis icon Rufus Thomas was born in the small community of Cayce, Mississippi, located five miles south of the Tennessee border. When Thomas was still a baby, his family moved to nearby Memphis, and by age six he had made his onstage debut in a play at Beale Street's Grand Theatre. While attending Booker T. Washington High School, he formed a friendship with Nat D. Williams, who was his history teacher and emcee of amateur contests held at Beale's Palace Theater. By 1931, Thomas was performing in comedy acts with Williams and tap-dancing for tips on Beale Street.

Upon graduation, Thomas toured the South for several years with the Rabbit Foot Minstrels, entertaining audiences with his tap dancing, comedy, and scat singing. He returned to Memphis in 1940 and wed high school sweetheart Lorene Wilson, a marriage that would last fifty-nine years and produce three children, including musicians Carla and Marvell. That year, Thomas took over for mentor Williams as emcee of the Palace Theater's amateur show and hosted it until 1951, during which he helped launch the careers of many Memphis-based musicians, including B. B. King, Rosco Gordon, and Bobby "Blue" Bland. He also formed a comedy team during this time with Robert "Bones" Count, which lasted into the early 1950s.

Thomas made his recording debut on the Star Talent label in 1949, and the following year he began working as a disc jockey at Memphis's WDIA. Throughout the early 1950s, he recorded for producer Sam Phillips, who leased six of his recordings to Chess. In 1953, Thomas recorded "Bear Cat" for Phillips's newly formed Sun label, and the song quickly reached number three on the R&B charts, giving the label its first hit. In 1960, Thomas's recording "Cause I Love You" with daughter Carla for the newly formed Satellite Records became that Memphis label's first successful record. Satellite soon changed its name to Stax, and Thomas would go on to record many of the influential label's hits during the next fifteen years. His energetic mixture of soul, funk, and blues helped establish both Stax and the city of Memphis as important contributors in shaping American popular music.

THOMAS, RUFUS

Thomas repeatedly made the R&B and pop charts with hits such as “Walking the Dog,” “Do the Funky Chicken,” “The Breakdown,” and “(Do the) Push and Pull (Part 1).” His popular live shows typically featured his outlandish stage attire, off-the-wall humor, and charismatic stage presence. Being in his late forties and fifties during his greatest success, his youthful enthusiasm garnered him the title of “World’s Oldest Teenager.”

Thomas recorded sparsely throughout the 1980s and 1990s, with a 1990 release on Alligator being most notable. A regular visitor to downtown Memphis, he was regarded as “The Ambassador of Beale Street,” and a section of Hernando Street was renamed Rufus Thomas Boulevard in his honor. In the late 1980s, he returned to WDIA to host his popular blues radio show and continued the weekly broadcasts into 2000. Rufus Thomas, who personified the very soul of Memphis music, died of natural causes in Memphis at age eighty four.

GENE TOMKO

Bibliography

- Barretta, Scott. “Rufus Thomas.” Living Blues no. 163 (May/June 2002): 86.
Guralnick, Peter. “Rufus Thomas.” Living Blues no. 29 (September/October 1976): 9–12.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

- That Woman Is Poison* (1990, Alligator CD 4769).
Can’t Get Away from This Dog (1992, Stax SCD-8569-2).
Do the Funky Somethin’: The Best of Rufus Thomas (1996, Rhino CD 72410).

THOMAS, TABBY

b. Ernest Joseph Thomas, 5 January 1929; Baton Rouge, LA

Guitarist, pianist, singer. The father of singer/guitarist Chris Thomas King and “the Godfather” of the Baton Rouge blues scene, Tabby Thomas began his career with some early recording work in San Francisco after serving in the Army. He moved back home in 1953 and recorded regularly on a regional level, scoring his biggest hit in 1962 with “Voodoo Party” on Excello Records. Thomas started his own record label in the early 1970s but became better known for his Blues Box nightclub, the epicenter of live blues activity in southern Louisiana. Thomas continued performing into his seventies, becoming a regular at the New Orleans Jazz & Heritage Festival.

MICHAEL POINT

Bibliography

- AMG (Ron Wynn and Stephen Thomas Erlewine); Larkin; Santelli
Lee, Peter, and David Nelson. “‘If I Miss ‘Em on the Piano, I’ll Catch ‘Em on the Guitar’: Rockin’ Tabby Thomas.” Living Blues no. 91 (May/June 1990): 10–15.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

THOMAS, WILLARD “RAMBLING”

b. 1902; Logansport, LA

d. ca. 1945; Memphis, TN

Singer and guitarist; brother of Jesse “Babyface” Thomas. His commercial recordings reveal typical east Texas–west Louisiana blues of the pre–World War II era, reminiscent of the performances of Blind Lemon Jefferson and of Lonnie Johnson. He is considered by some experts to have influenced Oscar “Buddy” Woods and Black Ace. It is believed he died in Memphis, perhaps in the 1930s but no later than 1945.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

- AMG (Eugene Chadbourne); Larkin; Santelli
Templeton, Ray. “Ramblin’ Thomas and the ‘Texas & Pacific’ Country Blues.” Blues and Rhythm no. 34 (January 1988): 12–13.

Discography: DGR

THOMAS, WILLIE B.

b. 25 May 1912; Lobdell, MS

Guitarist, street preacher. Crippled by a back injury during the mid-1930s. He was musical partner to Butch Cage beginning in about 1930, initially on kazoo, then on guitar after 1939.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

- Harris; Larkin

Discography

- Country Negro Jam Session* (Folk-Lyric FL 111; reissued by Arhoolie on LP 2018 and CD 372).

THOMPSON, ALPHONSO “SONNY”

b. 22 August 1916; Memphis, TN
 d. 11 August 1989; Chicago, IL

Pianist and record executive. Thompson began working in combos while in Phillips High and went on the road for extended periods after graduating. In the late 1930s he worked in the Erskine Tate band and began working as a leader in 1940. He made his first recordings under his name for Sultan Records in 1946. During 1947–1950, Thompson recorded for Miracle Records, using the Sharps and Flats as his rhythm section and frequently adding Eddie Chamblee’s tenor sax.

He reached the peak of his performing career at Miracle, striking gold with one of the biggest R&B hits of the late 1940s, “Long Gone” (1948). After Miracle folded, Thompson moved to King Records in 1950 and recorded extensively for that company (occasionally doing session work for Vee-Jay and other labels). One of his King artists was his wife, blues singer Lulu Reed. Thompson handled A&R for the label until 1964, when King closed its Chicago office, but continued as a free-lance producer for a few more years.

ROBERT PRUTER

Bibliography

Larkin
 Burke, Tony, and Dave Penn., “Screaming Boogie.” Blues & Rhythm: the Gospel Truth no. 37 (June/July 1988): 9–14.
 Nelson, David. “Alphonso ‘Sonny’ Thompson” [obituary]. Living Blues no. 89 (November/December 1989): 39.

Discography: LSPFTHOMPSON, DAVID “LITTLE DAVE”

b. 21 May 1969; Jackson, MS

Contemporary Delta bluesman Little Dave Thompson started playing guitar at age nine, inspired by his musician father, who played throughout the Greenville, Mississippi, area. By age fourteen Thompson was playing in an Indianola, Mississippi–based gospel group and soon formed a blues band in nearby Leland. He joined Roosevelt “Booba” Barnes’s band at age fifteen and toured internationally with him until Barnes relocated to Chicago in the early 1990s. Thompson’s 1995 debut on Fat Possum featured his searing brand of raw electric blues, with nods to influences Albert King and Little Milton. Thompson signed with JSP in 2001 and continued to be a leading exponent of modern electric Delta blues.

GENE TOMKO

Bibliography

Gray, Stanfield. “Dave Thompson: The Music Will Speak for Itself.” Living Blues no. 132 (March/April 1997): 50–51.

Discography: AMG

Little Dave and Big Love (1995, Fat Possum CD 80337-2).

THOMPSON, MAC

b. Mac Johnson, 28 January 1934; Lamar, MS
 d. 10 October 1991; Chicago, IL

Bassist and guitarist best known for his Cobra and Delmark studio recordings with Magic Sam Maghett. Thompson was born in Lamar and raised in Michigan City, Mississippi. His father, Sam Johnson, had performed with John Lee “Sonny Boy” Williamson, and his brothers were Syl Johnson and Jimmy Johnson. He moved to Chicago in 1952 and worked in weekday jobs for the rest of his life. He began playing guitar informally with Magic Sam in the 1950s and also became associated with Billy Boy Arnold.

In 1957 he assisted as second guitarist on Magic Sam’s “All Your Love” session for Cobra. Soon afterward he switched to electric bass guitar, performing and/or recording with Billy Boy Arnold, Mighty Joe Young, Eddie Shaw, and Eddy Clearwater. He again assisted Magic Sam on the latter’s two albums for Delmark, West Side Soul (1967) and Black Magic (1969). He was crushed by Maghett’s 1969 death, but he continued playing bass in recording sessions and European tours, and he joined Clearwater’s band in the early 1970s. He recorded a single for Rooster, “Something’s Wrong”/“Goblin,” in 1980. He died of cancer at age fifty seven.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

O’Neal, Jim. “Mac Thompson” [obituary]. Living Blues no. 106 (November/December 1992): 39–40.

THOMPSON, ODELL

b. 9 August 1911; Orange County, NC
 d. 28 April 1994; Mebane, NC

THOMPSON, ODELL

Banjo player in dance and blues styles. Thompson often performed locally in his spare time with his fiddler cousin Joe Thompson. In the early 1970s they were discovered and brought to wider notice by researcher Kip Lornell, including performances at the National Folk Festival and the Festival of American Folklife.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Larkin
Bonner, Brett J. "Odell Thompson" [obituary]. Living Blues
no. 118 (November/December 1994): 63.

THOMPSON, RON

b. 5 July 1953; Oakland, CA

Electric slide guitarist. Thompson began learning guitar at age eleven. In the early 1970s, he was performing with Little Joe Blue. In 1975 he accepted an invitation from John Lee Hooker to join his band, staying with him for three years. In 1980, he formed his group the Resistors, with whom he recorded albums and CDs for Takoma, Blind Pig, and Winner labels through 1990.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl and Stephen Thomas Erlewine)

Discography: AMG (Bill Dahl and Stephen Thomas Erlewine)

THORNTON, WILLIE MAE "BIG MAMA"

b. 11 December 1926; Montgomery, AL
d. 25 July 1984; Los Angeles, CA

Singer. As intimidating a figure as any in the blues, Big Mama Thornton more than lived up to her name in both size and attitude. A large and confrontational woman who dressed like a man, Thornton had a wide-ranging career, but she is most remembered for recording two signature songs, one a part of the 1950s rise of rock and the other in its late 1960s psychedelic explosion, that became modern standards. But in each case her versions were overshadowed by superstar renditions, relegating her role to that of influence instead of leading to the fame and fortune the songs generated for others.

Thornton went on the road with Sammy Green's Hot Harlem Revue when she was only fourteen and toured throughout the South. But she ultimately tired of the road and quit the revue in 1948 when it rolled into Houston. She established herself on the local scene and then signed with Duke/Peacock Records, making her recording debut in 1951 with "Partnership Blues." A second single did little but her third time in the studio was a charm. With the Johnny Otis Band backing her, she recorded the original version of "Hound Dog," one with considerably more bite to it than the later Elvis Presley take, and the song spent seven weeks at the top of the R&B charts in 1953.

With a major hit to her credit, Thornton went back on the road, performing as part of highly successful Duke/Peacock package shows that also included Bobby "Blue" Bland, Johnny Ace, and Junior Parker. She also toured widely with her friend and producer Johnny Otis. A 1956 West Coast tour with Gate-mouth Brown led to her relocation, first to Los Angeles and then to San Francisco. A decade later Janis Joplin would astound a 1967 Monterey Pop Festival with Thornton's "Ball 'n' Chain."

Through all the travel Thornton kept releasing singles on Duke/Peacock, attempting to duplicate the success of "Hound Dog." Songs such as "I Smell a Rat" and "Just Like a Dog" became minor R&B hits, but in the wake of Elvis's famous rendition of "Hound Dog" in 1956, she was unable to fully capitalize on the hit.

The 1960s were a relatively inactive period, although Thornton continued to release singles. She took to showcasing her harmonica work, correctly noting that she was one of the few female practitioners of the instrument in the blues, but bookings and record sales dropped off in the United States. She did, however, continue to perform in Europe, recording a live album with the Muddy Waters band at the conclusion of a 1965 tour.

Known as a no-nonsense bandleader, Thornton was always accompanied by top-tier talent, including everyone from Mississippi Fred McDowell to Buddy Guy, on her recordings. Her live bands were sometimes a different matter, so demanding was she on and off the stage. Houston guitarist and Duke/Peacock session star Clarence Hollimon actually hid from her the first time she came calling to recruit him for her group. But in testimony to her strong will, Hollimon naturally ended up on the bandstand behind her.

Thornton recorded two albums, Stronger Than Dirt and The Way It Is, for Mercury Records in the late 1960s and several more, including Sassy Mama in 1975 with guitarist Cornell Dupree and the live Jail, done in front of prison audiences, for Vanguard Records in the 1970s. Another live album done in Europe also surfaced during the mid-1970s.

Big Mama Thornton performs at the Newport Folk Festival, Newport, Rhode Island, July 1969. (Photo by Fred Ramsey, Jr., © Frank Driggs Collection)

MICHAEL POINT

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli; Southern Carpenter, Bil. "Big Mama Thornton: 200 Pounds of Boogaloo." Living Blues no. 106 (November/December 1992): 26–32.

Discography: AMG; LSPF

THOROGOOD, GEORGE

b. 24 December 1951; Wilmington, DE

Originally a minor-league baseball player, slide guitarist George Thorogood formed his band the Destroyers in 1973. The band established themselves as regulars in the Boston blues club circuit and by 1979 had released their first album Better than the Rest for the Rounder label, which included an extensive version of "One Bourbon, One Scotch, One Beer." Thorogood's 1978 cover version of Hank Williams's "Move It On Over" on its release received much rock radio airplay.

Thorogood and the Destroyers enjoyed considerable success with the album Bad to the Bone (1982) after signing with EMI. The Destroyers spent the rest of the 1980s recording and touring. Their three albums after Bad to the Bone all went gold. Thorogood continues to tour and record.

ROBERT SORICELLI

Bibliography

AMG (Stephen Thomas Erlewine); Larkin; Santelli
Ivey, E. "George Thorogood: Working Man's Blues." Blues Revue no. 39 (July/August 1998): 27–29.

Discography: AMG

TIBBS, ANDREW

b. Milton or Melvin Andrew Grayson, 2 February 1929; Columbus, OH

d. 5 May 1991; Chicago, IL

Uptown Chicago blues singer popular in the immediate post-World War II era. Tibbs, who wailed his ballads and jump tunes with a clear, emotive voice, superbly exemplified the jazz-influenced blues style (sometimes called uptown blues) that dominated the market in the late 1940s. His accompaniment featured some of Chicago's best jazz musicians, notably sax men Tom Archia, Dave Young, and Sax Mallard, who enhance his recordings immensely with their exciting blowing.

Tibbs's recording career for the Chess brothers' Aristocrat (soon to become Chess) label began after he was discovered singing in the brothers' bar, the Macomba Lounge. The company put out seven releases of Tibbs, two of which achieved moderate success, "Married Man's Blues" and "I Feel Like Crying," and one of which achieved some notoriety, "Bilbo Is Dead," an uncomplimentary remembrance of a racist Mississippi politician.

After Muddy Waters emerged as the company's biggest blues artist with his down-home style, Chess lost interest in Tibbs. He left Chess in 1950, but his subsequent recording career was intermittent, cutting sides for Peacock (1951), Savoy (1951—never issued), Mercury (1951–1952), Atco (1956, with his older brother Kenneth), and M-Pac! (1965). By the mid-1960s Tibbs had moved to a day job in the computer industry, where he remained for the rest of his life, though he still sang at parties and occasional engagements.

ROBERT PRUTER

TIBBS, ANDREW

Bibliography

Larkin

O'Neal, Jim. "Andrew 'Andy' Tibbs" [obituary]. Living Blues no. 101 (January/February 1992): 37–39.

Discography: LSFP

TIGHT LIKE THAT

Written by Tampa Red (Hudson Woodbridge, b. January 8, 1904, Smithville, Georgia; d. March 19, 1981, Chicago) and Georgia Tom Dorsey (Thomas A. Dorsey, b. July 1, 1899, Villa Rica, Georgia; d. January 23, 1993, Chicago) in 1928, this song is an excellent example of what was known as the hokum style. "Tight Like That" is in a twelve-measure (4 + 8) verse and refrain lyric form, with the four-measure verse consisting of two two-measure rhyming couplets, often of sexual double-entendre. On its release, the record was a massive hit, spawning several sequels by Tampa Red and Dorsey and countless imitations by other artists. The tune itself remained in blues music practice as the main hokum melody through the beginning of the 1940s. The title as recognized catchphrase in the Chicago African American community went beyond blues audiences to jazz, as indicated on Louis Armstrong's patter at the beginning of his classic jazz instrumental "Tight Like This" in late 1928.

Taken up and popularized by jug and hokum bands, hokum, either in country or blues motifs, became a racy musical art form characterized by up-tempo rhythms and bawdy subject matter and lyrics. After the release of "Tight Like That," Tampa Red continued hokum material throughout the remainder of his career, but Dorsey changed course during the early 1930s and became the "Father of Gospel Music."

TOM FISHER/EDWARD KOMARA

TIMMONS, TERRY

b. Teresa Walker, 12 April 1927; Cleveland, OH
d. 3 August 1970; Cleveland, OH

Post-World War II rhythm and blues singer whose clear, tart, and deeply expressive style, and an oeuvre of uptown blues and standards, called forth comparisons to Dinah Washington. She began her career in 1945, when she married Van Leonard Timmons. She first signed with Chicago-based Premium (1950–1951), recording several fine blues songs on her own and in duets with Memphis Slim, with whom she toured. Her successive moves to Mercury (1951), RCA-Victor (1951–1953), and United (1953) failed to produce hits—despite some excellent recordings—and she retired in 1954.

ROBERT PRUTER

Bibliography

Penny, Dave. Liner notes to The Chronological Terry Timmons 1950–1953 (2004, Classics CD 5092).

TINSLEY, JOHN E.

b. 10 February 1920; Chesnut Mountain region, Franklin County, VA

John Tinsley learned guitar from neighbor Fred Holland and listened to and was influenced by Buddy Moss and Blind Boy Fuller. In 1949 he shot and wounded in self-defense his stepfather, for which he served six months in prison. Upon release he moved to Bassett, Virginia, where Dee Stone ran the Mutual record label. In 1952, Tinsley recorded for Mutual with Holland. For more than twenty years he was inactive in music, but in 1977 he returned to performing.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Larkin

Lornell, Kip. "John Tinsley." Living Blues no. 36 (January/February 1978): 9, 11.

Discography: LSFP

TIP TOP

Chicago soul music label of the 1960s. The company was founded in 1961 by Charles Colbert, Sr., and partners Charles Colbert, Jr., Bob Catron, and Doc Oliver. The company's first imprint was Nike, but in 1962, following a reorganization in which Catron and Oliver left, the principal imprint became Tip Top. Three other labels associated with Tip Top were Cool, Jive, and Mellow (the latter added in 1966 by Colbert, Jr.).

The company's biggest hitmaker was a vocal group, the Daylighters, who hit with "Cool Breeze" (1962) on Tip Top. Soul singer Marvin L. Sims had a modest hit with "What Can I Do?" on Mellow. Blues artists recorded by the operation were Al Perkins and Jody Williams (on Jive), Jimmy Burns and Detroit Junior (on Tip Top), and A. C. Reed (on Cool). By the late 1960s, the company was increasingly placing its productions with larger companies, and Nike and Tip Top were closed by 1967 and Mellow by 1968.

ROBERT PRUTER

Bibliography

Pruter, Robert. Chicago Soul. Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 1991.

Discography: McGrath

TISDOM, JAMES “SMOKESTACK”

b. 1912; Texas

d. 1995; Lockhart, TX

Houston-area singer and guitarist of blues, cowboy songs, and Mexican corrido. Tisdome recorded in 1949–1950 for the Universal-Fox label and in 1951 for Original/Rio Grande. In a 1967 interview he claimed to have taught singer/guitarist Manny Nichols.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Skoog, Larry. “Smokestack.” Blues Unlimited no. 46 (September 1967): 11.

Discography: LSPF

TOBA

TOBA—the Theater Owners’ Booking Association—was a black vaudeville circuit that featured entertainment in theaters located in cities and small towns of the United States primarily in the South and Middle West. TOBA was founded in 1920 by black actor (comedian)/musician Sherman H. Dudley and white theater owner Milton Starr. In early 1921 an organization was formed, officials were elected, and current stockholders were presented/listed. Additionally, a list of prospective stockholders was compiled. The meeting was held in Chattanooga, Tennessee. The elected officials or stockholders were interracial while the performers were black. Two major black, national weekly newspapers, Chicago Defender and Pittsburgh Courier, reported on TOBA activities.

In 1921 TOBA controlled eighty of the 107 theatres presenting black road shows and vaudeville entertainment. Some of the performers on the circuit were performer/producers who mounted fully contained shows that could last more than an hour. More than fifty of these companies and approximately 179 vaudeville acts found employment on the TOBA circuit. Many black entertainers and musicians, particularly those in the 1920s to early 1930s, used the TOBA to develop and enhance their talent by becoming performers in these companies.

Among the performers were comedians, dancers, and singers, especially blues, but also popular, who were usually accompanied by a jazz band. The blues singers were a very popular asset to the TOBA and were usually the stars, capable of drawing large audiences. The blues they sang was more in name than in actuality. They sang published blues in a cabaret or vaudeville style, and it was this style of blues that was first recorded. In August 1920 OKeh recorded Mamie Smith singing “Crazy Blues.” Her recording was so successful that it became the standard bearer for recordings by other blues singers such as Sarah Martin and Clara Smith, who were also performers of the TOBA circuit.

Other blues singers of note were Lottie Beamon, Gertrude “Ma” Rainey, and Ida Cox, TOBA performers also, but with a more blues feeling than that of vaudeville stylings. Lottie Beamon was from Kansas City, Missouri, and her blues singing also included her whistling like a bird. This fact may have been more vaudevillian than blues styling, but it did not take away from her powerful and strong feeling.

Gertrude “Ma” Rainey was considered to be the “mother” of the blues because she was the first star in this style. The blues she sang was what she had heard from her childhood in Columbus, Georgia, an unaffected, southern, black sound. She had a relatively short recording career (1923–1928), and although their technical quality may be unsatisfactory, many recordings are available in reissue.

The so-called “Queen without a Crown,” Ida Cox had a very long recording career, from 1923 to 1940. Overshadowed by both Ma Rainey and Bessie Smith, she nevertheless was thought of as their equal. Her first recordings were more in vaudeville style but gradually progressed to that of her own nasal, melancholy blues sound.

“Empress of the Blues” Bessie Smith was born in Chattanooga, Tennessee, and died controversially and tragically in 1937 in Mississippi. As a very young child she began her career as a comedienne, dancing and singing in vaudeville. She met Ma Rainey in 1913 when she became a member of the Rabbit Foot Minstrels, where Rainey was the star. Rainey was to have a lasting impression on Bessie's selection of material and style. "Downhearted Blues"/"Gulfcoast Blues" (1923, Columbia), was her first recording and was very successful. In fact, Bessie Smith and her recordings were, and perhaps still are, unrivaled.

In the days before motion pictures and television, dancehalls, record players, and theaters provided the overwhelming majority of entertainment for most of the public. TOBA, controlling more than half of the theatres presenting black road shows and vaudeville entertainment, was in an enviable position: full houses, an ample supply of talent, and free advertisement, particularly when blues singers had recordings. The recording industry helped to increase the variety and style of blues singers by also recording male singers of the rural and country tradition of blues.

Papa Charlie Jackson, born in New Orleans, was the first commercially successful country blues performer, but not the first to be recorded; that distinction is held by Sylvester Weaver (November 1923) and Ed Andrews (April 1924). Jackson accompanied himself with a four-string banjo and recorded a 78 in August 1924, "Papa's Lawdy Lawdy Blues"/"Airy Man Blues" (Paramount). He also at times accompanied classic blues singers Ma Rainey and Ida Cox. Blind Lemon Jefferson, from Texas, represented the rural blues and recorded "Long Lonesome Blues" (Paramount) in 1926. He was to record more than eighty songs from 1926 to 1929.

The Theater Owners' Booking Association was a very important conduit for the blues and many of America's stellar musicians and performers from its inception in 1920 to its decline in 1930 and beyond.

MONICA J. BURDEX

Bibliography

Burdex, Monica J. "The Theater Owners' Booking Association (T.O.B.A.), An Annotated Bibliographical Listing." California State University Northridge, Oviatt Library website, <http://www.csun.edu/~htang/toba.html> (accessed November 13, 2004).

TOMATO RECORDS

Independent label founded in the late 1970s by producer Kevin Eggers, taking from his former label Poppy Records, founded in 1968. Eggers was known as the manager/producer for songwriter Townes Van Zandt. With cover art and graphics designed by Milton Glaser, Tomato Records was eclectic in musical genres but included electric blues artists such as Albert King, Chris Smither, Doc Watson, Townes Van Zandt, and Robert Cray. The company went out of business in the early 1990s. Some of its operations were taken over by Rhino Records in the 1990s, such as the CD reissue of The Tomato Sampler (1994 [1991]).

In 2002, founder Kevin Eggers tried a comeback with a multimedia company named Tomato Music, in New York City, reissuing compilations such as In the Key of Lightnin' Hopkins (2002), Tomato Delta Blues Package (2002), and Great Tomato Blues Package (2002 [1989]), but also new recordings.

YVES LABERGE

Bibliography

Newton, Jon. "Tomato Records: Back Again." January 29, 2002. Music Dish website, <http://www.musicdish.com/mag/index.php?id=5187>

Selected Recordings

Lightning Hopkins. In the Key of Lightnin' Hopkins (2002, Tomato Music).

Various artists. The Great Tomato Blues Package (2002, Tomato Music; reissue of 2-LP set from 1989).

The Robert Cray Band. Too Many Cooks (1989, Tomato LP 2696531; reissue of Who's Been Talking? from 1980).

See also Cray, Robert; King, Albert; Rhino; Smither, Chris

TONE-COOL

Located in Wellesley Hills, Massachusetts, and distributed in the United States by Island Def Jam Music Group, Tone-Cool Records specializes in blues and World Music since 1985.

Founded by producer Richard Rosenblatt, Tone-Cool released Taj Mahal and the Hula Blues's Hana-pepe Dream (2003) and Hubert Sumlin's About Them Shoes (2005) but also white blues artists, such as Susan Tedeschi, Mark Hummel, Monster Mike Welch, Rod Piazza, and the Mighty Flyers. The CD booklets accompanying Welch's Axe to Grind (1997) and Piazza's Tough and Tender (1997) included lyrics, which is uncommon in contemporary blues.

YVES LABERGE

Bibliography

Tone-Cool website, <http://www.tonecool.com>.

TOO TIGHT HENRY

b. Henry L. Castle, ca. 1899, place unknown
d. 16 August 1971; Chicago, IL

An itinerant twelve-string guitarist, Castle recorded a tour de force of musical impressionism, the two-part “Charleston Contest,” in 1928. He later played in Jed Davenport’s Beale Street Jug Band and stayed long enough in Memphis to be remembered by other musicians, but regrettably he made only one more recording.

TONY RUSSELL

Bibliography

O’Neal, Jim, and Stephen LaVere. “Too Tight Henry.” Living Blues no. 34 (September/October 1977): 17.

Discography: DGR

See also Davenport, Jed

TOP CAT

Dallas, Texas, label that has specialized in new releases of blues and electric blues artists active in east Texas, such as Jim Suhlar, Robin Sylar, and Big Gilson. It has also issued vintage performances by Muddy Waters and by Big Mama Thornton.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Top Cat Records website, <http://www.topcatrecords.com/>.

TOPICAL BLUES: DISASTERS

Introduction

In their capacity as African American bards, blues artists have always sung about the catastrophes that hit them and their communities. The incidence of disaster songs in blues music is difficult to estimate, but it is certainly very prominent among topical themes if one considers their specificity. For want of a more inclusive principle of subdivision and in keeping with the development of blues criticism and its terminology in the past fifty years, it has been thought convenient to divide the subject of topical blues on disasters into two main subheadings, accidental disasters and natural disasters. Each section comprises a discussion of some of the historically most relevant tragedies that were immortalized by blues musicians in their commercial and noncommercial recordings.

Though the two subheadings are rather comprehensive, they cannot cover all the different types of catastrophes dealt with in the various disaster songs. Compositions on large generic topics, such as war tragedies, diseases, and the depression, or on extremely popular themes such as the ravages caused by the boll weevil, account for so many recordings as to require separate studies. This survey has no pretensions to exhaustiveness and will deal in particular with blues topical recordings (and a few closely related gospel songs) relevant to each event and not with nontopical or generic songs mentioning it in passing.

Some thematically diverse disaster songs have been grouped in four sometimes overlapping subsections—air, earth, fire, and water blues—to remind readers of the basically folkloric origin of the blues. Topical disaster blues are also ways of chronicling events in the oral culture, so some consideration of how older blues were readapted to recount more recent facts will be given whenever possible. Whether the subdivision into accidental and natural disasters also presupposes different ways of dealing with them will be discussed in the conclusion.

Natural Disasters

The Mississippi River Flood (1927)

The 1927 Mississippi River flood was one of the greatest natural disasters in the history of the United States. The dramatically growing importance of blues and gospel at the time certainly contributed to increasing the number of topical songs on this natural calamity by both black and white musicians and the popularity of the theme well beyond the seven states where the tragedy occurred.

As David Evans (2005) has shown, “Back-Water Blues” by Bessie Smith can be considered as the first blues on the Mississippi River flood even though she recorded it in New York for Columbia in February, that is, two months before the bursting of the levee at Mound Landing, near Greenville, Mississippi, on April 21. Her now classic and repeatedly covered song recounted a flood she had experienced in Nashville, Tennessee, in December 1926. This flood contributed to the rising waters of the Mississippi River that reached flood stage four months later.

A mere four days after the catastrophe in Greenville, Lonnie Johnson, the most prolific composer of flood blues, recorded for OKeh "South Bound Water," a generic flood blues backed by a cover of Smith's composition. On May 2, the mysterious Blue Belle (Bessie Mae Smith) recorded "High Water Blues" for the same company. Presumably only a few days later, Paramount played its ace, recording star Blind Lemon Jefferson, who sang "Rising High Water Blues" accompanied by George Perkins on piano. The last topical blues to be waxed immediately after the flooding of the Mississippi was Sippie Wallace's "The Flood Blues," an interesting song recorded for OKeh on May 6.

One month later, Laura Smith, a veteran vaudeville singer about to retire, recorded the first two Victor sides on the flood, "Lonesome Refugee" and "The Mississippi Blues." Though not real blues compositions, these songs' lyrics and vocal delivery convey a bluesy flavor. Atlanta, Georgia, blues guitarist Barbecue Bob's (Robert Hicks) "Mississippi Heavy Water Blues," recorded for Columbia in June, ranked second only after Bessie Smith's commercial hit, selling about thirteen thousand copies. After describing the desperate search for his woman in the (possibly Greenville) refugee camp along the levee, Barbecue Bob envisions, by contrast, his personal distress caused by sexual abstinence.

In about July 1927, vocalist Alice Pearson recorded two blues for Paramount on the Mississippi River flood, "Greenville Levee Blues" and "Water Bound Blues," whose texts seem to suggest that the singer was in Greenville the day the levee broke and spent a few days in the refugee camp there. Five months after "Back-Water Blues," Columbia Records recorded Bessie Smith's "Homeless Blues," an interesting mix of personal and community commentary on the consequences of the flood.

In January 1928, the same month Paramount cut the only topical sermon on the flood, Moses Mason's "Red Cross the Disciple of Christ Today," Vocalion made its debut on the market of flood recordings, coupling Luella Miller's "Muddy Stream Blues" with her "Tornado Groan," another topical disaster song on the St. Louis cyclone. Both compositions had already been recorded by Miller the previous October but remained unissued.

Miller's well-balanced flood song makes a good contrast with Lonnie Johnson's accusatory "Broken Levee Blues," recorded for OKeh on March 13, 1928. His blues depicts matter of factly the situation in Helena, Arkansas, and in all the other towns along the river, where colored people were either forced to risk their lives working on the levees or be imprisoned. Exactly one year after the levee break at Greenville, Barbecue Bob recorded a follow-up blues for Columbia, "Mississippi Low-Levee Blues," which is a mix of the themes in his earlier song.

In about July, James Crawford and an unidentified combo cut "Flood and Thunder Blues," an original composition containing some cryptic racial references. "The 1927 Flood" by Elders McIntorsh and Edwards, the only topical gospel song on the disaster, was followed in June 1929 by "The New Fallin' Rain Blues," Lonnie Johnson's third working-out of the flood theme for OKeh. Much more interesting was Kansas Joe (Wilber McCoy) and Memphis Minnie's (Lizzie Douglas) debut on record, "When the Levee Breaks," recorded on June 18, 1929, for Columbia. The lyrics focus on dangerous working conditions and develop a secondary love theme.

After a variant of Crawford's topical song, Mary Dixon's "Fire and Thunder Blues," recorded in August 1929, came Charley Patton's two-part topical saga of "High Water Everywhere," recorded for Paramount ca. October 1929 in Grafton, Wisconsin, and adapted by David "Honeyboy" Edwards in 1999. Patton's was one of the last (though commercially and artistically speaking, most successful) attempts to re-create and convey the same sense of desperation experienced by the people living along the Mississippi River banks at the time of the flooding. Judging from the low appeal of this theme among postwar blues musicians, who merely covered prewar original compositions on this calamity, it is reasonable to conclude that by the end of World War II the 1927 flood theme had largely been forgotten by the blues community.

The St. Louis Cyclone (1927)

Only five months after the flooding of the Mississippi River, precisely on September 29, a cyclone struck the city of St. Louis, killing dozens of people in five minutes and causing damages of one million dollars. The lesser impact of this disaster in comparison to the previous one is shown by the mere four topical recordings released on the subject, three blues and a sermon, which were all cut within the period of four months.

The first was "St. Louis Cyclone Blues," recorded by Lonnie Johnson in New York City four days after the catastrophe. In October Reverend J. M. Gates delivered a sermon titled "God's Wrath in the St. Louis Cyclone," in fact an excursus on a variety of natural disasters. The third topical recording was a shorter version of Johnson's song by Elzadie Robinson for Paramount in about November of the same year. The last were the two versions of "Tornado Groan" that Luella Miller recorded for Vocalion, the first less than two weeks after the event, the second on January 24, 1928.

The Dry Spell (1930)

Because of its exceptional duration and intensity, the drought that affected a vast area of the United States starting from the spring of 1930 had a tremendous impact, especially on the African American population living in the southern states, such as the Arkansas and Mississippi river deltas, whose economy was based on cotton. Although its severity was on a par with the 1927 Mississippi River flood, the so-called Dry Spell of 1930 elicited only three topical blues and a cover.

The first original songs were Eddie “Son” House’s two-part “Dry Spell Blues” and Charlie Patton’s “Dry Well Blues,” both on Paramount. Though Blues and Gospel Records 1890–1943 (pp. 404 and 708) lists these tracks as having been recorded at the same session in Grafton, Wisconsin, on May 28, 1930, the devastation of the drought did not hit until after that, as shown in literature and extensive newspaper coverage from that time. The third topical recording on the Dry Spell bears the same title as Son House’s composition and is credited to “Spider” Carter, who recorded it for Brunswick on September 13, 1930. In 2000 John Mooney recorded a version of House’s original song.

Though presenting some textual similarities, the three accounts of this weather phenomenon differ in many respects from the stylistic viewpoint. In the wake of his own extremely popular “High Water Everywhere, Part One and Two,” Patton’s “Dry Well Blues” is a six-stanza blues depicting the effects of drought in Lula, Mississippi, the small country town where Patton and House were living at the time of the natural disaster. At the beginning, Patton’s composition deals with the consequences suffered by the community of Lula, then it depicts a sort of sexual drought for its inhabitants. Son House’s two-part “Dry Spell Blues” is a blues prayer addressed to God (Monge, forthcoming). “Spider” Carter’s “Dry Spell Blues” is a piano blues with generic and unimaginative lyrics, which develop no consistent theme.

The Tupelo Tornado (1936)

Among all the topical blues on natural disasters, the songs on the calamity that occurred in Tupelo, Mississippi, present the most puzzling series of mistakes, cross-references with other disasters, and coincidences. It is a fact that Tupelo was struck by a tornado on April 5, 1936, on a Sunday evening (Monge, 2005).

The first musical testimonies of this disaster were two recordings probably collected by Herbert Halpert for the Library of Congress. The first song is attributed to Lulu Morris accompanied by an African Methodist Church congregation, the second to Will C. Thomas. According to Blues and Gospel Records 1890–1943 (pp. 664 and 921), the two field recordings bear the same title, “Tupelo Destruction,” and were collected on May 8 and 17, 1939, respectively. The former song is also preceded by Morris’s spoken “Introduction to Tupelo Destruction.”

Two more accounts of the Tupelo catastrophe are reported by Alan Lomax (1993, pp. 35–36 and 52) to have been composed by Charles Haffer, Jr., and Turner Junior Johnson, but their titles do not appear in the above-mentioned standard prewar blues and gospel discography. As late as 1952 Henry Green recorded “Storm Thru Mississippi,” a version of the gospel songs recorded for the Library of Congress in 1939.

Nowadays, the chronicle of this event is associated with John Lee Hooker, who recounted it at least six times in the postwar period. His first recording, “Tupelo Blues,” was cut in April 1959 for Riverside. The second and third, simply known as “Tupelo,” were recorded live at the 1960 and 1963 Newport Folk Festivals. The fourth was also recorded live with a band, at Palo Alto, California, in September 1977. His last two Tupelo songs were solo studio recordings in July 1993 and in 1995. Whether in the spoken introduction or directly in the lyrics, Hooker provides two different dates for the catastrophe (1932 and 1936) and states that it was a flood (not a tornado) and that it occurred on a Friday (not Sunday). Hooker’s biographer, Charles Shaar Murray, adds to the mix-up, maintaining that “Tupelo” is a composition dealing with the 1927 Mississippi River flood.

Accidental Disasters

The Sinking of the Titanic (1912)

Not surprisingly, the sinking of the Titanic on the night of April 14–15, 1912, is the accidental disaster that has generated the greatest number of topical compositions in the white and black musical traditions. Because of the popularity and resilience of the theme, which is only in part consequential to the international relevance of the event and was boosted by other factors such as theological, social, and racial issues inherent in the fact, the exact estimate of the number of topical songs is difficult.

Though mainly a tragedy that hit whites, the death of more than fifteen hundred people on board the “unsinkable” transatlantic ship sailing from Southampton in England to New York impressed artists so much as to be the subject of songs covering music genres as diverse as country, blues, rhythm and blues, and gospel, as well as formats such as instrumentals, toasts (Smith, 1996, pp. 223–224), and so on. Sheet music on the sinking of the Titanic is known to have been published since the catastrophe occurred (see Titanic songs entry in the discography; Oliver, 1984, pp. 222–226).

Because the shipwreck took place when blues as a commercially recorded music genre was in its natal period, most of the earliest original compositions on the catastrophe were written by whites in ballad format. Consequently, very few prewar African American original songs dealing with the Titanic were twelve-bar accounts of the tragedy made by self-accompanied blues singer-guitarists. Rather, they were ballad-like compositions or more-or-less moralistic gospel interpretations of the historical fact and were usually recorded by women or songsters. They include two takes (only one issued) of Ma Rainey’s “Titanic Man Blues” (1925) and two takes (only one issued) of Virginia Liston’s “Titanic Blues” (1926), Richard “Rabbit” Brown’s “Sinking of the Titanic” (1927), William & Versey Smith’s “When That Great Ship Went Down” (1927), and Huddie Ledbetter’s (Leadbelly) noncommercial recording titled “The Titanic” (1935), which is known to have formed part of his repertoire under the title “Fare Thee Well, Titanic” when he used to play with Blind Lemon Jefferson the same year the ship went down (Wolfe and Lornell, 1994, pp. 44, 46).

Among the most influential sacred recordings is Blind Willie Johnson’s “God Moves on the Water” (1929), a close version of which was collected by Dorothy Scarborough and published in 1919 (Oliver, 1984, pp. 223–224). Almost certainly religious in content are also some unreleased commercial sides, such as Reverend Edward W. Clayborn’s “Sinking of the Titanic” (1927) and the Jubilee Gospel Team’s two-part homonymous song (1930).

Six more prewar noncommercial topical songs on the subject are known to have been recorded for the Library of Congress. They are two songs bearing the same title, “The Titanic,” both recorded in the Darien, Georgia, area and attributed to J. Silence (1927) and Unidentified Singers and Groups

(ca. 1926–1928). The three remaining 1930s field recordings were made in different locations and are credited to Washington (Lightnin’) (“God Moves on the Water,” 1933), to Walter Roberts (“Sinking of the Titanic,” 1936), and to Will “Shorty” Love (“The Titanic [God Moved on the Waters],” 1939).

A Titanic-related song titled “When That Great Ship Went Down” is reported to have been sung by a black musician in the Durham, North Carolina, area in 1920, but black folk songs about the disaster had been collected in Alabama, the Carolinas, Georgia, and Mississippi as early as 1915 (Newman White, quoted in Smith, 1996, pp. 214–215). The only known prewar twelve-bar AAB blues on the sinking of the Titanic is “Hi” Henry Brown’s “Titanic Blues” (1932), a seemingly narrative—in fact a sharp and polemic—“anti-gospel song” (Smith, 1996, p. 221). This blues composition’s apparent objectivity in describing the historical event conceals the drama of a subtle, methodically corrosive, racial revenge toward the whites for not allowing the blacks on board the ship. This racial issue can be found in both of Leadbelly’s recordings on the Titanic, which purport that Captain Smith refused to board the first colored heavyweight boxing champion Jack Johnson, maintaining that he wasn’t “hauling no coal.” On introducing the 1948 version, Leadbelly conceded he would not sing the probably fictional Jack Johnson stanza when performing for black people.

In the postwar period, the popularity of the Titanic theme has shown no signs of diminishing over time. After Leadbelly’s repositioning of his Library of Congress title (1948), some traditional renderings were made—among others—by songsters Pink Anderson, who recorded “The Ship Titanic” (1950) and “The Titanic” (1961), Bill Jackson, who made “Titanic Blues” (1962), and Mance Lipscomb, who stated that he had learned “The Titanic” (1963, 1964, 1966) directly from Blind Willie Johnson.

A rhythm and blues version titled “Titanic” was cut by Paul Williams in 1956, while Bessie Jones immortalized the tragic event twice, first with her Georgia Sea Island Singers (“The Titanic,” 1961) and then solo (“Titanic,” 1973). Subsequent topical songs, such as Flora Molton’s “The Titanic” (1980) and Cousin Joe’s piano blues “What a Tragedy” (1985), often insisted on the fact that the poor were allowed to participate in the maiden voyage of the ship only in steerage. More adaptations or original compositions on the foundering of the transatlantic ship are John Koerner’s “Titanic” (1992), Rory Block’s “Titanic” (1998), Ben Andrews’s “Titanic” (1999), Fruteland Jackson’s “Titanic Blues” (1999), and Abi Wallenstein’s “Titanic” (2003).

The Natchez Fire (1940)

The horrible death of more than two hundred people (including bandleader Walter Barnes and all of his group except two musicians) in the Natchez, Mississippi, Rhythm Club fire on Tuesday, April 23, 1940, has so far produced no less than ten original compositions and four covers (two by white musicians) in almost sixty years. It is a relatively high number of songs if one considers this topic's minor historical importance and mostly regional resonance in comparison with internationally or nationally renowned disasters such as the sinking of the Titanic and the 1927 Mississippi River flood.

The durability of this theme is the result of two concurrent factors: African Americans' strong sense of popular conscience associated with, and expressing itself through, the creative power of memory and the fact that this tragedy struck almost exclusively the black population of Natchez and surrounding areas (Monge, 2005). Specifically blues or blues-related compositions dealing with the Natchez fire account for more than ninety percent of the total number of songs on the catastrophe.

The first two sides were recorded in Chicago by the Lewis Bronzeville Five only sixteen days after the tragedy. "Mississippi Fire Blues" and "Natchez Mississippi Blues" were vocal harmony songs reflecting the fashion of the period. On June 4, 1940, exactly six weeks after the burning of the Rhythm Club, another topical 78 rpm was cut in Chicago. "The Natchez Fire" is credited to Gene Gilmore accompanied by Leonard "Baby Doo" Caston on piano and Robert Lee McCoy (Robert Nighthawk) on harmonica. Its flip side, "The Death of Walter Barnes," was sung by Caston accompanying himself on piano with harmonica by Nighthawk. The last prewar recording on the Natchez Fire was a noncommercial religious ballad collected by Alan Lomax in Clarksdale for the Library of Congress on July 23, 1942, and sung by Charles Haffer, Jr., one of the greatest and most neglected African American composers of disaster songs. "The Natchez [Theatre] Fire Disaster" is an unaccompanied ballad containing a condemnation of the dancers' sinful behavior.

The first postwar song on the holocaust was Howlin' Wolf's "The Natchez Burnin'," which was recorded in Chicago for Chess on July 19, 1956, and remade by the Mississippi bluesman twelve years later for the label's subsidiary Checker, which did not release it. This blues would prove to be the most successful and most covered recording on the subject.

After one more religious field recording on the theme, made by Robert Gilmore and collected by Harry Oster in Louisiana during his 1956–1957 trip, the subsequent three compositions on the Natchez holocaust were recorded by John Lee Hooker. The first and second were studio recordings for Riverside (1959) and Galaxy (1961), respectively, the third a live recording at the 1963 Newport Folk Festival. All of Hooker's tributes to the victims of the burning report the wrong year in which the tragedy took place. The reason for the mistake is very likely due to Hooker's muddling of the years in which the Natchez Fire and the Tupelo disaster occurred.

Unsurprisingly, the importance of the Natchez Fire theme started to diminish thirty years after the burning, but it did not die out. The white rock-blues group the Groundhogs (1969) and Captain Beefheart (1972) covered Howlin' Wolf's original recording, which was later also reprised by black down-home blues musicians Willie Wright (1976) and Elmo Williams and Hezekiah Early (1997).

Air Blues

Tornadoes, hurricanes, storms, and similar weather phenomena have frequently swept, and often still sweep, the American continent. This explains why generic and topical songs on these subjects have always been popular since blues was first recorded. Among such compositions are Alger "Texas" Alexander's "Frost Texas Tornado Blues" (1930), Lucille "Bessie Jackson" Bogan's "Mean Twister" (1933), Kokomo Arnold's "Mean Old Twister" (1937), Jimmy Oden's "Florida Hurricane" (1948), John Lee Hooker's "Twister Blues" (1948 or 1949), and Matthew "Hogman" Maxey's "Lightnin' Blues" (1959), just to name a few. In 1994 Big Jack Johnson recorded "Ice Storm Blues," an original two-part composition on the great ice storm that left Clarksdale, Mississippi, without electricity for many weeks in February of that year. Interestingly, Johnson sings his verses to the tune of Howlin' Wolf's "The Natchez Burnin'." Five years later, James "Boo Boo" Davis recorded "Ice Storm," another blues on the event, where he sings imitating Howlin' Wolf's voice. Both compositions show the persistence and flexibility of African American blues lyrics.

Beside the above, numerous topical recordings dealing with air-related natural calamities were made in the prewar period, often during fieldwork. Some of these songs are still unissued in any format. Among them are Sin-Killer Griffin's "Wasn't That a Mighty Storm" (1934), Mose Andrews's "Mississippi Storm" (1935), Mamma Hagar Brown's "Ballad of the '93 Storm” and “Story of the ’93 Storm” (1936), Mrs. Lillie Knox’s “Ballad of the ’93 Storm” (1936), Tom Bell’s “Storm in Arkansas” (1940), and Roosevelt Charles’s “Hurricane Audrey Blues” (1960).

Sam “Lightnin’” Hopkins, who was certainly one of the most prolific blues artists to record disaster songs, reveals a sort of obsession with hurricanes and storms, which may also help explain his pathological fear of flying. Hopkins’s long career is replete with generic and topical blues songs dealing with natural calamities, including “That Mean Old Twister” (1946, 1959), “Dark and Cloudy” (1950), “Hurricanes Carla and Esther” (1961), “California Showers” (1961), “Ice Storm Blues” (1962), “Heavy Snow” (1962), “The Twister” (1964), “Hurricane Betsy” (1965), “Hurricane Beulah” (1967), and “California Mudslide” (1969).

Among accidental tragedies, in June 1937 Leadbelly recorded for the Archive of Folk Song two different takes of “The Hindenberg Disaster” (sic), a mainly narrative account of how the German airship Hindenburg—the so-called “Titanic of the Sky” in that it was the largest aircraft ever to have flown—crashed immediately before landing at the Lakehurst Naval Air Station in New Jersey, on May 6, 1937 (Wolfe and Lornell, 1994, p. 208).

Earth Blues

Although California and many other states are very seismic areas, relatively few topical blues on earthquakes have been recorded. After escaping the Mississippi River flood, Alice Pearson may also have experienced the earthquake that shook Memphis on May 7, 1927. About two months later, she recorded “Memphis Earthquake,” the first of the three disaster songs she cut during her only session for Paramount. Robert Lowery’s “Earthquake Blues” (1989) is a recording about an earthquake that hit Santa Cruz, California.

Fire Blues

Besides the consistent corpus of songs on the Natchez fire, we are acquainted with a few nonthematic blues compositions that have fire as the main subject, but topical blues on fire disasters are infrequent. Among them are Roosevelt Sykes’s “Fire Detective Blues” (1929), Leola Manning’s “The Arcade Building Moan” (1930), perhaps Sam Collins’s unissued ARC take of “Atlanta Fire” (1931), “Sleepy” John Estes’s “Fire Department Blues (Martha Hardin)” (1938), Lightnin’ Hopkins’s “Mister Charlie” (1960), and Rod Piazza’s “California Fire Blues” (1993).

In 1995 Big Bo McGee cut “The Burning,” an account of a black Natchez schoolhouse arson during Lyndon Johnson’s presidency. Independent of whether it depicts a true fact, the song sheds light on the technique of blues composition because it borrows the introductory stanza of Howlin’ Wolf’s “The Natchez Burnin’” and then develops a completely different theme.

Water Blues

Alongside gospel songs, sermons, and other religious compositions, a broad array of blues songs not specifically related to the 1927 flooding of the Mississippi River were recorded, especially in the prewar period, when similarly severe catastrophes occurred in Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Kentucky, Tennessee, and other states. Among them are Ruby Gowdy’s “Florida Flood Blues” (1928), in fact on a hurricane causing flooding, Ivy Smith’s “Southern High Waters Blues” (1929), George Carter’s (probably Charlie Hicks) “Rising River Blues” (1929), Mattie Delaney’s “Tallahatchie River Blues” (1930), Sonny Scott’s “Rolling Water” (1933), Leroy Carr’s “Muddy Water” (1934), and Joe Pullum’s “Mississippi Flood Blues” (1935).

As a result of more floods in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Maryland, Casey Bill Weldon recorded “Flood Water Blues No. 1 & 2” (1936) and Carl Martin cut “High Water Flood Blues” (1936). In 1937, Bumble Bee Slim’s “Rising River Blues,” Big Bill Broonzy’s “Southern Flood Blues” and its flip side “Terrible Flood Blues,” Kokomo Arnold’s “Wild Water Blues,” Sleepy John Estes’s “Floating Bridge,” and Lonnie Johnson’s “Flood Water Blues” and possibly also his “South Bound Backwater” (1938) were recorded on the floods that took place along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

Many years after the 1937 floods, Roosevelt Charles recorded for Harry Oster (1975, pp. 283–284) the unissued “Where Were You When the Archeta River Went Down?” (1959). Because of the decrease in the number of disastrous floods in the postwar period, fewer original songs on this phenomenon have been recorded. Among them are Lil’ Son Jackson’s “Cairo Blues” (1949), based on Blue Belle’s song, Larry Davis’s “Texas Flood” (1958), K. C. Douglas’s “High Water Rising” (1974), Michael “Hawkeye” Herman’s “The Great Flood of ’93” (1994), Fruteland Jackson’s “Chicago Flood Song” (1991), Guy Davis’s “Georgia Flood” (1998), Tom Townsley’s “Knob Creek Flood” (1998), and Chris Thomas King’s “Flooded in the Delta” (2001).

Conclusion

In addition to the different perspectives of religious and secular songs on both natural and accidental disasters (Smith, 1996; Evans, 2005; Monge, 2005) as well as to black blues people's less narrative and more personal approach to historical facts than that of white blues people, the following brief conclusions can be drawn from this survey of topical blues on disasters:

1. Regardless of their nature, scope, historical, social, economic, and geographical impact, number of victims, and so on, the diachronic development of how each disaster has been delved into is somewhat revelatory of its importance for blues musicians. Even the catastrophes they have overlooked have played a role of their own, if only because they were of minor appeal to the performer/composer both as an individual and as a spokesperson for his/her community. This may explain why a tragedy such as the burning of the Rhythm Club, which affected a geographically restricted area, acquires new meaning and goes beyond regional boundaries if it is seen as a doleful event that struck not only the Natchez black community but also the African American community as a whole.
2. When recording companies did not urge their artists to write and/or cut disaster songs with the aim to exploit a favorable market (especially in the wake of some early topical recordings' commercial success) and folksong collectors did not ask them to do the same in their effort to document and preserve the most genuine manifestations of popular music, the blues musicians' main purpose in composing such songs seems to derive from the need to urge their people not to forget. The fact that a singer makes recourse to the unifying power of memory is a sign of great maturity and awareness, and it is particularly significant for the poor, oppressed, and uneducated African American community at the dawn of blues recordings.
3. This partial study of the most popular disaster themes shows that, possibly because of their higher occurrence in the early days of the blues, natural disasters seem to have inspired blues people's imagination more than accidental disasters. But this is merely a statistical datum. If we compare the two greatest twentieth-century tragedies, the Titanic theme has shown itself to be more malleable and resilient than the 1927 Mississippi River flood. Original songs on the sinking of the Titanic are occasionally still being composed, while the flooding has elicited little (if any) new material in the last sixty years. This turns out to be true also for disasters that had a comparatively minor artistic impact, for instance, natural calamities (the Dry Spell, the Tupelo storm, the St. Louis cyclone) as opposed to accidental catastrophes (the Rhythm Club fire). This leads one to think that there might be an underlying logical explanation. By intuition, one such reason could be found in the fact that accidental disasters are more subject to elicit biting comments than natural disasters because of the latter's casualness, and it may not seem fortuitous that the two accidental catastrophes examined here specifically concerned either an exclusively black or white group of people. Indeed, upon closer examination there seem to be no clear-cut different attitudes in the way natural and accidental disasters are treated by blues people in their lyrics. A more-or-less covert theme of protest sporadically runs through topical blues on natural calamities (see Lonnie Johnson's "Broken Levee Blues"). Conversely, in their songs on accidental disasters blues people are not always prone to make harsh critical remarks on the facts that have occurred (see Howlin' Wolf's "The Natchez Burnin'"). The main feature distinguishing songs on natural and accidental disasters, therefore, remains their quality to stand the test of time. Topical compositions on a specific subject should not be examined as events in a timeline but as a survey of history and perspectives.
4. Some songs, such as Howlin' Wolf's "The Natchez Burnin'," have worked both as catalysts and "preservatives" for subsequent original compositions on the same or other disaster topics. Others, such as Bessie Smith's "Back-Water Blues" and Blind Willie Johnson's "God Moves on the Water," have mainly produced a great number of cover versions, bringing about relatively minor variations to lyrics and music. The consequences of disasters are sometimes used to symbolize sex problems for the singer and his/her community in a typical blues mode. The most explicit example is Barbecue Bob's "Mississippi Heavy Water Blues," where water is the logical element to be used as a metaphor for sexual insemination, especially in a prevalently rural community at the mercy of weather conditions.

TOPICAL BLUES: DISASTERS

LUIGI MONGE

Bibliography

DGR

- Dixon, Robert M. W., John Godrich, and Howard W. Rye. Blues and Gospel Records 1890–1943. 4th ed. New York: Oxford University Press, 1997.
- Evans, David. “High Water Everywhere: Blues and Gospel Commentary on the 1927 Mississippi River Flood.” In Nobody Knows Where the Blues Come From, edited by Robert Springer. Jackson: University Press of Mississippi, 2005.
- Lomax, Alan. The Land Where the Blues Began. New York: Pantheon Books, 1993.
- Monge, Luigi. “Death by Fire: African-American Popular Music on the Natchez Rhythm Club Fire.” In Nobody Knows Where the Blues Come From, edited by Robert Springer. Jackson: University Press of Mississippi, 2005.
- . “Preachin’ the Blues: A Textual Linguistic Analysis of Son House’s ‘Dry Spell Blues.’” Forthcoming.
- Oliver, Paul. Songsters and Saints: Vocal Traditions on Race Records. Cambridge, U.K.: Cambridge University Press, 1984.
- Oster, Harry. Living Country Blues. New York: Minerva Press, 1975.
- Smith, Chris. “The Titanic: A Case Study of Religious and Secular Attitudes in African American Song.” In Saints and Sinners: Religion, Blues and (D)evil in African-American Music and Literature, edited by Robert Sacré. pp. 213–227. Liège, Belgium: Société Liégeoise de Musicologie, 1996.
- Wolfe, Charles, and Kip Lornell. The Life and Legend of Leadbelly. New York: HarperCollins, 1994.

Discography

- Various artists. Titanic Songs (n.d., Unsinkable Music [Toronto] TSCD 22798).

TOPICAL BLUES: SPORTS

Sports contests involving individuals of African descent in America date from the early colonial era when slaves trained horses for racing and cocks for fighting. During the years leading up to the Civil War, blacks competed only with each other in a variety of sports as well as hunted and fished. In the late nineteenth century, blacks competed in organized sports clubs of their own and on college campuses. Following World War I, blacks competed against whites in a limited number of organized sports contests. After World War II, blacks successfully integrated most organized sports and achieved social recognition as champion athletes. This effort to compete equally with whites and to achieve championship status for blacks informed the lyrics of blues music.

Blacks participated in sports activities, as Arthur Ashe notes, from their earliest arrival in colonial America. They ran foot races, fenced with sticks, wrestled, boxed, and played ball games. Slaves distinguished themselves and attended mixed social events by training horses and gaming birds for their white owners. Laws prohibited, however, all other sporting contests between whites, slaves, and free men of color.

In the early nineteenth century, two black American men achieved international recognition as boxers. William Richmond, a freeborn black man in New York, boxed his way to contention in England, where he challenged and lost a bout for the championship. Tom Molineaux, born a slave in Virginia, showed such prowess that he won large sums of money for his white owner. He eventually won his freedom from slavery by his successful boxing matches. Molineaux traveled to London, where he trained with William Richmond to fight for the championship. Like Richmond, he lost in a rigged bout. Judges waived the rules in both bouts to the benefit of the white defending English champion, Thomas Cribb. In a subsequent rematch, Molineaux again lost to Cribb.

Blacks in America excelled and dominated the sport of horse racing during the nineteenth century. This sport grew in popularity during this era, and all social classes, including slaves, watched these racing events. The first Match Race in 1823 pitted the best horse and jockey of the North and South against each other in a series of four-mile heats before a crowd of thousands of people. By the time of the Civil War, the best jockeys and trainers were slaves as no one matched their abilities.

Ashe further notes that the Young Men’s Christian Association or YMCA in 1853 and later the YWCA for women in 1893 opened their doors to “colored” branches and provided both athletic facilities as well as temporary housing for blacks. By the late nineteenth century, black land-grant colleges developed sports programs for their students. The Second Morrill Act passed by Congress in 1890, however, hindered these colleges. This act dictated that federal funding for land-grant colleges was to be distributed at the discretion of individual state legislatures. In the rising tide of Jim Crow laws across the South, many states used this opportunity to restrict their funding for the black land-grant colleges. Sports facilities in many black schools suffered because of this for most of the next century.

By 1908, blacks boxed in all weight classes for world championship status except for the heavy-weight title. In that year, a black heavyweight, Jack Johnson, claimed the championship and held it for the next seven years. Other black boxing champions of the era included George Dixon, Joe Gans, Aaron Brown, and Joe Walcott.

Even as black athletes persevered in the face of racial restrictions during the early twentieth century, they participated in more integrated sporting contests with each passing year. William Dehart Hubbard won the first gold medal as a black athlete competing in an individual event during the 1924 Paris Olympics. Jesse Owens astonished the world by claiming four gold medals in the 1936 Berlin Olympics.

Joe Louis emerged in 1937 as the heavyweight champion of the world when he knocked out James Braddock in Chicago's Comiskey Park. Louis had lost the previous year to Max Schmeling but beat him in a rematch in 1938 to retain the heavyweight crown that he held until 1949. The achievement of Louis came after a period of years when blacks were again excluded from heavyweight championship bouts. Harry Willis was a superior heavyweight boxing talent who never fought against Jack Dempsey in the 1920s only because he was black.

Ashe also notes that Chicago became the black sporting capital of the country after World War I. The Chicago Defender newspaper covered black sporting events in detail and found national distribution along the railroad systems radiating from the city. Basketball, baseball, and tennis flourished, with popular citywide support. The Chicago Cardinals fielded teams with black players that competed in the National Football League.

After World War II, more sports organizations opened their doors to black participation. Perhaps the most celebrated event in the postwar period was the arrival of Jackie Robinson to play for the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1947. It would take twelve more years, however, before every major league team had a black player. Before Robinson's arrival with the Dodgers, blacks had played a form of baseball since the early nineteenth century. Black soldiers played organized baseball games during the Civil War. Excluded from major league baseball, black businessmen organized and financed the Negro National League in 1920. The NNL produced many superlative athletes such as James Bell, Josh Gibson, and Leroy Paige.

Equality issues remain. In recent years sports has sought to provide equal access to athletic facilities for women through a change in federal law with the passing of Title IX. Although black players have integrated successfully in most organized sports programs, there is still limited black participation at the administrative and management level.

Black sports experience and achievement in horse racing, baseball, and boxing inspired a number of blues songs. No less than nine blues songs chronicle the events of Joe Louis and his success as a boxer.

Songs such as "Champ Joe Louis (King of the Gloves)" recorded by Bill Gaither in 1938 express the pride and desire for acceptance that many felt following his championship effort.

BILL GRAVES

Bibliography

- Ashe, Arthur R., Jr. A Hard Road to Glory: A History of the African-American Athlete 1619–1918. New York: Warner Books, 1988.
- . A Hard Road to Glory: A History of the African-American Athlete 1919–1945. New York: Warner Books, 1988.
- . A Hard Road to Glory: A History of the African-American Athlete Since 1946. New York: Warner Books, 1988.
- Caponi, Gena Dagele, ed. Signifyin(g), Santifyin,' & Slam Dunking. Amherst: University of Massachusetts Press, 1999.
- Hacker, Andrew. Two Nations. New York: Ballantine Books, 1995.
- Robertson, Ian. Sociology, Third Edition. New York: Worth Publishers, 1987.
- Shropshire, Kenneth L. In Back and White. New York: New York University Press, 1996.

TOPICAL BLUES: URBAN RENEWAL

Urban renewal efforts in America grew out of the squalid social conditions found in cities dating from the late nineteenth century. Early social reformers first called attention to impoverished neighborhoods and the need for improvements. The Progressive movement followed in the early twentieth century and inspired New Deal legislation that addressed housing problems. After the end of World War II, the federal government directed larger urban renewal projects. The social conditions that surrounded the need for urban renewal also influenced the lyrical content of blues songs.

The Census Bureau declared the American frontier officially closed in 1890. At that time, only a third of the population lived in cities. From 1890 until World War I, a major population shift occurred as millions of people teamed into industrial cities to live and work. City governments in the late nineteenth century operated political machines that exploited their constituents. These local machines ignored the overall well being of their inhabitants as more and more people lived in inadequate housing.

Reformers such as Jane Addams in Chicago and Lillian Wald in New York brought the social problems that grew out of these living conditions to the public's attention. Other social reformers took up the fight and passed local tenement laws in an effort to improve living conditions. With the establishment of the Public Works Administration in 1933, the New Deal of President Franklin Roosevelt cleared slums and built low-rent housing.

The Housing Act of 1937 followed but fell short of its purpose to improve the safety and sanitary living conditions in America's cities. While more slums were cleared, the building of low-rent housing units did not keep pace with the number of housing units demolished. The Housing Act of 1949 again attempted to develop standard housing for individuals and families living in poor neighborhoods. The results of Title I of this act, however, saw the transfer and subsidy of low-income housing properties into the hands of private developers, who often used this property for purposes other than housing. Because of this act, more people became displaced.

The Housing Act of 1954 focused more on the rehabilitation of houses and the preservation of existing neighborhoods. If slums were cleared, cities were required to show that displaced families were relocated to adequate housing in redeveloped areas. Another feature of the Housing Act of 1954 was that it allowed citizen participation in the urban renewal effort. While the initial response to this act was very optimistic, few urban renewal areas actually succeeded.

Social conditions for southern blacks in America in the early twentieth century forced them to make hard choices in their lives. They could stay in the sharecropping system and live with the restrictions of Jim Crow laws in the South or they could move to a city in hopes of finding better opportunities for work. The living conditions for many blacks in the South were squalid—dilapidated houses without toilets, baths, running water, heat, gas, or electricity. With optimism and determination, many individuals and families chose to move.

The outbreak of World War I brought the offer of jobs in northern cities. The black populations of cities such as Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia, and New York began to expand more rapidly than their neighborhoods could adequately house. This crowding resulted in “hot bed” apartments, where three groups of tenants shared a dwelling with each group having access to the space for eight hours during a twenty-four-hour day. Multiple families shared one toilet. People lived in dark, stale basements. Tenants often paid high rents for these living conditions. Those who could not afford rent slept on sidewalk grates or in doorways.

While a growing number of black migrants found better jobs and a decent place to live for their families, many were forced to deal with criminal predators. Con artists swindled unsuspecting people out of their money. Desperate young women worked as prostitutes. Local churches, community shelters, and traveler's aid groups sprang up and addressed these social conditions. These efforts provided temporary housing, job postings, and assistance for children. The National Urban League, which was founded in 1911, helped members of black communities in northern cities. The league addressed the larger societal needs of its members in securing better working and living conditions.

After World War I, the federal government expanded its role in finding solutions to urban blight, and higher expectations came to bear on these solutions. Often these expectations went unmet, with efforts for successful urban renewal falling short. The level of frustration reached its high point during the Great Society years of President Lyndon Johnson. Funding for urban renewal projects was redirected instead to support the war in Vietnam. As the Great Society failed to adequately address social problems, riots broke out in a number of American cities in the 1960s.

While some improvements succeeded in cities, federal plans often introduced new problems in trying to correct past mistakes and subsequently failed. A number of factors contributed to the failures. Political concerns challenged urban renewal from the beginning. Many city governments condoned the racist practice of confining people to specific neighborhoods while private businesses restricted the sale of insurance or the extension of credit by policies known as redlining. Even as late as 1950, the National Real Estate Board restricted the sale of property and prevented people from living anywhere they could.

Many cities touted a reform agenda while they continued machine politics as usual. Patronage often took a higher priority than urban renewal. Chicago professed to be the “city that worked” when in fact substandard housing existed in many neighborhoods. Chicago aldermen ignored the failure of high-rise public housing for many years because they did not want to dilute their voting constituency at election time.

Local interests often never reached consensus as citizen interest groups became splintered in their demands. Conflicts resulted on how best to develop urban areas, with calls for social reforms remaining narrowly focused. Political agendas for cities changed over time and reduced the public interest in the success of many urban renewal projects. In an effort to maintain fiscal responsibility, communities often ignored the indirect social costs of urban blight. The frequent shifts in market forces hindered private investment in the business of urban renewal.

Blighted areas in cities have been linked to a number of social problems. High population density can lead to high rates of death, social welfare, illiteracy, juvenile crime, sex offenses, joblessness, divorce, social diseases, alcohol and drug abuse, mental disorders, murder, and suicide. These urban conditions inspired a number of blues songs.

Charlie Jackson recorded “Maxwell Street Blues” in 1925, in which the difficulties of a young vagrant woman in Chicago are lamented by her boyfriend after she has been arrested for prostitution and taken to a police station. In 1938, Huddie Ledbetter recorded “The Bourgeois Blues,” a song about the frustration and humiliation of a couple searching for a place to live in a white neighborhood.

Alberta Hunter was the first of many blues artists to record “Down South Blues” in 1923, in which she sang about the difficulties of falling behind in the rent during wintertime and the prospect of returning to the Jim Crow South, which at least would be warm.

The difficulties of urban life informed the early songs of Bob Dylan, whose musical roots include the blues. In his song “Hard Times in New York Town” written in 1963 there are echoes of Huddie Ledbetter’s “The Bourgeois Blues.” In Dylan’s song “Only a Hobo” written in 1963, he sings about the death of a homeless person defeated by urban life.

BILL GRAVES

Bibliography

- Bellush, Jewel, and Murray Hausknecht, eds. Urban Renewal: People, Politics, and Planning. New York: Anchor Books, 1967.
- Condit, Carl W. Chicago: 1930–1970. Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1974.
- Crew, Spencer R. Field to Factory: Afro-American Migration 1915–1940. Washington, DC: Smithsonian Institution, 1987.
- Judd, Dennis R., and Robert E. Mendelson. The Politics of Urban Planning. Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 1973.
- Rossi, Peter H., and Robert A. Dentler. The Politics of Urban Renewal. Glencoe: Free Press, 1961.
- Squires, Gregory D., Larry Bennett, Kathleen McCourt, and Philip Nyden. Chicago: Race, Class, and the Response to Urban Decline. Philadelphia: Temple University Press, 1987.
- Stone, Clarence N. Economic Growth and Neighborhood Discontent. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press, 1976.

TOURE, ALI FARKA

b. 1939; Niafounke, Mali

Guitarist and singer. Almost fifty at the time of his international discovery, Toure’s back-to-the-source stylings provided a fascinating insight into blues cross-pollination, especially when paired with Western players such as Ry Cooder, Taj Mahal, and Gatemouth Brown.

Toure, who defied tribal tradition to become a musician despite his noble birth, began his career on indigenous single-string instruments before taking up the guitar. He heard American music for the first time in the late 1960s and was struck by the similarity of sound between John Lee Hooker and his own rumbling, low-register vocals and droning, midtempo rhythms drawn from the music of Mali. The world had the resemblance brought to its attention with the 1994 release of Talking Timbuktu, a collaborative effort with Cooder that won a Grammy and went to the top of Billboard’s world music charts.

Toure sang in eleven African languages in addition to occasional English. After his eponymous debut in 1988 he recorded steadily, adding three more titles, including African Blues, The Source, and The River before the success of Talking Timbuktu. He continued recording, returning to a more roots-oriented approach with Niafunke in 1999 but also maintained his native, nonmusic occupation as a Niger river rice farmer.

MICHAEL POINT

Bibliography

- Larkin
- Dery, M. “The African Blues of Ali Farka Toure.” Guitar Player 24 no. 8 (August 1990): 14.
- Goldman, E. L. “Ali Farka Toure: From the Sahel to the Delta.” Living Blues no. 88 (September/October 1989): 19–21.

TOUSSAINT, ALLEN

b. 14 January 1938; New Orleans, LA

Allen Toussaint ranks among America’s most influential and versatile musical figures, having excelled as a songwriter, arranger, session pianist, and producer. His influence extends across the popular music landscape, and though he’s most often associated with the tunes from his native New Orleans, Toussaint has enjoyed success in R&B, jazz, country, blues, and pop. His playing blends the wealth of Crescent City styles, some barrelhouse blues, some marching band references, jazzy intervals, and sweeping octave leaps and passages. Indeed, Toussaint made his initial mark as a player, replacing Huey “Piano” Smith in Earl King’s band and then being hired to provide the piano backgrounds for Fats Domino at a recording session by Dave Bartholomew whenever Domino’s schedule made him unavailable.

By the late 1950s, Toussaint was already cranking out hits and frequently doubling as the keyboard player and/or producer on releases by Irma Thomas, Jessie Hill, Benny Spellman, and many others. He sometimes took the pen name Naomi Neville, but whatever he called himself, Toussaint stayed busy through the 1960s. A pair of relatively lightweight instruments Toussaint penned became huge pop standards, “Java” for Al Hirt and “Whipped Cream” for Herb Alpert (later also the theme for the forgettable television show The Dating Game).

The second phase of Toussaint’s career came when he teamed with Marshall Sehorn during the late 1960s and created Sansu Enterprises. He later opened a premier recording operation in Sea-Saint Studios during the 1970s and continued enjoying big hits working with Lee Dorsey, the Meters, Dr. John, and Labelle and providing arrangements for records featuring the Band (“Rock of Ages”) and Paul Simon (“Kodachrome”). He also started a solo recording career, issuing releases for Scepter and Warner Brothers.

Ironically, Toussaint’s solo releases have often tended to be inconsistent at best and disposable at worst. Still, the good moments from such albums as Southern Nights and From a Whisper to a Scream have been superb, and Glen Campbell’s version of “Southern Nights” eventually won the Country Music Association Song of the Year honors for 1977 and a BMI citation as Most Performed Song of the Year. As the 1970s and 1980s continued, Toussaint tunes were covered by the Pointer Sisters, Bonnie Raitt, the Judds, and Robert Palmer, among others.

Yet another element of Toussaint’s talent was illuminated during the 1980s, when he contributed to the award-winning off-Broadway play Staggerlee as well as writing both words and music to the play William Christopher. Toussaint was both principal composer and musical director of the 1991 Broadway production of High Rollers Social Aid and Pleasure Club. The documentary Piano Players Rarely Ever Play Together spotlighted both his skills and competitive fire as he performed alongside New Orleans keyboard giants Professor Longhair (the person he considers his main mentor) and Tuts Washington.

Besides receiving the Louisiana Lifetime Achievement Award, Toussaint was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 1998. In recent years, he has been playing frequently at clubs in the French Quarter and presiding over the NYNO (New York & New Orleans) label in New Orleans. His late 1990s release Connected showcased the complete range of Toussaint material from driving blues and gritty R&B to country-influenced soul and pop, and it also bridged multiple generations of Crescent City performers with guest stints from trumpeter Dave Bartholomew, guitarist Leo Nocentelli, drummer Russell Batiste, and saxophonist Amadee Castenell.

RON WYNN

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Larkin; Santelli
Cohodas, Nadine. “Allen Toussaint: The Wild Sounds.”
Living Blues no. 128 (July/August 1996): 32–35.

Discography: AMG

TOWNSEND, HENRY

b. 27 October 1909; Shelby, MS

Townsend had a typical, almost clichéd, early life for a blues singer, moving a number of times from Mississippi to Cairo, Illinois, in his childhood before running away from home at age nine. There he shined shoes at a speakeasy and acted as a go-between with bootleggers before working briefly in a refining and rubber plant. As he said himself in his autobiography, “I knew how to live without doing too much of anything.”

He was inspired to take up the guitar after hearing a friend of his father, although his first instrument was harmonica. A girlfriend bought him a guitar, which he eventually destroyed in frustration at not being able to get it to sound right.

In 1929, he recorded four sides for Columbia in the distinctive St. Louis style, with its attractive upper string figures and melodic rhythm—a style heard in archetypal form in the two recordings by the older Henry Spaulding. Further sessions followed between 1931 and 1937 for Paramount and Victor/Bluebird, and Townsend remains the sole early bluesman to have recorded at least once in every decade to the end of the century.

He worked closely with other bluesmen in St. Louis, including Lonnie Johnson, Roosevelt Sykes, J. D. Short, and Walter Davis (whom, Townsend insists startlingly, he taught how to play piano), and lived the life of an urban bluesman in clubs, bars, and dances. In the 1950s he formed a band with dancing girls, and he officially retired at age sixty eight, only to reappear after a break. He also appeared in the films Blues Like Showers of Rain (1970) and The Devil’s Music (1976) and in a TV documentary called That’s the Way to Do It (1986).

In recent years he has been a regular guest at festivals in the United States and Europe and despite his advancing years has remained a highly competent performer. In 1985 he was presented with a National Heritage Award from the National Endowment for the Arts and with a plaque calling him “the Patriarch of St. Louis Blues” in the St. Louis Walk of Fame. And he rounded off the century with an album called My Story (APO 2014), playing guitar and piano on twelve newly written songs.

It’s probably fair to say Townsend’s best work dates back to the 1920s and 1930s when his inspiration was fresh, and numbers such as “Mistreated Blues” “Sick with the Blues,” and “Jack of Diamonds Georgia Rub” (strongly influenced by Clifford Gibson) stand as excellent examples of the slightly urbanized country blues. But he’s had a long and creative career as a thoughtful and impressive artist, never quite first rank but never far removed.

ANDREW M. COHEN

Bibliography

AMG (Cub Koda and Stephen Thomas Erlewine); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli
Townsend, Henry, and Bill Greensmith. A Blues Life. Chicago: University of Illinois Press, 1999.

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSFP

TOWNSEND, VERNELL PERRY

b. 5 April 1930; Brinkley, AR

d. 21 September 1995; St. Louis, MO

Townsend moved with her family to St. Louis while young. She met and married Henry Townsend in the mid-1960s and occasionally performed with him. Some recordings of her with her husband were issued on the Adelphi, Nighthawk, Wolf, and Southland labels.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

“Obituaries: Other Deaths.” Living Blues no. 126 (March/April 1996): 62.

TRANSATLANTIC

British record company established by Nathan Joseph in 1963, devoted primarily to folk music. Important blues issues, especially on the budget Xtra label, included original 1966 recordings by Doctor Ross. Material derived from Folkways included unissued recordings of Big Joe Williams. Trading ceased in the 1970s and subsequent revivals have not been important for blues.

HOWARD RYE

TRANSCRIPTION

Definition: A rendering from one medium to another. In the blues, this may have two meanings: (1) a close imitation or a rearrangement of an instrumental accompaniment for another instrument, such as piano accompaniment rearranged for guitar, or a guitar accompaniment rearranged for a band of several instruments; (2) a rendering of written words and notated music, from live performances or sound recordings. This entry will concern itself with the second sense of this term.

Completed transcriptions are secondary sources to the musical primary source, but they may be useful as illustrations to a written or oral presentation, as resources toward analytic comparison of several blues performances, and as a helpful aid to the recovery of content should the recording be later damaged. Also, the very act of transcribing puts a student in an excellent position to observe the habits or tendencies in a blues musician’s lyric formulation and/or musical style. The best transcriptions not only convey the words but have notes on their meanings and overall functions within the whole song.

Lyric Transcription

Method

For a faithful lyric transcription, the best copies of the original issues, or the clearest sounding reissues, of the selected performances should be used. The compact disc laser technology permits repeated playings of a passage without damage to the disc. Some transcribers make a cassette tape of the performance, then play back the tape on a special player that rewinds at short lengths (a foot-pedal control for rewinding is recommended, so as to leave the hands free for writing or typing).

The lyric transcriber should be aware of any historical aspects of the recording, such as when it was made and from where the musician came. Hence, knowledge of local or regional lore is helpful. So also is knowledge of slang and phrases particular to the musician’s culture and times. Reading interviews of the musician and of his/her contemporaries is a good way to prepare. Three dictionaries of slang will be of use: Harold Wentworth and Stuart Flexner's Dictionary of American Slang, 2nd supplemental edition (New York: Crowell, 1975), Robert L. Chapman's New Dictionary of American Slang (New York: Harper and Row, 1986), and Eric Partridge's A Dictionary of Slang and Unconventional English, 8th edition (New York: Macmillan, 1984).

As the transcriber gains practice, he or she will become aware of several plays of word exercises, such as these described in the Blues entry: appropriation; phrase formulas; phonetic imitation; paraphrase; substitutions; telescoping; rhythmic conversion; adaptation of locale or gender; and lists. Study of these devices, and identification of others yet to be discerned, will aid toward the clear, purposeful understanding of a set of lyrics.

To resolve incomplete or garbled lyrics, or to determine meanings of rarely used slang words, the transcriber will need to find instances of a word or phrase occurring in different song lyrics. Works that take textual lines or lyrics and organize them by words used in common are called concordances. For the blues, one such concordance has been prepared by Michael Taft (1979) with a body of selected lyrics from pre-1942 blues. With ongoing transcription efforts aiming toward a rendering of most if not all pre-1942 blues and sacred music, we will be in a position to prepare a new concordance, then perhaps a dictionary of terms used in those records.

Problems and Challenges

Worn and damaged recordings pose the greatest challenges for transcription. A troublesome group is the 12000/13000 Paramount label records, which were pressed on a cheap and noisy shellac mixture, and many of the later issues released in 1930–1932 survive in five copies or less. Among these older recordings, some classic examples may be examined:

1. For the first chorus of Louise Johnson's "On the Wall" (1930, Paramount), Taft transcribed the opening lyric as

I'm going up to Memphis, goin' to Cincinnati'.

The high surface noise distorts the final word. Also, what little is known about Johnson indicates she was active in Memphis and north Mississippi, but not in Cincinnati. Informed by Memphis history, the line is better rendered as in reference to his Monarch saloon.

I'm going to Memphis, goin' to Jim Kinnane's,

2. Charlie Patton recordings are a special challenge, not only because of the poor physical shape of the surviving copies but also because of his indistinct singing, even in person. The lyrics for "Some Summer Day" (1930, Paramount) appear to be difficult to distinguish, until the transcriber recognizes that the tune is the same as for that of the Mississippi Sheiks' "Sitting on Top of the World" (1930, OKeh). Playing the two records side by side, the transcriber will find many concordant appropriations from the clear-sounding Mississippi Sheiks performances in the Patton record.
3. A similar case is Jabo Williams's "Ko Ko Mo Blues" (1932, Paramount), for which all reissued copies have much surface noise. Comparison with other performances in the "Kokomo" song group (see One Time Blues entry) such as Kokomo Arnold's "Original Old Kokomo Blues" (1934) and Robert Johnson's "Sweet Home Chicago" (1936) yield the "one and one is two" numerical game buried beneath the surface noise of the Williams record.
4. Son House's "Dry Spell Blues Parts I and II" (1930, Paramount) has been transcribed many times. One typical transcription of the final line of Part II is Robert Macleod's rendering as

For it's very likely, goin' to rain no more, a respectable effort in view of House's raised voice and the high surface noise near the end of that disc side. Dick Spottswood (2001) offers this line as God sent Elijah, but there ain't no word, in reference to Elijah's initial appearance in the Bible at I Kings 17:1. Such an offering becomes plausible when it is remembered that House was a preacher as well as a bluesman.

When working with performances recorded to magnetic tape (1940s on), in stereo (1950s on), and by digital means (1980s on) and pressed onto vinyl LPs (1940s on) or compact discs (1980s on), the degree of difficulty is considerably lessened. But even on the clearest fidelity recordings, lyrics may become distorted or disfigured when sung to a melody, particularly one in a high register, or to a rhythm different from that of the words as spoken. The transcriber needs to be reminded that blues are sung, rarely spoken; also, the manners of speaking may change from era to era and from one generation to the next. Hence, there is no time like the present to transcribe, even recent and contemporary blues.

Publications

The following are full citations of works mentioned above and of classic lyric transcription presentations now considered standard:

- Blues World Booklet*, Bob Groom, editor. Knutsford, Cheshire, England: three issues, 1967–1970. The artists whose blues lyrics were transcribed in the three numbers were Blind Lemon Jefferson, Robert Johnson, and Charlie Patton.
- Sackheim, Eric, compiler. The Blues Line: A Collection of Blues Lyrics. New York: Grossman, 1969.
- Taft, Michael. Blues Lyric Poetry: A Concordance. New York, Garland, 1984.
- . Blues Lyric Poetry: An Anthology. New York: Garland, 1983.
- Titon, Jeff Todd. Downhome Blues Lyrics: An Anthology from the Post–World War II Era. Boston: Twayne, 1981; second edition, Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 1990.
- . Early Downhome Blues: A Musical and Cultural Analysis. Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 1977.
- Macleod, Robert. Document Blues. Edinburgh: PAT, 1994–2004; ten volumes.
- . Yazoo Blues. Edinburgh: PAT, 1998–1992; two-volume set.
- Spottswood, Dick. Lyric transcriptions accompanying Charlie Patton, Screamin' and Hollerin' the Blues (2001, Revenant 212).

EDWARD KOMARA

Music Transcription

Methods

Transcription involves the translation of music from live or recorded performance to musical notation. The process is facilitated by a number of devices, the most significant being the human ear. An individual possessing perfect (absolute) pitch—the innate ability to identify tones without the assistance of external sources—has a natural advantage for transcribing. Through thorough ear training, though, one can develop relative pitch, i.e., the ability to identify pitches within context.

A typical ear-training course commences with an examination of intervals—the building blocks of music. An interval describes the relationship between two pitches; in Western music, intervals are spelled according to the number of diatonic scale degrees contained and the number of semitones (half-steps) between pitches, expressed in both numbers and letters (for example, minor third: m3, perfect fifth: P5). Prerequisite to transcription is the ability to aurally identify simple and compound intervals (more than an octave apart), both melodic and harmonic (simultaneous). From intervals come chords, modes, and scales; the ability to recognize these pitch collections, and their placements on musical staves, is also crucial. Blues music is often colored with microtones—intervals smaller than semitones; therefore, the ability to recognize these minute pitch variations is useful.

Ear-training and transcribing also involve rhythmic cognition: a perception of the temporal placement and division of sounds, and the ability to transform these relationships into visual symbols. Developing rhythmic cognition necessitates an understanding of meter—the pattern in which a regular series of pulses is distributed—and the study of various rhythmic devices, including syncopation, that is, the shifting of an accent from a strong to a weak beat. Blues transcription calls for an understanding of the genre's basic rhythmic feels (boogie, shuffle, or the like) and an awareness of common rhythmic devices, including swing, and rushing ahead or laying behind the beat.

In addition to advanced aural skills, transcription requires general musical knowledge. Key is an awareness of the standard rules of music notation, in addition to any specialized forms and symbols, such as tablature—a graphic representation of the guitar fretboard. An understanding of a given instrument's characteristic timbre, range, key, and technical capabilities is useful. For the purpose of blues transcription, it is most beneficial to be acquainted with guitar, upright and electric bass, harmonica, piano, and assorted reed and percussion instruments. One should be familiar with the blues' performance practices and forms (eight, twelve, and sixteen bars). In transcribing, though, it is important to listen objectively, that is, not to let knowledge of the genre influence aural cognition. This sort of bias often results in erroneous transcriptions.

Transcription benefits from a variety of electronic and other aids. For a transcriber lacking perfect pitch, reference points are critical. Common tools include the pitch pipe, the electronic keyboard, and the digital tuner. Prior to the advent of digital technology, transcribers typically worked from records and cassettes. On those formats, repeated listening could deteriorate music and distort its pitch. In addition, it was more difficult to transcribe fast passages from a decelerated record or cassette, because the pitch was proportionally affected; slowing a cassette to half-speed, for example, would make the music sound an octave lower.

Currently, it is most practical to transcribe recorded music from a digital source. Multispeed compact disc players and computer software programs have been commercially available since the 1990s. Digital devices feature more efficient cueing and reviewing functions. They offer looping and fine-tuning controls and are advantageous for comprehending swift passages; a number of user-friendly computer programs are capable of slowing down recordings in varying increments while maintaining their exact pitch levels. In addition, some digital devices are capable of partially or totally obscuring vocal parts, thereby assisting instrumental transcription; graphic equalizers can further enhance the frequencies of a given instrument.

In conjunction with a faithful playback device, headphones are also useful for transcription. A high quality, full frequency pair can reveal details not apparent in loudspeaker listening. Because transcribing can be a lengthy process, headphones with soft, comfortable earpieces are preferable.

Problems and Challenges

In transcribing, a number of problems and challenges can arise, especially when the sources are early recordings—often hosts to various anomalies. Blues guitar transcription can be especially difficult. Any given note can be played in numerous locations on the instrument's neck, and alternate tunings are possible, disrupting the strings' interval relationships. Further, a host of nonstandard techniques is possible; without the benefit of witnessing a performer live, it may be difficult to ascertain the means of his or her sound production.

Such was the case with Robert Johnson, an enigmatic musician who, when recording in the 1930s, performed with his back to onlookers. Following the publication of misleading transcriptions some six decades later, it took a small research team to uncover Johnson's actual techniques. It was not until analyzing the performer's antecedents—including St. Louis blues pianists and harmonica players—that the team realized Johnson's specialized tunings, which deviated from standard blues practice. A more accurate volume, Robert Johnson: The New Transcriptions (Milwaukee: Hal Leonard) was published in 1999.

Conversely, some music can be easy to comprehend yet difficult to notate. Unintentional pitches, which insignificantly contribute to a transcription, may also be present. Many guitar transcriptions of the 1980s suffer from hypertranscription. A cumbersome amount of symbols and footnotes were used to account for incidental noises, effectively masking the music. Thus, it is important to view transcription as supplemental to live or recorded music.

Publications

The Hal Leonard company has an excellent series of blues transcription folios, including the aforementioned Robert Johnson book. Each book contains note-for-note transcriptions of recorded versions. Additional notated music transcriptions have been published by Mel Bay Publications in blues, rock, and various old-time music styles, including transcribers such as Woody Mann and Lenny Carlson. Among magazines, Guitar One also features quality blues transcriptions, in a streamlined, easy-to-read presentation.

ADAM PERLMUTTER

TRENIERS

Vocal group. Formed in 1947, the Treniers (Milt Trenier, Cliff Trenier, Claude Trenier, Don Hill, and Eugene Gilbeaux) were organized by brothers Cliff, Claude, and Milt Trenier as a high-powered show band. They recorded a string of imaginative early 1950s R&B hits and enjoyed a long run as a popular Las Vegas lounge act.

JOHN SINCLAIR

Bibliography

AMG (Richie Unterberger); Larkin (as Trenier Twins) McGarvey, Seamus. "Rockin' Is Still His Business." Blues & Rhythm no. 47 (October 1989): 18–23.

Discography

Singles "Poontang," "(Uh Oh) Get Out of the Car," "Rockin' Is Our Business," "Go! Go! Go!" (Epic Records).

The Treniers on TV (1955, Epic).

Rockin' Is Our Bizness (1983, Edsel Records).

Cool It Baby (1988, Bear Family).

Hey Sister Lucy (1988, Bear Family).

They Rock! They Roll! They Swing! The Best of The Treniers (1995, Epic/Legacy).

TRIBBLE, THOMAS E. "TNT"

b. 5 August 1921; Ferrel, PA

Drummer and singer active in Washington, D.C. After World War II army service, he joined and led various bands, then in 1949 he joined Frank Motley's Motley Crew for three years. From 1952 he has led his own groups, touring the East Coast performing R&B, early rock 'n' roll, and soul music.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Larkin
 Bruder, Jay. "R&B in Washington DC: The TNT Tribble Story." Blues and Rhythm no. 45 (July 1989): 4-7.

Discography: LSFPTRICE, RICHARD

b. 16 November 1917; Hillsborough, NC
 d. 6 April 2000; Durham, NC

Guitarist in Piedmont style; brother of Willie Trice. In the 1930s he performed with and was influenced by Blind Boy Fuller. In the 1940s he moved to Newark, New Jersey, but in the following decade he returned to North Carolina. In later years he was performing sacred music and refused all offers to play blues.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Harris; Larkin
 Mills, Fetzer, Jr. "Richard Trice: You Can't Smoke a Cigarette at Both Ends." Living Blues no. 141 (September/October 1998): 44-47.

Discography: DGR; LSFPTRICE, WILLIAM AUGUSTA "WILLIE"

b. 10 February 1910; Hillsborough, NC
 d. 10 December 1976; Durham, NC

Guitarist whose principal influence was Reverend Gary Davis. He performed with his brother Richard Trice in the 1930s, and they made records for Decca in 1937. He stayed in North Carolina his entire life, playing music. In his last years he was recorded again, the resulting LP issued before his death.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Harris; Larkin
 Lowry, Pete. "Willie Trice." Living Blues no. 31 (March/April 1977): 6, and no. 32 (May/June 1977): 6.

Discography: DGR, LSFPTRILON

Oakland label, operated by Rene Lamarre and others from 1946 to 1948. Jazz and gospel formed a significant part of its almost fifty issues, but there were records by R&B group the Four Aces and pianist/vocalist Viviane Greene as well as blues by Lowell Fulson and Jimmy McCracklin.

RAY ASTBURY

Discography: McGrath

See also Fulson, Lowell; McCracklin, Jimmy

TRI-SAX-UAL SOUL CHAMPS

A trans-generational saxophone summit that soulfully melded blues, funk, and jazz stylists on the 1990 Black Top release "Go Girl," the Tri-sax-ual Soul Champs combined decades of elite experience. Grady "Fats" Jackson, on vocals and alto and tenor saxes, played with Elmore James in Atlanta and Chicago and was in Little Walter's mid-1950s touring band. Tenor saxist Sil Austin brought extensive jazz experience via stints with Roy Eldridge, Tiny Bradshaw, and the Cootie Williams Big Band. Austin's "Ping Pong" was recorded by Ella Fitzgerald, and he had R&B hits, such as "Slow Walk," on his own. Mark "Kaz" Kazanoff, on alto, tenor, and baritone saxophones, is the most widely recorded hornman in modern blues, working with Earl King, Long John Hunter, Hubert Sumlin, and literally dozens of other major blues figures. He also has extensive credits as a producer and arranger, in addition to leading the Texas Horns.

MICHAEL POINT

Bibliography

Point, Michael. "Riffs." Down Beat 57 no. 10 (October 1990): 14.

Discography: LordTRIX

Trix Records was founded in 1973 by blues musicologist Pete Lowry, who ran the label out of his hometown of New Paltz, New York. The label was devoted to releasing the music of the blues artists whom Lowry had researched and recorded while conducting fieldwork in the American Southeast. Many of these musicians represented the "Piedmont blues" style. The artists Lowry recorded for Trix include Roy Dunn, Peg Leg Sam, Robert Jr. Lockwood,

TRIX

Pernell Charity, and Guitar Shorty (Kearney). In 1997, the Trix catalog was acquired by 32 Jazz, which has rereleased many Trix recordings.

STEVEN GALBRAITH

Bibliography

- Bastin, Bruce. "Truckin' My Blues Away: East Coast Piedmont Styles." Nothing but the Blues: The Music and the Musicians, edited by Lawrence Cohn. New York: Abbeville, 1999.
- Holley, Eugene. "Muse Founder Sells Catalog to 32 Jazz." Down Beat 64, no. 3 (March 1997): 13.
- "Trix Records Discography." Stefan Wirz website, <http://www.wirz.de/music/trixfrm.htm>.
- Wilmer, Valerie. "Lowry's Bag of Trix." Melody Maker (October 13, 1973): 52.

TROUT, WALTER

b. 6 March 1951; Ocean City, NJ

Veteran guitarist honed his chops during two decades as sideman to John Lee Hooker, Big Mama Thornton, and John Mayall. He spent most of the early 1980s as a member of Canned Heat but began fronting his own band in the late 1980s, playing a guitar-based jam-rock blues hybrid similar to Savoy Brown.

JIM TRAGESER

Bibliography

- AMG (Jason Ankeny); Larkin
- Tipaldi, Art. "Walter Trout's Radical Blues." Blues Revue no. 61 (October 2000): 8–9.

Discography: AMG

Selected Recordings

- Life in the Jungle* (1990, Ruf 1086).
- Transition* (1992, Provogue 70442).
- Positively Beale Street* (1997, Provogue 71042).
- Relentless* (2003, Ruf 1083).

TRUCKS, DEREK

b. 8 June 1979; Jacksonville, FL

Nephew of Allman Brothers Band drummer Butch Trucks, guitarist Derek Trucks has found fame both as a member of his uncle's legendary band and leading his own combo, which plays a more rhythm and blues-oriented music with streaks of jazz. By the time he was asked to join the Allman Brothers Band at age twenty, Trucks had already recorded three albums (although Soul Serenade would not be released until 2003) under his own name. Since then, he has divided his time between the Allman Brothers Band and his own band, touring nearly constantly with one or the other.

JIM TRAGESER

Bibliography

- AMG (Richard Skelly)
- Fine, E. "Derek Trucks: In the Beginning." Blues Revue no. 79 (December 2002/January 2003): 21–25.

Discography: AMG

Selected Recordings

- The Derek Trucks Band* (1997, Landslide 1020).
- Joyful Noise* (2002, Columbia 86507).
- Live at Georgia Theatre* (2004, Columbia/Sony 92598).

TRUMPET RECORDS/GLOBE MUSIC/ DIAMOND RECORD COMPANY

Lillian Shedd McMurry (1921–1999) and her husband Willard McMurry (1906–1998) established the Diamond Record Company in Jackson, Mississippi, in 1951 as an outgrowth of their Record Mart and furniture store on Farish Street. Trumpet was the main label, with Globe active as a subsidiary in 1954–1955. The name "Trumpet" was a reference to the angel Gabriel and a reflection of the McMurrays' interest in gospel music, which they recorded with the Southern Sons as well as the Argo Singers and the Famous Blue Jay Singers of Birmingham.

The label was best known for producing the first recordings of Aleck Miller (Sonny Boy Williamson II) and Elmore James. Among Williamson's Trumpet hits were "Eyesight to the Blind" (1951, Trumpet 129), "Mighty Long Time" (1951, Trumpet 166), and "Mr. Downchild" (1951, Trumpet 168). The label's biggest hit was with James's "Dust My Broom" (1951, Trumpet 146). Other top Mississippi blues talent for the label were Big Joe Williams, Arthur "Big" Crudup, and Willie Love. A third interest was in country music, with artists Jimmy Swan, Werly Fairburn, and Lucky Joe Almond, but these sessions produced mostly flops, with a few minor hits.

With their leading artists dying (Love), disbanding (the Southern Sons), or gone to other labels (James, Williamson), the McMurrays ceased the label in 1956. Since 1985 the Diamond Record Company files have been maintained in the Blues Archive of the University of Mississippi. Reissues of the blues and gospel sessions have been released on the labels Arhoolie, Acoustic Archives, Alligator, Collectables, and Cleopatra.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Ryan, Marc. Trumpet Records: Diamonds on Farish Street. Jackson: University Press of Mississippi, 2004.

TUCKER, BESSIE

Flourished late 1920s

Tucker first recorded in Memphis in 1928, accompanied by pianist K. D. Johnson. At the time she lived on Central Street in Dallas. Two more sessions in Dallas followed in 1929, again with Johnson, and with guitarist Jesse Thomas. A splendid, passionate singer with an acerbic, melancholy edge, her themes are often dark, such as “Penitentiary,” and contain frequent references to railroads, as in “Forth Worth and Denver Blues.”

BOB HALL

Bibliography

AMG (Jason Ankeny); Santelli

Discography: AMG; DGR

TUCKER, IRA

b. 17 May 1925; Spartanburg, SC

Ira Tucker joined the Dixie Hummingbirds as baritone lead in 1938. Tucker’s career evolved in parallel with the Birds, developing as a songwriter, arranger, and producer. Sacred and secular vocalists alike emulated his growling lead vocal style, including Bobby Bland, Hank Ballard, and Jackie Wilson.

JERRY ZOLTEN

See also Dixie Hummingbirds

TUCKER, LUTHER

b. 20 January 1936; Memphis, TN

d. 18 June 1993; San Rafael, CA

Luther Tucker came to Chicago at age nine, after juvenile delinquency in Memphis. His path toward trouble remained undeterred until, after a stint in the South Side clinker for auto theft, he met guitarist Lee Jackson. Once he got serious, Tucker studied guitar technique with Robert Lockwood. Tucker followed Lockwood’s trail, first taking his mentor’s old spot behind pianist Sunnyland Slim, then in 1954 assuming his vacated role behind harmonica great Little Walter. Tucker played with Walter on hits such as “Last Night,” “Boom Boom Out Go the Lights,” and “Confessin’ the Blues.” He was appreciated by harmonica players; he also made key recordings with Sonny Boy Williamson (Aleck Miller) and James Cotton (Pure Cotton).

In the early 1960s with drummer Willie Smith, Tucker joined Muddy Waters’s band, injecting some youth into the group yet maintaining a classic feel, especially on recordings such as “She’s 19 Years Old” and “Five Long Years.” Tucker, a fluid player with a touch of flash—he appreciated both the accompanist’s role and the opportunity to solo—also made recordings with John Lee Hooker, Jimmy Rogers, and Otis Rush and later with Charlie Musselwhite, Pinetop Perkins, and even Peter, Paul, and Mary.

ROBERT GORDON

Bibliography

AMG (Michael Erlewine); Harris; Larkin; Santelli Glover, Tony, Scott Dirks, and Ward Gaines. Blues with a Feeling: The Little Walter Story. New York: Routledge, 2002.

Gordon, Robert. Can’t Be Satisfied: The Life and Times of Muddy Waters. New York: Little, Brown, 2002.

Discography: AMG

James Cotton. Pure Cotton (1968, Verve 3038).

Little Walter. His Best (1997, MCA/Chess 9380).

Luther Tucker. Sad Hours (1990, Antone’s AMT 0026).

TUCKER, TOMMY

b. Robert Higginbotham, 5 March 1933; Springfield, OH

d. 22 January 1982; Newark, NJ

Singer, songwriter, and organist, forever identified with his composition “Hi-Heel Sneakers,” which has been recorded hundreds of times since its original appearance in 1964.

Born Robert Higginbotham, Tucker learned the organ at an early age and joined several jazz and doo-wop groups in Springfield and Dayton, Ohio, and was briefly a Golden Globes boxer. After relocating to Newark, New Jersey, in 1961, Tucker signed with Atco Records, releasing a few recordings under the name Tee Tucker, and performed at the Lighthouse nightclub in New York with a young Jimi Hendrix in the band.

TUCKER, TOMMY

Atco's founder, Atlantic Records executive Herb Abramson, would soon leave the label and took Tucker with him to produce him independently. Abramson brought Tucker into the studio and recorded "Hi-Heel Sneakers," a twelve-bar blues shuffle reminiscent of Jimmy Reed's "Big Boss Man," featuring Tucker's gritty vocals, his chunky organ playing, and an enthusiastic guitar lead played by Dean Young. The tape was leased to Checker Records (Checker 1067) and it peaked at #11 on the Billboard Hot 100 chart in February 1964. Abramson continued to produce Tucker through the 1970s for Checker and Abramson's own Festival label, but their efforts were unable to match the popularity of his one hit. Among the hundreds of recordings of the song were versions by Billy Boy Arnold, Clifton Chenier, Bo Diddley, José Feliciano, Elvis Presley, and Stevie Wonder, but Tucker's favorite was by Magic Sam. Tucker died of food poisoning after eating a bad hamburger in 1982.

MORRIS S. LEVY

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; Larkin
Hess, Norbert. "Tommy Tucker, 1933–1982" [obituary].
Living Blues no. 53 (Summer 1982): 46–47.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

TURNER, IKE

b. Izear Luster Turner, Jr., 5 November 1931; Clarksdale, MS

Ike Turner first started to play piano at his boyhood friend Ernest Lane's house, where Joe Willie "Pinetop" Perkins would practice his boogie-woogie pieces. Pinetop showed the youngsters the rudiments of the instrument, and Ike became so enthused he persuaded his mother to buy him a piano. In his teens Ike started to spin discs on WROX, Clarksdale's local radio station that also featured a live lunchtime spot by Robert Nighthawk. Ike would spin discs by Louis Jordan, Roy Milton, and Jimmy Liggins plus a lot of country records, soaking up the rhythms and the blues he would replicate and develop in his own music. At school, Ike played in a group called the Tophatters with Ernest Lane and Clayton Love, which soon became the first incarnation of his Kings of Rhythm. He also played separately with Nighthawk in clubs throughout the Delta region.

By 1951 the nineteen-year-old bandleader was ready to record and with his Kings of Rhythm cut his first sides at Sam Phillips's Memphis studio. Four songs were recorded, but the killer cut was the wild and wonderful "Rocket 88." This pounding boogie, based on Jimmy Liggins's "Cadillac Boogie," is a tour de force, well deserving the frequent accolade of being the first rock 'n' roll record. "Rocket 88" was Ike's composition, on which he played the pounding piano. However, much to his displeasure, the song was released on Chess records as being by Jackie Brenston and his Delta Cats, with composer credit given to Brenston, who was vocalist and one of three saxophonists in the band. "Rocket 88" was a huge hit, reaching number one on the R&B charts in May 1951.

Ike Turner was not to be deflected by the setback, and while playing piano on B. B. King's first hit, "3 O'Clock Blues," he struck up a relationship with the Bihari brothers, owners of Modern Records. The Biharis hired Ike as talent scout and musician and within a short period, Turner recorded with Howlin' Wolf, Elmore James, and Little Milton, among others, in addition to his own recordings with the Kings of Rhythm. By 1953, Ike was playing guitar and had developed a distinctive style, and for the rest of the decade he recorded with an amazing array of artists, many backed by his band. In Memphis he recorded with Billy "The Kid" Emerson; at his own studio in Clarksdale he cut Eugene Fox, Dennis Binder, and Clayton Love; in St. Louis he recorded Johnny Wright and in Cincinnati Billy Gales and Jackie Brenston. The year 1958 found him in Chicago, recording with Otis Rush, including the blues classics "Double Trouble" and "All Your Love (I Miss Loving)," Buddy Guy, and Betty Everett. During this period, he also recorded under his own name as well as the pseudonyms Lover Boy and Icky Renrut (Turner spelled backward).

Ike Turner has always moved with the musical trends and by 1959 musical trends were on the move. Fortunately, at about this time Ike met Annie Mae Bullock, and as Ike and Tina Turner his music moved from blues, through R&B, to soul and eventually rock. However, Turner never lost the essence of the blues, and with Tina as a perfect vocal vehicle, he cut some very raunchy blues-based sides such as "A Fool in Love" and "So Long, Goodbye." In 1968 the duo recorded a couple of straight blues albums for Blue Thumb that included many blues standards Ike knew from the early days, including "Five Long Years," "Dust My Blues," and "Mean Old World."

The Ike and Tina period (1960–1975) was Ike's most commercially successful time, in which he and Tina, helped immeasurably by two tours supporting the Rolling Stones, became worldwide stars. Relocated in California, in 1970 he opened his Bolic Sound Studio in Inglewood, patronized by rock and soul stars from Frank Zappa to Stevie Wonder. Unfortunately, with success came excess, and fueled by drugs, Turner's darker side emerged, abusing and misusing Tina to a point where she left and subsequently exposed his misogyny when she became a superstar in her own right. Turner was ostracized by the music business and the public in general, and it was a decade and a prison sentence before he began rebuilding his career. Since the mid-1990s, Ike has been recording and performing again with a new band.

FRED ROTHWELL

Bibliography

AMG (Richie Unterberger, Rob Bowman); Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli; Southern Turner, Ike, with Nigel Cawthorne. Takin' Back My Name. London: Virgin Books, 1999.

Discography: AMG; LSPF

East St. Louis, The Stevens Sessions (Sequel NEM CD 940 [UK]).

Ike Turner & His Kings of Rhythm. Rhythm Rockin' Blues (ACE CDCHD 553 [UK]).

Ike's Instrumentals (ACE CDCHD 782 [UK]).

The Travelling Record Man, Historic Down South Recording Trips of Joe Bihari & Ike Turner (ACE CDCHD 813 [UK]).

TURNER, JOSEPH VERNON "BIG JOE"

b. Joseph Vernon Turner, 18 May 1911; Kansas City, MO

d. 24 November 1985; Inglewood, CA

Big Joe Turner was a blues shouter in jazz blues, urban blues, jump-blues, and R&B who had his heyday in the 1940s and 1950s.

In his teens, Joe Turner had various jobs: bouncer, barman, and cook in Kansas City nightclubs. From 1926, he teams with boogie-woogie pianist Pete Johnson and they compose their first hits, such as "Roll 'Em, Pete," released in 1938 on Vocalion, and covered by many other artists such as Jimmy Reed. Turner often teamed with pianist Pete Johnson until the mid-fifties, when both musicians revisited their early repertoire (including "Roll 'Em, Pete"), with an LP titled The Boss of the Blues.

In the mid-1940s, Joe Turner's style owes much to jazz and swing, with various pianists and horn arrangements ("Nobody in Mind," "Doggin' the Blues," "I Got My Discharge Papers," "Miss Brown Blues," "My Gal's a Jockey"). His songs often contain raunchy lyrics ("Sunday Morning Blues"). Although lesser known recordings, these sides from 1941–1947 remain fundamental and reappeared on CD on Melodie Jazz Classics (1941–1946) and Savoy (1945–1947).

Having signed up with Atlantic Records, Big Joe Turner recorded extensively; he covered Walter Davis's song "Sweet Sixteen" in 1952, well before B. B. King. From 1953, guitarist Elmore James appeared as a sideman on some Turner recordings: "TV Mama," "Well All Right," and "Morning, Noon, and Night." Among other memorable songs of Big Joe Turner are "Cherry Red" (1956), plus his covers of Leroy Carr's "In the Evening" (1954) and Blind Lemon Jefferson's "Corrine, Corrina" (1956).

In 1954, Big Joe Turner's career got a new boost when arranger Jesse Stone (under his pen name, Charles Calhoun) wrote "Shake, Rattle and Roll" specially for him; that hit was covered by Bill Haley and his Comets in 1954 and with even more audience by Elvis Presley. In only a few months, Turner followed with similar tunes: "Flip, Flop and Fly" (1955), "Well All Right," and "Boogie Woogie Country Girl." Big Joe's strong voice and style were quite influential in the birth of rock 'n' roll.

Since World War II, Big Joe Turner had appeared in short films made for the U.S. soldiers abroad and later in movies such as Harlem Rock and Roll (1955) and Shake, Rattle, and Rock (1956). He was also featured in the U.S. documentary The Last of the Blue Devils (1974), directed by Bruce Ricker.

Big Joe Turner toured in Europe from the 1950s to the mid-1960s and returned to the nightclub circuits afterward, perhaps because his repertoire faded into pop music and easy listening from the 1960s. He toured with the Count Basie Orchestra in the 1970s, with newer versions of his older standards. During the 1980s, Big Joe Turner was sometimes accompanied by Roomful of Blues or guitarist Ronnie Earl. In 1983, Big Joe Turner was inducted into the Blues Foundation's Hall of Fame and posthumously into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 1987. With a recording career covering almost half a century, Big Joe Turner is often referred to as the "Boss of the Blues."

YVES LABERGE

Bibliography

- AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; New Grove Jazz; Santelli
- Burke, Southern Tony, and Dave Penny. "Big Joe Turner: 'Have No Fear, Big Joe Is Here.'" Blues and Rhythm no. 11 (July 1985): 4–13 [part 1]; no. 12 (September 1985): 4–13 [part 2].
- "Big Joe Turner." In The Rolling Stone Encyclopedia of Rock & Roll, edited by Holly George-Warren and Patricia Romanowski. Updated third edition, p. 1010. New York: Fireside, 2001 [1983].

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSFP

Countless labels, from Vocalion and Decca to Atlantic (1951–1956), Coral (1964), Blues Time (in 1969), Trojan Records (in 1973), LMI (in 1974), Spivey Records (in 1977), and Pablo. Many are now on CD on Melodie Jazz Classics (1941–1946), Savoy (1945–1947), and Rhino.

See also James, Elmore; Presley, Elvis Aron; Walker, T-Bone

TURNER, OTHAR

b. 1908; Rankin County, MS

d. 26 February 2003; Gravel Springs, MS

First name sometimes shown as Otha. Through his performances at major festivals and appearances in documentary films, Turner introduced many listeners to fife and drums, an African American pre-blues musical tradition melding the marching music of colonial militia bands with African syncopation and poly-rhythms. Turner handcrafted his own cane fifes and began playing the instrument as a teenager, learning from a neighboring fife player, R. E. Williams.

During a life of sharecropping and subsistence farming in the north Mississippi counties of Tate and Panola, Turner was an integral figure in the area's rich musical culture, often performing at local picnics as a drummer in the band of another accomplished fife player, Napoleon Strickland. Turner introduced folklorist Alan Lomax to blues guitarist Fred McDowell and was later recorded by Lomax himself, as well as for anthologies on the Testament, Arhoolie, and L+R labels.

In the 1970s Turner and his Rising Star Fife and Drum Band, featuring members of his family, began performing outside Mississippi, initially at festivals in New Orleans and Chicago. In 1992, he was awarded the National Heritage Fellowship from the National Endowment for the Arts. While in his early nineties, Turner was featured in the PBS series The Blues, had a song included on the soundtrack for the film Gangs of New York, and recorded two full-length albums on the Birdman label. All the while, he continued to host his celebrated annual fife-and-drum picnics on his small farm in Tate County.

DAVID NELSON

Bibliography

- AMG (Jason Ankeny); Larkin
- Steber, Bill. "Othar Turner: They Say Drums Was a Calling." Living Blues no. 144 (March/April 1999): 36–47.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

TURNER, TROY

b. 25 August 1970; Baton Rouge, LA

Singer and guitar player Troy Turner had the benefit of growing up in a rich community of the blues in his hometown of Baton Rouge, Louisiana, drawing inspiration from Tabby Thomas, the Neal family, Guitar Kelly, and Silas Hogan. At age eighteen, Turner had already established a recording deal, and at twenty his contemporary style of blending blues and rock led him to share the stage with B. B. King, Buddy Guy, and Stevie Ray Vaughan. In 1989, Kingsnake Records signed him and released his first album, Teenage Blues from Baton Rouge, followed in 1991 by Handful of Aces on the Ichiban label. Turner, who continues to perform and record, was awarded the Jay D. Miller award.

HEATHER PINSON

Bibliography

- Santelli
- Alcott, Matt. "Troy Turner: 'Blues on My Back.'" January 2000. Blues on Stage website, <http://www.mnblues.com/cdreview/troyturner-ma.html> (accessed August 8, 2003).

Discography

- Teenage Blues from Baton Rouge* (1990, Kingsnake KIN 4038).
- Handful of Aces* (1992, Kingsnake KIN TT1).
- Blues on My Back* (1999, Telarc 83448).

TURNER, TWIST

b. Steve Patterson, 22 December 1954; Seattle, WA

Jobbing drummer with extensive playing, touring, recording, and songwriting credits. Received early help from Odie Payne and Nate Applewhite after relocating to Chicago. Worked two years with Junior Wells at Theresa's. Also a studio owner/engineer and columnist who has chronicled his adventures as a sideman.

JUSTIN O'BRIEN

Bibliography

Turner, Twist. “Blues with a Twist” [column]. Blues Access nos. 33–48 (1998–2002).

TV SLIM

b. Oscar Wills, 10 February 1916; Houston, TX
d. 21 October 1969, Kingman, AZ

True to his nickname, Oscar Wills owned a TV repair shop while singing with a hoarse voice and playing guitar. With an uncanny ability for humorous, witty lyrics, Slim had a surprising hit in 1957 with “Flatfoot Sam,” which was followed by numerous recordings of the song “Don't Go Reaching Across My Plate” that were issued on several labels of his own.

GÉRARD HERZHAFT

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; Larkin
Stolper, Darryl J. “T.V. Man.” Blues Unlimited no. 55 (July 1968): 5–6.
———. “T.V. Slim.” Blues Unlimited no. 69 (January 1970): 19.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

T.V. Slim (2001, Official CD 5660).

TWINGH/TWILIGHT

Chicago soul label of the late 1960s and early 1970s. Twinight was founded in 1967 by a former All State Distributors' promotion man, Howard Bedno, and artist-management executive Peter Wright. The company began as Twilight but changed its name after the first four releases. Syl Johnson was virtually the only hitmaker, whose “Come On and Sock It to Me” (1967) began a whole string of hits for Twinight. The company specialized in hard soul, and besides Johnson its artists included Johnny Williams, Buster Benton, Elvin Spencer, Josephine Taylor, and Jimmy Jones. Twinight had a few vocal groups, notably the Notations, who got a national hit with “I'm Still Here” (1970). The principal producers and A&R men were Peter Wright and Syl Johnson, and the principal arranger was Johnny Cameron. Serving as studio musicians were two bands, the Deacons (which included blues man Jimmy Johnson) and the Pieces of Peace. The company shut down in 1972 after Syl Johnson moved to Hi Records.

ROBERT PRUTER

Bibliography

Pruter, Robert. Chicago Soul. Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 1991.

Discography: McGrath

TYLER, ALVIN “RED”

b. 5 December 1925; New Orleans, LA
d. 3 April 1998; New Orleans, LA

Saxophonist. Tyler began playing in the navy. He joined Dave Bartholomew in 1949 and played on Fats Domino's first recordings, establishing himself as a leading blues and rhythm and blues session player in New Orleans, specializing in baritone saxophone. He was part of the elite session team known as the Studio Band, noted for their spontaneous feel as well as their ability to play to order anything required. Tyler was featured on records by Little Richard, Lee Dorsey, Aaron Neville, and many others and played tenor saxophone on club dates, often in a modern jazz setting. He recorded with Clarence “Gatemouth” Brown in 1981 for Rounder and later made two jazz albums as leader for the label.

KENNY MATHIESON

Bibliography

Berry, Jason, Jonathan Foose, and Tad Jones. Up from the Cradle of Jazz: New Orleans Music Since World War II. Athens: University of Georgia Press, 1986.
Hannusch, Jeff. “Alvin ‘Red’ Tyler” [obituary]. Living Blues no. 141 (September/October 1998): 50–51.

Discography

Rockin' and Rollin' (1959, Ace 1006).
Twistin' with Mr Sax (1962, Ace 1021).
Heritage (1986, Rounder 2047).
Graciously (1987, Rounder 2061).

U

UNITED KINGDOM AND IRELAND

Before the Second World War, the blues in Britain was virtually unknown. A few blues 78s were issued by British companies such as Brunswick and Decca, which released a Sleepy John Estes record, and Parlophone, which released a few Lonnie Johnson instrumentals. Boogie-woogie records were also issued by Meade Lux Lewis, Albert Ammons, and Pete Johnson. British recordings of American blues artists were even rarer. In 1934, Alberta Hunter recorded in London with Jack Jackson's British dance band but no selections were blues. A few American artists who recorded blues performed in Britain prewar but these were almost exclusively females of the "classic" school who performed in theatrical revues. Lena Wilson and Edith Wilson played in London in 1926, as did Ethel Waters in 1929. Eva Taylor was a chorus girl in a 1906 review that visited London and, amazingly, in 1913 a fifteen-year-old Jimmy Yancey performed at Buckingham Palace for King George V and Queen Mary, but as a dancer not a pianist.

During the war years, with the influx of American GIs, U.S. musical culture began to permeate the British psyche. The Office of War Information broadcast radio concerts on the BBC by Leadbelly, Sonny Terry, Brownie McGee, and Josh White. In the 1950s bluesmen began to tour Europe and the United Kingdom: Josh White in 1950; Big Bill Broonzy in 1951, 1955, and 1957; Lonnie Johnson in 1952; and Sonny Terry and Brownie McGee in 1958. This direct exposure to the blues inspired a dedicated coterie of British musicians to attempt the blues. Chris Barber, who led a traditional jazz band, was a founding father of British blues, ceaselessly promoting the American bluesmen and touring with Sonny and Brownie, Louis Jordan, and, in 1958, Muddy Waters and Otis Spann. Muddy's first tour was not well received by some sections of the English audiences who considered his Telecaster guitar to be just too loud and brash.

Barber's banjo player, Lonnie Donegan, was a keen blues fan who chose his stage name in honor of Lonnie Johnson. In 1958, he released his version of Leadbelly's "Rock Island Line" and it was a surprising hit in both the United Kingdom and the United States, leading to a successful U.S. tour. Donegan's simple and direct approach to the music sparked the short-lived but highly influential skiffle craze, which inspired countless young men in the United Kingdom to take up the guitar, many becoming the backbone of R&B bands in the 1960s. In 1958, British teenagers were also in the grip of rock 'n' roll fever, eagerly devouring any American records they could get. Among the rock 'n' roll, some blues-based records were issued, mainly on the London American label. Little Richard, Fats Domino, and Chuck Berry all had U.K. hit records and were to have a significant influence on British teenage musicians, as the fifties became the sixties and rock 'n' roll metamorphosed into rhythm and blues.

A contemporary of Barber and Donegan was Alexis Korner, sometimes called the father of British blues. Korner formed the first British blues band which, until 1962, included vocalist and harmonica player Cyril Davies. Korner tired of playing a secondary role to jazz bands in the numerous clubs in London and persuaded the Ealing Jazz Club to solely feature blues. His reputation grew and soon blues enthusiasts from the south of England would gather to listen and jam with the band. These included Brian Jones, Paul Jones, Mick Jagger, and Keith Richards, young men who would soon have a phenomenal effect on British blues. By 1963, Cyril Davies had left the Korner band to form his own Rhythm and Blues All Stars and recorded an outstanding harmonica-led instrumental, "Country Line Special."

Inspired by the Korner band, Jones, Jagger, and Richards together with Charlie Watts, Korner's Blues Incorporated's drummer, and bassist Bill Wyman, formed the Rolling Stones. The Stones were younger, wilder, and louder than anything before experienced in the United Kingdom and, in the wake of the Beatles beat boom phenomenon, they introduced their brash version of the blues to British teenagers and reintroduced the blues to American teenagers, most of whom were unaware of their own heritage. Early Stones sets would include songs by Muddy Waters, Chuck Berry, Bo Diddley, Howlin' Wolf, Jimmy Reed, and Slim Harpo. Brian Jones would emulate Elmore James on slide guitar, the first Englishman to play in this way. Their early recordings were peppered with blues and in 1964 "Little Red Rooster" reached the top of the U.K. charts, an extraordinary feat for a pure twelve-bar blues. This success inevitably led to a host of pop and beat groups jumping onto the blues bandwagon.

However, there were those who had developed a love of blues independently and coincidentally to the Rolling Stones. The Animals had been playing blues at the Club A Go Go in Newcastle in 1963 and celebrated the fact in their 1965 recording of that name. Their greatest success, however, came with "The House of the Rising Son," a folk blues of indeterminate age, usually associated with Josh White or Leadbelly, but found by the Animals on Bob Dylan's first LP. The Animals version, arranged by keyboard player Alan Price, with a totally convincing guttural vocal by Eric Burdon, was a number one hit in both the United Kingdom and United States.

In March 1964, the Yardbirds recorded a live album at the Marquee, one of London's premier blues venues. Five Live Yardbirds included songs by Chuck Berry, Howlin' Wolf, Eddie Boyd, and Slim Harpo and featured on guitar, a superstar in the making, Eric Clapton. Their first two singles were versions of blues by Billy Boy Arnold and Aleck Miller "Sonny Boy Williamson." However, by 1965 the group was recording pop songs, and so blues devotee Clapton left.

The Mann-Hugg Blues Band, a jazz-based group, by 1963 became Manfred Mann, fronted by Paul Jones, their vocalist and harmonica player. They hit with their third single "54321" when the hippest pop show on British TV, Ready Steady Go, used it as its theme song. The song's popularity was clearly due to the blues-laden harp playing of Paul Jones. Meanwhile in Belfast, Van Morrison's Them were tearing up the town with their great version of "Baby Please Don't Go" coupled with the equally exciting "Gloria." Morrison would move on to mainstream success but has always kept faith with the blues, dueting in the 1990s with John Lee Hooker. From Birmingham came the Spencer Davis Group, named after the band's guitarist but featuring the sixteen-year-old Stevie Winwood, an excellent musician blessed with extraordinary vocals who would sing Ray Charles numbers and Leadbelly songs with equal aplomb. Their first single was a highly individual take of John Lee Hooker's "Dimples." Georgie Fame's and Zoot Money's bands played at the Marquee and Flamingo Clubs in London and featured organ-led jazz-based blues. Fame was the more successful with his mix of Mose Allison vocals and Jamaican blue-beat rhythms.

The enthusiasm for the blues engendered by the British acts led to the release of the real thing by U.K. labels, and blues only previously available on expensive U.S. imports became accessible in high street shops. In particular, Pye International began to issue the Chess Records product and Vee-Jay Records were issued on the Stateside label. Howlin' Wolf's "Smokestack Lightnin'," Jimmy Reed's "Shame, Shame Shame," John Lee Hooker's "Dimples," Bo Diddley's "Pretty Thing," and Tommy Tucker's "Hi Heel Sneakers" all reached the lower end of the British charts.

The blues had arrived in the United Kingdom in a big way and the trickle of blues men who came to perform became a torrent. The most important vehicle for these artists was the European-promoted American Folk Blues Festival, which ran for a decade starting in 1962. Included were a vast array of artists from the most famous, like Aleck Miller "Sonny Boy Williamson" and Lightnin' Hopkins, to then unknowns Cousin Joe and John Henry Barbee. A similar tour, the Blues and Gospel Caravan, was recorded by Granada TV at a disused railway station on the outskirts of Manchester and the English fans saw Muddy Waters, Sister Rosetta Tharpe, Reverend Gary Davis, and others in their living rooms. Soon individual bluesmen began to tour pubs and clubs the length of the land. The Twisted Wheel in Manchester, the Cavern in Liverpool, the Club A Go Go in Newcastle, and even small provincial towns would regularly feature U.S. blues artists. Some like Sonny Boy stayed for extended visits, and Champion Jack Dupree even made England his home for a while. University campuses provided ideal venues and many colleges developed blues societies. In the course of a couple of years at Leeds, for instance, students could witness acts as diverse as Son House, Juke Boy Bonner, Arthur Crudup, Freddy King, and Jimmy Witherspoon. Later Jim Simpson's Birmingham-based Big Bear organization promoted U.S. blues artists with a series of American Blues Legends tours, which were recorded and issued on Big Bear Records. Many British bands learned their trade by backing the visiting bluesmen. Sonny Boy performed and recorded with the Animals, the Yardbirds, and the Brian Auger Trinity. Perhaps the most enduring relationship was John Lee Hooker and the Groundhogs led by Tony McPhee who took their name from a Hooker song and backed and recorded with him.

Eric Clapton continued his blues career by joining John Mayall's Bluesbreakers. Mayall never achieved widespread popularity but he was extremely influential in the development of British blues. His ever changing and evolving group included many individuals who would go on to greater success with bands of their own. Between 1966 and 1970, Eric Clapton, Peter Green, and Mick Taylor played guitar in his band; John McVie and Jack Bruce played bass; and Hughie Flint, Keef Hartley, Mick Fleetwood, and Jon Hiseman played drums. All of these musicians would go on to greater success in blues-based bands, most notably Clapton in Cream; Green, McVie, and Fleetwood in Fleetwood Mac; and Taylor in the Rolling Stones. Mayall's music was based on the harder edged West Side Chicago school of blues, taking its lead from Otis Rush, Buddy Guy, and Freddy King. Mayall also featured the saxophones of Dick Heckstall-Smith and Alan Skidmore, two stalwarts of the British blues scene, and set the trend for a broader approach to the blues than the more common guitar and harmonica approach.

Running concurrently with these developments was another school based on the country acoustic blues. Brother and sister Dave and Jo Ann Kelly led the way, featuring the songs of Blind Willie McTell, Memphis Minnie, Fred McDowell (with whom Jo Ann recorded), and Robert Johnson. Jo Ann, in particular, was blessed with a powerful, totally convincing blues voice, Britain's answer to Memphis Minnie. Brother Dave, a great slide guitarist, continues to ply his trade with the Blues Band. Ian Anderson's Country Blues Band and the Panama Limited Jug Band represented jug band music while one-man-band Duster Bennett ploughed his own particular blues furrow, starting with a recording of G. L. Crockett's "It's a Man Down There."

By the mid-1960s, the first flush of the British blues boom had started to fade but fortunately, a dedicated pair of blues enthusiasts, Mike Vernon and Neil Slaven, came to the rescue with the inauguration of Blue Horizon records. The first releases were by obscure American bluesmen like Hubert Sumlin and Woodrow Adams, but luckily, they hit pay dirt with the signing of Fleetwood Mac and, to a lesser degree, Chicken Shack to the label. These commercially successful bands allowed the label to experiment with other British bands such as Jellybread and Key Largo. They were also able to record collaborative efforts such as Fleetwood Mac's Blues Jam at Chess recorded in Chicago and The Biggest Thing Since Colossus recorded with Otis Spann in New York. In addition, the label recorded African American artists in the United Kingdom and United States as varied as Champion Jack Dupree and Johnny Young. The label also licensed material from American labels such as Excello and Cobra for release in the United Kingdom, opening a completely new spectrum to the British blues fan.

Fleetwood Mac was based around guitarist/vocalist Peter Green and slide guitarist Jeremy Spencer. Green loved B. B. King while Spencer's hero was Elmore James and these bluesmen's music featured heavily in the Mac's early repertoire. Peter Green was also blessed with an expressive blues voice that he used to great effect on hits such as "Black Magic Woman" and "Oh Well." Green and Spencer left the band in the early 1970s and Fleetwood Mac became a hugely successful mainstream rock band. Chicken Shack was Blue Horizon's other successful band. Led by guitarist Stan Webb they featured the music of Freddy King in their early repertoire but it was a cover of Etta James's "I'd Rather Go Blind" with vocalist Christine Perfect that gave them their greatest success in 1969.

Toward the close of the 1960s yet another subset of the blues emerged, a loud, hard rock version, whose main exponents were Cream, Led Zeppelin, and Jimi Hendrix. Cream, formed by Eric Clapton, Jack Bruce, and Ginger Baker, became the archetypal rock power trio but their music was clearly steeped in the blues, which included a tremendous rendition of "Crossroads." Led Zeppelin was responsible for what became heavy-metal rock but also included blues on their first two albums, including their take of Muddy's "You Shook Me." Hendrix was, of course, an African American but it needed the acumen and vision of British ex-Animal Chas Chandler to discover and transform him from an unknown chitlin circuit guitarist to a rock superstar.

The 1970s were a particularly slim time for blues in the United Kingdom. The Stones rolled on and included the odd blues in their recordings such as “Love in Vain” and “Shake ‘Em On Down.” However, for the British blues fan, the 1970s was a time for contemplation and education. There is a long tradition of blues research in the United Kingdom, from Paul Oliver’s seminal books to the United Kingdom’s first blues magazine Blues Unlimited, started by Mike Leadbitter and Simon Napier in May 1963. The two standard discographies, Blues and Gospel Records 1890–1943 and Blues Records 1943–1970 were both compiled by Englishmen. This research and enthusiasm has continued to this day with publications such as Juke Blues and Blues and Rhythm. Blues in Britain is a current publication dedicated to the promotion of homegrown blues.

On radio, ex-pirate radio deejay Mike Raven moved to the BBC and his 1960s long-running rhythm and blues show was immensely influential, introducing fans to all manner of blues and soul. Alexis Korner continued this tradition well into the seventies with his BBC show. Visiting bluesmen like Arthur Crudup and Juke Boy Bonner would record live sets for John Peel’s BBC programs, for those with the patience to sit through the progressive rock that formed the majority of his shows. On Radio London, Charlie Gillett’s Honky Tonk show mixed blues, country, rock ‘n’ roll, soul, and rhythm and blues. The emphasis in the United Kingdom had been on guitar/piano/harmonica blues, and Charlie opened many fans’ ears to more sophisticated R&B artists such as Louis Jordan and Eddie Vinson. TV also got into the act, notably with Giles Oakley’s excellent five-part blues documentary, The Devil’s Music. Currently Paul Jones rules the blues airways with his weekly show on national BBC Radio 2 and his longer weekend program on London’s Jazz FM. Since the introduction of commercial radio into the United Kingdom in the seventies, blues and related programs have proliferated to a point where dozens exist.

Around the mid-1970s, U.K. blues fans were able to purchase a wonderful array of music thanks to two homegrown reissue companies, Charly Records and Ace Records. Charly was the first company to reissue the Sun catalog in any semblance of order. They also comprehensively reissued Chess in the United Kingdom until they lost the legal battle with MCA. Ace has, however, gone from strength to strength to become possibly the world’s premier reissue label, releasing music from the Specialty, Modern, Excello, Stax, and many other great labels. John Stedman’s U.K.-based JSP label has become a leading outlet for black U.S. artists who cannot get a domestic record deal.

In the late seventies, new bands emerged from the punk rock/pub rock explosion. Dr. Feelgood and Nine Below Zero played in a back to basics, hard-edged rocking style. Ex-Manfred Mann vocalist Paul Jones also emerged from blues exile to form the Blues Band with Dave Kelly and Tom McGuinness (also from Manfred Mann). Initially started as a pastime, the band has gone from strength to strength, currently playing regularly in the United Kingdom and Europe with seventeen albums to their credit.

As in the United States, during the eighties and nineties, blues festivals in the United Kingdom proliferated. The two main festivals are the Burnley National Blues Festival, which started in 1988, and the Great British R&B Festival, started in 1989. Both feature a wide array of U.S. acts but also showcase the best of the homegrown blues talent. These have included Big Joe Louis and His Blues Kings who, with harp player Little George Sueref, produced a very authentic 1950s Chicago blues sound; the Big Town Playboys, whose pianist/vocalist Mike Sanchez sang in a West Coast 1940s style; and King Pleasure and the Biscuit Boys, who swing like born-again Louis Jordans. In an ever evolving scene, Sanchez and Sueref now front their own bands, while Big Joe now sings with the Big Town Playboys. Paul Lamb, a world class harp player, currently leads his Kingsnakes while old timers have also reappeared such as Peter Green’s Splinter Group and Bill Wyman’s Rhythm Kings. Blues, in all its guises, while not as mainstream as it became for a short period in the 1960s, is, nevertheless, healthy and thriving in the United Kingdom.

FRED ROTHWELL

Bibliography

- Fancourt, Leslie. British Blues on Record (1957–1970). Faversham, UK: Author, 1989.
 Groom, Bob. The Blues Revival. London: Studio Vista, 1971.
 Wyman, Bill. Blues Odyssey. London: Dorling Kindersley, 2001.

Discography

- Various artists. The Blue Horizon Story 1965–1970, Vol. 1 (1997, Columbia 488992 2; 3-CD set).
 ———. Hoochie Coochie Men: A History of UK Blues and R&B 1955–2001 (2002, Indigo IGOBX2501; 4-CD set).

UNITED STATES

Editor’s Foreword

Initially a group of thirteen English colonies in North America, the United States successfully fought a Revolutionary War (1775–1783). After some years governing itself under the Articles of Confederation, the United States adopted its present form of government under the Constitution beginning in 1788. After the thirteen former colonies ratified the Constitution, additional North American territories were settled, developed, and admitted to the government. The prevailing economic system has been capitalism, with supply and demand as commercial elements. A Civil War (1861–1865) erupted over the matter of states' rights including the right to hold slaves. The government won, and slavery was abolished in the war's aftermath. The history of blues in the context of national history and civil rights is presented in the Blues entry. The present entry discusses the United States in the contexts of geography, sociology, and commerce.

EDWARD KOMARA

The geographical entries in the Encyclopedia of the Blues provide a great deal of evidence that blues activities remain focused within the U.S. borders in certain geographical areas. This entry provides an explanation for the geographical focus of the blues. Briefly, a blues artist tends to maintain a face-to-face relationship with a particular community—a relationship that sustains the artist directly. These face-to-face communities tend to be located in the geographical area in which the artist's professional personality was formed. The most viable communities provide a cluster of activities that facilitate the growth of the artist's career—promotion, production, and distribution. However, the enterprise as a whole tends to be trapped in a negative ambience that limits its economic and geographic growth.

Under occasional, favorable conditions the blues profits from a broader phenomenon. Innovations in technology (e.g., railroads, sound recordings, websites) have enabled “imagined” blues communities in every part of the world (Titon, 1994). Several of these communities are larger and more influential than the face-to-face communities. Others, too small, too numerous, and too fragmented, escape our notice.

Before describing geographical and sociological influences on the blues once it became an identifiable, U.S. enterprise, it seems important to sketch the development of the blues related to the territorial expansion of the United States—an expansion from the thirteen original seaboard states to forty-eight contiguous states (accomplished with the Gadsden Purchase in 1853). One might point to several watermarks, both geographical and ideological, that would significantly influence the development of the blues. The Great Awakening in the late 1700s provided the earliest context for an encounter between Anglo-American and African American religious practices. With the Louisiana Purchase (1803), the United States doubled in size and all the territory drained by the Mississippi became open to westward migration. The Missouri Compromise (1820) marked growing tension over the issue of slavery that would become a desperate crisis during the U.S. Civil War. Past the Gadsden Purchase (1853) and aside from the Civil War, it is crucial to note the importance of industrialization and the availability of mass-marketed goods, the development of the railroads (often a subject of the blues), the inestimable influence of minstrelsy and the development of an entertainment industry, the effects of flood control in the Mississippi Delta, and the crippling effects of the Reconstruction. With such a backdrop in mind, we may begin a description of influences after 1900.

Blues artists and enterprises as a whole have always been torn between (1) the need to maintain close contact with their original, base communities, (2) a need to follow their audience in migration, and (3) the need to cultivate a broader audience outside their base community. For example, we know that Robert Johnson was constantly on the move. We also know that he continually gravitated back to his base community, “using Helena, Memphis and Greenwood in addition to Robinsonville as his base” (Guralnick, 1989, p. 18). Blues artists have tended to remain both psychologically and economically dependent on their base communities. Their dependence stems from aspects embedded in the very nature of blues as a functional, oral agent in the face-to-face community.

The blues is an intensely introspective form of expression. An artist begins a performance by accessing a deeply reflective state of mind. At the same time, he or she has a responsibility to communicate this state of mind, vividly, to the audience. To access and communicate this state of mind as efficiently as possible, a performer tends to call on his or her most essential musical ideas and gestures, imagining that the audience has a rich understanding of all the intricacies and shades of meaning that are expressed in the details of the performance. These details carry a wealth of meaning within the face-to-face community. Since a blues artist tends to draw the psychological and emotional energy that he or she needs from this kind of contact, it behooves him or her to remain in close contact with the community. Here we arrive at an explanation of why the blues remains a relatively small-scale and geographically circumscribed activity.

Owing to the nature of the blues as an introspective activity, most effectively carried out in the company of a fairly specific audience, the enterprise as a whole tends to be trapped in a negative economic ambience. As blues musician Elvin Bishop told Frank-John Hadley, “Albert Collins once told me that every 10 years a new generation of blues fans is born. Blues has its peaks and its valleys, and we're in a valley right now; but it is and it probably always will be an alternative form. It ain't going to be like rap and take over the world. Blues is for people who take music a bit more serious. For the average person, music has a place in their life like a hair style or fad clothes, a temporary icing on the cake" (Hadley, 2003). In listening to Robert Johnson one is required to visit some pretty dark places—depression, homelessness, alcoholism, sexism—places outside the experience of a mainstream audience. Typically, outsiders must forego a need to understand all the lyrics and images. More directly, novice listeners are asked to listen beyond surface of the sound, beyond the pops and scratches. They are asked to forego the modern preference for a broad frequency and dynamic range. All of this is a great deal to ask of someone outside the face-to-face and imagined communities. Novice listeners are far more likely to be drawn to more mainstream entertainments.

As a second aspect of the negative ambiance that surrounds the blues, enterprises and communities that directly support blues artists tend to retain a reverence for earlier artists and recordings. Innovation is not often encouraged. In comparison, the enterprises that underlie mainstream entertainments guarantee their own growth and dominance through participation in a "process of creative destruction" (Schumpeter, 1950). Joseph Schumpeter held "that in dealing with [market] capitalism we are dealing with an evolutionary process . . . [that] not only never is, but never can be stationary." In a "perennial gale of creative destruction, a capitalist enterprise . . . incessantly revolutionizes the economic structure from within, incessantly destroying the old one, incessantly creating a new one." In a viable popular music enterprise, the constant aim is to create new sounds through the application of new technology and a constant hybridization process. The new sounds destroy the value of the old sounds, availing the enterprise an opportunity to turn over product rapidly and constantly.

As we will see, blues entrepreneurs have occasionally participated successfully in the process of creative destruction during certain periods and under certain circumstances. However, they have failed to sustain an ongoing commitment to the process. Why? (1) It is expensive both in terms of the energy expended in keeping abreast of what is current and in terms of the necessity to update equipment and engineering knowledge. (2) The financial return on investments in the blues rarely encourages ongoing commitment to the enterprise. Rather, the enterprise tends toward a spiral of diminishing returns. Explanation: Producers of mainstream enterprises tend to become involved owing to the lure of financial rewards while producers of the blues tend to become involved out of a love for the art form—more likely, a particular blues "sound" or artist. Producers of mainstream enterprises quickly discover the benefits that accrue from change and innovation. On the other hand, the aficionado is likely to be conservative in his or her tolerance for change and innovation.

A brief illustration of the effects of a conservative approach illustrates one aspect of the negative economic ambiance that circumscribes the growth of the blues. Producers of the blues have a need for products with proven reliability; members of the communities that sustain the blues tend to hold a genuine reverence for earlier artists and recordings. As a result, certain ideas about what constitutes a successful sound prove indelible. Contemporary artists are encouraged to devote their energies to emulating successful artists and sounds from the past, rather than innovating fresh, contemporary approaches. Examples abound: At the point at which the market for Muddy Waters's recordings began to slip, the Chess brothers pushed him to reprise his own earlier recordings in The Real Folk Blues. Blues artist Doug Sahm was encouraged to "make a real [San Antonio] blues record like the old days, back on the east side" (Sahm, 1980). The product was his Hell of a Spell. A recent recording by Buddy Guy, Sweet Tea, evokes the Fat Possum recordings of R. L. Burnside and Junior Kimbrough. Locked into re-creations of earlier "sounds," it is easy for blues enterprises to become musical backwaters. Without change and innovation, blues enterprises tend to stagnate.

Nonetheless, blues performers do experience periods of growth and wider acceptance. The problem is that these periods are rarely long enough or profitable enough to sustain the artist though the lean periods. And the lean periods are long. With little hope of accessing a mainstream audience, artists have to remain responsive to the particular needs and circumstances in which they find themselves, capitalizing on regional subject matter, performance practices, and support systems.

A brief description of the environment that gave rise to and encompassed Chess Records illustrates several ideas and systems described in this study: a face-to-face community (itself an imagined community) sustaining the career of an individual artist; a positive economic environment, facilitating participation in the process of creative destruction; and an imagined community building on the basic Chess formula toward surprising growth and innovation.

Chess records (Chicago) is often regarded as one of the most successful blues enterprises to date. However, it seems important to place the success of the label in perspective. One of Chess's most popular releases was Muddy Waters's single "Hoochie-Coochie Man."

According to Sandra Tooze this cut “sold 75,000 copies” in 1954 (Tooze, 1997, p. 120). That same year, the Ames Brothers’ “The Naughty Lady of Shady Lane” sold “over one million copies” (Jasen, 2002, p. 144).

As a main terminus for the Great Migration of African Americans from the deep South, Chicago’s South Side became the locus for one of the strongest and largest face-to-face blues communities in the United States. An expatriated population (itself, one of the world’s most fecund imagined communities) seeking a connection to home in the Mississippi Delta gave rise to and sustained the careers of a number of gifted performers from the Delta. More to the point, a ready market existed for an urbanized form of the Delta blues. Muddy Waters arrived in Chicago in 1943. While enormously talented, charismatic, and resourceful, he was utterly dependent in the early part of his career on family members already living in Chicago and a close-knit group of musicians and followers. He maintained a close connection to that base community throughout his life.

The larger world became aware of Muddy Waters owing not only to the efforts of his label, Chess Records, but also to the positive business environment that surrounded Chess. A positive business environment includes (1) a market, sufficient in size and with sufficient disposable income to allow the enterprise to develop and innovate; (2) a sufficient pool of raw materials—in this case, talented performers. Both of these aspects are described above. The positive environment will also include (3) entrepreneurs with sufficient investment capital and an understanding of the various activities involved in the enterprise; (4) a means of creating the product, and if it is to continue to be successful, a means of continuing to innovate; and (5) a means of publicizing and distributing the product. There is no doubt in anyone’s mind that Leonard and Phil Chess, the founders of Chess Records, proved to be the right personalities, ideally placed, at the right time. While their success was directly related to the enormous energy they invested in their enterprise, they were ideally positioned.

Leonard and Phil Chess were Polish-Jewish immigrants whose business sensibilities developed in relation to the location of their homes and businesses. Their business was located, both geographically and ideologically, in the margin between African American and Jewish Chicago. Of particular importance was their Macomba Lounge situated in the Cottage Grove area, a lean and hungry entertainment district “with businesses owned almost exclusively by whites, but now frequented by blacks” (Cohodas, 2000, p. 22). As a result of where they lived and their business acumen, the Chess brothers brought several important abilities to the table: an ability to communicate across racial, ethnic, and class lines; the necessary energy and ambition to see a process through to a profitable end; the ability to listen carefully, combined with sufficient experience to recognize marketable musical ideas; and the self-confidence to act decisively and to recognize their limitations.

This last aspect was particularly important. They seemed to know when to get out of the way and allow others to do the things they could not do. A major part of their success must be attributed to Willie Dixon, an African American who served as their bass player, their composer-arranger, and their means of appropriate contact with artists. Willie Dixon notes: “The Chess brothers would say ‘Dixon, go over there with these folks and straighten up their thing. Get a better introduction on there. Get ’em to sing the words right and get the tune in shape to record’” (Dixon, 1989, p. 90). Their ability to know when to get out of the way may also be recognized in their decision to utilize the facilities and know-how available to them at Universal Recording Studios.

While Chess’s target audience was anxious for a taste of home, an exact replica of the sounds that they remembered from juke joints in the Delta would not have sufficed. A great many developments had taken place in the intervening period. Amplified instruments allowed the music to sound more muscular; at the same time, more subtle nuances became audible. Hand in hand with these developments were developments in both recording and playback devices. While the Chess brothers made several attempts at establishing their own recording facilities, they turned to Universal Recording Studios for their important recordings. At Universal, it was possible to achieve a state-of-the-art recording quality known as “high fidelity.” These recordings tended to sound larger than life, particularly when played on improved home playback systems and on the full-spectrum jukebox. In exploiting developments in technology, the Chess brothers participated actively in the process of the creative destruction. In truth, Chess’s participation in the process of creative destruction is part of a larger history.

Stephen Struthers (1987) notes that one of the important trends that may be noted in the development of sound recordings is a gradual shift away from the original intention of reproducing live performances toward the intention of producing a larger-than-life illusion. Prior to the formation of Chess, RCA Bluebird had already moved blues recordings well into the realm of illusion. With access to state-of-the-art recording facilities and knowledgeable engineers such as Malcolm Chisholm, the Chess brothers took the next step—into high-fidelity recordings.

From the 1970s forward, labels such as Alligator Records have picked up where Chess left off. A history of the process of creative destruction in the blues might be traced as follows.

Label	Format	Market medium and means of promotion
Bluebird	78-rpm records; monophonic	Jukebox; Race record catalogs
Chess	78s → 45s → LPs; Mono → HiFi → stereo	Jukebox, radio → home; radio and television on regional scale
Alligator	LPs → CDs; Stereo → digital	Same plus major print/multimedia on global scale

Additional aspects of the positive business environment that surrounded Chess are suggested above. The Chess brothers enjoyed access to radio stations such as WGES, devoted to a blues and R&B format. In 1947, the year in which Aristocrat (parent of the Chess enterprise) was incorporated, the company listed three distributors. However, the Chess brothers tended to maintain tight control over their product. Nadine Cohodas vividly describes Leonard Chess's visit to an important distributor—Stan's Record Shop in Shreveport, Louisiana. Leonard arrived in his own car, "packed with records, stacked on the backseat, floorboards, and in the trunk" (Cohodas, 2000, p. 49). By 1952, Chess was associated with a number of distributors. However, their primary distribution remained confined largely to three areas: Chicago, Memphis through arrangements with a company called Music Sales, and Atlanta through Southland Distributing.

Again, Chess Records was situated in an ideal location both ideologically and geographically. All the systems were readily at hand to locate and cultivate artists, to record their performances in a state-of-the-art manner, and to popularize and distribute their recordings. Why did the brothers' blues enterprise never become a mainstream success? As noted earlier, the blues is simply not a mainstream music. In addition, the already limited market for blues began to collapse in relation to the market for more contemporary black music. It must be remembered that by the late 1950s there was a new generation of black Chicagoans, once removed from a desire for "down-home" music. Chess diversified their activities, moving particularly toward jazz (their own musical preference) and toward more contemporary rhythm and blues, genres that had demonstrated their potential for crossover success.

Nonetheless, an interesting phenomenon was occurring by the mid- to late 1960s—a second life for Chess blues in "imagined communities." As noted earlier, performances of the blues are structured to access a deeply personal and powerful emotional state. Though the artist imagines himself or herself to be performing for a community that has a deep understanding of the nuances that are being expressed, there is always a contingent of the audience that exists outside the knowledge and concerns of the face-to-face community. While the emotions that are being evoked are powerful—capable of providing a sense of community, capable of summoning profound grief or exhilaration—the actual ideas and images that are evoked are likely to be very broad and flexible, very different from the ideas and images the artist thinks he or she is communicating. The power of the blues is felt way beyond the actual, blues-based community. More to the point, Chess recordings enjoyed unexpected popularity in Great Britain. Luckily, artists such as the Rolling Stones were honest about the degree to which they were influenced by Chess artists. As a result, a young U.S. audience, heavily under the second-hand influence of blues-based, British groups began seeking out Chess recordings, often available as cutouts. In this, we begin to understand why and how the blues exerts an appeal well beyond the community that actively supports it. We begin to understand why a group of musicians in London might decide to call themselves the Rolling Stones.

MICHAEL FARLEY

Bibliography

- Anderson, Benedict. Imagined Communities: Reflections on the Origin and Spread of Nationalism. 2nd ed. London: Verso, 1991.
- Cohodas, Nadine. Spinning Blues into Gold: The Chess Brothers and the Legendary Chess Recordings. New York: St. Martin's Press, 2000.
- Dixon, Willie, with Don Snowden. I Am the Blues: The Willie Dixon Story. New York: Da Capo, 1989.
- Guralnick, Peter. Searching for Robert Johnson. New York: Penguin, 1989.
- Hadley, Frank-John. "Return of the Rerye." Downbeat 70, 3 (March 2003): 44–49.
- Jasen, David A. A Century of American Popular Music: 2000 Best-Loved and Remembered Songs (1899–1999). New York: Routledge, 2002.
- Rowe, Mike. Chicago Breakdown. New York: Da Capo, 1973.
- Schumpeter, Joseph A. Capitalism, Socialism and Democracy. 3rd ed. New York: Harper and Brothers, 1950.
- Small, Christopher. Music of the Common Tongue: Survival and Celebration in Afro-American Music. New York: Riverrun Press, 1987.
- Struthers, Stephen. "Technology in the Art of Recording." In Lost in Music: Culture, Style and the Musical Event, edited by Avron Levine White. New York: Routledge, 1987.

Titon, Jeff Todd. Early Downhome Blues: A Musical and Cultural Analysis. 2nd ed. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press, 1994.

Tooze, Sandra. Muddy Waters: The Mojo Man. Toronto: ECW Press, 1997.

Discography

Guy, Buddy. Sweet Tea (2001, Silvertone; CD).

Sahm, Doug. Hell of a Spell (1980, Chrysalis/Takoma; LP).

Waters, Muddy. The Real Folk Blues (1987, Chess; CD).

UNITED/STATES

Chicago rhythm and blues label of the 1950s. United was launched in July 1951 by Leonard Allen (1900–1985), a tailor shop owner, in partnership with Lew Simpkins (1918–1953), a veteran record man who had worked for Miracle and Premium and brought many of their former artists to the new label. United enjoyed early success, scoring hits by Tab Smith (“Because of You”), Jimmy Forrest (“Night Train”), and the Four Blazes (“Mary Jo”). The company was able to expand and open a new imprint called States in May 1952. The owners built a substantial roster of blues artists, usually urban players such as Roosevelt Sykes, Memphis Slim, Harold Burrage, and J. T. Brown, but also such down-home blues artists as Robert Nighthawk, Big Walter Horton, and Junior Wells. United and States had a substantial roster of jazz artists, including Tab Smith, Jimmy Forrest, Chris Woods, Gene Ammons, Paul Bascomb, Tommy Dean, Jimmy Coe, Eddie Chamblee, and Cozy Eggleston. Gospel was represented by Robert Anderson, the Caravans, Singing Sammy Lewis, and the Little Lucy Smith Singers. R&B harmony groups were represented by the Dozier Boys, Moroccos, Shepards, Five Chances, and Danderliers (who had the company’s last hit, “Chop Chop Boom,” in 1955). After Lew Simpkins died in April 1953, United began a long decline. By the end of 1956 Allen sold off half of the house music publishing to pay taxes. During the label’s last year it recorded some rock ‘n’ roll, but the effort came too late. The company closed in 1957.

ROBERT PRUTER

Bibliography

Pruter, Robert, and Jim O’Neal. “Leonard Allen and the United/States Story” [part 1] Living Blues no. 92 (July/August 1990): 37–40; [part 2]. Living Blues no. 93 (September/October 1990): 34–36; [part 3]. Living Blues no. 95 (January/February 1991): 41–46.

———, Robert L. Campbell, and Tom Kelly. “The United and States Labels, Part 1 (1951–1953).” Red Saunders Research Foundation webpage, <http://hubcap.clemson.edu/~campber/unitedstates.html> (accessed May 23, 2003); “Part 2 (1954–1957).” Red Saunders Research Foundation webpage, <http://hubcap.clemson.edu/~campber/unitedstates2.html> (accessed February 10, 2003).

Discography: McGrath

UPCHURCH, PHIL

b. 19 July 1941; Chicago, IL

Guitarist; also plays electric bass. Highly regarded across a range of genres, including blues, rhythm and blues, funk, jazz, and jazz-fusion; self-taught. Upchurch began his career in rhythm and blues groups in 1957, and recorded with Muddy Waters, Jimmy Reed, and others. On his return from the army (1965–1967), he worked with artists like Jimmy Smith and Dizzy Gillespie from jazz, and soul acts like Donny Hathaway. He performed with Ramsey Lewis (1969–1970) and George Benson (ca. 1976–1981); also recorded with Cannonball Adderley, Grover Washington, Jr., Crusaders, Mose Allison, and others. Upchurch led his own small groups throughout his career and had a hit with “You Can’t Sit Down” in 1961). He formed the twenty-piece Phil-Harmonic Orchestra in 1998. Upchurch is an imaginative and highly accomplished soloist and accompanist with a distinctive personal style.

KENNY MATHIESON

Bibliography

Ferguson, Jim. “Phil Upchurch: From 50s R&B to 80s Pop: Fusing Blues, Funk and Jazz.” Guitar Player 13, no. 7 (1979): 87.

Summerfield, Maurice J. The Jazz Guitar: Its Evolution, Players and Personalities Since 1900. Gateshead: Ashley Mark Publishing, 1978.

Discography

Selected Recordings as Leader

You Can’t Sit Down (1961, Boyd 1026).

Feelin’ Blue (1967, Milestone 9010).

Free and Easy (1982, Jam 007).

Phil Upchurch Trio (1987, King 6459).

Whatever Happened to the Blues (1996, GoJazz 5019).

USA

Chicago blues and rock label of the 1960s. All-State Record Distributing head Paul Glass began the USA label in Milwaukee in 1959 in partnership with deejay Lee Rothman. By 1961 Glass had taken complete control of USA and had moved it to Chicago. Initially, most of the artists were blues performers, notably Willie Mabon, Junior Wells, Ko Ko Taylor, Ricky Allen, and Fenton Robinson. Other USA bluesmen were Andrew Brown, Eddy Clearwater, A. C. Reed, Jesse Fortune, Jimmy Burns, and Homesick James. Producers on these records included Willie Dixon, Al Perkins, Al Smith, and Mel London. Beginning in 1966, the label began concentrating on rock acts, such as the Buckingham and the Flock. Rock producers Jim Golden and Bob Monaco joined Glass as co-owners of the label at this time. However, occasional blues and hard soul acts continued to be released, such as Mighty Joe Young and Bobby Jones. USA closed down in 1969. During the early 1970s, the USA label was briefly revived under different ownership, releasing singles by Lonnie Brooks and Jackie Ross, among others.

USA

ROBERT PRUTER

Bibliography

Dahl, Bill. Liner notes for The USA Records Blues Story (2002, Fuel 2000 Records 302 061 209 2).

V

VALENTINE, CAL

b. 28 May 1937; Dallas, TX
d. 1 January 1997; Oakland, CA

Guitarist and vocalist. First recorded with vocal groups, then with his brother as the Valentines for King in 1960 and with his band as the Texas Rockers for Lyons. Moved to Oakland, recording for Galaxy with the Right Kind (1968–1969) and much later cutting an album for Black Magic.

RAY ASTBURY

Bibliography

Larkin
Bonner, Brett J. "Cal Valentine" [obituary]. Living Blues no. 132 (March/April 1997): 76–77.
Rainsfor, M. "Doin' the Boogie Twist—The Cal Valentine Story." Blues & Rhythm no. 94 (November 1994): 4–7.

Selected Recording

Cal Valentine—The Texas Rocker (Black Magic CD 9027).

See also Black Magic; Fantasy/Prestige/Bluesville/Galaxy/Milestone/Riverside; King/Federal/Queen

VALERY, JOE

(See Blue, Little Joe)

VAN RONK, DAVE

b. 30 June 1936; Brooklyn, NY
d. 10 February 2002; New York City, NY

Initially a jazz guitarist, his interest in folk music began after working with Odetta in 1957, and later with Josh White. With his gruff voice, he gained an early reputation for singing blues. His early LP records were on Lyricord, Folkways, and Prestige. From the mid-1960 he added ragtime and jug band music to his interests. From the 1970s he seemed less visible, but in 1974 he joined Bob Dylan and Phil Ochs onstage in singing Dylan's "Blowin' in the Wind."

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Larkin
Rush, R. "Dave Van Ronk." Sing Out! 27 no. 5 (1979): 2–6.

Discography: Larkin

VAN SINGEL, AMY

b. 10 October 1949; Chicago, IL

Editor, writer, publisher, photographer, and blues disk jockey. Copiloted Living Blues from its inception in 1970 until 1983. Author, with Jim O'Neal, of Voice of the Blues (New York: Routledge, 2001).

PAUL GARON

VANGUARD

Founded as the Vanguard Recording Society in 1950 in New York City by brothers Seymour and Maynard Solomon, Vanguard became one of America's leading independent labels, specializing from the outset in the then relatively new LP format at a time when other labels were still focusing on 45s and 78s. Initially a classical label that branched out into jazz and folk, Vanguard became an important source for blues in the 1960s, starting with folk-blues of the type featured at the Newport Folk Festival (which Vanguard recorded each summer from 1959 to 1965) and soon expanding into electric blues (as exemplified by the three-volume Chicago/The Blues/Today! series produced by Sam Charters). Vanguard LPs were typically bought by college-educated whites and folk revivalists, many of whom were being introduced to authentic blues for the first time.

Traditional acoustic blues artists recorded by Vanguard included, most notably, Mississippi John Hurt, Skip James, and Gary Davis. Vanguard's electric blues roster focused on Chicago-based artists such as Buddy Guy, Junior Wells, James Cotton, Otis Spann, Charlie Musselwhite, and Siegel-Schwall, but also included Big Mama Thornton and Pee Wee Crayton. John Hammond, Jr., recorded both acoustically and electrically for the label. After periods of relative inactivity, forays into dance singles and jazz-fusion, and a 1986 sale to the Welk Music Group, Vanguard's new recordings since the 1990s have focused on singer-songwriters. The label also keeps in print CD reissues from its catalog and a historically significant box set of the "From Spirituals to Swing" Carnegie Hall concerts (1938–1939), packaged with a reproduction of the original concert program booklet.

STEVE HOFFMAN

Bibliography

Vanguard website, <http://www.vanguardrecords.com>.

Selected Recordings

Various artists. Blues at Newport, 1959–64.
———. Chicago/The Blues/Today! (3-CD set).

VANLEER, JIMMY

b. 24 September 1939; Dickson, TN
d. 8 May 1996; Chicago, IL

A Chicago rhythm and blues producer and record company owner. Vanleer made his mark most notably during the early 1970s when he achieved success producing soul acts, notably Jackie Ross, Southside Movement, and Barbara and the Uniques. In the blues vein, Vanleer recorded Little Milton from 1980 to 1983. Vanleer was a prolific composer and wrote most of the songs for the acts he recorded. He placed most of his acts with 20th Century Fox Records in California and Scepter/Wand in New York, but he also placed acts on his Sedgwick and Golden Ear labels.

ROBERT PRUTER

Bibliography

Pruter, Robert. Chicago Soul. Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 1991.

VANN WALLS, HARRY EUGENE "PIANO MAN"

(See Walls, Harry Eugene Vann "Piano Man")

VARSITY

The main label of the United States Record Corporation (USRC), founded in 1939 by Eli Oberstein, a former RCA-Victor executive, as a cut-price competitor to the majors. The popular 8000 series included a performance of "T-Bone Blues" by T-Bone Walker with Les Hite's Orchestra. The seventy-four issues in the 6000 Race series were mainly reissues of older material from Paramount, Gennett, and Crown, apparently acquired through Crown, and often using bizarre pseudonyms such as Sally Sad (who is variously Hattie Snow, Ivy Smith, Eithel Smith, and Mae Glover). An issue credited to Poor Bill is thought to be the only original blues recording. USRC ceased trading in late 1940. The Walker recording was reissued on Oberstein's new Elite label (active 1941–1942), and later appeared on Blue Note and Commodore.

HOWARD RYE

Bibliography

Dutton, Frank, John Godrich, Michael Wyler, and John McKenzie. "The Varsity 6000 Race Series." Matrix, no. 32 (1961): 3; corrections in no. 40 (1962): 17.

Discography: DGR; Sutton

Dixon, Robert M. W., and John Godrich. Recording the Blues. London: Studio Vista, 1970; reprinted in Paul Oliver et al., Yonder Come the Blues. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2001.

 Rust, Brian. The American Record Label Book. New Rochelle, NY: Arlington Press, 1978.

VAUGHAN, JIMMY

b. 20 March 1951, Dallas, TX

Vaughan began playing guitar in his early teens. He later became a founding member of the Texas-style blues-rock group the Fabulous Thunderbirds. He is also the brother of the late blues guitarist Stevie Ray Vaughan. Soon after the death of his brother in 1990, Vaughan left the Fabulous Thunderbirds and started a solo career and continues to release guitar-oriented blues recordings.

BRYAN GROVE

Bibliography

AMG (Stephen Thomas Erlewine); Larkin; Santelli
 Jordan, S. "More Than Tuff Enuff: Jimmie Vaughan." Blues Revue no. 41 (October 1998): 8–12.

Discography: AMG

See also Fabulous Thunderbirds

VAUGHAN, STEVIE RAY

b. 3 October 1954; Dallas, TX
 d. 27 August 1990; East Troy, WI

One of the greatest blues guitarists of all time, Stevie Ray Vaughan is credited with igniting the blues renaissance of the 1980s. Though Vaughan was acknowledged as the leading exponent of the Texas style in the post-rock era after 1970, he drew from a number of traditional sources including the Chicago blues of Howlin' Wolf, Otis Rush, Buddy Guy, and Muddy Waters; the Memphis styles of B. B. King and Albert King; rock guitarists Lonnie Mack and Jimi Hendrix; soul artist Stevie Wonder; and jazz musicians Eddie Harris and Kenny Burrell. Vaughan developed a highly personal sound and approach that were immediately recognizable, even when performing in the role of sideman on the occasional pop or R&B recording such as David Bowie's Let's Dance album, James Brown's "Coming to America," and a Don Johnson recording project. Vaughan bridged the gap between rock and blues like no guitarist since Jimi Hendrix and attained iconic status in the eighties. His tragic and untimely death in 1990 underscored his significance as a blues artist and emphasized his contributions to the genre, which still have not been surpassed or equaled. When asked about his legacy in 1986, Vaughan responded that he wanted to be remembered for "taking the color out of the blues"—an admirable feat that he accomplished masterfully in the span of seven short years.

Early Years

Vaughan was born on October 3, 1954, in Dallas, Texas, the son of Jimmie Lee Vaughan and Martha Jean Cook. His father worked on various construction sites in Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, and Mississippi, requiring the family to live a vagabond lifestyle before settling in Oak Cliff, a suburb of Dallas. There Vaughan was raised, attended school, and performed in his first bands. He dropped out of high school in 1971 when he was seventeen and moved to Austin, Texas, to pursue a career in music.

Stevie Ray Vaughan began playing the guitar in 1963 at age eight. Though he was an avid student of the blues, he was not scholarly or clinical in his assimilation of the genre's musical language. His earliest influence was his older brother, guitarist Jimmie Vaughan (1951–), three years his elder. Vaughan's tutorial and training consisted of listening to countless recordings, copying phrases and riffs by ear, and gleaned insights from his brother. As a youth his tastes were eclectic, ranging from traditional blues artists Albert King, B. B. King, Howlin' Wolf, Slim Harpo, Lightnin' Hopkins, and T-Bone Walker to R&B performers Chuck Berry and Larry Williams and rock 'n' roll instrumentalists and groups Johnny and the Hurricanes, Lonnie Mack, Dick Dale, the Ventures, and Santo and Johnny. He also admired jazz artists Kenny Burrell, Jimmy McGriff, and Brother Jack McDuff. When the British Invasion changed the course of popular music in the sixties, Vaughan added Eric Clapton, Jeff Beck, and Jimi Hendrix to his studies. Reflecting on his informal education spent listening and absorbing, Vaughan remarked, "They were my books."

First Bands and Early Professional Years

Vaughan played in a number of amateur bands during his junior high school years. He worked out many of his ideas and developed the beginnings of his style in these semiprofessional ensembles, some of which acquired jobs in night clubs. Vaughan's first studio session took place in 1971 with the Cast of Thousands, a local Dallas band led by future actor-director Steve Tobolowsky. Vaughan's earliest recorded work was documented on the Dallas garage band compilation A New Hi.

When Vaughan dropped out of high school in winter of 1971 he relocated to Austin, Texas, and joined the city's active blues milieu. There he began performing professionally. In 1972 he worked with Christian Plicque's sextet, Blackbird. Vaughan joined Krackerjack later in 1972. There he developed a relationship with his future bassist Tommy Shannon, of Johnny Winter fame. When Krackerjack self-destructed, Vaughan joined the Nightcrawlers, a rock group that contained future collaborator Doyle Bramhall. The Nightcrawlers backed guitarist Marc Benno in 1973. The band traveled to Los Angeles with Benno and recorded eight songs for A&M Records, produced by David Anderle. Marc Benno and the Nightcrawlers also performed in concert with Humble Pie and the J. Geils band in this period. A&M ultimately rejected the recordings and Vaughan returned to Austin with the Nightcrawlers minus Benno.

In 1975 Vaughan joined the Cobras, a popular local quartet formed and led by singer Paul Ray which featured guitarist Denny Freeman. The Cobras worked in clubs and bars in the Austin area in the mid- to late 1970s. Vaughan became a bandleader in 1976 when he formed the Triple Threat Revue, a quintet that included vocalist Lou Ann Barton, saxophonist Johnny Reno, bassist Jack Newhouse, and drummer Chris Layton. When Barton left the group in 1978, the band continued performing under the name Double Trouble, a title borrowed from an Otis Rush song, with Vaughan as the guitarist and lead singer. The group became a trio when Reno departed in 1979. Bassist Tommy Shannon replaced Newhouse in 1981.

Stevie Ray Vaughan and Double Trouble

In the period preceding their breakthrough and commercial success, Vaughan and Double Trouble built a reputation in and around the Austin area. They obtained business representation in the person of Joe Priesnitz and his Rock Arts booking agency, who got the group jobs throughout Texas as well as Northern California. During this period Vaughan opened for Muddy Waters in Houston.

The year 1982 was a pivotal one for Stevie Ray Vaughan and Double Trouble. A party and showcase at New York's Danceteria night club arranged by the Rolling Stones generated considerable publicity. The group performed on July 17 at the Montreux Festival in Geneva, Switzerland, and attracted the attention of pop star David Bowie. Bowie asked Vaughan to appear on Let's Dance, a multiplatinum album that garnered tremendous public recognition. Vaughan also impressed singer-songwriter Jackson Browne who offered the band studio time in Los Angeles, where the earliest Double Trouble professional demos were recorded in fall of 1982. Famed impresario and talent scout John Hammond subsequently signed Vaughan to a recording contract with Epic Records and produced his first album Texas Flood, released in June of the next year.

In 1983 Vaughan and Double Trouble began to experience incremental success. They received four Grammy nominations, winning the Best Traditional Blues category for the Montreux version of "Texas Flood." They also taped audio-video concert footage in Toronto, Canada, later issued as Live at the Mocambo, and appeared in their first Austin City Limits concert. Additionally Vaughan and musical role model Albert King recorded a studio session in December, later issued as In Session: Albert King/ Stevie Ray Vaughan. Vaughan's 1984 sophomore effort Couldn't Stand the Weather continued the momentum. The album debuted at 144 on the Billboard pop chart, remained on the charts for thirty-eight weeks, and became his first million-selling record. He was subsequently awarded two prestigious accolades at the fifth annual W. C. Handy Awards: National Blues Entertainer of the Year and Blues Instrumentalist of the Year.

As his career progressed Vaughan took on special projects and extracurricular musical ventures. In 1985 he produced and played on his idol Lonnie Mack's comeback recording Strike Like Lightning. He also began to appear as a guest artist on various studio sessions including the 1985 Rocky IV soundtrack with James Brown. In 1987 Vaughan performed "Pipeline" with Dick Dale in Back to the Beach. In 1988 Vaughan performed an all-acoustic set on MTV.

Vaughan added keyboardist Reese Wynans, on Hammond B-3 organ and piano, to his band line-up in 1985. The first album to feature the new quartet sound was 1985's Soul to Soul. This recording would be the penultimate studio album made by Vaughan in his lifetime. The enlarged group was also featured on the Live Alive (1986) concert collection.

In 1989 Vaughan and company recorded their final studio album In Step, which earned a Grammy for Best Contemporary Blues Recording. In that year he toured with blues-rock guitar icon Jeff Beck. A special limited edition compilation of the artists' work was gathered for Fire Meets the Fury (1989, Epic tour sampler). A second Austin City Limits appearance was also recorded that year. That performance and the earlier 1983 concert were later compiled and issued as a video package in 1995.

In 1990 Vaughan and Double Trouble toured with Joe Cocker. Vaughan also recorded Family Style (Epic) with brother Jimmie. On August 27, 1990, Vaughan died in helicopter crash near Alpine Valley, Wisconsin. It was the fourth anniversary of his father Jimmie Lee Vaughan's death. He had just finished performing in concert with Eric Clapton, Robert Cray, Buddy Guy, and brother Jimmie.

Personal Life

Vaughan married Lenora (Lenny) Bailey on December, 20, 1979, between sets at the Rome Inn in Austin, Texas. The instrumental piece "Lenny," an important composition in the Vaughan repertoire, was written as a tribute to his new wife. Vaughan met Janna Lapidus while touring New Zealand in 1986. In 1987 he filed for divorce from Lenny. The final decree was granted in June 1988.

Vaughan was plagued by substance abuse (methamphetamine, cocaine, and alcohol) in his early professional years. He entered formal rehabilitation in 1986 and successfully freed himself from drug and alcohol addiction with the help of Dr. Victor Bloom, who was also instrumental in Eric Clapton's recovery from heroin addiction. Vaughan's triumph over substance abuse was celebrated on In Step. The title refers to the twelve-step program and many of the songs gravitate to themes of renewal and rehabilitation. Vaughan remained sober until his death.

Instruments and Sound

Throughout his career Vaughan was a highly visible player of the Fender Stratocaster, an instrument associated with a school of blues guitarists like Buddy Guy, Otis Rush, Pee Wee Crayton, Eric Clapton, Robert Cray, Jimmie Vaughan, and Jimi Hendrix. He owned and played several but was most often seen with a trademark battered, early-1960s sunburst model affectionately called "Number One." This iconic guitar was honored in a Fender Stevie Ray Vaughan artist signature model, still in production, and a special tribute model, which is a detailed custom-shop reproduction.

On rare occasions Vaughan played a semi-hollow Gibson ES-335 and a Gibson Johnny Smith archtop electric. He generally used several Fender combo amplifiers in combinations, favoring the Vibroverb 1×15 and Super-Reverb 4×10 models, and preferred heavy-gauge strings (0.013-0.060) tuned down one half-step. Vaughan's main sound effects were an Ibanez TS-808 or TS-9 Tube Screamer distortion unit and a Vox or Crybaby wah-wah pedal. He sometimes added an Octavia, Fuzz Face, or Fender Vibratone rotating speaker device.

At the time of his death Vaughan's possessions were a matter of public record, revealing that he owned 34 guitars, 12 speakers, and 31 amplifiers.

Texas Flood (1983, Epic), Couldn't Stand the Weather (1984, Epic), Soul to Soul (1985, Epic), Live Alive! (1986, Epic), and In Step (1989, Epic) are the albums released by Stevie Ray Vaughan and Double Trouble during his lifetime. The Sky Is Crying (1991, Epic) and In the Beginning (1992, Epic) were issued posthumously as were the compilations Greatest Hits (1995, Epic), The Real Deal: Greatest Hits 2 (1999, Epic), Blues at Sunrise (2000, Epic), SRV (2000, Legacy; boxed set), and The Essential Stevie Ray Vaughan (2002, Legacy).

Several concert performances by Stevie Ray Vaughan and Double Trouble were released posthumously in various formats. These include Live at the Mocambo (1991, Sony video), Live from Austin, Texas (1995, Epic video), Live at Carnegie Hall (1997, Epic), and Live at Montreux 1982 and 1985 (2001, Legacy CD and DVD).

Vaughan also appeared as a guest musician on studio recordings by Bob Dylan, David Bowie, Stevie Wonder, James Brown, Lonnie Mack, A. C. Reed, Teena Marie, Jennifer Warnes, Roy Head, Johnny Copeland, Brian Slawson, Bill Carter, Bennie Wallace, Don Johnson, and Marcia Ball.

WOLF MARSHALL

Bibliography

AMG (Stephen Thomas Erlewine); Larkin; Santelli Crawford, Bill, and Joe Nick Patoski. Stevie Ray Vaughan: Caught in the Crossfire. New York: Little, Brown, 1994.

Transcription Book

Lightnin' Blues, 1983–1987, transcribed by John Tapella; edited by Fred Sokolow and Ronny Schiff. Milwaukee, WI: Hal Leonard, 1990.

VAUGHAN, STEVIE RAY

The Sky Is Crying—Stevie Ray Vaughan and Double Trouble, transcribed by Dave Whitehill. Milwaukee, WI: Hal Leonard, 1992.

VAUGHN, JIMMY

b. 20 March 1925; Chicago, IL
d. 9 March 1991; St. Louis, MO

Pianist and singer raised in Alton, Illinois, who learned some piano from one-time Paramount/Decca recording artist Thomas “Barrelhouse Buck” MacFarland. After army service in World War II, he played mostly in clubs. In the mid-1950s he was pianist and arranger for Albert King, then the same for Little Milton in the early 1960s. Until the mid-1980s he was active in blues on the West Coast. In his last years he lived in Alton, and recorded four tracks for the Modern Blues label anthology.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Larkin; Santelli

VAUGHN, MAURICE JOHN

b. 6 November 1952; Chicago, IL

Chicago-based singer and multi-instrumentalist. Birth date has also been given as May 10, 1949. Started out playing saxophone in jazz and R&B outfits in the late 1960s. Emphasizing his guitar repertoire in the late 1970s, he gigged behind Professor Eddie Lusk, Phil Guy, Son Seals, Luther Allison, and Valerie Wellington before issuing a debut album on his own label in 1984.

Generic Blues displayed a style based on Chicago electric blues, but mixed with funk and jazz. Vaughn has a warm, tenor voice, and writes songs with strong melodic hooks. Despite positive reviews in the blues press for Generic Blues, Vaughn did not release another album until 1993's In the Shadow of the City.

JIM TRAGESER

Bibliography

Larkin; Santelli

Discography: AMG

Generic Blues (1984, Alligator Records 4763).
In the Shadow of the City (1993, Alligator Records 4813).
Dangerous Road (2001, Blue Suit Records 116).

VAULT

Los Angeles label established in 1963 by Bill Wenzel. Many of its releases were by the Challengers, and one by Lightnin' Hopkins.

EDWARD KOMARA

Discography: McGrath

VEE-JAY/ABNER/FALCON

Chicago rhythm and blues label of the 1950s and 1960s. Vee-Jay was the country's largest black-owned label until the advent of Motown in the 1960s. The company was founded in Gary, Indiana, by James Bracken (1908–1972) and Vivian Carter (1920–1989) in 1953. Before the end of the year, Bracken and Carter would be married and the company would relocate in Chicago. Other principals of the company were Vivian's brother, Calvin Carter (1925–1986), who served as producer and A&R man; and Ewart Abner Jr. (1923–1997), who starting in early 1955 was the company's general manager and later president. A secret investor in the company was Art Sheridan, who had earlier been partners with Abner in Chance Records.

Vee-Jay was enormously successful from the beginning, recording bluesman Jimmy Reed, who would become one of the best-selling blues artists of the 1950s, and a doo-wop group, the Spaniels, one of the best known groups of the decade. Other blues artists recorded by Vee-Jay included John Lee Hooker (who gave the company several hits), Billy Boy Arnold, Eddie Taylor, Memphis Slim, and Roscoe Gordon. The company also had hits with such R&B acts as Wade Flemmons, Gene Allison, the Dells, and the El Dorados. Vee-Jay also had a substantial gospel line, recording such groups as the Staple Singers and the Swan Silvertones. A successful jazz line was begun in 1959. In the 1960s the label prospered, recording soul music by Dee Clark, Jerry Butler, Betty Everett, and Gene Chandler and releasing rock 'n' roll by the Beatles and the Four Seasons. As the company grew it added subsidiary imprints, namely Abner, Vivid, and Tollie. In 1963 Abner was forced out of the company, and a new management team moved Vee-Jay to Los Angeles in early 1964. The company returned to Chicago in 1965 with Abner back in the helm, but went bankrupt in 1966.

ROBERT PRUTER

Bibliography

Larkin
Pruter, Robert. Chicago Soul. Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 1991.

Discography: McGrath

Callahan, Mike, and David Edwards. "The Vee Jay Story," Both Sides Now website, <http://www.bsnpubs.com/vee/jay/veejay.html> (accessed December 13, 2004).

VENSON, TENNER "PLAYBOY" "COOT"

b. 4 January 1913; Belzoni, MS
d. 24 February 1985; Chicago, IL

Harpist/drummer; lived and played in the Maxwell Street neighborhood from the early 1940s. In later years, accompanied Big Walter Horton, Honeyboy Edwards, Floyd Jones, Homesick James, and other veterans on the street and in clubs. Venson recorded with Big Joe Williams for Storyville in 1964, and with John Wrencher and Buddy Thomas on Barrelhouse in 1969.

DAVID WHITEIS

Bibliography

Whiteis, David. "Playboy Venson" [obituary]. Living Blues no. 66 (1985): 44–45.

Discography: LSFP (listed under John Wrencher, as a sideman; also as "Coot Venson" playing harp on the Big Joe Williams release on Storyville)

VERVE

Founded in Los Angeles in 1956 by jazz promoter Norman Granz, following his break with Mercury Records to concentrate on managing and producing Ella Fitzgerald, Verve Records largely reflected the taste of its owner. Granz had worked as a film editor at the Metro Goldwyn Mayer film studio in the early 1940s when he began producing record sessions and promoting jazz concerts at Los Angeles's Philharmonic Hall. The concerts were recorded and Granz issued the recordings a few years later when he formed his first record company, Clef, initially with the backing of Mercury Records. Granz continued to promote his Jazz at the Philharmonic (JATP) concerts and tours, releasing the resulting recordings on Clef and Norgran, but when the U.S. Decca recording contract of his most celebrated client, Ella Fitzgerald, expired in 1956, Granz celebrated by founding a new record company, Verve, and Fitzgerald became his first signing.

For the next four years, Granz recorded many fine jazz recordings, but little blues or R&B was ever issued by him; some of Illinois Jacquet's recordings approached an R&B style and were popular with the dancers, but during the 1950s, only Paul Williams's band, Big Bill Broonzy and Meade Lux Lewis enjoyed one-off sessions with the label. In 1959, however, Granz formed a new LP label, Verve-Folkways, and he implemented reissues of earlier Leadbelly and Terry & McGhee material, and new recordings by Lightnin' Hopkins and Memphis Slim & Willie Dixon. Granz sold Verve to M-G-M Records in 1960, and the company continues to thrive today as the major jazz imprint of the Universal International group of labels.

DAVID PENNY

Bibliography

Ruppli, Michel, and Bob Porter. The Clef/Verve Labels. 2 vols. Westport, CT: Greenwood Press, 1986.
Verve website, <http://www.vervemusicgroup.com/> (accessed December 13, 2004).

Selected Recordings

The Bill Broonzy Story (1999, Verve CD 547555-2).

VICKSBURG BLUES

"Vicksburg Blues" is the title given by Little Brother Montgomery to the generic blues theme otherwise known as "44 Blues" or "The Forty-Fours." The origins of the latter titles are obscure, but may refer to Train Number 44, which ran on the Illinois Central line close to Vicksburg, or to the caliber of a .44 revolver. According to Little Brother, he first heard the tune in a rudimentary form when he was a teenager in Ferriday, Louisiana, played by two barrelhouse pianists, Long Tall Friday and Dehlco Roberts. Other pianists who played the tune in its formative period included Johnny Eager (or Yega) and Nub-Handed Son Crooks (or Cooks).

In 1922 Ferriday was flooded and Little Brother moved to Tallulah, Louisiana, where he met Ernest "44" Johnson, another prominent exponent of the theme. At this time the tune had no words, as Little Brother confirmed: "It's a blues, it's a barrelhouse, honky-tonk blues. People danced by that, did the shimmy by that." Little Brother taught the piece to Lee Green when they spent time together in Soudheimer, Louisiana, and Green in turn taught the tune to Roosevelt Sykes. Some time later the tune acquired lyrics, although there appears to have been no consensus as to the vocal melody. Sykes was the first to get to a studio, and his June 1929 recording of "44 Blues" was a hit. Green followed with "Number Forty-Four Blues" two months later. A year later in 1930 Little Brother recorded his own composition as "Vicksburg Blues." The popularity of the theme can be judged by the fact that between them Sykes, Green, and Little Brother recorded it on ten occasions between 1929 and 1936.

VICKSBURG BLUES

Sykes and Little Brother sang two distinct versions of the vocal melody line and composed several different collections of verses. Sykes sings a succession of falling phrases, whereas Little Brother's searing vocal line rises and falls, creating a pronounced tension and emphasizing the flattened seventh in the melody. Both employed a highly recognizable rumbling, ascending bass line and a double time right-hand pattern, which, as Little Brother commented, is "the hardest barrelhouse blues of any blues in history to play because you have to keep two different times going in each hand."

Sykes's tour de force, with its menacing introduction, is the version that is most often covered by other artists. (James "Boodle-It" Wiggins, accompanied by Blind Leroy Garnett, produced their cover as early as October 1929.) Sykes himself performs the triplets of the right-hand melody with great panache and gradually increases the complexity of the accompaniment throughout the piece, adding a complex obbligato behind the vocal on the later choruses. Few other pianists could equal Sykes's and Little Brother's prowess on the piano with this piece.

Echoes of the "Forty-Fours" continue to reverberate. Mae Glover recorded a version in 1931 and Johnny Temple in 1936. Vocal patterns bearing at least some relationship to the melody occur in the work of other Mississippi artists such as Louise Johnson ("By the Moon and Stars," 1930) and Charley Patton ("It Won't Be Long," 1929).

The "Forty-Fours" theme enjoyed great longevity, with outstanding later versions by Big Maceo ("Maceo's 32-20," 1945), Arthur "Big Boy" Crudup ("Crudup's Vicksburg Blues," 1947), Howlin' Wolf ("Forty Four," 1954), and Otis Spann ("Vicksburg Blues," 1966).

BOB HALL

Bibliography

- Gert zur Heide, Karl. Deep South Piano. London: Studio Vista, 1970.
Oliver, Paul. Screening the Blues, pp. 90–127. London: Cassell, 1968.

VICTOR

Record company founded in Camden, New Jersey, by Eldridge R. Johnson in 1901. It shared with the Gramophone Company the rights to the HMV "dog-and-gramophone" logo. In the early 1920s popular recording was directed by Edward T. King, who was unsympathetic to African American music. Auditions for a Race series in 1921 were abandoned and seven 1923 issues by such as Lizzie Miles and Rosa Henderson remained isolated. King's replacement by Nat Shilkret in November 1926 led to rapid change. Extensive field trips were undertaken. The Memphis Jug Band, Cannon's Jug Stompers, Jim Jackson, Tommy Johnson, Ishman Bracey, Frank Stokes, Furry Lewis, and John Estes were all recorded in Memphis, where the first-named's Will Shade acted as Race A&R man. "Rabbit" Brown was recorded in New Orleans, and Roosevelt Sykes (using the name Willie Kelly) in Louisville. Originally included in the general series, Race items had a dedicated V38000 series from January 1929, replaced in March by a separate V38500 series for vocal items. On January 4, 1929, Victor was taken over by the Radio Corporation of America (RCA) but its principal label continued to be known as Victor until 1946. Both Race series were discontinued in 1930; new series started in 1931 were the 23000s for instrumentals and the 23250s for vocals. Race issues were later concentrated on the subsidiary Bluebird label.

HOWARD RYE

Bibliography

- Dixon, Robert M. W., and John Godrich. Recording the Blues. London: Studio Vista, 1970; reprinted in Paul Oliver et al., Yonder Come the Blues. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2001.
Rust, Brian. The American Record Label Book. New Rochelle, NY: Arlington Press, 1978.

Discography: DGR; Sutton

- Godrich, John. "The Victor Race Series." Blues Unlimited no. 10 (1964): 8; no. 11 (1964): 8; no. 12 (1964): 10; no. 14 (1964): 14; no. 15 (1964): 12; no. 16 (1964): 13; no. 17 (1964): 12.
Rust, Brian. The Victor Master Book, Volume 2: 1925–1936. Pinner, Middlesex: Author; Stanhope, NJ: Walter C. Allen, 1970.

VINSON, EDDIE "CLEANHEAD"

- b. 18 December 1917; Houston, TX
d. 2 July 1988; Los Angeles, CA

Alto saxophonist and blues singer, Cleanhead Vinson's music spanned from jump-blues to bebop. He served his apprenticeship in the late 1930s in Milton Larkin's orchestra, which included fellow Texas saxmen Arnett Cobb and Illinois Jacquet. He played with Big Bill Broonzy's band in 1941 and the Cootie Williams Orchestra from 1942 to 1945—his distinctive vocals were featured on two wartime hits: "Cherry Red" and "Somebody's Got to Go." Cleanhead formed his own big band in 1945. With Mercury Records he had R&B chart-toppers with "Old Maid Boogie" and his signature tune "Kidney Stew Blues." In 1947 young alto saxophonist John Coltrane joined his band—Cleanhead, an alto player, was responsible for switching Coltrane to tenor saxophone. From 1949 to 1952 he was signed to King Records on which he had another hit "Somebody Done Stole My Cherry Red." In later years, he recorded with Big Joe Turner, Etta James, and Roomful of Blues.

DENNIS TAYLOR

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; New Grove Jazz; Santelli; Southern Chilton, John. Who's Who of Jazz: Storyville to Swing Street. 4th ed. London: Macmillan; New York: Da Capo, 1985.

Discography: AMG; Lord; LSFP

VINSON, MOSE

b. 2 June 1917; Holly Springs, MS
d. 16 or 23 November 2002; Memphis, TN

Pianist/vocalist; played Memphis clubs around the 1930s to 1950s; appeared on James Cotton's Sun debut, "Cotton Crop Blues," in 1954. In the 1980s, he began work as resident pianist at the Center for Southern Folklore, and eventually became one of Memphis's most respected blues elder statesmen.

DAVID WHITEIS

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl and Stephen Thomas Erlewine); Larkin; Santelli
Witter, David. "Mose Vinson: Barrelhousing a Bygone Era." Living Blues no. 97 (1991): 31.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

VINSON, WALTER

b. 2 February 1901; Bolton, MS
d. 22 April 1975; Chicago, IL

Blues singer and guitarist. Walter Jacobs Vinson [Vincson] was a guitarist who made recordings under his own name and as a member of the Mississippi Sheiks from 1929 to 1941. His vocals were relaxed, his lyrics interesting, and his guitar style impressive. An attempted comeback in the seventies was only partly successful.

GUIDO VAN RIJN

Bibliography

AMG (Jason Ankeny); Harris; Larkin; Santelli; Southern

Discography: DGR

VIOLENCE AS LYRIC CONCEPT

Violence in blues lyrics serves as both real and fictive oral history, moaning to a rhythmic dance beat the folk experiences of those on the outside of society, who by its mores have "done somebody wrong." In most American folk music ballads, the folk figures were strong, conquering the Wild West, taming if not killing savage beasts during safari expeditions, building the Hoover dam, and in the process making America great. Yet, the early "Blues ballads" about Frankie, Stagolee, and Railroad Bill were replete with violent lyrics. What was their appeal to listeners and their function to audiences during performances?

One answer is suggested by a 1937 Life magazine article about Leadbelly, entitled "Bad Nigger Makes Good Minstrel." Many early blues recordings had lyrics on jail themes, offering a window's view for outsiders, and a mirrored memory for insiders. If an American cultural virtue holds that a man's honor rests with the power to retaliate, usually with force, is it so unusual that blues is reflective of an American model of virtue?

Another answer is that violence permeated the Deep South in the 1890s and 1900s, both in the terms of white on black violence, and black on black violence. An ubiquitous example of the later is the numerous versions of the "Stag-O-Lee" (spellings vary) songs, with Mississippi John Hurt's "Stack O Lee" being one of the more well known of the at least sixty-three recorded versions. The protagonist of the Stagolee songs sung by Walter "Furry" Lewis, Ma Rainey, and Jessie Fuller kills a man for stealing his hat. These artists and others sing the protagonist into a state of heroism complete with escape from justice, while others depict a fierce black man who meets his demise at the gallows. Alan Lomax in The Land Where the Blues Began speculates, "... Stackolee ... was pure anger and he killed out of irritability to relieve his pent-up rage."

Black life among the levees and within Jim Crow society in general sparked a need for musicians to romanticize about we today would call Black Power. To personify this power in song was a great deal safer than to do so in real life, even if it meant depicting themselves and fellow black men as violent. In succeeding generations, as blues musicians continued to live in and perform for local communities prone to violence, the lyrics would continue to reflect such incidents.

PHOENIX SAVAGE-WISEMAN

Bibliography

- Brown, Cecil. Stagolee Shot Billy. Cambridge, MA: Harvard University Press, 2003.
- Davis, Francis. The History of the Blues, The Roots, the Music, the People from Charley Patton to Robert Cray. New York: Hyperion, 1995.
- "Leadbelly: Bad Nigger Makes Good Minstrel." Life (April 19, 1937).
- Lomax, Alan. The Land Where the Blues Began. New York: Pantheon, 1993.
- "Stagger Lee / Stag-O-Lee / Stagolee/ Stack-A-Lee / Stack O'Lee." Harry's Blues Lyrics & Tabs Online. <http://blueslyrics.tripod.com/dictionary/stagolee.htm>.

VITA

Pasadena, California, label; active 1955–1959 as a subsidiary of Mambo Records owned by Larry Mead and Mike Gradny. Notable artists were Riff Ruffin, Willie King with Ike Turner, and Harmonica Slim.

EDWARD KOMARA

Discography: McGrath

VITACOUSTIC

Short-lived Chicago pop label of the late 1940s. The company was formed in March 1947 by Lloyd Garrett and Jack Buckley with Bill Putnam (one of the co-owners of Universal Recording). Vitacoustic was originally oriented toward white pop music, with a special emphasis on harmonica players. The company's name served to emphasize the use of the new echo recording technique devised by Putnam. Vitacoustic started off with an enormous hit—"Peg o' My Heart" by Jerry Murad's Harmonicats, which reportedly sold 1.4 million copies. In August 1947, Putnam left the operation, taking the Harmonicats with them. Vitacoustic tried to adapt by moving into R&B as well as country. Vitacoustic issued five singles by the Todd Rhodes band out of Detroit, via an arrangement with Sensation Records, and recorded jazz trumpeter Howard McGhee, traditional jazz cornetist Jimmy McPartland, modern jazz altoist Johnny Bothwell, R&B singers Christine Randall and Kitty Stevenson, and the harmony group Four Shades of Rhythm. Only the Four Shades would see release. The company was liquidated in October 1948.

ROBERT PRUTER

Bibliography

- Pruter, Robert, Robert L. Campbell, and Tom Kelly. "The Vitacoustic Label." Red Saunders Research Foundation webpage, <http://hubcap.clemson.edu/~campber/vitacoustic.html> (accessed December 6, 2002).

Discography: McGrath

VOCALION

Record label of the Aeolian Company, piano manufacturers of New York, introduced in 1920 to replace its original Aeolian-Vocalion label. It was sold about November 1924 to Brunswick, which maintained Vocalion as a separate label but with much interchange of masters. Vocalion participated in the vaudeville blues boom of the early 1920s with sides by Rosa Henderson, Edna Hicks, Viola McCoy, Monette Moore, and others. A Race series, the Vocalion 1000s, recorded under the supervision of Jack Kapp, was established in March 1926. In late 1927, direction passed to J. Mayo Williams, who turned the series into a major blues label with Jim Jackson, Leroy Carr and Scrapper Blackwell, Memphis Minnie and Kansas Joe, Tampa Red and Georgia Tom, and many more.

Vocalion passed to Warner Brothers in April 1930 and then sold in December 1931 to Consolidated Film Industries, owners of the American Record Corporation (ARC), who discontinued the 1000 series in July 1933 at 1745, but resumed Race issues in September 1933 in a 25000 series, later changed to an 02500 series running parallel with the general series, the zero prefix signifying a Race record (numbers were sometimes used both with and without the prefix). Big Bill Broonzy, Amos Easton, Lil Johnson, Memphis Minnie, and Peetie Wheatstraw were among the most prolific contributors; some artists were shared with ARC's other labels, including Blind Boy Fuller and Robert Johnson. Vocalion issues continued until 1940 when new owners CBS substituted the OKeh label name from 05621, continuing the numerical series; many earlier Vocalion recordings were re-pressed on OKeh with the original numbers.

HOWARD RYE

Bibliography

Dutton, Frank. "Numbers Runners Blues" [part 1]. Storyville no. 79 (1978): 8; [part 2]. Storyville no. 106 (1983): 125.

Discography: DGR; Sutton

Dixon, Robert M. W., and John Godrich. Recording the Blues. London: Studio Vista, 1970; reprinted in Paul Oliver et al., Yonder Come the Blues. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2001.

Rust, Brian. The American Record Label Book. New Rochelle, NY: Arlington Press, 1978.

VOGUE

Record company established by Charles Delaunay and others in France in 1948 and under his A&R direction. Recordings of visiting American artists included blues, notably 1951–1952 recordings by Big Bill Broonzy. In the 1960s Memphis Slim, Champion Jack Dupree, and Jimmy Dawkins appeared on Vogue. The company's licensed material included R&B issues derived from King.

HOWARD RYE

Bibliography

Ruppli, Michel. Vogue. Paris: AFAS, 1992.

Discography

Ruppli, Michel. Vogue. Paris: AFAS, 1992.

W

WALKER, BLIND WILLIE

b. 1896; SC

d. 4 March 1933; Greenville, SC

East Coast guitar virtuoso “Blind” Willie Walker perfectly embodies underrecorded yet very influential pre-war artists. Although he cut only four sides for Columbia in 1930, he is often acknowledged as a master of the ragtime style and was recalled by Reverend Gary Davis as an excellent bluesman. Little is known about his life. Blind from birth and a full-time professional musician until he died of congenital syphilis, in his teens Walker was already proficient to play with Davis in the Greenville string band. Walker’s only issued coupling, “Dupree Blues” b/w “South Carolina Rag,” features his laid-up vocal delivery functionally complementing his fast, brilliant guitar technique.

LUIGI MONGE

Bibliography

Harris; Larkin; Santelli

Bastin, Bruce. “Greenville Sheik.” Red River Blues: The Blues Tradition in the Southeast. pp. 166–179. Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 1986.

Titon, Jeff Todd. Early Downhome Blues: A Musical & Cultural Analysis. Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 1977.

Discography: DGR

WALKER, CHARLES

b. 26 July 1922; Macon, GA

d. 24 June 1975; New York City, NY

Singer and guitarist; son of blues musician Freeman “Boweavil” Walker. Walker began performing in 1955 in Newark, New Jersey. He recorded in 1956, 1959, and 1963 for the Holiday, Vest, and Atlas labels. He retired from music in 1963 but returned after his wife’s death in 1968. His Oblivion label LP Blues from the Apple appeared in 1974. He died following surgery, reportedly for lung cancer.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Harris; Larkin

Mikofsky, Anton. “Charles Walker.” Living Blues no. 18 (Autumn 1974): 14–15.

Discography: LSFP

WALKER, DENNIS

b. 1943; Grants Pass, OR

Bassist, producer, and recording studio collaborator with Bruce Bromberg. Walker acquired his early interest in black music from his father’s record collection. In high school band he played trumpet. He moved to Los Angeles in 1964 and met Bromberg through a job at Dot Records. Much of their early work in 1964–1966 was performing with Luke “Long Gone” Miles, with Bromberg on lead guitar and Walker on electric bass guitar. In 1967–1970 Walker served in the U.S. Army; afterward he resumed working with

WALKER, DENNIS

Bromberg. Significant and acknowledged influences on Walker's songwriting were Lowell Fulson and Percy Mayfield. From the late 1970s, he and Bromberg worked with Robert Cray on Tomato, HighTone, and Mercury releases. When the Polygram label group acquired Cray's recording contract, Walker stayed with Cray.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Ellis, Ray. "A Good Influence: The Bromberg and Walker Story." Blues and Rhythm no. 76 (February 1993): 8–10; no. 77 (March 1993): 10–11.

WALKER, GEORGE "CHICKEN GEORGE"

b. 12 March 1937; Memphis, TN
d. 30 November 1986; Memphis, TN

Walker's early career was with Wilroy Sanders, initially in the Jets in 1953, later in the Binghampton Boys in the early 1960s, then in Leroy Hodges's Funky Four through 1974. After Sanders's departure to form the Fieldstones, Walker continued and recorded with the Funky Four Minus, the Hollywood All-Stars, and the Blues Busters.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Evans, David. "George Walker." Living Blues no. 74 (1987): 45.

WALKER, JIMMY

b. Jules James Walker, 8 March 1905; Memphis, TN
d. 16 October 1997; Chicago, IL

Chicago-based blues and boogie-woogie pianist/vocalist. Walker began working the rent party circuit on Chicago's South Side in the 1930s. He recorded as sideman with Walter Horton, Johnny Young, and John Lee Granderson, as duet partner with fellow pianist Erwin Helfer, and occasionally as leader. Often praised for his soulfulness, Walker performed widely around Chicago well into old age.

JOHN KIMSEY

Bibliography

Harris; Larkin; Santelli
Dahl, Bill. "Jimmy Walker." Living Blues no. 137 (January/February 1998): 49.

Welding, Pete. Liner notes to Jimmy Walker and Erwin Helfer, Rough and Ready: Boogie Woogie for 4 Hands (1994, Testament Records CD TCD 5011; reissue of 1964 Testament LP).

Discography: LSFP

WALKER, JOE LOUIS

b. 25 December 1949; San Francisco, CA

Guitarist, singer, and songwriter. One of the most versatile and virtuosic of modern bluesmen, Walker recorded in a variety of creative contexts with uniformly impressive results. His gospel-trained vocals and expansive guitar abilities enabled him to successfully explore diverse blues styles with authority and originality, preserving and showcasing his unique musical personality in every setting and situation.

While rooming with guitarist Mike Bloomfield, Walker undertook a series of youthful experiments with San Francisco-area blues and rock groups. He performed as an opening act on blues bills at the Fillmore, meeting his early mentor Earl Hooker in the process, and briefly checked out the Chicago scene. Then he left secular music completely. Beginning in 1975, Walker devoted the next decade purely to gospel music as a member of the Spiritual Corinthians. But a blues epiphany at the 1985 New Orleans Jazz & Heritage Festival redirected his musical attention, and he returned to the West Coast determined to make a career for himself as a bluesman.

Walker's initial activities were overseas, playing a European tour with the Mississippi Delta Blues Band and then was part of a package tour of Japan with New Orleans greats Earl King and Johnny Adams. Walker made his blues recording debut the next year with the HighTone Records release Cold Is the Night, a musically mature effort that emphatically announced the arrival of a fully developed blues talent. Walker's belated reentry into blues was an almost immediately successful one: He won the 1988 W. C. Handy Award for best contemporary male artist in the wake of pervasive radio airplay and raving reviews of his album and live performances. His group the Bosstalkers would ultimately receive its own Handy, winning the best band prize in 1996.

Walker released two more studio sessions and two volumes of Live at Slim's from 1990 shows in San Francisco on HighTone before signing with Verve Records, where he made his debut in 1993 with Blues Survivor, a characteristically eclectic session featuring his former bandmates the Spiritual Corinthians on two tracks. Subsequent albums, such as JLW, which included everything from an acoustic Dobro and harp duet with James Cotton to more involved settings featuring jazz saxist Branford Marsalis, the Gospel Hummingbirds, and the Tower of Power horns, continued his adventurous eclecticism while adding slicker production values.

Walker's 1997 showcase Great Guitars was the finest example of the unusual depth and diversity of his playing as he matched licks with Buddy Guy, Otis Rush, Bonnie Raitt, Ike Turner, Matt "Guitar" Murphy, Taj Mahal, Robert Lockwood, and others in a full spectrum of styles that no other modern blues guitarist was capable of performing. He also successfully delved into a personalized version of Memphis soul the following year with producer Steve Cropper, leading an assortment of Muscle Shoals session stars on Preacher and the President.

MICHAEL POINT

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli
Aldin, Mary Katherine. "Joe Louis Walker: 'My Whole Thing Was Playing Music.'" Living Blues no. 87 (July/August 1989): 14–20.

Discography: AMG

WALKER, JOHNNY MAYON "BIG MOOSE"

b. 27 June 1929; Greenville, MS
d. 27 November 1999; Chicago, IL

Johnny "Big Moose" Walker recorded a few albums as a leader during the course of his almost fifty-year musical career, but he is best known and most widely revered for his work as a sideman. A multi-instrumentalist in his youth, he soon settled on piano and organ as his primary instruments and had begun playing juke joints and clubs and touring regionally with blues ensembles by the late 1940s. By the early 1950s he was in broader demand as a session and touring musician and worked with such established artists as Ike Turner, Aleck Miller "Sonny Boy Williamson," and Elmore James.

A three-year stint in the Army took him out of circulation until his discharge in 1955, at which point he returned to the blues scene and made additional recordings with Ike Turner and Lowell Fulsom before moving to Chicago, where his popularity as a sideman increased. There he worked with Elmore James, Magic Sam, and Otis Rush, among others; he also found time to play guitar on recordings by Curtis Jones and to tour as a bass player for Muddy Waters. During these years, his solo albums (some of which were released under the name "Moose John") achieved modest success.

His health began to fail by the late 1980s, though he continued to sit in on occasional studio and club dates; a stroke led him to retire completely from music in 1992, and he died in Chicago seven years later.

RICK ANDERSON

Bibliography

Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli
Brisbin, John Anthony. "Big Moose Walker: Playin' All Night Long." Living Blues no. 105 (September/October 1992): 34–41.

Discography: LSFP

Blue Love (1996, Evidence 26082).

WALKER, JUNIOR

b. Autry DeWalt, Jr., 14 June 1931; Blytheville, AR
d. 23 November 1995; Battle Creek, MI

Saxophonist and recording group leader best known for his 1965 Motown hit "Shotgun." Walker and his band the All-Stars stayed with Motown and Soul labels until 1979, then returned four years later. He was also a session musician in demand, such as the saxophone soloist on the rock group Foreigner's 1981 hit single "Urgent."

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Larkin

Discography: Larkin

WALKER, PHILLIP

b. 11 February 1937; Welsh, LA

Singer and guitarist Phillip Walker was born the son of farmers Malvin and Viola Walker in the rural community of Welsh, Louisiana, located near the Texas border and just east of Lake Charles. Walker's first musical inspirations came from his Cherokee mother's side of the family; both her father and several of her brothers were area musicians who performed in the 1920s and 1930s.

WALKER, PHILLIP

In 1945, the family moved to a farm near Port Arthur, Texas, and soon Walker began taking a strong interest in the blues, inspired by listening to records on the family's wind-up Victrola and radio broadcasts from Nashville. He initially picked the harmonica as his instrument but soon switched to practicing on his older brother's guitar upon hearing the recordings of T-Bone Walker and Lightnin' Hopkins.

By 1953, the underage Walker was living with his sister in Port Arthur and began sneaking into area nightclubs to hear musicians such as Guitar Junior (Lonnie Brooks), Clarence "Gatemouth" Brown, and B. B. King. He soon began playing guitar in clubs around the city, and in 1954 zydeco pioneer Clifton Chenier asked him to join his band. Walker spent the next three years touring the country with Chenier, often as part of popular R&B packages, and recorded with him for the Specialty and Chess labels.

In 1957, Walker left Chenier to form his own band, and he settled in the bustling West Texas city of El Paso. He often worked with local guitar favorite Long John Hunter in nearby Juarez, Mexico, whose rousing playing style would make a strong impression on him. Walker cut his first recordings as a leader in Los Angeles for Elko Records in 1959 and later that year teamed up with singer/songwriter Ina Beatrice Gilkey. Following his relocation to Los Angeles, the two married in 1960 and worked and recorded together during the next nine years, often billed as "Phil and Bea Bopp."

After a stint with Little Richard's band in 1969, Walker worked with producer Bruce Bromberg, and the resulting collaborations produced several excellent recordings throughout the following years, including the critically acclaimed Bottom of the Top for Playboy Records in 1973. He continued to tour nationally, and by the late 1970s he was performing regularly throughout Europe. Walker recorded steadily throughout the 1980s and 1990s with releases on Rounder, HighTone, JSP, and Black Top. His very fluent guitar playing and commanding vocals made him and his veteran, horn-punctuated band a standout on the contemporary blues scene.

In 1991, Walker's beloved wife and songwriting partner Ina Beatrice, who had retired from her blues-singing career in the 1970s, succumbed to lung cancer. Walker reunited with his longtime Texas mentors Lonnie Brooks and Long John Hunter in 1999 on the successful Lone Star Shootout for Alligator Records, which in turn led to many prestigious live appearances with the group, including headlining the Chicago Blues Festival in 2000. Walker continued to record and tour internationally and remained an outstanding exponent of the Texas/West Coast blues tradition.

GENE TOMKO

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli
Brisbin, John Anthony. "Phillip Walker: One Ear in Zydeco, One Ear in Texas Blues." Living Blues no. 131 (January/February 1997): 50–61.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

Lonnie Brooks, Long John Hunter, and Phillip Walker. Lone Star Shootout (1999, Alligator ALCD 4866).
Philip Walker. Bottom of the Top (1990, HighTone CD 8020); Working Girl Blues (1995, Black Top CD BT-1117).

WALKER, ROBERT "BILBO"

b. 19 February, 1937; Borden Plantation, New Africa, MS [near Clarksdale]

Vocalist, guitarist, pianist. Walker performed locally in Mississippi, then later in Chicago (often as "Chuck Berry, Jr.") through the 1970s. He eventually returned to Mississippi, then moved to Bakersfield, California, and now divides his time between California and Mississippi. He recorded for Rooster Blues.

DAVID WHITEIS

Bibliography

AMG (Jason Ankeny)
O'Neal, Jim. Liner notes to Robert "Bilbo" Walker, Promised Land (1997, Rooster Blues).
———. "Robert Walker: They Don't Believe It ... Till They See Me Do It." Living Blues no. 132 (March/April 1997): 46–49.

Discography: AMG

WALKER, T-BONE

b. Aaron Thibeaux Walker, 28 May 1910; Linden, TX
d. 16 March 1975; Los Angeles, CA

Guitarist, singer, songwriter. One of the most important and enduring icons of blues development, the charismatic Walker radically transformed and upgraded the music with a combination of instrumental virtuosity and stylistic and technical innovation during a career of unusual longevity and legendary significance.

The exact origins of most blues breakthroughs are open to debate, but the true source of electric blues guitar is universally acknowledged to be Walker, who began playing the instrument in the mid-1930s. He brought guitar, previously buried in the ensemble background as a mere rhythmic device, to center stage, as not only a lead instrument but as the dominant sound of the genre for decades to come.

Walker not only invented the electric blues guitar concept but also the sound identified with it. Walker, incorporating jazz changes with blues innovations of his own design, created a new guitar sound with a horn-like richness that was emulated by guitarists everywhere, but especially in his home state. "Everybody that picked up a guitar in Texas wanted to sound like T-Bone," said Gatemouth Brown, who got his big blues break as an impromptu replacement for Walker at a Texas gig. Walker's sensational showmanship brought another sort of electricity to the blues, and his athletic approach was directly responsible for later similarly extroverted stage antics by Chuck Berry, James Brown, and Jimi Hendrix.

Walker moved to the Dallas/Fort Worth area with his mother when he was two years old. He grew up in an unusually musical household and as a young teen became proficient on a variety of stringed instruments, including violin, mandolin, banjo, and guitar. He also got to meet and hear seminal blues creator Blind Lemon Jefferson, a family friend who played with Walker's bassist stepfather and uncle in impromptu jams.

By the mid-1920s Walker was performing, both as a dancer and musician, in touring carnivals and medicine shows. He backed blues singer Ida Cox for a while and also played at country dances and house parties and on street corners when necessary. Walker was obviously a born entertainer, but his abilities weren't on prominent display until he won an amateur talent contest at a Cab Calloway show in Dallas that featured a week's work with the band as the prize. He caught the eye and ears of a record company talent scout at the show in Houston, and suddenly he was no longer just a street corner sensation.

Walker's sound at this time was solidly in the rural folk-blues tradition, and his recording debut in 1929 for Columbia Records reflected this approach, one he would discard in the future in favor of a more jazz-inflected urban style. The Columbia singles, "Trinity River Blues" and "Wichita Falls Blues," although credited to "Oak-Cliff T-Bone," made Walker a recording artist. But it would be another decade before Walker recorded again and a dozen years before his first legitimate hit.

After fronting a combo at Gem Hotel in Dallas in 1934, Walker relocated to California. He soon found musical employment, but it was as a dancer with saxophonist Big Jim Wynn's band. Walker upgraded his status in 1939 when he moved to the microphone as the featured vocalist with the highly popular Les Hite Cotton Club Orchestra, with which he recorded "T-Bone Blues" on Varsity Records the next year. Walker also toured with the Hite Orchestra, playing the Apollo Theatre in Harlem and other major showcase venues of the era.

With Walker's plugged-in guitar, which he would occasionally play behind his back, adding an extra jump to his blues and his onstage acrobatics, complete with signature splits, energizing the proceedings, he quickly became a major attraction in his own right on the active Los Angeles scene, regularly drawing overflow crowds to the clubs he played as word spread about the excitement generated by his live show.

Walker also returned to the studio, now on both vocals and guitar, recording "Mean Old World" and "I Got a Break Baby" with pianist Freddie Slack and His Orchestra in 1942. These sides, which represent the first true expression of his unprecedented musical fusion of urban sophistication and rural roots, presage in sound and sensibility the revolutionary recordings he would make five years later.

Walker was deemed unfit for military duty due to his flat feet, but he played a series of USO shows as his contribution to the war effort. Chicago, or more precisely the Windy City's Rhumboogie Club, served as Walker's alternate base of operations during World War II. He played extended residencies at the venue and in 1945 recorded with the house band, the Marl Young Orchestra.

Those recordings, like the ones Walker made the next year in Hollywood with the Jack McVea All-Stars and the Al Killian Quintet, were noteworthy but nevertheless forgotten when Walker signed with Black & White Records and began work on a series of trailblazing singles that gave his career an exponential boost while simultaneously accelerating the evolution of blues.

Walker's 1947 recordings for the Black & White label found him at the peak of his powers as he fused his creativity and technical expertise to present a fully developed new blues sound. Beginning with "They Call It Stormy Monday," the song B. B. King said was his blues inspiration, the sessions produced a series of classic compositions that would form the core of the live blues repertoire for the next half-century. The definitive version of Walker's trademark "T-Bone Shuffle," the song that served as the timeless template for all Texas blues shuffles to follow, was another product of the landmark sessions.

T-Bone Walker in 1945. (Photo courtesy of Frank Driggs Collection)

The Black & White sessions were historic, but they were by no means the full extent of Walker's recorded legacy. He moved to Imperial Records in 1950 for a five-year stint that infused another series of blues standards into the genre's basic repertoire and experimented with a funky New Orleans sound behind bandleader Dave Bartholomew. A subsequent affiliation with Atlantic Records was equally successful and somewhat more eclectic as he recorded an atypical Chicago-style session with Junior Wells and Jimmy Rogers and later featured his instrumental expertise in a session with jazz guitarist Barney Kessel.

The popular appeal of Walker's sophisticated blues approach was overwhelmed by pop frenzy and rock volume in the 1960s. His appearance at the American Folk Blues Festival in 1962 was a major media event, but it did little for his commercial fortunes. Walker continued recording and even won a Grammy in 1970 for "Good Feelin'," but his American momentum was minimal. He remained wildly popular in Europe and did several historic festival dates there, but his health, impacted by an automobile accident, prevented him from capitalizing on his status as a living legend.

MICHAEL POINT

Bibliography

- AMG (Bill Dahl); Chilton; Harris; Herzhaft; New Grove Jazz; Larkin; Santelli; Southern Dance, Helen Oakley. Stormy Monday: The T-Bone Walker Story. Baton Rouge: Louisiana State University Press, 1987.
O'Neal, Amy, and Jim O'Neal. "T-Bone Walker" [interview]. Living Blues no. 12 (Spring 1973): 24–27.

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSPF

WALLACE, SIPPIE

b. Beulah Thomas, 11 November 1898; Houston, TX
d. 1 November 1986; Detroit, MI

Superb singer in the 1920s "classic blues" idiom, who remained a vibrant performer into the 1980s. Her father was George W. Thomas, Sr., deacon at Shiloh Baptist Church, and her mother's name was Fanny Bradley. She had twelve siblings, including pianist George W. Thomas, Jr., with whom she lived briefly in New Orleans around 1910, and pianist Hersal Thomas; a niece, Hociel Thomas, was raised as part of the family from the age of two weeks. She attended school into her teenage years. An early marriage in about 1914–1917 was to Frank Seals, and in about 1917 she married Matt Wallace. She began her professional singing in tent shows in the Houston area. Since her religious parents did not approve of blues or jazz, she would tell them she was visiting a brother.

In 1923 she moved to Chicago with brother George. By the end of that year she began recording with OKeh Records, and her renditions of "Shorty George" and "Up the Country Blues" became hits. By the end of her initial recording career in 1928, she had performed in the studio with cornetists King Joe Oliver and Louis Armstrong, with pianist Clarence Williams, and with her brothers George and Hersal.

In 1926 Hersal Thomas died of food poisoning (later, in a Cadence magazine interview, Wallace would maintain he died in 1936). In 1929, not long after a Victor session, she moved to Detroit. From then into the early 1970s, she was organist for the Leland Baptist Church. She also served in the National Convention of Gospel Choirs and Choruses. Her husband Matt Wallace and brother George died in 1936. Occasionally she would perform blues in public, and she recorded with Albert Ammons in 1945, with the Fine Arts Trio in 1959, and with the James Cohen Trio three years later.

Sippie Wallace ca. 1924. (Photo courtesy of Frank Driggs Collection)

Her full-time return to blues performing was in 1966 on the encouragement of Victoria Spivey. She performed on the 1966 American Folk Blues Festival tour, during which she recorded the Storyville album Sippie Wallace Sings the Blues, which included her classic song "Women Be Wise, Don't Advertise Your Man." Another tape of her singing in top form, recorded on October 31, 1966, in Copenhagen, Denmark, was released on Alligator some years later.

She regularly performed at colleges and festivals into the 1980s, despite having a stroke in 1970. Late-career associations were with pianist James Dapogny and with singer/guitarist Bonnie Raitt, who named Wallace as a significant influence. Raitt helped the older singer sign with Atlantic Records in 1982, and they performed together on the David Letterman television show that same year.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

AMG (Stephen Thomas Erlewine and Cub Koda); Chilton; Harris; Larkin; New Grove Jazz; Santelli; Southern Rusch, Bob. "Sippie Wallace" [interview]. Cadence 4 no. 10 (October 1978): 14–19.

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSFP

WALLACE, WESLEY

b. Unknown

d. Unknown

From Alton, a suburb of St. Louis, Missouri. His recorded legacy, a single 1929 coupling and a few accompaniments, are scant tribute to a most original pianist. Quirky, highly idiosyncratic, and with little regard for conventional bar lengths or sequences, Wallace imbued the slow boogie "Fanny Lee Blues" with a haunting, mesmerizing quality. His celebrated "No. 29" has a quick, unaccented 6/8 bass and rocks along, the treble phrases echoing the sounds of the train, which ran on the Illinois Central Line.

BOB HALL

Bibliography

Larkin; Santelli

Discography: DGR

WALLS, HARRY EUGENE VANN "PIANO MAN"

b. 24 August 1918; Middlesboro, KY

d. 24 February 1999; Montreal, Quebec, Canada

A studio pianist and arranger for Atlantic (1949 to 1955), Walls contributed scintillating keyboard work to hits by Big Joe Turner, Ruth Brown, and various vocal groups. Emigrating to Canada, he was rediscovered in 1987.

CRAIG MORRISON

Bibliography

Larkin

Discography: LSFP

WALTON, MERCY DEE

WALTON, MERCY DEE

- b. 3 or 30 August 1915; Waco, TX
- d. 2 December 1962; Stockton (or Murphys), CA

Pianist and vocalist Mercy Dee Walton blended the biting confessional singing style of traditional blues with the more sophisticated phrasing and keyboard approach of the jump and shuffle stylists. Despite not having a sizable number of major hits, he issued several intriguing releases for such labels as Imperial, Specialty, Flair, and most notably Arhoolie and Prestige. His 1961 sessions with guitarist K. C. Douglas, harmonica player Sidney Maiden, and drummer Otis Cherry are arguably his finest.

RON WYNN

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli
Davis, Hank. "No One Ever Accused Mercy Dee Walton of Making Ordinary Music." Living Blues no. 77 (July/August 1987): 22–23.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

WALTON, WADE

- b. 10 October 1923; Lombardy, MS
- d. 10 January 2000; St. Louis, MS

Barber, singer, and storyteller, Wade Walton grew up in Goldfield, Mississippi, a small town five miles from Parchman Penitentiary. As a youth he entertained at house parties and dabbled in vaudeville, occasionally attending field trips to sing for the prisoners. In 1940 he left for barber college in Memphis and lived for a time in Chicago before settling in Clarksdale, Mississippi. He presided over the Big Six barbershop, playing guitar as time warranted or singing songs while beating time on a razor strop. Walton's work brought him into contact with the local musicians of the day, and the unique society of the barbershop served as ear to his stories as well as his impromptu numbers.

One of the musicians who happened into the Big Six was Ike Turner. He and Walton became friends—what Walton would later insist was mentoring—in 1944 and were for a time bandmates in Turner's Kings of Rhythm. Steady gigs, including a spot at Jake's in St. Louis, gave Turner a fever for success, but Walton felt insecure about leaving Clarksdale. Preferring the settled life, Walton bowed out of the Kings in 1946 but continued to enliven the air of various barbershops for the next twenty years.

In the ensuing decades, Walton's reputation as a civic treasure grew steadily; he opened two shops in Clarksdale, in 1960 and in 1972, and recorded two albums in the early 1960s. As Clarksdale's unofficial ambassador of the blues, he has played host to blues enthusiasts from around the world, appeared in blues documentaries, and played countless area festivals and civic events.

JOHN OTIS

Bibliography

Harris; Larkin; Santelli
Hill, Don. "Wade Walton: Blues Singer, Barber, Raconteur." Cadence 13, no. 8 (August 1987): 22–30.
Mayfield, Panny. "Early Wright and Wade Walton" [obituary]. Living Blues no. 151 (May/June 2000): 119–120.

Discography: LSFP

WARD, ROBERT

- b. 15 October 1938; Luthersville, GA

Guitarist/singer Robert Ward has had three significant impacts on rhythm and blues: He played guitar behind Wilson Pickett on the Falcons' 1962 hit "I Found a Love"; he founded the Ohio Untouchables, which later became the Ohio Players; and he enjoyed a remarkable artistic renaissance in the 1990s.

Born and raised in Georgia, Ward began his musical career there after serving in the Army. Moving north to Dayton, Ohio, in the early 1960s, he formed the Ohio Untouchables. Signed to the Detroit-based Lupine label, the band recorded several singles. But when they backed Pickett's band, the Falcons, for the "I Found a Love" session, Ward became a hero to young guitarists across the country. The Magnatone amplifier he used at that time produced a haunting, vibrato-like effect—Lonnie Mack credits Ward as one of his main inspirations.

In the late 1960s, Ward left the Ohio Untouchables to serve as a session guitarist for Motown. (Shortly after he left, the band changed its name to the Ohio Players.) In the mid-1970s, Ward's wife died and he moved back to Georgia, largely disappearing from public view.

In 1990, he connected with Black Top Records for a solo album, Fear No Evil, that revived interest in his unique sound on guitar. Ward's original compositions and his warm vocals combined with his guitar playing to help him release a series of four well-received albums for Black Top. He has continued to stay active, performing and recording.

JIM TRAGESER

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Larkin; Santelli
 Bonner, Brett J., and George McConnell. "Robert Ward: Trying My Best Not to Never Do Wrong." Living Blues
 no. 106 (November/December 1992): 8–15.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

"I Found a Love" (reissued 1986, Relic 7012; with Wilson Pickett and the Falcons).
Fear No Evil (1990, Black Top 1063).
Rhythm of the People (1993, Black Top 1088).
Black Bottom (1995, Black Top 1123).
New Role Soul (2000, Delmark 741).

WARDLOW, GAYLE DEAN

b. 31 August 1940; Freer, TX

Collector, writer, and historian, specializing in pre-1943 Mississippi blues. At age seven, he and his family moved to Meridian, Mississippi, where he was raised. He became interested in early blues after reading Samuel Charters's 1959 book The Country Blues, and he recognized there was much to be rediscovered about Mississippi blues.

During the 1960s, he was a newspaper reporter for the Meridian Star and the Jackson Daily News, and while on out-of-town reporting beats, he would canvass the black neighborhoods for old records and information about blues performers. In 1963, he and Bernard Klatzko made an important fact-finding trip to the Mississippi Delta regarding Charley Patton, the results of which were published as the notes accompanying the second Origin Jazz Library LP of Patton (OJL-7).

An early contact was Ishmon Bracey, whom Wardlow met in Jackson in 1963. Another was H. C. Speir, the former talent scout for Paramount, OKeh, and the ARC labels before World War II. Less well known but valuable sources were former juke joint operator Elizabeth Glynn Moore, her husband Willie Moore, and Delta blues musicians Booker Miller and Hayes McMullan. Their information would provide the backbone of Wardlow's contextual research on the music and cultural times of Patton, Tommy Johnson, and Robert Johnson.

Since 1966 Wardlow has published his findings in Blues Unlimited, 78 Quarterly, Living Blues, and Storyville magazines. Many of these articles have been collected in the volume Chasin' That Devil Music (San Francisco: Miller Freeman, 1998). In 1989 he and coauthor Stephen Calt published King of the Delta Blues: The Life and Music of Charlie Patton (Newton, NJ: Rock Chapel Press, 1989).

EDWARD KOMARA

WARREN, ROBERT HENRY
"BABY BOY"

b. 13 August 1919; Lake Providence, LA
 d. 1 July 1977; Detroit, MI

The Warren family moved to North Memphis in November 1919. His father Lee died in 1920 and he was raised by his mother Beulah and sister Hattie. An older brother taught him the basics of guitar and soon he played on street corners and in the late 1930s toured Arkansas and Mississippi with Howlin' Wolf, Johnny Shines, Sonny Boy Williamson (Aleck Miller), Willie Love, Robert Lockwood, and others.

He moved to Detroit in the early 1940s and had a day job with General Motors that he kept until the mid-1970s, which prevented widespread touring. He played the blues at night and began his recording career in 1949 with Gotham, Staff, Swingtime, Blue Lake, Cadet (whose masters were issued on Sampson), Drummond, JVB, and Excello. Very active locally, he played regularly in Detroit blues clubs and helped create the Motor Town's blues scene with John Lee Hooker, Eddie Burns, Bobo Jenkins, and others.

He retired in the early 1960s through ill-health and disenchantment with the music business but was "rediscovered" in 1967. He practiced again and his comeback was a success: He toured Europe in 1972 and appeared at the Ann Arbor Blues Festival, but he had little time to enjoy a second career: Sick again and inactive, he died of a heart attack in 1977. He will stay in blues history as a very talented songwriter whose songs and lines were boosted by a great voice and expressive guitar licks.

ROBERT SACRÉ

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; Larkin; Santelli
 O'Neal, Jim. "Baby Boy Warren" [obituary]. Living Blues
 no. 33 (July/August 1977): 5.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

Complete Recordings (Official OFCD-5901).

WASHBOARD

(See Rubboard)

WASHBOARD DOC

b. Joseph Doctor, 8 September 1911; Charleston, SC
 d. 16 September 1988; Brooklyn, NY

WASHBOARD DOC

Percussionist who used washboards, spoons, cow-bells, and frying pans. For the most part he was a street musician in New York City, and he recorded in various capacities for the Spivey label. He toured Europe in 1980.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Larkin
Josephic, Beth. "Washboard Doc." Living Blues no. 85 (March/April 1989): 35.

Discography: LSFP

WASHBOARD SAM

b. Robert Brown, 15 July 1910; Walnut Ridge, AR
d. 13 November 1966; Chicago, IL

As the Chicago blues world enjoyed commercial success during the period from the mid-1930s to the mid-1940s, one of the most popular artists was singer, songwriter, and washboard player Robert Brown, known as "Washboard Sam." While Big Bill Broonzy's claim that Brown was his half-brother has never been verified, it is known that Brown moved from his birthplace in Arkansas to Memphis in the 1920s and then to Chicago in the early 1930s.

He began his recording career in 1935 (with several early records released under the name "Ham Gravy") and recorded more than 160 songs over the next seven years, many for producer Lester Melrose on the Bluebird label. He collaborated with many of the most prominent and prolific Chicago musicians of the period, including Broonzy, Jazz Gillum, Memphis Slim, Roosevelt Sykes, and Black Bob. One factor in his success was the combination of his muscular voice and his percussive instrument; as blues historian Paul Oliver noted, "[H]e sang with a very marked vibrato and this pulsation in the notes, coupled with the hardness of his loud singing, produced a sound which was admirably suited to that of the washboard."

With the rise of electric blues his popularity waned. He recorded and performed infrequently after 1950 and died in 1966 without having participated significantly in the blues revival of that era.

ROBERT RIESMAN

Bibliography

AMG (Stephen Thomas Erlewine and Cub Koda); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli

Discography: DGR; LSFP

WASHBOARD SLIM

b. Robert Young, 5 June 1900; Marshall, TX
d. 2 June 1990; Philadelphia, PA

Once a singer, multi-instrumentalist, and comedian active in North Carolina. A stroke in the 1930s limited his performance to playing washboard, pans, and bells. He recorded with Buddy Moss and Sonny Terry and Brownie McGhee in 1941. He spent the second half of his life in Philadelphia.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Larkin
Broudy, Saul. "Washboard Slim 1900–1990." Sing Out! 35, no. 2 (1990): 20.

WASHBOARD WILLIE

b. William Paden Hensley, 24 July 1909; Phoenix City, Russell County, AL
d. 24 August 1991; Detroit, MI

Drummer and percussionist who began performing at age six. He moved to Detroit in 1945 and formed his Super Suds of Rhythm. He recorded for labels owned by Joe Von Battle. In 1973 he toured Europe.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Larkin; Harris

Discography: LSFP

WASHINGTON (STATE)

To get a full picture of the history of live blues in Washington State, one could study the socioeconomic history of the state itself. While Seattle is the biggest city, Tacoma, Spokane, Bellingham, and other towns have had live blues in nightclubs for a long time.

The economic history of the Seattle area includes heavy and high-tech industry. World War II industries and Boeing Aircraft helped Seattle to prosper and change. A huge labor force was needed for Boeing and also for Bethlehem Steel. As a result, black labor arrived, increasing the city's black population, which provided cultural diversity and influence, especially in music through blues and jazz. During World War II, Howlin' Wolf often came to Seattle while stationed in the Army; Fort Lewis is near Tacoma, which later grew to have as many blues bars as Seattle. Since the late 1970s, Microsoft has been the prevailing employer and economic force.

In recent years, Paul Allen, a cofounder of Microsoft, created the Experience Music Project (EMP) museum, which in part documents the history of jazz, blues, and rock in Seattle. In the late 1940s and 1950s, Jackson Street was where many black clubs were located, including those where Ray Charles and Quincy Jones performed as young musicians. In the early 1950s, Little Bill Engelhart and the Blue Notes were active; the EMP museum describes them as among the first rock 'n' roll bands. The museum also contains exhibits about Jimi Hendrix, who grew up in Seattle. Also, a statue of Hendrix stands in front of the offices of AEI Music Networks on Broadway Avenue (north of Pine Street) in the Capitol Hill district of Seattle.

The blues-rock styles of 1960s rock, including the music of Hendrix, led many young people in Seattle to seek and support blues musicians. The veteran local blues performers who have been active for twenty-five years or more recall that ten or so nightclubs in the Pioneer Square area were only, or mainly, blues at times from the 1980s through the early 1990s.

There are a large number of blues musicians in the state of Washington, and it has even been claimed that Seattle has more blues guitar players than any city in the world, although its numbers would have to be compared to Chicago, New Orleans, and Portland. Among those who are leading and longstanding acts are guitarists Tom Boyle (trained by Ronnie Earl at one time), Scott Lind (with the Charles White Band), Rod Cook, Tim Sherman, Nick Vigarino, Henry Cooper, C. D. Woodbury (with Polly O'Keary and the Rhythm Method), Brian Feist, Alice Stuart, "Fat James," Mark Whitman, Tim "Too Slim" Langford, Tim Turner, Jack Cook, Jerry Miller, Eric Maddis, and Billy Stapleton, to name a few. The harmonica is strong in representation in the area as well, including Paul Green, Jeff Herzog, Jim King, and Steve Bailey.

Some of the blues bars today are in the two places of most significance to the early city, Alki and Pioneer Square. The Alki Tavern has live blues jams on Sunday afternoons. The New Orleans Restaurant in Pioneer Square is in the old part of Seattle's downtown and is one of the favorite venues of local fans.

Other notable blues clubs can be found outside Seattle. The Wild Buffalo in Bellingham, north of Seattle and near the Canadian border, features blues on most nights, with national or regional blues bands.

In the old milltown of Snohomish, there is the Oxford Saloon, in an old nineteenth-century building with a colorful past, including a time as a brothel and as the haunted site of a gun duel around 1900.

Since the mid-1980s, the Washington Blues Society has been active in its stated mission "to promote, preserve, and advance the blues" in the state. Among its activities and services are its monthly Bluesletter, with feature articles on regional musicians and lists of blues performances, clubs, and blues bands; its Best of the Blues Awards (BB Awards) to Washington State blues musicians in twenty-four categories; its Washington Blues Hall of Fame, whose past inductees include Robert Cray, Taj Mahal, Little Bill Engelhart, Rich Dangel, and Alice Stuart; its Musicians' Relief Fund; and its Centrum Blues Workshops for youths in Port Townsend, whose guest instructors have included pianist Pinetop Perkins.

ROBERT HORN

Bibliography

- De Barros, Paul, and Eduardo Calderón. Jackson Street After Hours: The Roots of Jazz in Seattle. Seattle: Sasquatch Books, 1993.
- Speidel, William C. Sons of the Profits; or, There's No Business Like Grow Business: The Seattle Story, 1851-1901. Seattle: Nettle Creek, 1967.
- Washington Blues Society website, <http://www.wablues.org> (accessed February 3, 2005).

WASHINGTON, ALBERT

- b. 17 August 1939; Rome, GA
d. 23 October 1998; Columbus, OH

Albert Washington was born in Rome, Georgia, on August 17, 1939. He moved with his family to Cincinnati when he was ten years old and began frequenting clubs in Newport and Cincinnati, where he heard Charles Brown, Big Maybelle, and others perform. Although his mother admonished him to stay in the church, Washington began performing as vocalist-guitarist-pianist with his own blues group even as he performed with the Religious Gspelaires and the Washington Singers.

Washington performed for many years at the Vet's Inn, Gus's Place, and the Sha Rah Lounge, where he had a large and loyal following for original songs such as "I Haven't Got a Friend," "I'm the Man," "Turn On the Bright Lights," "Loosen These Pains," and "Wings of a Dove." He began recording in 1962 and released blues, soul, and gospel music on a variety of labels up until his death on October 23, 1998, in Columbus, Ohio.

STEVEN C. TRACY

WASHINGTON, ALBERT

Bibliography

AMG (Richard Skelly); Harris Tracy, Steven C. Going to Cincinnati: A History of the Blues in the Queen City. Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 1993.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

Blues and Soul Man (1999, Ace 727).

WASHINGTON, DINAH

b. Ruth (Rutha) Lee Jones, 29 August 1924; Tuscaloosa, AL

d. 14 December 1963; Detroit, MI

Singer. In an unfortunately condensed career Washington brought the expressive gospel vocal approach into the mainstream of American music with a series of singles that deeply influenced future R&B soul hit-makers such as self-professed “number one fan” Aretha Franklin. Her sophisticated phrasing and precise enunciation were juxtaposed with an ability to infuse deep emotion into even the most trivial of lyrics.

Washington’s family moved north from her Alabama birthplace to Chicago’s South Side in 1928. As soon as she was old enough to leave the house, Washington started singing in public. Performing as Ruth Lee Jones, Washington played piano and sang in Baptist gospel groups as a teenager in Chicago. She wasn’t opposed to more secular sounds, however, and after she won the prestigious Regal Theatre amateur talent contest as a fifteen-year-old, her abilities were too obvious to be ignored by the thriving Windy City music scene. Washington turned professional and was soon hired to sing in high-profile nightclubs, beginning with the Flame Show Bar. She was spotted by an agent and recommended to vibist/bandleader Lionel Hampton, who offered her a job with his highly popular big band.

Dubbed “Miss Blues” by the bandleader, Washington was the featured vocalist with the Lionel Hampton Orchestra from 1943 to 1946, a period when the big band, which included the extroverted Texas tenor of saxophonist Arnett Cobb, was in its most blues-oriented phase. After establishing herself as a show-stopping big band singer, Washington left the Hampton Orchestra for a solo career. She began recording under her own name and dominated the R&B charts in the late 1940s and 1950s with a wide-ranging series of hit singles.

Washington’s career took a major commercial leap forward with the release of the lushly produced ballad “What a Difference a Day Makes.” The single entered the Billboard charts in August 1959 and ultimately spent two months as a top twenty pop hit, with its musical and emotional maturity offering fans a stark contrast to the teenybopper pop of Paul Anka, Fabian, Ricky Nelson, and the others also on the charts. Although the success of the song locked her image into the public mind as balladeer, Washington was back on the pop charts in 1960 with two relaxed, good-time duet hit singles with Brook Benton, “A Rockin’ Good Way” and “Baby (You Got What It Takes).”

Washington claimed her original influence was Billie Holiday, another singer whose evocative expertise more than compensated for a relatively limited vocal range, and she exhibited her affinity with Holiday’s genre by recording several critically acclaimed jazz albums, such as Mellow Mama, working with Charles Mingus, Clifford Brown, Ben Webster, and other significant jazz stars of the day. Her final recording, the ballad-heavy Roulette album Dinah 63, once again showcased her popular ballad style.

Washington’s messy personal life, which included more than a half-dozen marriages and episodes of substance abuse, the last of which apparently led to her accidental death at age thirty nine, was a direct contrast to the carefully crafted beauty of her music. Her career was cut short but her seminal approach to singing lives on in the sound of almost every modern female vocalist.

MICHAEL POINT

Bibliography

AMG (Richard S. Ginell); Harris; New Grove Jazz; Larkin Ono, T. T. Notes accompanying Dinah Washington, Queen of the Juke Box Live 1948–1955 (2000, Baldwin Street Music CD 310).

Discography: AMG; DGR; Lord

WASHINGTON, ISIDORE “TUTS”

b. 24 January 1907; New Orleans, LA

d. 5 August 1984; New Orleans, LA

New Orleans pianist of blues, boogie, ragtime, and jazz. Contemporaneous with Champion Jack Dupree and Archibald.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Larkin; Santelli

Discography

New Orleans Piano Professor (recorded 1983; Rounder 11501).

WASHINGTON, LEROY

b. 1 March 1932; Palmetto, LA
d. 29 June 1966; Oakdale, LA

Singer and guitarist active in Louisiana. His best known song was “Wild Cherry,” which he recorded for Excello in 1958.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Santelli

WASHINGTON, MARION “LITTLE JOE”

b. 1 March 1939; Houston, TX

Washington was born March 1, 1939, into Houston’s famous Third Ward blues scene, which spawned such legends as Lightnin’ Hopkins. Informally trained on drums, piano, and guitar, Washington’s professional debut was at fifteen as a drummer for Albert Collins’s band. Washington earned his nickname performing in Houston clubs with cousin-in-law Joe “Guitar” Hughes. By age twenty, Washington was playing guitar all over the Southwest, eventually settling in El Paso, Texas, where he played the raucous clubs near the Mexican border. He had a steady gig for more than a decade at the infamous Lobby Bar in Juarez, where he performed with Long John Hunter.

In the early 1960s Washington recorded a few singles for the Federal and Donna labels in California. He eventually returned to Houston, where he lived as a marginally homeless person, darting into blues clubs to play before passing his hat. His freewheeling, stream-of-consciousness guitar playing often leads to such antics as playing with his tongue and crotch, but at his best Washington can skillfully merge a Negro spiritual and a Charlie Parker jazz riff.

In 2001 Washington began a steady gig at Houston’s Continental Club, and in 2002 he played the Blues Estafette Festival in Utrecht, The Netherlands, and the Park Tower Blues Festival in Tokyo, Japan. In 2003 he recorded his first album for Dialtone Records.

JENNIFER MATHIEU

Bibliography

Wood, Roger. Down in Houston: Bayou City Blues. Austin: University of Texas Press, 2003.

Discography

“Hard Way Four”/“The Last Tear” (1962, Donna).
“Someone Loves Me”/“She’s Mine” (1963, Federal).
Houston Guitar Blues (2003, Dialtone Records).

WASHINGTON, TONI LYNN

b. Dorothy Helen Washington, 6 December 1936; Southern Pines, NC

Singer who performed in various styles and groups before establishing her career as a blues vocalist later in life. Washington came from a fervently religious extended family and sang in gospel choirs in her hometown. Her grandmother taught her hymns and spirituals, and she was captivated by the popular singers of the day, among them Bing Crosby, Doris Day, and Ella Fitzgerald. At thirteen, she left Southern Pines, North Carolina, to be united with her mother and stepfather in Boston. Once there, she discovered rhythm and blues music—as sung by Ruth Brown and Johnny Ace—and she began nosing around the clubs on Boston’s South End. By sixteen she was competing in talent shows and sitting in with bands at various places, and by eighteen she was married to a military man and moving to New Orleans.

By her early twenties, her career was picking up. Her single “Dear Diary” for the Conti label did well in New Orleans and prompted several appearances in the area. She met pianist Edward Frank, who helped her develop her performance style. She followed her husband to Pensacola, Florida, and to California, and she performed in groups on the various military bases.

In Los Angeles, the Frank Lane Agency put her in contact with a producer for the Fifth Dimension, who wanted to create a new vocal group. Though the recording sessions were never released, the group Sound Seventy stayed together and eventually became part of the USO tour. A short stint with Sister Love, a girl group featuring ex-members of Ray Charles’s Raelettes, followed. She returned to Boston, where she did assembly line work for a time before becoming a receptionist. Two decades then passed, but in 1992 she reemerged leading the Toni Lynn Washington Band with cofounder and collaborator Bruce Bears.

In 1995, the Tone-Cool label released the first of three CDs of Washington. Since then, she has been nominated for two Handy Awards, and she tours regularly.

JOHN OTIS

WASHINGTON, TONI LYNN

Bibliography

AMG (Richard Skelly)
Bock, Scott. "Toni Lynn Washington: 'I Have to Pinch Myself Sometimes.'" Living Blues no. 155 (January/February 2001): 20–25.

Discography: AMG

WASHINGTON, WALTER
"WOLFMAN"

b. 20 December 1943; New Orleans, LA

Guitarist, singer. A prime purveyor of swamp soul and a stalwart of the New Orleans live music scene for decades, Washington established a strong working relationship with many of the Crescent City's most significant musical figures, recording and performing with Lee Dorsey, Irma Thomas, Little Willie John, Fats Domino, Gatemouth Brown, and especially vocalist Johnny Adams.

Washington had a quarter of a century of experience working with local legends before his first album, Wolf Tracks, on Rounder Records, was released in 1986. Out of the Dark in 1988 was more representative of his live act, using his working band the Roadmasters, reinforced with keyboardist Jon Cleary, to back him.

MICHAEL POINT

Bibliography

AMG (Jim O'Neal and Stephen Thomas Erlewine); Larkin; Santelli
Sinclair, John. "Walter Washington: The Wolfman Is at Your Door." Living Blues no. 141 (September/October 1998): 20–29.

Discography: AMG

WATERFORD, CHARLES "CROWN PRINCE"

b. 21 October 1919; Jonesboro, AR

Singer in blues shouter style. His full nickname, "Crown Prince of the Blues," came during his year with Jay McShann (1945). His best-known recordings were with pianist Pete Johnson for the Capitol label in 1947. He continued singing into the early 1960s, but afterward he was reported to be devoting his time to church.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Larkin
Burke, Tony, and Dave Penny. "Charles Waterford: 'Crown Prince.'" Blues and Rhythm no. 18 (April 1986): 4–7.

Discography: LSFP

WATERMAN, RICHARD A. "DICK"

b. 14 July 1935; Plymouth, MA

Photographer; promoter and manager. With Phil Spiro and Nick Perls, Waterman located Son House in Rochester, New York, in June 1964. He would manage House's revived career, and through his Avalon agency he promoted other blues legends to clubs and festivals. He also assisted Bonnie Raitt to begin her performing career. In recent years he has written about the blues artists he worked with, and he has recovered and published his blues photographs.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Waterman, Dick. Between Midnight and Day: The Last Unpublished Blues Archive. New York: Thunder's Mouth Press, 2003.

WATERMAN, RICHARD ALAN

b. July 10, 1914; Solvang, CA

b. November 8, 1971; Tampa, FL

Anthropologist who pioneered the scientific study of the music of Africa and especially the African diaspora (Brazil, Caribbean, United States).

FRED J. HAY

Bibliography

"African Influence and the Blues: An Interview with Richard A. Waterman." Living Blues no. 6 (1971): pp. 30–36.
"African Influence on the Music of the Americas." In Acculturation in the Americas, edited by Sol Tax. pp. 207–218. Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1952.
Merriam, Alan P. "Richard Alan Waterman 1914–1971." Ethnomusicology 17, no. 1 (1973): 72–95; includes Waterman bibliography by Merriam and Frank J. Gillis.
"On Flogging a Dead Horse: Lessons Learned from the Africanisms Controversy." Ethnomusicology 7 (1963): 83–87.

WATERS, ETHEL

b. Ethel Howard, 31 October 1896; Chester, PA
 d. 1 September 1977; Chatsworth, CA

Singer and actress. Waters was born into dire poverty. Following an unsuccessful marriage at age thirteen, she worked as a domestic for several years. Waters became a professional entertainer in 1917, working in black vaudeville in the Philadelphia area, then in Edmund's Cellar, a New York cabaret. Black Swan Records entrepreneur Harry Pace heard her in an Atlantic City club and signed her to his label; she would be its biggest star. She made numerous fine blues recordings in the 1920s.

From the late 1920s onward, Waters seldom sang blues, instead winning great success as a pop singer, and later as an actress on stage, in films, and on television. As a blues singer, she was less earthy than Bessie Smith, reflecting instead the cabaret end of the commercial blues spectrum, along with Alberta Hunter, Lucille Hegamin, and others.

ELLIOTT S. HURWITT

Bibliography

AMG (Scott Yanow); Chilton; Harris; Larkin; New Grove Jazz; Santelli; Southern Rust, Brian. Jazz Records 1897–1942. 4th ed. New Rochelle, NY: Arlington House, 1978.
 Thygesen, Helga, Mark Berresford, and Russ Shor. Black Swan: The Record Label of the Harlem Renaissance. Nottingham, UK: VJM, 1996.
 Waters, Ethel. His Eye Is on the Sparrow. New York: Doubleday, 1950; reprinted New York: Da Capo, 1992.

Discography: DGR, AMG, LordSelected Recordings

The following are representative of blues-oriented records from the first five years of Waters's recording career.

"At the New Jump Steady Ball" (New York, March 21/22, 1921; Cardinal 2035); "Oh Daddy" and "Down Home Blues" (New York, April/May, 1921; Black Swan 2010); "One Man Nan" and "There'll Be Some Changes Made" (New York, ca. August 1921; Black Swan 2021); "Dying with the Blues" (New York, ca. August 1921; Black Swan 2038); "Georgia Blues" (Long Island City, ca. May 1922; Black Swan 14120); "Memphis Man" and "Midnight Blues" (Long Island City, ca. March 1923; Black Swan 14146); "You Can't Do What My Last Man Did" (Long Island City, ca. June 1923; Black Swan 14151); "Craving Blues" (Chicago, March 1924; Paramount 12313); "Black Spatch Blues" (Chicago, March 1925; Paramount 12230), "Loud Speakin' Papa" (New York, August 25, 1925; Columbia 472-D); "Maybe Not at All" (New York, October 28, 1925; Columbia 14112-D); "Shake That Thing" (New York, December 23, 1925; Columbia 14116-D); "Make Me a Pallet on the Floor" and "Bring Your Greenbacks" (New York, January 22, 1926; Columbia 14125-D); "If You Can't Hold the One You Love" (New York, February 20, 1926; Columbia 14134-D); "Ev'rybody Mess Around" (New York, July 29, 1926; Columbia 14153-D).

See also Black Swan Records; Delaney, Thomas Henry "Tom"; Down Home Blues

WATERS, MISSISSIPPI JOHNNY

b. John Sandifer, 24 May 1935; Jackson, MS
 d. 30 January 1987; Oakland, CA

Waters changed his name in honor of Muddy Waters, a major influence as singer and guitarist. He moved to Oakland, California, in 1956 and performed songs by Waters, Chuck Berry, and Fats Domino. During the 1970s he performed with harmonica player Mark Hummel and the Blues Survivors. Despite a 1983 lung operation, he continued performing as a senior member of the Bay Area blues scene.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Mazzolini, Tom. "Mississippi Johnny Waters" [obituary]. Living Blues no. 74 (1987): 34–35.

WATERS, MUDDY

b. McKinley A. Morganfield, 4 April 1913; Jug's Corner, MS
 d. 30 April 1983; Westmont, IL

Muddy Waters is, in many ways, the archetypal bluesman. He was raised as a sharecropper in the Mississippi Delta, where he learned to play an acoustic guitar. He went to Chicago in 1943, and the band he assembled established the electric blues sound. During the next three and a half decades, his band became a springboard for many of his sidemen, launching a prominent school of blues performers.

Muddy Waters was born McKinley A. Morganfield on April 4, 1913, at a small enclave in Issaquena County, Mississippi, known as Jug's Corner. The nearest town on the map, where the family went for commerce and mail, was in neighboring Sharkey County, a small place called Rolling Fork that was on the train tracks. Muddy usually cited Rolling Fork as his home. The area, near the Mississippi River, was wet, and his grandmother nicknamed him because of the mud puddles in which he played.

Muddy's mother died when he was very young, and her mother raised him. She moved north to the Stovall Plantation outside Clarksdale before Muddy was three years old. He stayed there, for the most part, until he was thirty. Muddy had cousins in the area, including Eddie Boyd, who would later have hits in Chicago. At about five years old, Muddy started playing music on a harmonica. Around his grandmother's house, he beat on a kerosene can, squeezed an old accordion, and fooled with the limited sounds of a Jew's harp.

The guitar was popular, and he bought his first around 1930. Muddy always had a strong voice, and a regional string band, the Son Sims Four, enlisted him as a vocalist. Sims, a multi-instrumentalist, gave Muddy some guitar instruction. However, seeing Son House perform set a fire under Muddy. House played with a bottleneck slide, and Muddy began learning the style.

From an early age, Muddy hustled to earn extra money. Sharecroppers earned a subsistence wage at best (though conditions at Stovall were better than on many other farms), and Muddy collected bottles for the bootlegger as a kid; later he ran his own whiskey and trapped animals for fur, and when he learned to make music, he performed for tips and hosted house parties. Another sideline indicates Muddy's willingness to embrace technology. At a time when horses were as fast as cars, and as dependable, Muddy bought a 1934 V8 Ford. He earned extra money driving neighbors to and from towns, but more than anything, the car's importance is indicative of a mind open to change. In a few years, he would effect a musical revolution.

Muddy's first recordings came about through his growing reputation as a musician. As he became more accomplished, he traveled with the Son Sims group, including a performance in nearby Farrell when the Silas Green traveling tent show came through (contrary to myth, he did not travel with the show). In August of 1941, two field recordists showed up in Coahoma County, where Clarksdale and Stovall are, on a mission to research the role music played in African American daily life. The project had begun with John Work III, an African American musicologist at Fisk University; in his appeal for funds, he encountered Alan Lomax at the Library of Congress. When asking about talented musicians in the area—they were seeking someone in the style of Robert Johnson—they were repeatedly referred to Muddy Waters at Stovall.

When Muddy heard a white man was looking for him, he assumed it was a revenue agent there to bust his whiskey still. Only after Lomax drank water out of the same cup Muddy drank out of did the bluesman trust him. The recording equipment was set up at Muddy's cabin, and among the sides he cut that day were "Country Blues" and "I Be's Troubled," which were soon issued by the Library of Congress as part of a folk music collection.

It may have been the confidence gained by this session that inspired Muddy to travel to St. Louis within the year. Chicago seemed too far away, and St. Louis proved too intimidating; he returned to Stovall. The Fisk–Library of Congress trip returned in July of 1942, and Muddy recorded several more sides for them, some alone and some with the Son Sims group.

In the summer of 1943, after a fight with the plantation overseer, Muddy left the south for Chicago. He had friends and family there, and he got a factory job the day after he arrived. He never sought any real jobs in Chicago, devoting himself instead to developing his musical reputation by performing at house parties. His reputation grew quickly; by 1944, he was meeting established musicians such as Big Bill Broonzy, Memphis Slim, and Tampa Red. Muddy's uncle, who preceded him to Chicago, gave him an electric guitar soon after he arrived. The acoustic guitar had been fine in rural Mississippi, where the only sounds at night were the shallow breathing of God at rest and the steady percussion of crickets and cicadas. In Chicago there were the clanging streetcars, trains, and automobiles out late on a party. Muddy took to the new instrument, even incorporating thumb picks into his style to further increase the volume.

By 1946, Muddy had come to the attention of record producers. He cut one side for J. Mayo Williams, an African American independent producer. The side was "Mean Red Spider," and it was released with James "Sweet Lucy" Carter's name on the label. He also recorded for Lester Melrose, a publishing giant and talent scout for Columbia and RCA (which controlled Bluebird, the popular blues label). Muddy's three tracks were for Columbia and remained unreleased for decades.

His next session was for Aristocrat Records, owned in part by Leonard Chess. This session, though not particularly successful, inaugurated a relationship that would continue past Leonard's death, into the early 1970s when Chess, as Aristocrat became known, had undergone two ownership changes. At the third session with Leonard, as they were preparing to wrap up, Muddy asked if he could do one his way—which meant without the piano. Leonard obliged and Muddy reprised "Country Blues" as "Can't Be Satisfied" and "I Be's Troubled" as "Feel Like Going Home," though on the electric guitar and with the rhythm of city life. The songs had a new feeling. The single sold out its first weekend and Muddy Waters had his first taste of stardom.

As early as 1946, Muddy had met Jimmy Rogers, who would become his guitarist, and Little Walter, his harmonica player. The trio developed the urban blues sound and became popular in the clubs. Calling themselves the Headhunters, they'd rove the South Side on their off nights, sitting in on others' gigs, winning new fans. They enlisted Baby Face Leroy Foster on drums, but the group didn't have the opportunity to record together until 1950. By then, Muddy had further built his reputation with songs such as "Train Fare Home" and "Screamin' and Cryin'." Muddy and his band returned south triumphant in late 1949, with their own show on KFFA; for many in the delta, it was the first time they saw an electric guitar.

In Chicago, however, Muddy's sound was just what the large population of southern expatriates were awaiting. When Aristocrat became Chess Records in 1950, Muddy's "Rollin' Stone" was one of its first releases. (It later named a magazine and a band.) "Rollin' Stone" is a song about power, about rootless—and ruthless—independence. Muddy doesn't tell all. His pause asks us to fill the emptiness; it draws out our emotions, feelings, fears, compelling us to add meaning.

Lyrical, most of Muddy's songs were about sex—sex with someone else's wife, someone else's girlfriend, sex and trouble. But it was always a trouble he survived, a scrape he escaped. Sex was sex, but sex also became an analogy for a kind of freedom, a freedom to serve himself, to damn the torpedoes, the shift supervisor, and the overseer's big gun. The sound of the songs reflected the newfound ebullience: Muddy, near the bottom of the socioeconomic ladder, corralled the sense of postwar possibility and excitement. The have-nots were finally having—not having much, but even a little was a lot. The muscle of his electric guitar and the force of his ensemble sound and the fierce assertiveness of his voice unleashed the exuberance of a people. There was cause for celebration, and Muddy was the vehicle.

Muddy's classic band lineup was rounded out in 1951, with Elgin Evans replacing Foster on the drums and with the addition of Otis Spann on piano. These five players defined the blues—and rock 'n' roll—band template and created many of the licks that are still emulated and repeated by bands around the world. The whole band didn't get to record together until 1953; Leonard Chess was enjoying success with smaller combos and didn't want to change a good thing. Between 1951 and 1956, Muddy had fourteen songs on the national charts, including "Still a Fool," "Hoochie Coochie Man," "Just Make Love to Me," "I'm Ready," and "Mannish Boy."

Muddy Waters Blues Band, Chicago, 1953. From left: Muddy Waters (guitar), Henry Armstrong, Otis Spann (piano), Henry Strong (harmonica), Elga "Elgin" Edmonds (drums), Jimmy Rogers (guitar). (Image courtesy of Frank Driggs Collection)

When Chuck Berry came to Chicago in 1955, he asked Muddy Waters where he should record. Muddy directed him to Leonard Chess and, after hearing "Maybellene," told Chess, who was hesitant, that he should release it. Chuck Berry's success, and the new rock 'n' roll sound, diminished the popularity of the blues. The national tours grew scarce for Muddy in the latter 1950s, and he mostly stayed in Chicago.

In 1958, when Muddy accepted an invitation to perform in England, he was unaware they were expecting him to play an acoustic guitar. One critic wrote that each time Muddy touched the knobs on his electric instrument, the volume got louder, forcing the critic farther back in the audience until he was out the door. Those who left became the old school; the kids stayed, and many soon bought electric guitars and amps. Muddy returned two more times in the early 1960s, solidifying his role as an instigator of the British Invasion.

In the United States, Muddy had a similarly electrifying effect on white audiences through his 1960 performance at the Newport Jazz Festival. The budding love generation responded to his rock 'n' rolling versions of "Got My Mojo Working" and "I Feel So Good," and Muddy had a new audience. His work in the 1960s was marked by experimentation and manipulation, as Chess Records tried to broaden his audience. While many songs were successful, the album concepts were less so, especially the pairing of Muddy's blues with a large horn section on Muddy, Brass, and Blues and the psychedelic blend Electric Mud.

The beginning of the end of Chess Records occurred with the sale of the label in 1969 from the family to a corporation, followed by the sudden death of Leonard Chess. Muddy stayed with Chess, famously stating that he would be with the label as long as a Chess was there. He recorded The Woodstock Album with members of the Band, produced by Band drummer Levon Helm. But when the label was sold again in 1975, Muddy terminated the nearly thirty-year relationship.

In 1976, Muddy made an album for the Blue Sky label, in association with CBS Records. The larger company gave him a boost, as did working with blues/rock star Johnny Winter as producer. The resulting album, Hard Again, won a Grammy and initiated a comeback for Muddy that lasted six more years and had him opening arenas for Eric Clapton and jamming with the Rolling Stones. Muddy lived to record three more albums, the next two also winning Grammy awards. In addition to strong album sales, he settled a lawsuit with Arc Music, his publishing company, allowing him to live his final years in financial comfort.

In Chicago, a stretch of 43rd Street has been renamed Muddy Waters Drive. He was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 1987 and given the Record Academy's Lifetime Achievement Award in 1992. A guitar has been made from a plank off his Stovall cabin, and the cabin itself has been dismantled, sent on a tour, and then placed in the Delta Blues Museum in Clarksdale, MS.

Playing in Muddy's band proved a springboard to a solo career for many of his sidemen. Both Jimmy Rogers and Little Walter became stars in the 1950s. Later, Otis Spann, James Cotton, Paul Oscher, Luther "Georgia Boy" "(Creepin') Snake" Johnson, Luther "Guitar Jr." Johnson, Jerry Portnoy, Bob Margolin, and Willie "Big Eyes" Smith, among others, enjoyed careers of their own.

ROBERT GORDON

Bibliography

- AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli; Southern
 Gordon, Robert. Can't Be Satisfied: The Life and Times of Muddy Waters. New York: Little, Brown, 2002.
 O'Neal, Jim, and Amy Van Singel. Voice of the Blues: Classic Interviews from Living Blues Magazine. New York: Routledge, 2002.
 Rooney, James. Bossmen: Bill Monroe and Muddy Waters. New York: Dial, 1971; reprinted New York: Da Capo Press, 1986.
 Tooze, Sandra. Muddy Waters: Mojo Man. Toronto: ECW Press, 1997.

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSFP

Selected Recordings

- Muddy Waters. His Best 1947–1955 (MCA CHD-9370); His Best 1956–1964 (MCA CHD-9380); Hard Again (Blue Sky/Sony ZK 34449); Hoochie Coochie Man (Laserlight 17 101).
 Various artists. The Aristocrat of the Blues (MCA CHD2 9387).

WATKINS, BEVERLY "GUITAR"

b. 6 April 1939; Atlanta, GA

Influenced as child by her grandfather, Luke Hayes, a banjo player, and the recordings of Rosetta Tharpe, Watkins learned trumpet, piano, and guitar while still a teenager. She began playing with Piano Red at seventeen and later played with Eddie Tigner of the Ink Spots. She is still active today.

GAILE WELKER

Bibliography

Duffy, Timothy. "Beverly Watkins." Living Blues no. 137 (January/February 1998): 22–23.

Discography

Back in Business (1999, CD MM 91007).

WATKINS, JOHN "MAD DOG"

b. 19 July 1953; Chicago, IL

Guitarist; nephew of Jimmy Johnson. Watkins spent his early years performing in local clubs with Buddy Guy, Junior Wells, Koko Taylor, and Son Seals. Later, in the 1970s he toured and recorded with Willie Dixon and James Cotton. His first solo album was Here I Am (1984), and since then he has led his own groups.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Larkin

Discography: Larkin

WATSON, EDDIE LEE

(See Lee, Lovie)

WATSON, JOHNNY "DADDY STOVEPIPE"

b. 12 April 1867; Mobile, AL

d. 1 November 1963; Chicago, IL

Among the oldest songsters known to play blues, Watson was also one of the first recorded. He traveled widely, within Mississippi, to Texas and Mexico, and up to Chicago, where he spent his last years. Between 1924 and 1935 he and his wife Sarah, and he and a mysterious man known only as "Whistlin' Pete," recorded sixteen sides, a dozen of which are reissued on DOCD-5166. Interviewed by Paul Oliver in Conversation with the Blues, he described busking Riverboats in Greenville, Mississippi, with Sarah, going to Mexico when she passed, and playing "Christian music" for his street patrons in Chicago.

ANDREW M. COHEN

Bibliography

Harris; Larkin

"The First Bluesmen on Record." NothinButDaBlues.com, Issue #8, <http://www.nothinbutdablues.bizland.com/ReadingRoomApril01.chtml>.

Oliver, Paul. Conversation with the Blues. London: Cassell, 1967.

Discography: DGR (as Daddy Stovepipe)

WATSON, JOHNNY "GUITAR"

b. 3 February 1935; Houston, TX

d. 17 May 1996; Yokohama, Japan

Growing up in Houston, Johnny "Guitar" Watson learned piano from his father before being taught the rudiments of guitar by his grandfather. Watson was inspired by the city's rich pool of blues talent, especially that of Clarence "Gatemouth" Brown, whose stinging guitar and flashy playing style he would emulate.

After his parents' separation in 1950, Watson moved with his father to Los Angeles, where transplanted Texas guitar legend T-Bone Walker provided further inspiration. Watson began playing piano around the city and was discovered at a talent show by saxophonist Chuck Higgins, which led to his 1952 recording debut with Higgins on "Motor Head Baby."

The following year, Watson signed with Federal and his aggressive and innovative guitar playing came into fruition, epitomized on his 1954 instrumental scorcher "Space Guitar." In 1955, he switched labels to Modern and recorded several hits, including a cover of Earl King's "Those Lonely, Lonely Nights," which made the R&B top ten. Watson's confident bravado and ladies-man persona was a significant part of his appeal, exemplified on his signature song, "Gangster of Love," which he recorded several times throughout his career.

After a stint with King in the 1960s, Watson's music went through various phases of funk and contemporary R&B throughout the 1970s and early 1980s. In 1994, following several years of inactivity, his comeback release Bow Wow on Bellmark was nominated for a Grammy in the contemporary blues category. Watson's career was in resurgence when he died of a heart attack while performing on stage in Japan. He was sixty-one.

WATSON, JOHNNY "GUITAR"

GENE TOMKO

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; Larkin; Santelli Nelson, David. "Johnny 'Guitar' Watson." Living Blues no. 128 (July/August 1996): 53–54.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

Blues Masters: The Very Best of Johnny "Guitar" Watson (1999, Rhino CD R2 75702).

WATSON, MIKE "JUNIOR"

b. 1950; California

California electric guitarist who had lengthy stints with Rod Piazza and the 1980s–1990s version of Canned Heat. His 1994 Black Top solo CD showed a versatility with jump-blues styles.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

AMG (Dan Forte)

Discography: AMG (Dan Forte)

WATTS, LOUIS THOMAS

b. 20 June 1934; Sturgis, MS
d. 13 April 1970; Beverly Hills, CA

Harmonica player; aka Kid Thomas, Tommy Louis/Lewis. Watts began performing in Chicago in the 1950s and then moved to California in 1959. He had releases on various labels, including Federal, Muriel, and Cenco. He was shot and killed by the father of a boy whom Watts had killed by auto accident the previous year.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Harris; Larkin
"Kid Thomas" [obituary]. Living Blues no. 2 (Summer 1970): 36.

Discography: LSFP

WATTS, NOBLE "THIN MAN"

b. 17 February 1926; DeLand, FL
d. 24 August 2004; DeLand, FL

Tenor saxophonist. Watts came to notice with the Griffin Brothers Orchestra in 1951–1952 and then played with Paul Williams until 1956. Both bands featured him prominently, playing in the overtly emotional style through which swing techniques were adapted to jump/rhythm and blues and eventually simplified to become rock 'n' roll (for example, the Griffin Brothers' "Shuffle Bug," 1951, Dot 1071, and Williams's "South Shore Drive," 1956, Vee-Jay 568). As the house band for the Showtime at the Apollo TV series (1955), Williams's band can be seen in compilation films derived from it, with Watts well featured.

Watts also accompanied many blues and rhythm and blues singers, including Amos Milburn ("Let's Have a Party," 1953, Aladdin 3218) and Margie Day ("Take Out Your False Teeth Baby," 1954, Decca 48317). In 1957–1959, he recorded some instrumentals for Baton featuring guitarist "Wild" Jimmy Spruill, of which "Hard Times" (aka "The Slop"; 1957, Baton 249) was a minor hit, leading to further records in this vein during the 1960s for various small labels. He then returned to Florida to play with local bands. In the late 1980s, he worked with the Midnight Creepers, a blues-rock band, and made a "comeback" album, Return of the Thin Man (King Snake KS003) with them in 1987. He continued working as a session musician into the 1990s.

HOWARD RYE

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Santelli
Sasfy, Joe. "Blues from a Honker." Washington Post (7 February 1986); reprinted in Blues & Rhythm no. 19 (May 1986): 14.

Discography: AMG; Lord; LSFP

WEATHERSBY, CARL

b. 24 February 1953; Jackson, MS

Popular contemporary-style guitarist and singer. Weathersby spent most of his childhood in Meadville, Mississippi. He moved to East Chicago, Indiana, with his parents when he was thirteen. He has cited this "half-rural, half-urban" upbringing as an important influence on his style, which melds traditional Delta blues with modernist tendencies adapted from pop, rock, and R&B. His early influences included soul/blues performers such as Tyrone Davis, along with pop and soul artists such as the O'Jays, Sam Cooke, and Johnnie Taylor. Albert King, also based in Northwest Indiana, was another important role model.

Weathersby's first instrument was the drums. He picked up the guitar in the late 1960s, receiving pointers from King himself, among others. After serving in the U.S. Army from 1971 to 1977, he joined King's band in 1979; he stayed off and on until 1981. He also toured with Little Milton during this period. In about 1982, he joined harpist Billy Branch's Sons of Blues, for whom he eventually became musical director. He remained with the S.O.B.s for fifteen years. His debut solo album, 1996's Don't Lay Your Blues on Me (Evidence) was nominated for a Handy award. He has recorded several more well-received disks on Evidence since then.

Although known these days mostly for his aggressive, arpeggio-laden leadwork, he remains capable of silencing a room or even a festival with heartfelt deep-soul balladry—his appearance at the 2002 Sweet Soul Music Festival in Poretta, Italy, was one of that event's highlights.

DAVID WHITEIS

Bibliography

AMG (Richard Skelly); Santelli Sharp, Steven. "Carl Weathersby: Blues Is Changin'." Living Blues no. 135 (1997): 34–41.

Discography: AMG

WEAVER, JAMES "CURLEY"

b. 25 or 26 March 1906; Covington, GA
d. 20 September 1962; Covington, GA

Guitarist and singer. James Weaver was the son of Savannah "Dip" Weaver, who is reported to have taught him, Barbecue Bob, and Charlie Hicks (Lincoln). He moved to Atlanta with the brothers and harmonica player Eddie Mapp in 1925.

He recorded "No No Blues," which was so similar to Bob's version that he wasn't asked back. He then recorded for QRS with Mapp, guitarists Slim Barton and Guy Lumpkin, and harmonica player Eddie Moore and made further records for several other companies throughout the 1930s. He also recorded effectively with Bob and the young Buddy Moss as the Georgia Cotton Pickers, and Fred McMullen and Moss as the Georgia Browns, and the wonderful interplay between the musicians produced some of the finest rural group records of the 1930s.

His partnership with Blind Willie McTell generated numerous relaxed sides under various names, in which the guitars complement each other with uncanny empathy. He left music for a while but rejoined McTell for a session of twenty-one titles with Regal in 1949. Few of the sides were issued, perhaps because the whole session of blues and gospel seemed quaint and archaic.

Weaver made four more sides for the Sittin' In With label in 1950 but interest was low. He became blind and retired to live with relatives until his death.

DAVID HARRISON

Bibliography

AMG (Bruce Eder); Harris; Larkin; Santelli Bastin, Bruce. Red River Blues. Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 1986)

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSFP

Peg 'n' Whistle Red (Biograph BCD126).

WEAVER, SYLVESTER

b. 25 July 1897; Louisville, KY
d. 4 April 1960; Louisville, KY

Blues singer and guitarist. Sylvester Weaver accompanied Sara Martin on "Longing for Daddy Blues," an OKeh record from October 24, 1923. It makes him the first black blues guitarist to record with a singer. The novelty combination was quite successful.

Weaver was a resident of "Smoketown" in Louisville, Kentucky, an area inhabited by the poor lower class. He became known as "the Man with the Talking Guitar," and his most influential recording was the 1923 instrumental "Guitar Rag," which became a favorite of Western swing and country and western artists. Bob Wills's 1936 recording of the tune became a big hit. In 1927 Weaver accompanied the then fourteen-year-old Helen Humes, who later wrote of Weaver that he played the TOBA circuit and traveled the South. For his final session Weaver teamed up with the obscure guitarist Walter Beasley, an imaginative lyricist.

After 1927 Weaver drifted off in obscurity, working as a chauffeur in his beloved Louisville. He died in 1960 of carcinoma of the tongue. His second wife, Dorothy, later turned up a scrapbook from her husband's recording years, which provided a wealth of fascinating research material.

WEAVER, SYLVESTER

GUIDO VAN RIJN

Bibliography

AMG (Uncle Dave Lewis); Larkin O'Neal, Jim, and Paul Garon. "Kentucky Blues Part 2: The Sylvester Weaver Scrapbook." Living Blues no. 52 (Spring 1982): 15–25.

Discography: DGR

WEBB, "BOOGIE" BILL

b. 24 March 1924; Jackson, MS

d. 23 August 1990; New Orleans, LA

Boogie Bill's style is known for its disregard of standard tunings, conventional chord changes, and consistent rhythms. He learned the basics of blues guitar as a child from Mississippi Delta bluesman Tommy Johnson, who was a friend of Webb's mother. Fats Domino brought Webb to Imperial Records in 1953, for which he would record four sides. Webb was never able to support himself solely by music, however. It wasn't until an appearance at the 1984 New Orleans Jazz & Heritage Festival that his status as a performer grew beyond local circles. Webb released his first album, Drinkin' and Stinkin', in 1989 on the Flying Fish label.

ROBERT SORICELLI

Bibliography

AMG (Jim O'Neal); Harris; Larkin; Santelli Evans, David. "A Talk with Boogie Bill." Blues Unlimited no. 97 (December 1972): 8–9 [part 1]; no. 98 (January 1973): 18–19 [part 2].

Discography: AMG; LSFP

WEBB, WILLIE "JITTERBUG"

b. 28 September 1941; San Antonio, TX

d. 31 October 1997; San Antonio, TX

Singer and guitarist in San Antonio for more than forty years. Through the 1970s Webb performed with the Good Timers, which consisted of former Ike Turner sidemen. He toured with the Monkees rock group in 1970, then with Johnny Otis later that decade. From 1987 until his death he led the Super Crew, a band with a horn section.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

AMG (Eugene Chadbourne)
Shute, Bill. "Willie 'Jitterbug' Webb" [obituary]. Living Blues no. 138 (March/April 1998): 79–80.

Discography: AMG

WEBSTER, KATIE

b. Kathryn Jewel Thorne, 11 January 1936; Houston, TX

d. 5 September 1999; League City, TX

Pianist, singer. The "Swamp Boogie Queen," Webster won the W. C. Handy award as best traditional female artist in 1991, 1995, and 1996 and was always an extroverted entertainer with an unusually expansive repertoire.

Webster's mother was a missionary and a classically trained pianist, so there was no shortage of musical encouragement, as long as her playing didn't stray from sacred music. But she moved in with more secular relatives in Louisiana when she reached her teenage years and immediately put her talent to professional use, becoming a recording session star at age fifteen while working with Lazy Lester, Lonnie Brooks, Clarence Garlow, and other major swamp blues figures. She subsequently toured with a succession of regional blues and R&B stars, including Ashton Savoy, Lazy Lester, and Juke Boy Bonner, in the 1950s and recorded several singles under her own name between 1959 and 1961.

After seeing her band the Uptighters in Lake Charles in 1964, Otis Redding hired her for his road show, and she toured with him until his death. Only the fact that she couldn't fly because she was pregnant saved her from Redding's tragic fate. Webster was devastated by the tragedy, and when her ailing parents in Oakland needed her, she withdrew from music until the early 1980s, when she began touring Europe.

The 1987 Arhoolie album I Know That's Right announced her return, and the following year a star-studded cast of fans and friends including Bonnie Raitt, Kim Wilson, and Robert Cray participated in the sessions for her Alligator Records release Swamp Boogie Queen. She followed its success with Two-Fisted Mama in 1990 and No Foolin' in 1991. A stroke in 1993 slowed her down but didn't stop her from continuing to perform her crowd-pleasing live shows.

MICHAEL POINT

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; Larkin; Santelli
Hildenbrand, Lee. "Katie Webster: The Swamp Boogie Queen Is Still Singing" [interview]. Living Blues no. 74 (1987): 12–17; no. 75 (1987): 36–40.

Discography: AMG; LSFPWEEPIN' WILLIE

b. William Lorenzo Robinson, 6 July 1926; Atlanta, GA

Vocalist. Weepin' Willie began his entertainment career in the mid-1940s, emceeding in a Trenton, New Jersey, nightclub. He moved to Boston in about 1959 and performed locally. In 1999, he released his debut CD (produced by vocalist Mighty Sam McClain) on the APO label. He is still active.

DAVID WHITEIS

Bibliography

AMG (Ken Chang)
Simas, Art. "Weepin' Willie: Boston's Entertainer Extraordinaire." Weepin' Willie and the All Star Blues Band website, <http://www.geocities.com/BourbonStreet/Canal/1945>.

Discography: AMGWELCH, "MONSTER" MIKE

b. 11 June 1979; Boston, MA

Guitarist-singer Mike Welch was part of the wave of teenage guitar aces (Jonny Lang, Kenny Wayne Shepherd) who hit the blues scene in the 1990s. He plays electric blues with some crossover rock influences, but his guitar licks are the focus. He was given his nickname by former Blues Brother Dan Aykroyd after a gig at age thirteen.

JIM TRAGESER

Bibliography

AMG (Richard Skelly)
Saley, J. "Monster Mike Welch." Blues Revue no. 36 (April 1998): 77.

Discography: AMGSelected Recordings

These Blues Are Mine (1996, Tone-Cool 1154).
Catch Me (1998, Tone-Cool 1167).
Axe to Grind (1999, Tone-Cool 1159).

WELDING, PETE

b. 15 November 1935; Philadelphia, PA

d. 17 November 1995; Alta Loma, CA

Peter John "Pete" Welding was one of the premiere documentarians of the 1960s blues revival. Welding began recording and interviewing Philadelphia-based blues and gospel artists (including Doug Quattlebaum and Blind Connie Williams) in the late 1950s for a folk music radio program he hosted on WHYY. In 1959 Down Beat magazine initiated Welding's column "Blues and Folk," one of the first print media forums devoted to blues, and in January 1962 he moved to Chicago to work as an editor for the magazine.

In Chicago Welding sought out "the nonprofessional, informal activities of older musicians," including Jimmy Walker, John Lee Granderson, Ted Bogan, Carl Martin, Johnny Young, Johnny Shines, and Floyd Jones, often using Big Joe Williams as a scout and a recording agent. Welding formed Testament Records as an outlet for his fieldwork, and among the label's twenty-five albums were the first release of Muddy Waters's plantation recordings and a collection of songs written about the death of President John F. Kennedy (Can't Keep from Crying). Welding's recordings also appeared on Blue Note, Prestige, Storyville, and Milestone.

Welding wrote liner notes for dozens of albums and articles for Down Beat, Blues Unlimited, Living Blues, and other publications. In the mid-1960s Welding moved to California and worked in A&R at Epic, Playboy, and ABC Records before becoming director of A&R for Capitol Records' Special Markets Division in the mid-1970s. His productions there included the Imperial Records Legendary Master Series and the Capitol Blues Collection series.

SCOTT BARRETTA

Bibliography

Nelson, David, Bruce Bromberg, and Raeburn Flerlage. "Pete Welding." Living Blues no. 126 (March/April 1996): 59–60.
Welding, Pete. "The Testament Story." Blues World no. 42 (1972): 3–4; no. 43 (1972): 3–4; no. 44 (1972): 3–6.

WELDON, CASEY BILL

WELDON, CASEY BILL

b. Will Weldon, 10 July 1909; Pine Bluff, AR
d. Unknown

Guitarist with “Hawaiian” slide technique who recorded for the blues labels in the 1930s. He was married to Memphis Minnie in the 1920s, later recording with her.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

AMG (Ron Wynn); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli

Discography: DGR

WELLINGTON, VALERIE

b. Valerie Eileen Hall, 14 November 1959; Chicago, IL
d. 2 January 1993; Maywood, IL

Vocalist. Wellington began performing at age twelve and was trained as a classical singer and pianist at the American Conservatory of Music (Chicago). She entered the blues circuit after befriending several Chicago musicians including Magic Slim, who appeared on her first album. She portrayed Ma Rainey in the play The Little Dreamer: The Life of Bessie Smith. Wellington was crucial in establishing the Chicago Blues Artists Coalition, an organization that helps struggling blues musicians. Her repertoire included diverse blues styles. Her first album, Million Dollar Secret, was recorded in 1983.

ROBERT WEBB FRY II

Bibliography

AMG (Jim O’Neal); Larkin; Santelli
Seratin, Peter. “Obituaries: Valerie Wellington.” Living Blues 114 (March/April 1993): 48.

Discography: AMG

Million Dollar Secret (1984, Rooster 2619).
Life in the Big City (1991, GBW 002).

WELLS, JUNIOR

b. Amos Wells Blakemore, Jr., 9 December 1931; West Memphis, AR
d. 15 January 1998; Chicago, IL

Early Life and Formative Years

Junior Wells was a popular and influential postwar Chicago harmonica player. His birth name was Amos Blakemore, Jr. His mother, Lena Blakemore, worked as a domestic in the Memphis area before moving to Chicago. When he was about nine years old, Amos traveled north to join her, although he seems to have returned south frequently. He remembered that as a boy he befriended Junior Parker, who lived in West Memphis; he also told of following Aleck Miller (Sonny Boy Williamson II) around, pestering him for lessons. In Chicago he listened to John Lee Williamson (the original “Sonny Boy”) and, after Williamson’s death in 1948, Little Walter.

Wells’s first onstage appearance was alongside guitarist Tampa Red and pianist Johnnie Jones at a Chicago South Side gin mill called Miss Tifford’s, on the corner of 22nd and Prairie. He also shared stages—as a tap dancer, as well as playing harp—with Sunnyland Slim, Robert Lockwood, Muddy Waters, and others. He later claimed that the tips he received from these guest stints sometimes totaled more than the band itself was earning.

Junior Wells. (Photo by Tom Copi, courtesy of Frank Driggs Collection)

1950s and 1960s—Era Activity in Chicago

In about 1948, he and fretmen Louis and Dave Myers came together as the Three Deuces (later the Three Aces). They became the Four Aces (and eventually, just the Aces) after drummer Fred Below joined them. Below had been a jazz drummer, and Louis Myers was a versatile stylist, influenced by jump-blues guitarists and horn men (Dave played mostly “guitar bass,” using the bottom strings of his instrument). The Aces’ sound thus fused the Delta-to-Chicago sound with a jazz-tinged sophistication.

Wells left the Aces in 1952, when Little Walter left Muddy Waters’s band and took Wells’s place as harpist for the band (renamed the “Jukes” after Walter’s breakout hit). Wells then joined Muddy. The following year he was drafted into the Army, from which he went AWOL on several occasions. In June of 1953, Wells began his tenure at Leonard Allen’s States label, for which he recorded some of his trademark numbers, including “Hoodoo Man” and “Tomorrow Night.” In 1957, Mel London recorded him for Profile, Chief, and U.S.A., among other labels. His “Little by Little” on Profile hit the national R&B charts in 1960. During this period he also cut “Come On in This House” and “Messin’ with the Kid,” which became his signature tune.

By the mid-1960s, the folk-blues “revival,” and the blues-rock that followed in its wake, had made the Chicago sound palatable to young white aficionados. In 1965, Wells recorded Hoodoo Man Blues (Delmark), an album now recognized as one of the decade’s most important. Significantly, Hoodoo Man Blues was not solely a twelve-bar Chicago blues outing—the opening track, for instance, was “Snatch It Back and Hold It,” a fatback-drenched funk-blues.

The following year Wells continued on in that same direction and in so doing reestablished himself among his original audience. Jack Daniels, a West Side producer and record label owner, released a series of soul-fashioned 45s on him, with horn charts arranged by Monk Higgins. These included “I’m Losing You” (a remake of “Little by Little”), “Up in Heah” (with an introduction adopted from “Messin’ with the Kid”), and “I’m Gonna Cramp Your Style” on Bright Star, as well as “It’s All Soul” on the Hit Sound label. “You’re Tuff Enough” (on Blue Rock, a Mercury subsidiary for which Daniels was A&R man) catapulted Wells onto the national R&B charts for a second time in 1968. Although some purist critics have accused Wells of pandering to “pop” tastes with these outings, in fact such fusions represented a radical innovation by blues standards; in effect, Junior Wells was playing “soul-blues” before “soul-blues” had a name.

Later Years

Wells’s eventual success as a worldwide blues “celebrity,” however, was due largely to white fans’ perception of him as traditionalist Chicagoan. By the 1970s the team of Junior Wells and Buddy Guy was one of the most popular blues acts in the world. They toured Europe regularly, they opened shows for the Rolling Stones, and their recordings included a session on Atco, Buddy Guy and Junior Wells Play the Blues, on which they received support from pop stars such as Eric Clapton and Dr. John.

Eventually they disbanded, but Wells continued to tour steadily, now fronting his own group. For many years he also held down simultaneous gigs at Theresa’s and the Checkerboard, on Chicago’s South Side; there, he served as something of a local blues ambassador, welcoming tourists and locals alike into his realm with his air of cocky dignity and irrepressible cool.

He also continued to record; notable latter-era efforts include 1990’s Harp Attack (Alligator), a summit between Wells, Carey Bell, Billy Branch, and James Cotton, and Come On in This House (Telarc), a mostly acoustic outing released in 1996. In general, his recorded work from this latter period is entertaining, occasionally brilliant, and almost always good-timey, but it falls short of the emotional depth and instrumental virtuosity he had displayed in his younger days. Nonetheless, he maintained a rigorous touring schedule, and on a good night his flamboyant showmanship and intermittent but determined harp work provided admirable flashes of the old days.

Wells was diagnosed with lymphoma in 1997; a heart attack ensued, and he eventually slipped into a coma. He died on January 15, 1998. His funeral, at A. A. Rayner and Sons Funeral Home on 71st Street, was attended by numerous dignitaries from the blues world. His place in blues history is secure, both for his influence and versatility on their own terms and for the dedication with which he carried the Chicago blues torch to new audiences—and, eventually, new countries—throughout his life.

DAVID WHITEIS

WELLS, JUNIOR

Bibliography

- AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli; Southern Carlozo, Lou, and Sheryl Kennedy. "So Long, Hoodoo Man." Chicago Tribune (January 24, 1998): 1, 10.
O'Neal, Jim. "Junior Wells" [interview]. Living Blues no. 119 (1995): 8–29.
Pruter, Robert. Chicago Soul. Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1991.
Whiteis, David. "Junior." Juke Blues no. 41 (1998): 30–34.

Discography: AMG, LSFP

WELLS, MICHAEL "LIGHTNIN' "

b. 15 April 1952; Wheeling, WV

Wells is known for his expertise on Piedmont blues. An accomplished guitarist and singer, he has worked with Richard "Big Boy" Henry, Algia Mae Hinton, and George Higgs. Wells has also produced several recordings by Piedmont artists. He currently serves on the board of Music Maker Relief Foundation.

GAILE WELKER

Bibliography

- Wells, Michael "Lightnin'." "Tar Hell Tunes, North Carolina Recording and Record Production." North Carolina Literary Review no. 9 (2000).

Selected Recordings

Solo

- Bullfrog Blues* (New Moon NM 9507).
Ragged But Right (Music Maker MM 26).
Ragtime Millionaire (New Moon NM 9820).

As Producer/Coproducer

- Algia Mae Hinton. Honey Babe Blues: Folk Tunes and Gospel from North Carolina (Hin/Tone CD 82929); Piedmont Folk Traditions (Audio Arts 009; 45 rpm EP).
Big Boy Henry. "Mr. Ball's Warehouse" (Audio Arts 008; 45 rpm); "Mr. President" (Audio Arts 007; 45 rpm); Beaufort Blues (Music Maker CD MM 26); Poor Man's Blues (New Moon NM 9508).

WELLS, VIOLA

(See Miss Rhapsody)

WEST, CHARLIE

b. 27 September 1914; Andalusia, AL
d. 16 April 1976; Chicago, IL

Singer and pianist; first name sometimes shown as "Charley." West was active in Chicago from 1929 until shortly before his death. He recorded for ARC and Bluebird labels there in 1937. After 1957, he appeared to play mostly for parties and informal occasions.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

- Harris
"Charlie West" [obituary]. Living Blues no. 30 (November/December 1976): 6.

Discography: DGR

WESTON, JOHN

b. 12 December 1927; Lee County, AR

Singer, harmonica player, songwriter. Weston's formative influences on harmonica were Aleck Miller "Sonny Boy Williamson II" and Willie Cobbs. He began performing in public in the 1970s as a member of Speckled Rhythms. However, his first solo appearances in 1988 and his first Fat Possum label CD in 1992 show his blues composing abilities.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

- Larkin; Santelli
Tighe, James. "John Weston: Driving Down Highway 79." Living Blues no. 109 (May/June 1993): 43–45.

WESTSIDE

British record label established in March 1997 under the aegis of MCI by Bob Fisher, who had previously operated the Sequel label from the same London address. The label was devoted to specialist licensed material, with noteworthy blues compilations derived from RCA/Groove, including the complete RCA Johnny Moore catalog, King/Federal, Rhythm, Cobra, Abco, Planet, and J.O.B. The catalog of Johnny Vincent's Ace label was purchased outright, yielding several important compilations of its blues holdings. After the MCI group was purchased by Kingfisher in late 1998, direction of the label passed to Tony Rounce from March 1999 for about two years, after which operations were merged with those of Demon and Edsel and new releases slowed to a trickle.

HOWARD RYE

WHEATSTRAW, PEETIE

b. William Bunch, 21 December 1902; Ripley, TN
 d. 21 December 1941; East St. Louis, IL

William Bunch, better known as Peetie Wheatstraw, “The Devil’s Son-in-Law,” was born in either Ripley, Tennessee, or Cotton Plant, Arkansas. It is difficult to pin down details of the lives of blues musicians, but Bunch’s death certificate indicates Ripley as his place of birth. He is buried at Growders cemetery in Cotton Plant, Woodruff County, Arkansas. Born to James Bunch and Mary Burns, Wheatstraw became famous as a blues musician in the 1930s. Not much has been unearthed regarding his early years. As reported in Paul Garon’s biography, Bunch lived in East St. Louis, Illinois, for at least twelve years prior to his death in 1941.

On November 25, 1941, in Chicago, Illinois, he recorded his final songs, “Give Me Flowers While I’m Living,” “Hearse-Man Blues,” “Don’t Put Yourself on the Spot,” “Old Organ Blues,” “Pawn Broker Blues,” “Southern Girl Blues,” “Mister Livingood,” “The Good Lawd’s Children,” and “Separation Day Blues.” One month later he was dead. A car carrying Wheatstraw and two other passengers crashed into a standing boxcar belonging to the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company at 3rd Street and Illinois Avenue, just a few blocks from his home on 3rd Street. Ironically, Bunch’s death certificate lists both his date of birth and his date of death as December 21.

Bunch recorded more than 160 songs during an eleven-year recording career under the name Peetie Wheatstraw “The Devil’s Son-in-Law, The High Sheriff from Hell.” His death certificate listed his occupation as “musician.” Within the first two years of his recording career, Wheatstraw recorded twenty sides for the Vocalion and Bluebird labels of the American Record Company. Of these twenty, all were composed by Bunch, who accompanied himself on piano or guitar.

Bunch memorialized his infamous persona on a side entitled “The Devil’s Son-in-Law” for the Bluebird label on September 28, 1931. On that same day he recorded three other songs, which concluded his recordings for the Bluebird label. His Decca recordings took place between 1934 and 1938, totaling one hundred sides. While Wheatstraw continued to accompany himself on the majority of these songs, he increasingly used lyrics written by others. St. Louis Jimmy (James Oden) is credited with having written nearly a dozen of Wheatstraw's blues songs.

Peetie Wheatstraw, aka “The High Sheriff of Hell” and “The Devil’s Son-in-Law,” ca. 1945. (Photo courtesy Frank Driggs Collection)

Peetie Wheatstraw is described in The History of the Blues as a "potato-headed pianist and singer, who delivered his lyrics in a slightly tipsy fashion and punctuated his verses with an annoying cry of 'ooh well well'"—so much so that, according to David Peel, this ending phrase "crops up no fewer than ninety times, an average of twice a line," in the three songs "Mama's Advice," "Don't Hang My Clothes from No Barb Wire Line," and "Ain't It a Pity and a Shame." Wheatstraw's lyrical themes centered largely on themes of women and poverty. He played both guitar and piano and was influenced by the styles of Roosevelt Skyes, Henry Brown, Lee Green, Stump Johnson, and Walter Davis.

During the 1930s, Wheatstraw's style of singing was ubiquitous in St. Louis and East St. Louis. He influenced blues musicians such as Alec Seward, Louis Hayes, John Lee "Sonny Boy" Williamson, and Robert Johnson. While Wheatstraw's musical influences are seen in other contemporary blues musicians—in song, style, and even sobriquet—it is his persona as the Devil's son-in-law that makes him a cultural icon. His style of self-boasting is present in today's hip-hop genre and is best personified in Ralph Ellison's novel The Invisible Man.

"I'm a seventh son of a seventh son bawn with a caul over both eyes and raised on black cat bones high john the conqueror and greasy greens" begins the introduction of Peter Wheatstraw to a Southern stranger new to "up North." Ellison's character is directly modeled after blues musician Peetie Wheatstraw, "The Devil's Son-in-Law." The whole point of both Ellison's character and the persona created by Bunch is to break through the barriers of Jim Crow America. In the novel Ellison's Wheatstraw proclaims himself to be a man full of "a little shit, grit, and mother-wit." Many of the real Wheatstraw's songs were full of such self-aggrandizement. Wheatstraw delivers many of his lyrics as a demarcation of his territory in the larger scheme of black manhood. In addition, both Ellison's and Bunch's personalities have at least one foot in the supernatural world. In Invisible Man, Ellison has carefully identified all the symbols of authentic Southern hoodoo, including seventh sons of seventh sons, the evil eye, black cat bones, and high john the conqueror. The "greasy greens" he also mentions are an artistic license: they are a staple food of Southern black culture.

As for William Bunch, being seen as the son-in-law to the Devil not only places him in a position of awe and entitlement to supernatural powers but further indicates his strength as a mortal being: one capable of marrying the Devil's daughter. While Bunch seldom sings of issues directly discernible to hoodoo, his lyrics are steeped in cyclical natural law: what goes around comes around. From Wheatstraw's earliest recordings to the last, he sang of retribution.

The concept of retribution plays a fundamental role both in Wheatstraw's music and black Southern hoodoo. One of the most misunderstood threads in the lexicon of hoodoo is the use of hexing acts for the purpose of revenge. Both hoodoo and blues served as social mediation tools in a marginalized environment. The issue of revenge in hoodoo and blues music is not fundamentally any different from the role of revenge in codified laws: An act of transgression is committed, and a counteraction relative to its own cultural norms is required to restore order. Whether conscious of this analysis or not, blues musicians performed not solely as acts of entertainment but like African griots, each with a specific, personal message. In the case of William Bunch, "The Devil's Son-in-Law, The High Sheriff from Hell," his message was retribution.

PHOENIX SAVAGE-WISEMAN

Bibliography

- AMG (Uncle Dave Lewis); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli
 Davis, Francis. The History of the Blues. New York: Hyperion, 1995.
 Garson, Paul. The Devil's Son-in-Law: The Story of Peetie Wheatstraw and His Songs. London: November Books, 1971.
 O'Meally, Robert. Living with Music: Ralph Ellison's Jazz Writings. New York: Random House, 2001.
 Peel, David. The Peetie Wheatstraw Stomps. Burlington, Canada: Belltower Books, 1972.

Discography: DGR

WHEELER, GOLDEN "BIG"

- b. 16 December 1929; Baconton, GA
 d. 20 July 1998; Chicago, IL

Harmonica player; brother of guitarist James Wheeler. While a taxi driver in Albany, Georgia, in the late 1940s through 1951, he was encouraged by customer Buster Brown to take up the harmonica. After stints in New Jersey and Youngstown, Ohio, he moved to Chicago in 1954. The next year he became serious with the harmonica, playing in the manner of Jimmy Reed, and formed his first band. By 1958 he had met Little Walter and become influenced by him musically and personally. Until the late 1980s, when he retired as a mechanic, he performed on a part-time basis. In 1993 and 1997 he recorded two CDs for the Delmark label, and he began pursuing music full time. The earlier of his two CDs, Big Wheeler's Bone Orchard, was in the 1950s Chicago style, and Jump In was more current. He also assisted on James Wheeler's I'm Ready.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Larkin

Dahl, Bill. "Golden 'Big' Wheeler" [obituary]. Living Blues no. 142 (November/December 1998): 54.

WHEELER, JAMES

(See Piano C. Red)

WHEELER, THOMAS JAMES "T. J."

b. 16 April 1952; Bremerton, WA

Wheeler grew up in Bremerton, Washington, and later in Bainbridge Island near Seattle. After seeing local performances of Buddy Guy and of Son House, he became serious about learning blues guitar. In 1973 he sought and performed with Babe Stovall in New Orleans, then the next year he learned from Furry Lewis and Bukka White in Memphis. In 1975 he moved to the New England area, where he has been based, although he spent 1984 in Italy with Duck Baker and Jerry Ricks. In January 1985 he founded the Blues Bank Collective and began its educational programs, including the Blues in the School presentations. He continues to perform as acoustic and electric guitarist.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Blues Bank Collective website, <http://www.bluesbankcollective.org/> (accessed February 8, 2005).

Vorel, Bob. "On the Road: T. J. Wheeler." Blues Revue Quarterly no. 8 (Spring 1993): 38–40.

WHISTLER'S JUG BAND

Active 1920s–1930s

Group from Louisville, Kentucky, that recorded for Gennett, OKeh, and Victor labels from 1924 through 1931, led by Buford Threlkeld, known as "The Whistler." Their instrumentation included guitar, banjo, fiddle, and jug, with Threlkeld singing or performing on nose whistle. Precious newsreel footage of the group was shot locally by a 20th Century Fox/Movietone newsreel crew in 1930.

EDWARD KOMARA

Videography

20th Century Fox/Movietone newsreel footage (1930), in Times Ain't What They Used to Be (Yazoo Home Video DVD 512).

Discography: DGR

WHITAKER, "KING" HERBERT

b. 1927–1928

d. 19 April 1995; Toronto, Canada

Saxophonist; birth year also cited as 1929. Whitaker began his career in Washington, D.C., in the late 1940s. From 1951 through 1966 he performed with Frank Motley, moving with the band to Toronto in the late 1950s. He led his own bands from 1966 through 1985 and worked days at the U.S. Consulate in Toronto until his health began to fail in 1993.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Munson, Bill. "'King Herbert' Whitaker" [obituary]. Blues and Rhythm no. 100 (June/July 1995): 34.

WHITE, ARTIE "BLUES BOY"

b. 16 April 1937; Vicksburg, MS

Vocalist. White sang gospel as a youth. He moved to Chicago in the mid-1950s and switched to secular music in 1966. Since then he has recorded and performed, primarily in the soul-blues style and for the southern chitlin circuit audience. His 1977 single "(You Are My) Leanin (sic) Tree" (Altee) was one of the few blues records to hit the national R&B charts in the disco era. White was given the nickname "Blues Boy" by Bobby "Blue" Bland.

DAVID WHITEIS

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli
Whiteis, David. "Artie 'Blues Boy' White: 'Only the Strong Will Survive.'" Living Blues no. 156 (2002): 12–20.

Discography: AMG

WHITE, BUKKA

b. Booker T. Washington White, 12 November 1906; Houston, MS

d. 26 February 1977; Memphis, TN

The son of Lula Davison and railroad worker and multi-instrumentalist John White, Bukka White was born on the farm that belonged to his grandfather, the preacher Punk Davison, in Chickasaw County, Mississippi. White learned guitar from his father. As a youth, he moved to the Delta to stay with an uncle. It was at his uncle's that White learned to play piano ("I don't go for no piano player, but I can play good enough until the piano player gets there").

White began hoboing as a teenager, often playing music in the vicinities of St. Louis (where he settled for a period) and Memphis. By the mid-1920s, White was back in Houston, Mississippi, and married to Jessie Bea. The marriage was short-lived; Jessie Bea died in 1928.

In Memphis, in 1930, White made his first records in a mobile studio for Victor. Two blues songs and two religious numbers (by "Washington White, the Singing Preacher") were released. The session was arranged by Itta Bena, Mississippi, businessman and sometimes talent scout Ralph Lembo. White was accompanied by Napoleon Hairiston on guitar; a "Miss Minnie" harmonized with White on the gospel songs.

The 1930s often found White working with Alabama-born harmonica player George "Bullet" Williams. During the 1930s, White married Williams's niece Susie Simpson and lived itinerantly throughout the eastern United States, playing music, boxing, and even pitching baseball for the Negro League team the Birmingham Black Cats.

In early September 1937, White recorded two songs for Vocalion in Chicago. One of them, "Shake 'Em on Down," was an instant hit. Covers have been recorded by the likes of Big Bill Broonzy, Tommy McClennan, Eddie Taylor, Doctor Ross, Savoy Brown, and many others. It was also in 1937, in Monroe County, Mississippi, that White was convicted of murder and given a life sentence in Parchman Farm, Mississippi's notorious prison farm. How White regained his freedom after serving only two years is not clear.

While an inmate, White recorded two Delta standards ("Sic 'Em Dogs On" and "Po' Boy") for John Lomax of the Library of Congress. After his release from Parchman, White returned to Chicago and in March 1940 recorded twelve songs, accompanied by Washboard Sam on washboard, for the Vocalion and OKeh labels. All twelve were issued and they include White classics such as "Fixin' to Die" (covers include those by Bob Dylan, Buffy St. Marie, and Andy Williams), "Parchman Farm," and "Aberdeen Mississippi." Hurley and Evans refer to this session as "the artistic high point of Bukka White's career," and Simon Napier has described these recordings as "astonishingly beautiful."

White legally separated from Susie, who still lived in Aberdeen and by whom he had two children, moving to Chicago and in 1942 to Memphis. He worked for the U.S. Defense Depot in Memphis, followed by twenty years' employment at the Newberry Equipment Company. Music became less important as a source of income, but White continued to play locally for both black and white audiences. He sometimes worked with Frank Stokes, Jack Kelly, or Willie Borum.

In the late 1940s, White's first cousin, B. B. King, moved to Memphis and stayed with White. In later years, White told various stories of his having given King his first guitar in the 1930s when King was about six years old. Years later, White provided him with room and board, got him a job at Newberry Equipment Company, bought him a new guitar, and helped him get established in the music business.

In 1963, two college students from the University of California at Berkeley, John Fahey and Ed Denson, wrote a letter addressed to "Booker T. Washington White (Old Blues Singer), c/o General Delivery, Aberdeen, Mississippi." Miraculously, it eventually reached White in Memphis. More importantly, it led to the students visiting Memphis and arranging for White to come to California to perform for the growing folk music audience. Thus began White's new career as a folk-blues musician performing mostly for young white audiences.

While in California, White made his first records since 1940. Fahey and Denson released an LP Mississippi Blues: Bukka White on their Takoma label, and Chris Strachwitz released two volumes of Sky Songs on Arhoolie. These three records are superb and demonstrate that White was still in fine form as a musician and still actively creating new music. The two Arhoolie records are especially impressive because on them White improvises freely, making new music for the occasion. The Takoma record was the first upon which White played piano in addition to guitar. In 1970, Columbia reissued the influential 1937 and 1940 sides on the LP Parchman Farm.

White continued to make new records for Blue Horizon, Adelphi, L&R, and other labels, including the celebrated 1973 Biograph LP Big Daddy. He performed at colleges and for folk and blues festivals throughout North America (including the Newport Folk Festival and the Smithsonian's American Folklife Festival), toured Europe (including stints with the American Folk Blues Festival), and played at the Olympics in Mexico City.

Bukka White at the Newport Folk Festival, Newport, Rhode Island. (Photo by Julie Snow, courtesy Frank Driggs Collection)

White suffered from late-onset diabetes toward the end of his life. While performing in Massachusetts in 1976, he suffered a stroke; more were to follow. Pancreatic cancer was the ultimate cause of Booker T. Washington White's death in Memphis on February 26, 1977. White is buried in Memphis's New Park Cemetery.

A great raconteur as well as poet, White frequently told different versions of events to different people; he warned audiences "I lie some of the times but not all the time." It is, therefore, unclear whether or not White ever met Charley Patton, but there is no doubt that he was influenced by him. White was a powerful guitar player with a fierce, raspy voice. Despite the physical force with which he handled his guitar and with which he sang, White was a sophisticated slide guitarist whose playing featured the use of complex rhythms and intricate voice and instrument combinations.

FRED J. HAY

Bibliography

- AMG (Uncle Dave Lewis); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli; Southern Hay, Fred J. Goin' Back to Sweet Memphis: Conversations with the Blues. Athens: University of Georgia Press, 2001.
 Hurley, F. Jack, and David Evans. "Bukka White." In Tom Ashley, Sam McGee, Bukka White: Tennessee Traditional Singers, edited by Thomas G. Burton. Knoxville: University of Tennessee Press, 1981.
 McKee, Margaret, and Fred Chisenhall. Beale Black and Blue: Life and Music on Black America's Main Street. Baton Rouge: Louisiana State University Press, 1981.
 Wardlow, Gayle Dean. Chasin' That Devil Music: Searching for the Blues, edited by Ed Komara. San Francisco: Miller Freeman, 1998.

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSFP

Selected Recordings

- Mississippi Blues* (1987, Takoma 72701).
Sky Songs (1990, Arhoolie 323).
1963 Isn't 1962 (1994, Genes 9903).
The Complete Bukka White (1994, Columbia 52782).
Big Daddy (1996, Biograph 145).

WHITE, CLEVE "SCHOOLBOY CLEVE"

b. 10 June 1928; Baton Rouge, LA

Guitarist and harmonica player active in Louisiana in the 1950s. White performed and recorded with Lightnin' Slim for Feature in 1954. He moved to Los Angeles in about 1960, then to San Francisco ten years later.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Harris; Larkin

WHITE, GEORGIA

b. 9 March 1903; Sandersville, GA
 d. presumed ca. 1980

Vocalist/pianist; made one recording session as Georgia Lawson, possibly her real or married name. White worked Chicago clubs in late 1920s and 1930s when she was a star of Decca's race series with material such as "Trouble in Mind"/"I'll Keep Sittin' on It If I Can't Sell It" (1936, Decca 7192). She played piano in Big Bill Broonzy's Laughing Trio (1949–1950) and continued working around Chicago until at least 1959.

HOWARD RYE

Bibliography

AMG (Joslyn Layne); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli

Discography: DGR

WHITE, JOSHUA DANIEL “JOSH”

b. 11 February 1914; Greenville, SC
d. 5 September 1969; Manhasset, NY

Folk-bluesman whose career had two acts. Act one began in the Carolinas, where White served as “lead boy” and apprentice to a number of blind blues and gospel guitarists, including Blind Blake and Blind Joe Taggart, and became a virtuoso Piedmont-style guitarist who recorded both blues (usually under the pseudonym Pinewood Tom) and gospel (billed as Joshua White, The Singing Christian).

Act two was centered in New York City, where during the 1940s on the strength of his strong voice and undeniable charisma he became a fixture on the politically progressive, racially diverse coffeehouse and cabaret scene, along with artists such as Woody Guthrie, Leadbelly, Burl Ives, and Sonny Terry and Brownie McGhee. He continued to play straight blues but also performed folk ballads such as “John Henry,” protest songs such as “Free and Equal Blues,” and folk-pop such as “One Meatball.”

White had show business magnetism—his clarion voice was a powerful tool, and he used it to dramatic effect—and became an increasingly sophisticated performer and an international star, with appearances in radio, theater, film, and television. Having performed at the White House for Franklin Roosevelt, he performed there again two decades later for John Kennedy. He recorded prolifically during those years, including a long association in the late 1950s and early 1960s with Elektra. By 1963, he was America’s third-best-known male folksinger, ranked below only Harry Belafonte and Pete Seeger.

White’s character and determination enabled him to overcome major setbacks during his life, most notably an accident in the early 1930s that caused paralysis in one hand (through constant exercise and practice during a five-year period, he regained his guitar-playing ability) and ostracism in the United States during the McCarthy era of the early 1950s (he spent much of that decade playing for European audiences). His son Josh White, Jr. (b. 1940, New York), followed in his footsteps, becoming an accomplished folksinger and actor in his own right.

STEVE HOFFMAN

Bibliography

AMG (Barry Lee Pearson); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli; Southern Wald, Elijah. Josh White: Society Blues. Amherst: University of Massachusetts Press, 2000; New York: Routledge, 2002.

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSFP

WHITE, LYNN

b. 6 August 1953; Mobile, AL

Singer, songwriter. While other artists such as Koko Taylor, Denise LaSalle, and Etta James are often referred to as modern “Queens of the Blues,” Lynn White is a more recent vocal Queen—of Southern Soul Blues. Her style of singing is most heavily influenced by Aretha Franklin but also by Bessie Smith, Nina Simone, and Billie Holiday and by the spirituals she sang in her neighborhood church while growing up in Mobile.

Her first single, “Blues in My Bedroom” (1977), was produced by Big Ike Darby, a blues singer who later married White. Her records from Blues in My Bedroom (1982) up through Touching Me (1998) show a wide range of singing, from funky, down and dirty tunes such as “Home Girl” and “You Left Your Homework Undone” to slow, sensuous songs such as the Bessie Smith inspired “Slow and Easy” or “Take Your Time” and to powerful blues ballads such as her passionate rendition of Joe Simon’s “Your Time to Cry.” Her live, growling rendition of “Baby, What You Want Me to Do?” (available as a studio single from Icehouse Records) gives the pure “blues” listener a taste of White’s blues presence. However, Lynn’s best performances are live, so she should be near the top of any serious blues fan’s list of “have to see” artists.

JUSTIN WERT

Bibliography

Herzhaft; Larkin
Sharp, Steven. “Lynn White: We’re Carryin’ Blues into Another Dimension.” Living Blues no. 122 (July/August) 1995: 12–21.

Discography

Blues in My Bedroom (1982, Waylo 12121).
Slow and Easy (1985, Waylo 13001).
Home Girl (1991, Creative Funk 7011).
At Her Best (1999, Blues Works 5502).

WHITE, MISS LAVELLE

b. 3 July 1929; Amite, LA

Singer. A classic blues lounge chanteuse, White's career began in 1950 when she met guitarist Clarence Hollimon in Houston, where she had moved in her mid-teens. She became involved with the thriving Duke/Peacock Records scene, writing songs for Bobby "Blue" Bland and, with the assistance of Johnny Copeland, recording a couple of singles. She established herself as a live act, and after an extended residency at the Kingston Mines in Chicago she returned to Texas, ultimately moving to Austin in 1987, and recorded Miss Lavelle in 1994 and It Haven't Been Easy in 1996. White, who relocated to New Orleans in 2003, released Into the Mystic the same year.

MICHAEL POINT

Bibliography

AMG (Richard Skelly)

Steinberg, Brian. "Lavelle White: 'I Like to Write about Reality.'" Living Blues no. 125 (January/February 1996): 22–25.

Discography: AMGWIGGINS, PHIL

b. 8 May 1954; Washington, DC

Harmonica player; influenced by Sonny Terry, Sonny Boy Williamson II (Aleck Miller), Little Walter, Junior Wells, and Big Walter Horton, along with pianists and horn players.

Wiggins honed his skills performing with Mother Scott's band and accompanying street singer and guitarist Flora Molton. He met guitarist John Cephas in 1976 at the Smithsonian National Folklife Festival and formed the Barrelhouse Rockers with James Bellamy (bass) and Wilber "Big Chief" Ellis (piano).

After Ellis's death (1977), Phil and John formed the duo Cephas and Wiggins. Following in the footsteps of Sonny (Terry) and Brownie (McGhee), they were quickly heralded as contemporary bearers of the Piedmont style. Touring Europe and Africa (1981–1982), they soon developed an international reputation. Their recordings include two albums for the German Lippman & Rau's label (1981, 1983), three records for Flying Fish (1984, 1989, 1992), and three CDs to date for Alligator (Cool Down in 1996, Home-made in 1999, and Somebody Told the Truth in 2002). In 1986, they won two W. C. Handy Awards (Traditional Artists and Entertainers of the Year).

While Wiggins's melodic and highly rhythmic solos and energetic rhythmic accompaniments distinguish his harmonica style most clearly from other players, he employs a range of styles, from a spare, expressive approach to a more chordal one. In addition, Wiggins contributes vocal harmonies, occasionally sings lead, and has written some excellent songs, including "Evil Twin Blues," rich with traditional blues irony and humor, the poignant and timely "Cool Down" about teen violence, and the light-hearted and celebratory "Fools Night Out," an anthem at the week-long blues camp in Elkins, West Virginia, where he has been a core faculty member for many years.

MARIA V. JOHNSON

Bibliography

Garrigue, Andy. "Phil 'Harmonica' Wiggins." Blues Revue (Quarterly) no. 6 (Fall 1992): 17–21.

Discography: AMG (under Cephas)WILBORN, NELSON ("RED NELSON," "DIRTY RED")

b. 31 August 1907; Sumner, MS

Nelson Wilborn, better known as Red Nelson, or Dirty Red, was born in Sumner, Mississippi, in 1907. A fine, capable vocalist, he moved to Chicago in the early 1930s and was a prominent recording artist from 1935 to 1947. His recordings with pianist Clarence Lofton, especially "Streamline Train" and "Crying Mother Blues," are probably his best work. In the 1960s he performed locally with the Muddy Waters Band.

BOB HALL

Bibliography

Harris; Larkin

Discography: DGR; LSFPWILEY, GEECHIE

Active 1920s–1930s

Singer and guitarist who recorded for Paramount in 1930–1931. Among Wiley's few surviving songs are "Last Kind Words Blues" and "Eagles on a Half."

Ishman Bracey related to researcher Gayle Wardlow what little is certain about Wiley: She came from Natchez, Mississippi, lived in Jackson during the late 1920s, where her lover was Charlie McCoy, and left Jackson shortly after the time of her Paramount sessions. Her guitar style suggests she performed with and learned from musicians in the east Texas–south Louisiana–southwest Mississippi strip.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Wardlow, Gayle Dean. "Six Who Made Recorded History." 78 Quarterly no. 5 (Autumn 1990): 93–96.

Discography: DGR

WILKINS, JOE WILLIE

- b. 7 January 1923; Davenport, MS
- d. 28 March 1979; Memphis, TN

Although not a major figure in the genesis of the blues, Joe Willie Wilkins played an important role in the development of this musical genre. Wilkins incorporated in his playing the intensity of down-home blues, the elegance of jazz, and the power of urban sounds. His achievement transcends the quantity of recordings he left and has more to do with quality and originality.

The only child of Frank Wilkins, an accomplished bottleneck guitarist, Joe Willie became interested in music at a very early age. Young Wilkins taught himself harmonica and often played with his father at local parties and dances in the Bobo, Mississippi, area, where his family had moved in 1933 to work on a farm. After being taught some fiddle by "Fiddlin'" Sam Harris and accordion by Walter "Pat" Rhodes, Wilkins learned guitar from his father, the members in his band, and phonograph records so well that he was nicknamed "The Walking Seeburg" (a brand of jukebox).

After playing in the Mississippi streets and barrel-houses with Sonny Boy Williamson II (Aleck Miller) and Robert Lockwood, Wilkins briefly served in the U.S. Navy. From 1942 he regularly participated with his mentors and other fellow musicians in the famous radio program King Biscuit Time over KFFA in Helena, Arkansas, and with Robert Nighthawk (whose sister he married) in the Bright Star Flour show. At the end of the decade Wilkins often toured the South with a group known as the Four Aces (Sonny Boy Williamson II, Willie Love, Willie Nix).

Wilkins first entered a studio as late as 1951, when he played guitar on the historical recordings Sonny Boy Williamson II made for Lillian McMurry's Trumpet Records in Jackson, Mississippi, where Wilkins acted as house guitarist for two years. Thanks to his eclecticism and flair, Wilkins recorded as sideman for many artists, such as Willie Love and Arthur "Big Boy" Crudup (for Trumpet), Walter Horton (for Modern), Willie Nix (for Sun), and Roosevelt Sykes, with whom he toured into the 1960s. The latter proved difficult years for Wilkins, though. In 1959 his father died and Joe Willie moved from West Memphis to Memphis, where he worked mostly outside music until about 1970. Despite bad health, Wilkins took up guitar again as a result of his wife Carrie's encouragement and of blues writer and promoter Jim O'Neal's support, often playing with Houston Stackhouse. Wilkins also made appearances at the Ann Arbor Blues and Jazz Festival and at the Memphis River City Blues Festival.

In 1973 Steve LaVere's Mimosa label released Wilkins's first recordings under his own name, a 45 rpm that included his most representative song, "Mr. Downchild," one of the rare occasions on which he ventured to play slide guitar and sing. A full-length album released by Adamo that included some live performances cut with his King Biscuit Boys at the Memphis Blues Caravan Show followed. In 1976 Wilkins also played the Monterey Jazz Festival and appeared in the Giles Oakley BBC Television series The Devil's Music: A History of the Blues.

LUIGI MONGE

Bibliography

- AMG (Eugene Chadbourne); Harris; Larkin; Santelli; Southern Huggins, Cilla. "Obituary: Joe Willie Wilkins." Blues Unlimited no. 134 (March/June 1979): 12–13.
O'Neal, Jim. "Joe Willie Wilkins." Living Blues no. 11 (Winter 1972/1973): 13–17.
———. "Joe Willie Wilkins, 1923–1979." Living Blues no. 42 (January/February 1979): 8–9.

WILKINS, LANE

- b. 15 June 1955; Memphis, TN

Singer, guitarist, writer. Wilkins is the granddaughter and biographer of Reverend Robert Wilkins and a lecturer on Memphis music history.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

- Wilkins, Lane. 1964: To Profit a Man. Memphis, TN: Museum Publishing, 1995.
———. "Keeping the Promise." Living Blues no. 127 (May/June 1996): 48–52.

WILKINS, REVEREND ROBERT TIMOTHY "TIM"

b. 16 January 1896; Hernando, MS
d. 26 May 1987; Memphis, TN

Singer, composer, and guitar player of blues and gospel in the Memphis tradition. In his early twenties, "Tim" Wilkins leaned to play guitar with his friends Jim Jackson and Frank Stokes. At thirty two, Wilkins released his first recording (and biggest success from that period), titled "Rolling Stone" (a song completely different from the Muddy Waters song), in 1928. Among his nineteen sides for Vocalion, Victor, and Brunswick, he released "That's No Way to Get Along" (1929), a song that he would later revise to tell the parable of the prodigal son. Although it went unnoticed at the time, the song would later make Wilkins popular.

In 1936, Robert "Tim" Wilkins allegedly quit music after witnessing a violent altercation while he was playing in a private house. His last recording from that period remains "Dirty Deal Blues" (1935). It was in 1950 that Robert Wilkins became a minister of the Church of God in Christ, a predominantly African American Pentecostal denomination.

In 1964 Robert Wilkins was still a minister and gave advice about herb medicine. He recorded for the Piedmont label Memphis Gospel Singer, an LP composed of eight folk/gospel songs, with Wilkins accompanied only by his acoustic guitar. Wilkins also took part in the Newport Festival and performed a song from that album, titled "Prodigal Son."

The song "Prodigal Son" appeared on the Rolling Stones' album Beggars Banquet (1968), with the same title, melody, and lyrics but without the mention of its composer's name. Both parties went to court and came to a settlement: Wilkins's name would appear as the sole author on all subsequent reprints of the Rolling Stones' LP. Moreover, the British group played "Prodigal Son" along with Robert Johnson's "Love in Vain" during their American tour in 1969.

Reverend Robert Wilkins was not a prolific composer or a popular artist. His records have always been hard to find. His early work nevertheless remains a fine representation of Memphis blues, and his later gospel/folk releases have been highly acclaimed and influential. He passed away at ninety.

YVES LABERGE

Bibliography

AMG (Eugene Chadbourne); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli
Humphrey, Mark. Liner notes to Robert Wilkins, Memphis Gospel Singer (1983, OJL 8052; reissue of the 1964 Piedmont album).

Welding, Pete. "Tapescripts: Interview with Robert Wilkins." John Edwards Memorial Foundation Newsletter 2 (1967): 54–60.

Wilkins, Mary E. "Lane." 1964: To Profit a Man. Memphis, TN: Museum Publishing, 1995.

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSFP

See also Piedmont (label); Rolling Stones

WILLIAMS, ANDRE "MR. RHYTHM"

b. Zephare Andre Williams, 1 November 1936; Bessemer, AL

Vocals, composer, arranger, producer. Andre Williams ("Mr. Rhythm") sang on local hits for Detroit's Fortune Records in the mid-1950s, was a staff producer for Motown, Mercury, Duke, and Stax, and captivated a new audience in the 1990s as "The Black Godfather."

JOHN SINCLAIR

Bibliography

AMG (Andrew Hamilton)
Dahl, Bill. "Andre Williams: Mr. Rhythm Is Back." Living Blues no. 137 (January/February 1998): 38–48.
Paulus, George. "Andre 'Mr. Rhythm' Williams Comes Clean about Jail Bait, Bacon Fat, Pullin' Time and Greasy Chickens." Blues & Rhythm no. 108 (April 1996): 4–8 [part 1]; no. 109 (May 1996): 4–9 [part 2].

Discography: AMG

WILLIAMS, ANDY "TOO-HARD"

b. Unknown
Active since 1959

Left-handed guitarist active in Houston, Texas. Williams grew up in Sunnyside, Texas. He moved to Seattle, Washington, in 1959 to work at Boeing. There he encountered Jimi Hendrix, who showed him how to restring a guitar for a left-handed performer. He moved to Los Angeles in 1969, then to Houston in 1977. His nickname came from a Houston music writer who commented that Williams played "too hard."

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Vest, David. "Andy 'Too-Hard' Williams." Living Blues no. 140 (July/August 1998): 54–55.

WILLIAMS, ARBESS

WILLIAMS, ARBESS

b. 23 May 1946; San Diego, CA

Powerful Sacramento-based vocalist and songwriter. Williams worked in music in San Diego until 1979, when she moved to Sacramento. After some years outside music she began to work with Johnny Heartsman and with the Silent Partners and then formed her own band, recording two albums for the Have Mercy label.

RAY ASTBURY

Bibliography

Jung, Maureen. "Sacramento Blues, Part One." Living Blues no. 114 (April 1994): 58–65, esp. 64–65.

Selected Recordings

Don't You Call Me Mama (Have Mercy HMCD-02).

See also Heartsman, Johnny

WILLIAMS, ARTHUR LEE "OSCAR MISSISSIPPI"

b. 8 July 1937; Tunica, MS

Chicago-raised harmonica player Arthur Williams backed Elmore James and Eddie Taylor before he returned to Mississippi in 1958 and recorded with Frank Frost and Sam Carr for Jewel in 1966. Settling in St. Louis in 1972, he recorded for the Fedora and Rooster labels. In the 1990s, he performed regularly with Big Bad Smitty.

GENE TOMKO

Bibliography

Slotnikoff, Joel. "Harpin' on It: Arthur Williams, Big Bad Smitty's Harmonica Player Talks to Joel Slotnikoff." Blues & Rhythm no. 78 (April 1993): 14–16.

Discography: LSFP

Ain't Goin' Down (2000, Fedora FCD 5019).
Midnight Blue (2001, Rooster CD 2646).

WILLIAMS, "BIG" JOE LEE

b. 16 October 1899 (or 1903); Crawford, MS

d. 17 December 1982; Macon, MS

Big Joe played a nine-string guitar and growled the blues for more than four decades, finally coming to represent the epitome of the Delta bluesman. As his career drew to a close, he had established a legacy on 78-rpm releases as well as on more than twenty LPs. His theme song, "Baby, Please Don't Go," has become a blues standard.

Big Joe Williams in the studio at Columbia Records, Chicago, in 1947. (Photo courtesy of Frank Driggs Collection)

Life

Big Joe Williams, also known as Po' Joe Williams, Joe Lee Williams, or simply Joe Williams, should not be confused with the jazz singer Joe Williams, who performed with Count Basie. Big Joe, as he came to be known in his later years, was the paradigmatic wandering blues singer, one of sixteen children born to Cora Lee Williams and John Williams. He was part Native American (on his father's side), while from his mother and her family he inherited his musical disposition. His grandfather Bert Logan as well as his uncles Bert and Russ Logan all sang blues, as did his cousin Jesse Logan.

Joe's first instrument was a home-made guitar, but he experimented with the flute and the accordion as well. By the time he reached his late teens, he was a competent and skilled musician. His father was replaced by a stepfather in 1918, and the latter's hostility forced Joe out of the house. The unhappy years were memorialized in Joe's "Stepfather Blues." After staying with the Logans for a short period of time, Joe struck out on his own. Between working for the Doc Bennett Medicine Show in Mobile, Alabama, shortly after leaving home and playing with the Birmingham Jug Band in the Rabbit Foot Minstrels traveling show nearly a decade later, Joe worked the rough-and-tumble world of levee camps, mining camps, logging camps, juke joints, and barrelhouses.

Joe's base was still the Delta farmlands, but he traveled throughout the country, playing at turpentine camps, country suppers, and anywhere there was a dollar to be made. He met bluesmen Charlie Patton, David "Honeyboy" Edwards, Tommy McClennan, and other Mississippi musicians before putting down roots in St. Louis, where he had a cousin, J. D. Short. Joe was soon part of the Lester Melrose stable of blues artists, and he continued to work for Melrose for another ten years or so, often acting as a scout and returning to the Delta to bring back blues singers to record.

Joe had an active recording career, which may have been slowing down in the 1950s, but the folk revival soon took him up as a hero, and before long he was turning out frequent LPs and traveling to Europe and Japan either on his own or as part of blues package tours. During these years, he spent as much time in Chicago as he did in the South, but by 1982 he was back in Mississippi again, where he died at the age of eighty three.

Music and Influence

Big Joe had several trademarks, among which were his nine-string guitar and his theme song, "Baby, Please Don't Go." At times, Joe played a six-string guitar, usually in open G or "Spanish" tuning, but it was most often a six-string guitar to which he had added three more strings, usually doubling in unison the first, second, and fourth strings; this unique arrangement resulted in an unusual and characteristic sound, making his playing instantly recognizable.

He adapted the work song "Another Man Done Gone" into his own blues piece, "Baby, Please Don't Go." He first recorded it at his second Bluebird session in 1935, but he did not obtain a copyright on it until 1943. He renewed the copyright in 1963. He continued to play "Baby, Please Don't Go" until the end of his career.

His recording career properly began a few months before the above session, however, when he and another St. Louis artist, Henry Townsend, accompanied pianist Walter Davis on eight sides for the Victor subsidiary Bluebird, on February 25, 1935. When Davis had finished, Joe and Townsend continued to record six songs released under the name Joe Williams. Among these was "My Grey Pony," a version of Charlie Patton's "Pony Blues," and "49 Highway Blues," the first version of several Joe would record, and another piece that came to be identified with Big Joe. Few highway blues were recorded in the 1920s, and only several preceded Big Joe's in the 1930s (Sonny Scott, Jack Kelly), but none of these obtained the fame that Big Joe's "49 Highway Blues" did.

Joe began to record with Sonny Boy Williamson (John Lee Williamson) at his third Bluebird session, in May of 1937 at the Leland Hotel in Aurora, Illinois. Theirs was a partnership that would continue on and off until Sonny Boy's murder in 1948. Sonny Boy nearly always accompanied Big Joe at Joe's recording sessions, but Williamson's own sessions used other guitar players such as Tampa Red, Willie Lacey, or Big Bill Broonzy.

Big Joe's earliest solo guitar work tended to be both frenetic and jagged, each note having a percussiveness often found in St. Louis-based country blues guitarists. His early sides with Sonny Boy were characterized by more control and a more subtle interplay between the harmonica and guitar. By 1947, when Joe began to record for Columbia—still under the aegis of Lester Melrose—his sides took on a hard, driving combo sound, supported by the powerful drumming of Judge Riley.

On his 1951 sides for the Trumpet label, Joe's guitar was again given well-deserved solo status, and this was the sound that carried him through the folk revival years until his death. His recordings for Delmark, Arhoolie, and Folkways stand out (the latter recorded by Robert Koester of Delmark) as superior work by a superior artist.

PAUL GARON

Bibliography

AMG (Barry Lee Pearson); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli; Southern Bloomfield, Michael, and S. Summerville. Me and Big Joe.
San Francisco: Re/Search Productions, 1980.
Moon, D. Thomas. "Big Joe Williams." Blues Revue no. 16 (March/April 1995): 36–46.

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSFP

Selected Recordings

"Baby Please Don't Go" (1935, Bluebird 6200).
"49 Highway Blues" (1935, Bluebird 5996).
Piney Wood Blues (1989, Delmark DD-602).
Shake Your Boogie (1993, Arhoolie CD315; contains all of Tough Times [1960, Arhoolie LP 1002]).

WILLIAMS, BILL

WILLIAMS, BILL

b. 28 February 1897; Richmond, VA
d. 6 October 1973; Greenup, KY

Guitarist of songster material including blues, rag-time, ballads, and popular music. Williams was discovered when he was seventy three. He recorded two albums and performed occasional concerts and television shows.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Harris; Larkin
Ware, Burnham. "Bill Williams" [obituary]. Living Blues no. 15 (Winter 1973/1974): 6–7.

WILLIAMS, CHARLES MELVIN "COOTIE"

b 10 July 1911; Mobile, AL
d 15 September 1985; New York City, NY

Trumpeter Cootie Williams rose to prominence in the 1930s performing with the Duke Ellington Orchestra. His unprecedented expressiveness combined the blues with a strong swinging rhythmic sense and the use of various mutes, including the growl and plunger.

Throughout his expansive career he performed with leading figures in jazz and blues, including Ellington, Bud Powell, Charlie Parker, Benny Goodman, Eddie "Lockjaw" Davis, George Treadwell, Joe Guy, Money Johnson, and many others.

JASON ROBINSON

Bibliography

New Grove Jazz

Discography: Lord

WILLIAMS, CLARENCE

b. 8 October, probably 1893; Plaquemine, LA
d. 6 November 1965; New York City, NY

Pianist, singer, dancer, composer, record producer, and music publisher. In terms of blues, Williams was an outstanding accompanist for singers Bessie Smith, his wife Eva Taylor, and many others. He was equally important as a promoter, publishing numerous blues compositions in the 1920s and 1930s.

PETER MUIR

Bibliography

Larkin; New Grove Jazz; Santelli
Graziano, John. "Williams, Clarence." In International Dictionary of Black Composers, edited by Samuel Floyd. pp. 1207–1225. Chicago: Fitzroy Dearborn, 1999.

Discography: DGR; Lord

As Soloist

"Decatur Street Blues" (1921, Chappelle and Stinette 5005); "The Weary Blues" (1923, OKeh 4893); "Gravier Street Blues" (1924, OKeh 40172); "Temptation Blues" (1924, OKeh 8204); "Organ Grinder Blues" (1928, OKeh 8604); "Farm Hand Papa" (1928, Columbia 14341-D); "Michigan Water Blues" (1930, OKeh 8806).

As Bandleader (selected)

"Wild Cat Blues"/"Kansas City Man Blues" (1923, OKeh 4915); "'Tain't Nobody's Bus'nness If I Do" (1923, OKeh 4966); "Coal Cart Blues"/"Santa Claus Blues" (1925, OKeh 8245); "Jackass Blues" (1926, OKeh 40598); "P. D. Q. Blues" (1927, Vocalion 1088); "Longshoreman's Blues" (1928, QRS R-7040); "Beer Garden Blues" (1933, Vocalion/OKeh 2541); "Crazy Blues" (1934, Ban 33261); "Milk Cow Blues" (1935, Vocalion 2927); "Yama Yama Blues" (1935, Vocalion 2991).

As Accompanist (selected artists)

Bessie Smith, Mamie Smith, Eva Taylor, Sippie Wallace (see DGR for discographies).

WILLIAMS, ED "LIL' ED"

b. 8 April 1955; Chicago, IL

Contemporary Chicago bluesman Lil' Ed Williams's slash and burn approach to slide guitar playing has earned him an international reputation with his band the Blues Imperials. Williams learned the craft from his uncle, legendary slide master J. B. Hutto, and was playing professionally with the Imperials by 1975. Bandmate and half-brother James "Pookie" Young was a student of Hutto's also. The pair worked menial day jobs as they struggled to make it in the West Side clubs, earning a steady spot at Big Duke's Blue Flame. They established a solid regional fan base during the 1970s with their raucous brand of up-tempo blues-rock, and their reputation as a band of infectious energy soon caught the attention of Alligator Records' Bruce Iglauer, who signed them in 1985.

Early recording sessions with Iglauer intended for a multiartist compilation were so dazzling that an agreement to record a full-length album was made on the spot. The recordings that became the Imperials' first Alligator release, Roughhousin', were made in one evening; they document a confident band of crack musicians playing with fire, spontaneity, and gusto. With the assistance of major label promotion, the band toured nationally on college, club, and festival circuits. Later they would tour Canada, Europe, and Japan, garnering a loyal following of self-proclaimed “Ed heads” wherever they went. The Imperials continued to record for Alligator, with five albums as of 2002. During a hiatus in the mid-1990s, Williams recorded two CDs with Earwig Records.

JOHN OTIS

Bibliography

AMG (Jim O’Neal and Sandra Brennan); Larkin; Santelli Wilcock, Donald E. “Lil’ Ed Williams.” Living Blues no. 95 (January/February 1991): 18–22.

Discography: AMG

WILLIAMS, EMERY

(See Detroit Junior)

WILLIAMS, GEORGE “BULLET”

b. Unknown
d. Unknown

Flourished 1928–1930; harmonica player thought to be from Alabama, active across north Alabama and north Mississippi, including the Delta. Williams’s 1928 Paramount label recordings of “The Escaped Convict” and “Frisco Leaving Birmingham” are known for their imitative effects of shrieks and trains. Much of what is known about him is related by Bukka White, who traveled with him in 1928–1930.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Stephens, Cal. “Booker White on Bullet Williams.” 78 Quarterly no. 6 (1991): 83–85.

Discography: DGR

WILLIAMS, HENRY “RUBBERLEGS”

b. Henry Williamson, 14 July 1907; Atlanta, GA
d. 17 October 1962; New York City, NY

Singer and dancer in the 1920s–1940s vaudeville and club circuits. Williams recorded for the labels Continental, Manor, and Savoy in 1945. The Continental session is celebrated in bebop jazz lore: Williams drank by mistake saxophonist Charlie Parker’s coffee and Benzedrine mixture, then sang under heightened influence.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Harris; New Grove Jazz

Discography: Lord

WILLIAMS, J. MAYO

b. 25 September 1894; Monmouth, IL
d. 2 January 1980; Chicago, IL

One of the few African American music executives in the first half of the twentieth century, Williams signed so many blues stars to recording contracts with Paramount, Brunswick/Vocalion, and Decca in the 1920s and 1930s that he acquired the nickname “Ink.” A talent scout and producer, he worked mostly out of Chicago, with forays to New York.

He entered the music business around 1923–1924, when the fledging Paramount label hired him to spearhead its “race” series at its newly opened Chicago office. His first major signings were two popular singers from the black vaudeville circuit, Ma Rainey and Ida Cox. Within three years, he added two of the most talented rural blues artists, Blind Lemon Jefferson and Blind Blake, to Paramount’s roster. He also set up the Chicago Music Publishing Company, the label’s publishing arm, which reportedly paid flat fees rather than royalties to its songwriters.

Leaving Paramount in 1927, he launched his own label, Black Patti, which quickly folded. He then linked with the Chicago-based Brunswick/Balke/Collender company, which launched two race series under Jack Kapp’s direction on its newly established Brunswick label and its newly acquired Vocalion label. Williams’s signings for Brunswick/Vocalion included Leroy Carr and Scrapper Blackwell, Tampa Red and Georgia Tom (Dorsey), Memphis Minnie and Kansas Joe (McCoy), and Bertha “Chippie” Hill. Huge hits such as Leroy Carr’s “How Long How Long Blues” and Tampa Red & Georgia Tom’s “It’s Tight Like That” (both 1928) cemented Williams’s reputation within the blues industry.

With the Great Depression taking its toll on the record industry and Brunswick sold to new owners, Williams left music to coach football at Morehouse College in 1932 but returned two years later and was reunited with Jack Kapp, who had been hired to operate the new Decca label, with offices in Chicago and New York. During the next seven years, with Williams scouting talent and supervising sessions, Decca released hundreds of rural and urban blues sides by artists such as Memphis Minnie, Kokomo Arnold, Peetie Wheatstraw, Georgia White, Sleepy John Estes, the Harlem Hamfats, Blind Boy Fuller, Alberta Hunter, and Trixie Smith. Some of these artists Williams had worked with at his prior labels. Perhaps his most notable signing to Decca was future superstar Louis Jordan, who was a relative unknown leading the house band at the Elks Rendezvous club in Harlem when Williams first recorded him in December 1938.

After leaving Decca in the mid-1940s, Williams ran a series of small, independent labels, including Ebony Records in Chicago and Harlem Records in New York, and continued doing so with limited success until ill health forced his retirement in the early 1970s.

Before entering the music industry, Williams made his mark in athletics. A track star and All-American football player at Brown University, he was (along with Paul Robeson and Fritz Pollard) one of three blacks to play in the National Football League's first season (1920).

Like many music executives of his day, Williams was alleged to be less than scrupulous in his business practices, withholding royalties and taking songwriting credits. In his own defense, he stated: "I've been better than fifty percent honest, which in this business is pretty good."

STEVE HOFFMAN

Bibliography

- Larkin; Southern
Calt, Stephen. "Paramount, Part 2. Anatomy of a Race Label: The Mayo Williams Era." 78 Quarterly no. 4 (1989): 9-30.
Dixon, Robert, and John Godrich. Recording the Blues. New York: Stein & Day, 1970.

WILLIAMS, JABO

- b. Unknown
d. Unknown

Jabo Williams was a highly talented pianist/vocalist hailing from Birmingham, Alabama, which is probably where he was discovered by Paramount in 1932. A contemporary photograph of Williams shows him in a wide-brimmed hat and in the company of guitarist Robert McCoy (Robert Nighthawk). Williams also spent some time in St. Louis and was well remembered by pianist Joe Dean as a slim, medium-brown man who played piano in a pool hall on 15th and Biddle. His later whereabouts are unknown.

Williams's recordings were released in the depth of the depression and are desperately rare. They reveal him to be a forthright, two-handed pianist in the barrelhouse tradition, who used mostly eight-to-the-bar boogie bass patterns and highly individual treble phrases, including a characteristic coda with which he ended many of his pieces. "Ko Ko Mo Blues Parts 1 and 2" has similarities to the later "Sweet Home Chicago" and is a medium boogie with a lazy, slurred vocal. "Pratt City Blues," which is a different tune from the Chippie Hill title, refers to a suburb of the Ensley District of Birmingham. Both this boogie and the stride "Jab Blues" are outstanding instrumental compositions with a relentless drive.

"My Woman Blues" and "Pollock Blues" revert to medium boogie tempo, the latter taking its name from a part of East St. Louis. Williams shared a disregard of bar lengths with his fellow Birmingham pianist Walter Roland, who subsequently recorded another of Williams's songs, "House Lady Blues." "Fat Mama Blues" is a bawdy house song having a lyrical piano melody and an unusual bass line, ending with a characteristic Williams coda.

BOB HALL

Bibliography

Santelli

Discography: DGR

WILLIAMS, JIMMY LEE

b. 26 July 1925; Worth County, GA

The uncle of famed harp player Buster Brown, Jimmy Lee Williams lived on a farm, playing and singing the blues on the side. As with many Georgia bluesmen, he was discovered and recorded by George Mitchell in the late 1970s. That led him to more recordings and a recognition from the blues world for his deep down-home blues style.

GÉRARD HERZHAFT

Bibliography

- Mitchell, George. Blow My Blues Away. New York: Da Capo Press, 1984.
Wilmer, Valerie. "Still Got the Blues." Blues Unlimited no. 133 (January/February 1979): 16-20.

Discography

- Georgia Blues Today* (1981, Flyright LP 576).
Blues by Jimmy Lee Williams (1988, Swingmaster LP 2115).

WILLIAMS, JOE

b. Joseph Goreed, 12 December 1918; Cordele, GA
d. 29 March 1999; Las Vegas, NV

Vocalist and pianist. Williams began his career in Chicago performing with gospel quartets. He toured from the 1930s until the 1960s, including with bands led by Jimmie Noone, Coleman Hawkins, Lionel Hampton, and Count Basie. The years 1954 to 1961, during which Williams performed with Count Basie's band, established his reputation as a blues and jazz singer. His first international hit was Memphis Slim's "Everyday I Have the Blues." In 1961 Williams began a solo career that continued well into the 1990s.

ROBERT WEBB FRY II

Bibliography

AMG (John Bush); Harris; Larkin; New Grove Jazz; Santelli; Southern
Chilton, John. Who's Who of Jazz: Storyville to Swing Street, 4th ed. London: Macmillan; New York: Da Capo, 1985.
Gourse, Leslie. Every Day: The Story of Joe Williams. New York: Quartet Books, 1985.

Discography: Lord; LSFPSelected Recordings

Memories ad Lib (1958, Roulette 52021).
Everyday I Have the Blues (1959, Roulette 52033).
Just the Blues (1960, Roulette 52054).
Here's to Life (1993, Telarc 83357)

WILLIAMS, JOHNNY (1)

b. 15 January 1942; Tyler, TX
d. December 1986

Soul-style singer. Williams moved to Chicago in 1956, where he remained based. He recorded for Chess in 1966, Twinight in 1967, and Bashie in 1969, but his lone national rhythm and blues hit was "Slow Motion Part 1" in 1972 for Philadelphia International.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Larkin

WILLIAMS, JOHNNY (2)

b. 15 May 1906; Alexandria, LA

Singer and guitarist associated with Little Walter, Johnny Young, and various Chicago Maxwell Street musicians of the 1940s. After a conversion experience in 1959, he entered the Baptist ministry. Although no longer performing blues, he remains a valuable informant to historians.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Brisbin, John Anthony. "Uncle Johnny Williams: Bein' Regular with the People." Living Blues no. 127 (May/June 1996): 28–41.

WILLIAMS, JOSEPH "JO JO"

b. 1920; Coahoma MS

Guitarist. Williams was raised initially in the Mississippi Delta, where in the 1930s he saw Son House and Willie Brown perform. He lived in Memphis during the 1940s, moving to Chicago in 1953. Much of his known career has been with Lazy Bill Lucas and Mojo Buford. His activity since the 1970s is unknown.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Harris; Larkin
Titon, Jeff. "'All Pretty Wimmins': JoJo Williams." Blues Unlimited no. 64 (July 1969): 13–14 [part 1]; no. 65 (September 1969): 13–14 [part 2].

Discography: LSFPWILLIAMS, JOSEPH LEON "JODY"

b. 3 February 1935; Mobile, AL

One of Chicago's first great electric blues guitarists, Jody Williams played harmonica as a child but switched to guitar in his teens after meeting Bo Diddley at a talent show and hanging out with Muddy Waters in clubs. Influenced by the single-string solos of T-Bone Walker and B. B. King and the jazzy sophistication of Charles Brown's guitarist Johnny Moore, the versatile Williams became a Chess studio guitarist.

While leading Howlin' Wolf's band in 1954, Williams played on Wolf classics such as "Evil," "Who Will Be Next?" and "Forty Four" and added scorching guitar to Diddley tunes such as "Who Do You Love?" "Mona," and "Hey, Bo Diddley." Recording for small labels, often under pseudonyms, he recorded his own tunes such as "Lucky Lou" and "You May" while continuing to record with Billy Boy Arnold, Otis Spann, Otis Rush (who turned "Lucky Lou" into "All Your Love"), Billy Stewart (whom he discovered), B. B. King, Floyd Dixon, Jimmy Rogers, and others. He also toured with Bobby Bland, Junior Parker, Memphis Slim, and Charles Brown.

WILLIAMS, JOSEPH LEON "JODY"

Disgusted with the music business after unsuccessfully suing an imitator, he quit playing music in 1970 to raise a family and worked for twenty-four years as an electronics technician at Xerox and for a few years after that as a bank-machine troubleshooter. In the late 1990s, encouraged by a growing interest in classic Chicago blues, he again appeared in clubs, played festivals in Europe, and recorded, showing renewed power as a guitarist, songwriter, and singer.

MARK HOFFMAN/JAMES SEGREST

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; Larkin
Whiteis, David. "Jody Williams: An Unsung Guitar Hero Returns." Living Blues no. 161 (January/February 2002): 10–18.

Discography: AMG

WILLIAMS, L. C.

b. 12 March 1924; Crockett, TX
d. 18 October 1960; Houston, TX

Harris gives the birth year as 1930. A deep voiced singer and tap dancer, Williams was one of the cohorts surrounding Lightnin' Hopkins, who made it possible for him to cut some incredibly down-home sides under his own name. Somehow, L. C. managed also to record Texas rhythm and blues tracks such as the jumping "Louisiana Boogie," his only hit. L. C. died of tuberculosis.

GÉRARD HERZHAFT

Bibliography

Harris; Larkin
Oliver, Paul, and Mack McCormick. "L. C. Williams." Jazz Monthly no. 1 (March 1961): 15.

Discography: LSFP

Reissues include Texas Blues (1992, Arhoolie CD 352); Texas Guitar Killers (Capitol 72438 33915).

WILLIAMS, LARRY

b. 10 May 1935; New Orleans, LA
d. 2 January 1980; Los Angeles, CA

R&B pianist/singer Larry Williams signed with Specialty Records in 1957 as a replacement for Little Richard, who had left the label to become a minister. He had a few hits in Richard's style, including "Short Fat Fanny" (Specialty 608) and "Bony Moronie" (Specialty 615) and would later be admired by John Lennon of the Beatles. Williams's career had a brief renaissance in the 1960s as a duet partner with Johnny "Guitar" Watson. He continued in music as a performer and record producer until his death. The circumstances surrounding his death by a gunshot wound to the head remain mysterious, and his death date has been reported variously as January 2, 7, or 10, 1980.

MORRIS S. LEVY

Bibliography

AMG (Stephen Erlewine); Larkin

Discography: AMG; LSFP

Selected Recording in Reissue

Bad Boy (1992, Specialty 7002).

WILLIAMS, LEE "SHOT"

b. 21 May 1938; Lexington, MS

Vocalist. Williams sang gospel as a youth, but he also admired R&B artists such as Louis Jordan, Hank Ballard, and Bobby "Blue" Bland. After moving to Chicago in the late 1950s, he worked with musicians such as harpist Little Mack Simmons and guitarist Little Smokey Smothers. He eventually joined Magic Sam's band, in which he and Sam shared bandleader duties, forming a combination that fused the rawness of Sam's West Side guitar style with Williams's gruff-voiced but urbane soulfulness. He also worked for a time with guitarist Earl Hooker.

In the early 1960s Williams recorded for deejay Richard Stamz's Foxy label; he also cut four sides on Federal (one of which, "Welcome to the Club," was later covered by Little Milton). His biggest local hit, though, was "I Like Your Style," recorded in about 1969 on Syl Johnson's Shama imprint. His first album, released in 1997 on the TK label, sold moderately; he recorded a few sides for small labels in the 1980s, and then in 1995 he cut Cold Shot (Black Magic), a disk that introduced him to the predominantly white international blues audience. But he remains primarily based on the Southern U.S. chitlin circuit.

Since the mid-1990s he has recorded on Ecko (including 1996's waggishly titled Hot Shot) and, more recently, Wilson, a label owned by Mississippi-based soul/blues vocalist Charles Wilson. Williams maintains close contact with his old Chicago stomping grounds, dropping into joints such as Guess Who's Water Hole on the West Side whenever he is in town. He also occasionally plays festivals, both domestically and overseas.

DAVID WHITEIS

Bibliography

AMG (Richard Skelly); Harris Lillsunde, Anders. "Lee 'Shot' Williams: A Piece of Music History." Jefferson Magazine Online, 2004, <http://www.jeffersonbluesmag.com/arkiv/leeshotwilliamsenglish.htm>.
Sharp, Steven. "Lee Shot Williams: Gold Blues." Living Blues no. 121 (May/June 1995): 44–49.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

WILLIAMS, LESTER

b. 24 June 1920; Groveton, TX
d. 13 November 1990; Houston, TX

Electric guitarist inspired by Texas artist T-Bone Walker. Lester's first single, "Wintertime Blues," was recorded for Macy's label, and his 1952 hit "I Can't Lose with the Stuff I Use," covered by B. B. King, led to an appearance at Carnegie Hall. He remained active locally and toured Europe in 1986.

STEPHANIE POXON

Bibliography

AMG (Jason Ankeny); Harris; Larkin Govenar, Alan. Meeting the Blues. Dallas: Taylor Publishing Company, 1988.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

See also Walker, T-Bone

WILLIAMS, NATHAN

b. 24 March 1963; St. Martinville, LA

Williams is a protégé of Buckwheat Zydeco and the younger brother of Sid Williams, the owner of El Sid O's Blues and Zydeco club in Lafayette, Louisiana, where he replaced Buckwheat as the house band. One of a younger generation of zydeco accordionists with a more urban sound than Keith Frank, his recordings with his band the Zydeco Cha-Chas has helped him establish a national reputation.

JARED SNYDER

Bibliography

Tisserand, Michael. The Kingdom of Zydeco. New York: Arcade Publishing, 1998.

Discography: AMG

See also Buckwheat Zydeco

WILLIAMS, PAUL "HUCKLEBUCK"

b. 13 July 1915; Lewisberg, TN
d. 14 September 2002; New York City, NY

Alto and baritone saxophonist. Raised in Detroit, Williams played in school bands at Northeastern High and Cass Technical High. A five-year residency at the Morris Cafe with trumpeter Lloyd "Chainey" Henderson ended in 1941. He played with Clarence Dorsey at the Sensation Club in 1945, then joined King Porter. He formed his own band in 1947 and in September with "Hastings Street Bounce" (Savoy 659) began a long series of jump/R&B recordings on Savoy until 1951 (some under the name of tenor saxophonist Wild Bill Moore) and on other labels up to 1956. From 1952 Noble Watts was the tenor saxophonist. Williams was mainly featured on baritone sax.

The success of "The Huckle Buck" (1948, Savoy 683) in the R&B charts led to nationwide touring, often in package shows accompanying a wide variety of singers, with the basic eight-piece band enlarged as needed. They were the house band for the Showtime at the Apollo TV series (1955) and can be seen in compilations derived from it. He accompanied Ruth Brown at Small's Paradise, New York, in 1958, but in the early 1960s worked mainly with soul artists, giving up music altogether in 1964. From 1968, he ran a booking agency in New York.

HOWARD RYE

Bibliography

AMG (Ron Wynn); New Grove Jazz; Santelli Grendysa, Pete. Liner notes to Paul Williams and His Orchestra, The Hucklebuck (1981, Saxophonograph BP500 [Sweden]).
Oess, Attila. Liner notes to Paul Williams and His Hucklebuckers, Spider Sent Me (1988, Saxophonograph BP510 [Sweden]).

Discography: AMG; Lord; LSFP

WILLIAMS, ROBERT PETE

b. 14 March 1914; Zachary, LA

d. 31 December 1980; Rosedale, LA

Robert Pete Williams was one of the truly original country bluesmen to have been discovered in the postwar period. His idiosyncratic guitar playing and singing drew little inspiration from other musicians and were in turn inimitable.

Life

One of nine children born of unknown sharecroppers, Robert Williams (Pete was a teenage nickname) was raised on Mr. Anderson's place in Zachary, Louisiana, and worked in the fields there from childhood. Uneducated, in 1934 he started to practice on a home-made guitar made up of a cigar box and five copper strings, and subsequently he played parties, dances, and fish fries in his native area and in Baton Rouge into the 1950s.

In 1948 Williams married his third wife, Hattie Mae. He had a total of ten children. Despite his assertion of having killed in self-defense, from April 6, 1956, to December 1, 1959, Williams served time for murder at the State Prison Farm in Angola, Louisiana, where he was traced and recorded throughout 1959 by folklorist Harry Oster. Thanks to Oster and Richard Allen, Robert Pete was released from prison on a five-year servitude parole in Denham Springs, Louisiana, after which he obtained a full pardon.

Robert "Pete" Williams. (Photo by Tom Copi, courtesy of Frank Driggs Collection)

During his limbo, in fact a real state of bondage, Williams was not allowed to travel and had to turn down a few opportunities to play at festivals. In 1960, however, he cut for Prestige/Bluesville in different locations and in 1966 for Takoma in Berkeley, California. In the wake of these recordings Williams was invited to the most prestigious festivals, such as the Newport Folk Festival in 1964 and the Berkeley Folk Festival in 1966. That same year he toured Europe with the American Folk Blues Festival and recorded for Fontana and Roots. In 1968 Williams moved to work outside music in Maringouin, Louisiana, where two years later he made a recording session for Saydisc/Ahura Mazda.

Though retaining his job as scrap iron collector and seller until his death, Williams participated in an incredible array of concerts and festivals, including the Ann Arbor Blues Festival in 1970, the University of Chicago Folk Festival in 1971, and the New Orleans Jazz and Heritage Festival for many years in a row, and again flew back to Europe with the American Folk Blues Festival in 1972 and alone in 1974.

In the early 1970s Williams also appeared in a number of films, among them Roots of American Country Music: Country and Urban Music, Part 1 (1971) and Along the Old Man River (1972), and recorded for the 77 label (1971), Blues Beacon and Storyville (1972), and Sonet (1973). In the second half of the 1970s, more European tours and recording sessions followed. In 1977 Williams recorded a live LP for the Italian label I Dischi della Quercia, while in 1979 he was last recorded in Paris for Free Bird. Posthumous albums were released by—among others—Southland and Wolf.

Music

The merit (and perhaps also the defect) of Robert Pete Williams's music lies in the strong improvisational character that makes it unique and instantly identifiable, even when he interprets songs composed by other performers. When Williams is inspired, his lyrics and musical accompaniment form a perfect blend that epitomizes all the best qualities of blues as music conveying a personal as well as universal mood and feeling. By unanimous agreement, Williams achieved that high a level of expressiveness, particularly in his first recordings.

Because Williams went unrecorded in the 1930s and 1940s, we are now familiar with only one aspect of his music. As Williams stated in an inevitably often quoted portion of an interview with David Evans and Alan Wilson, he changed his style around 1942 when he discovered he could play more notes on the guitar. Prompted by Evans and Wilson to explain the reason for the change, Williams answered, “The sound of the atmosphere, the weather changed my style. But I could hear, since me being an air-music man. The air came in different, with a different sound of music. Well, the atmosphere, when the wind blowing carries music along. I don’t know if it affects you or not, but its a sounding that’s in the air, you see? And I don’t know where it comes from—it could come from the airplanes, or the moaning of automobiles, but anyhow it leaves an air current in the air, you see. That gets in the wind, makes a sounding, you know? And that sounding works up to be a blues” (quoted in Alan Wilson, 1998 [1966]). Paraphrasing Bukka White’s original definition of sky songs, Williams’s music can thus be described as air songs.

Williams’s guitar playing is unusual in country blues for its extensive use of minor harmonies. The complexity and originality of Williams’s music have been examined in detail by Alan Wilson (1998 [1966]). Textually, Williams was no less innovative. His output as a whole has been described as an alternation of relatively worked-out lyrics and a completely spontaneous stream-of-consciousness approach in which the lines do not rhyme (Wilson, 1998 [1966]). “(I’ve Grown So) Ugly” is given as an example of the former, “Prisoners Talking Blues” of the latter.

The themes of his blues range from man–woman relationship (“I’m Blue as a Man Can Be”) and sexual double entendres (“Rub Me Until My Love Come Down”) to purely autobiographical accounts of his life experiences (“Pardon Denied Again,” “Broke My Mother’s Rule”). Also, Williams often sang spirituals (“Motherless Children Have a Hard Time”). Because of his personal approach to music, Williams interpreted relatively few real covers (“Louise,” “See That My Grave Is Kept Clean,” “Matchbox Blues”) yet remained a typical country blues musician in his way of combining traditional elements learned from his predecessors.

Influence

The above also helps explain why discussing influences in Robert Pete Williams’s music leads to different conclusions from those drawn for most blues musicians. Blind Lemon Jefferson’s (and other players’) influence, though acknowledged by Williams himself, can hardly be detected in the Louisiana bluesman’s compositions. Williams’s relatively small appeal to subsequent musicians is certainly due to his late recording career and, consequently, to the fact that his music was prevalently addressed to and enjoyed by a young white audience. The obvious result is that very few blues players followed Williams’s example, which was rather appropriated by white progressive blues rockers, such as Captain Beefheart.

Still, it is clear from Williams’s statement above on the origin of his music that it is mainly in the strongly individualistic and highly abstract—almost metaphysical—nature of his art that one should find the chief cause of such lack of appeal to other musicians. Though Robert Pete Williams has unanimously been acclaimed as the real deal, the quantity of in-depth studies on his music is not on a par with his importance in the musical genre. Only recently did Arhoolie, Takoma, and Fat Possum release reissues of his music. Besides Wilson’s above-mentioned booklet notes and other interesting book-length articles on his life and music, the main lyric and musical transcriptions of Williams’s songs remain those made by his discoverer, Harry Oster (1969).

LUIGI MONGE

Bibliography

- AMG (Cub Koda and Stephen Thomas Erlewine); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli; Southern Charters, Samuel. The Legacy of the Blues: Art and Lives of Twelve Great Bluesmen. London: Calder & Boyers, 1975.
- Guralnick, Peter. “Robert Pete Williams: Free Again.” In Feel Like Going Home: Portraits in Blues and Rock and Roll. New York: Outerbridge & Dienstfrey, 1971.
- Oster, Harry. Living Country Blues. Detroit: Folklore Associates, 1969.
- Strachwitz, Chris. Liner notes to Robert Pete Williams, When a Man Takes the Blues (1994, Arhoolie CD 395).
- Wilson, Alan. Liner notes to Robert Pete Williams, Louisiana Blues (1998 [1966], Takoma CDTAK 1011).

Discography: AMG; LSFP

See also Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’”; Jefferson, Blind Lemon

WILLIAMS, ROOSEVELT THOMAS

(See Grey Ghost)

WILLIAMS, WALTER

(See Dizz, Lefty)

WILLIAMS, WILLIE “ROUGH DRIED”

b. 13 March 1922; Lake Village, AR

d. 8 December 1988; Chicago, IL

Chicago-based drummer much associated with Howlin' Wolf from the 1950s through the early 1970s. During his early years in the South, Williams was a guitarist and a professional tap dancer known as “Fast Feet.” On his own in the 1970s, he scored a Chicago-area jukebox hit “Wine-Headed Woman” (Supreme label).

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Nelson, David. “Willie Williams.” Living Blues no. 87 (July/August 1989): 36.

WILLIAMSON, JAMES

(See Homesick James)

WILLIAMSON, SONNY BOY I (JOHN LEE WILLIAMSON)

b. 30 March 1914; Jackson, TN

d. 1 June 1948; Chicago, IL

Confusion exists about Sonny Boy Williamson's name. John Lee Williamson, “Sonny Boy I,” was born in 1914 and performed from about 1930 until his death in 1948. Aleck “Rice” Miller, “Sonny Boy Williamson II,” was born earlier (any time between 1898 and 1912), performed daily on KFFA radio in Helena, Arkansas (beginning in 1941), and died in 1965. Both were harmonica players of extraordinary skill and were prolific writers and performers. Sonny Boy Williamson II adopted his moniker to catch some of John Lee's stardust. John Lee resented this improper use of his name but never actively sought to change things because at that time, he was the only artist recording under that name.

Sonny Boy I was born in Jackson, Tennessee, to Ray Williamson and Nancy Utley. He began his career as a child in the Madison County, Tennessee, area. He received his first harmonica from his mother as a Christmas present; he taught himself the basics and perfected his unique style, acquiring skill as he went. He traveled widely in the South during his formative years, learning the blues in Chicago and St. Louis as well as Jackson, Tennessee. He performed in a gospel quartet called the Four Lambs at Blair's Chapel Church. As a teenager, he performed with Sleepy John Estes, Homesick James, Big Joe Williams, and Yank Rachell.

In 1934, Williamson moved to Chicago and was active in the growing blues scene there. A flood of young musicians with strong country roots relocated to the industrial north and blended their styles with urban performers of the area. Williamson was one of the first, if not the first, of the modern blues harp performers. He developed a unique sound that brought the harmonica to the front on the ensemble as a lead instrument, rather than its traditional place and an accompanying member of the group.

At about this time, Williamson began perfecting a new country blues harp sound. He utilized a squeezed note style and a “cross-harp” style, as he called it. Many musicians imitated his unique style and they, in turn, spread this technique widely among other blues performers. Williamson had introduced a new sound and elevated its position in the hierarchy of blues arrangements. In his versatile repertoire, Williamson utilized several harmonica styles: straight, cross-harp, ragtime, and straight blues. Peers who used similar styles were Noah Lewis and Hammie Nixon, Aleck “Rice” Miller (Sonny Boy Williamson II), and Big Walter Horton.

In 1937, Williamson recorded his first tracks for Bluebird Records, a subsidiary of Victor Records. A blues standard from that moment on, “Good Morning Little Schoolgirl” was subsequently recorded by dozens of blues stars and remains a signature song. Williamson recorded for Victor from 1937 through 1945, and virtually every release met popular and critical success. During those first sessions, Williamson recorded “Sugar Mama,” “Early in the Morning,” “Check Up on My Baby,” and “Bluebird Blues.” All were extremely successful as well as influential. He recorded often with Big Joe Williams, the famed blues twelve-string guitar player and vocalist. A skilled and charismatic performer, Williamson was able to hold his own with Williams. His country/urban style and driving tempos were a perfect match to Williams's style.

Early on the morning of June 1, 1948, Williamson left a Chicago nightclub and was beaten and stabbed to death.

As an influence on the blues, Sonny Boy was a wellspring of style and material; he was copied by many contemporary artists of the times and influenced thousands of young performers of succeeding generations with his work. His recordings have been covered by dozens of artists, both traditional and contemporary. Sonny Boy Williamson I was inducted into the W. C. Handy Blues Hall of Fame in 1980.

TOM FISHER

Bibliography

- AMG (Bill Dahl); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli; Southern
 Lorenz, Wolfgang. Bluebird Blues: The Blues of John Lee "Sonny Boy" Williamson with Complete Lyrics & Complete Discography. Bonn: Moonshine Blues MBB-2, 1986.
 Smith, Francis. "Study in Violence: The Death of Sonny Boy Williamson." In Nothing but the Blues, edited by Mike Leadbitter, pp. 3–6. London: Hanover, 1971.

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSFP

WILLIAMSON, SONNY BOY II (ALECK MILLER)

- b. Aleck Ford Miller, 5 December 1899; Glendora, MS
 d. 25 May 1965; Helena, AR

The fact that the late Sonny Boy Williamson II remains one of the most enduringly legendary figures in the fabric of the blues four decades after his death is undoubtedly due at least in part to the numerous mysteries surrounding his life—although much more of it is owed to his towering, influential talent as singer, harmonica player, and composer. It was a talent that outshone even that of John Lee "Sonny Boy" Williamson, from whom Sonny Boy II took his stage name.

But the unknowns are what lend the legend of Sonny Boy II much of its air of romance, and they begin immediately, with the date of his birth. While the most widely accepted date is December 5, 1899, other dates ranging from 1894 to 1910 are also reported. Writer Paul Oliver notes that Sonny Boy's gravestone offers a date in 1908, his passport reads April 7, 1909, and in conversation Sonny Boy himself once offered up December 5, 1897. Meanwhile, the dates on the Tutwiler, Mississippi, tombstone placed by friend and Trumpet Records owner Lillian McMurry are March 11, 1908–June 23, 1965.

Nor is his given birth name known with any great certainty, having been variously reported as Aleck, Alex, or Willie Ford or Miller. It seems accepted that he was born to a woman named Millie Ford and perhaps took the surname Miller at a later time after his stepfather. "Rice" was apparently a nickname.

Little else is known with any certainty about his upbringing or childhood. Oliver, who was acquainted with Sonny Boy II and interviewed him numerous times, wrote that "Sonny Boy is seldom consistent with the details: the theme runs roughly the same, like one of his blues, but it lends itself to fabrication and embroidering and he seldom misses the opportunity" (p. 254.) It is, as Oliver also noted, "maddening, of course, for the would-be historian."

We do know that by the late 1920s, a young man by then known as Rice Miller was performing as a professional singer and harmonica player in the Mississippi Delta. As an itinerant musician during this period, he would have taken paying jobs wherever he could find them—whether a juke joint or fish fry, or even playing on a street corner. Various accounts have him using stage names ranging from Little Boy Blue to Willie Williams, Willie Williamson, and Willie Miller during this period. He performed with such legendary blues artists as Robert Johnson, Elmore James, Howlin' Wolf, and Robert Lockwood during this time. While there are reports that he claimed later in life to have made some recordings during this period, none have been verified. There are reports that Howlin' Wolf credited Sonny Boy II with teaching him to play harmonica, and it is reliably reported that Sonny Boy II's first wife was either Howlin' Wolf's sister or half-sister.

In the late 1930s or early 1940s (little is ever certain with Sonny Boy II), he began performing on the early afternoon King Biscuit Flour Time show on radio station KFFA in Helena, Arkansas, alongside Lockwood. While many accounts point to the radio show as the time when he took the stage name Sonny Boy Williamson, after the popular Chicago-based John Lee "Sonny Boy" Williamson, others report that he may have already been performing under the name before landing the radio spot.

However it came about, during most of the 1940s, there were two regionally popular harmonica-playing bluesmen performing as Sonny Boy Williamson. Given the marginalized social status of African Americans at the time, the lack of a national media, and the fact that neither man traveled to the other's home turf, it was a situation that managed to exist until John Lee Williamson was murdered in 1948. (Oliver notes that Sonny Boy II claimed late in life that he was the original Sonny Boy Williamson and that John Lee Williamson stole the "Sonny Boy" name from him. Oliver treated this claim with doubt, and it isn't given much credence by other music historians.)

The KFFA show brought Sonny Boy II his first taste of fame, as he was at least a semiregular on the show through 1948 and continued making appearances on it until his death. Toward the late 1940s, he also began touring more, with some accounts having him based out of Memphis, Tennessee. However, he was also still appearing on KFFA.

WILLIAMSON, SONNY BOY II (ALECK MILLER)

Despite his growing fame via KFFA, it wasn't until 1951, well into his middle years, that Sonny Boy Williamson II made his first recordings that we can verify—for Lillian McMurry's Trumpet Records in Jackson, Mississippi. During the next three years, he recorded dozens of songs for McMurry, both singing and playing harmonica, generally backed by Dave Campbell or Clarence Lonnie on piano, Joe Willie Wilkins on guitar, and Clifton Givens singing the bass lines. Among the songs from the Trumpet sessions are "Crazy About You Baby," considered one of Sonny Boy II's classic compositions. (Many of the Trumpet sides are now available in CD on King Biscuit Time from Arhoolie.)

In 1954, he moved north, first to Detroit, then possibly Milwaukee and/or Cleveland, and finally Chicago, where John Lee Williamson was just a memory, having been murdered seven years earlier.

More important, by 1955 Sonny Boy II was recording for Chess Records' Checker subsidiary, which gave him unprecedented exposure and distribution. In August of that year, he had his first recording session for Chess, which produced the track "Don't Start Me to Talkin'." Future sessions with Chess reunited him with KFFA cohort Lockwood on guitar, and Sonny Boy II enjoyed a successful run of recordings on Chess throughout the late 1950s and into the early 1960s, continuing recording for Chess until his death.

Sonny Boy Williamson II (Aleck Miller), ca. late 1930s/early 1940s (Photo courtesy Frank Driggs Collection)

In 1963, Sonny Boy II received an invitation that would seal his reputation as a major figure in postwar blues: The American Folk Blues Festival (AFBF) asked him to participate in a tour of Europe. While it was his first time traveling abroad, he was greeted warmly by fans across Europe who knew of him through his many recordings. Sonny Boy II took to Europe so much that he remained in England for a few months after the tour was over.

During his English stay, Sonny Boy II performed with a local white blues band, The Yardbirds, live on a recording date. The guitarist for the band was a teenager named Eric Clapton, and this session marked his recording debut. Another session featured Sonny Boy II being backed by another young band, The Animals. Sonny Boy II returned to Europe the following year with another AFBF tour and again was greeted as conquering hero by blues fans throughout the continent and Britain.

In 1965, his health failing, Sonny Boy II made his last recordings for Chess, then returned home to Arkansas, resuming his place behind the mike at KFFA and once again playing the local club scene. On May 25, 1965, he died of an apparent heart attack in bed at a boarding house in Helena, Arkansas.

Those who knew Sonny Boy II personally described him as proud and tough. As a young man, he had a reputation for never backing down from a fight.

As a musician, Sonny Boy II is remembered not as a technical innovator on harmonica like Little Walter but as an outstanding songwriter, evocative singer, and passionate harpist. His songwriting was deeply rooted in the rural blues of his youth but incorporated an accessibility and modernity not always found in the music of his contemporaries. Listening to his recordings in the early twenty-first century shows that his songs and performances are as modern sounding and timeless as any recorded in the years since his passing.

Just as, if not more, important, Sonny Boy II served an important role as a bridge from the prewar Delta blues of Robert Johnson to the younger postwar generation of both blacks and whites who embraced the blues during the 1960s folk boom. Having played with Robert Johnson and Elmore James in the 1930s, a young B. B. King in the 1940s, and Eric Clapton in the 1960s, the importance of Sonny Boy II as a cross-generational conduit of blues tradition, style, and folklore probably cannot be overemphasized.

Sonny Boy Williamson II was a larger than life character, a sophisticated showman who created his own public persona while keeping much of his personal life intensely private. He taught and influenced blues musicians who are still playing in the early new millennium, and who in turn are influencing the generations to follow.

Seen in that light, Sonny Boy Williamson II, by whatever names he adopted, is one of the most important figures the blues will ever produce.

JIM TRAGESER

Bibliography

- AMG (Cub Koda); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli; Southern Hay, Fred J. "The Sacred/Profane Dialectic in Delta Blues: The Life and Lyrics of Sonny Boy Williamson." Phylon 48, no. 4 (Winter 1987): 317–326.
 Leadbitter, Mike. "Bring It on Home: A Tale of Biscuits and Rice." Blues Unlimited 98 (January 1973): 4–13.
 Oliver, Paul. Blues off the Record: Thirty Years of Blues Commentary. New York: Da Capo, 1988.
 Ryan, Marc W. Trumpet Records: Diamonds on Farish Street. Jackson: University Press of Mississippi, 2004.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

Selected Recordings

- Keep It to Ourselves* (1963, Storyville 4176; reissued 1989, Alligator AL-4787).
Sonny Boy Williamson & The Yardbirds (1966, Mercury 21071).
King Biscuit Time (1976, Arhoolie 310).
His Best (1997, MCA/Chess 9377).

WILLIS, AARON

(See Little Sonny)

WILLIS, HAROLD "CHUCK"

- b. 31 January 1928; Atlanta, GA
 d. 10 April 1958; Atlanta, GA

Back in the late 1950s, almost every R&B fan had a copy of Chuck Willis's The King of the Stroll. It was one of the ten essential LPs, upon which all R&B was based. "That Train Is Gone," "C. C. Rider," "Betty and Dupree," "It's Too Late"—all were classics whose influence could be felt in dozens of performers who followed. We thought that the R&B masters of the 1950s were Bobby Blue Bland, James Brown, Ray Charles, Chuck Willis, and Jackie Wilson; there were more, for sure, but we knew these guys were near the top of the list.

Chuck began on the Columbia Records subsidiary Okeh label, where he recorded "My Story" and a cover of Fats Domino's "Going to the River," with moderate success. Columbia let his contract lapse and Willis moved to Atlantic in 1956, where he found success with "It's Too Late" and the string of R&B hits that followed. "C. C. Rider," his first R&B number one hit, was a two-edged sword for Willis's career; its popularity gave him a new, larger audience, but he became too identified with the song's dance craze, the Stroll. The Atlantic years were wonderful for Willis, however; he found the audience for easy delivery and powerful phrasing. He also wrote hits for Lavern Baker, Ruth Brown, Elvis Presley, and others.

Poignantly, two of his final cuts were "What Am I Living For" and "Hang Up My Rock 'n' Roll Shoes." They were released and, as fans were noticing his latest work, he passed away from peritonitis, resulting from ulcers, a condition from which he suffered for years. Unfortunately, Willis postponed surgery until it was too late. He had two posthumous releases: "My Life" and "Keep-A-Drivin'" late in 1958.

TOM FISHER

Bibliography

- AMG (Bill Dahl); Larkin; Santelli

Discography: AMG; LSFP

- My Story* (1952, Okeh 6905).
Search My Heart (1955, Okeh 7062).
Chuck Willis Wails The Blues (1958, Epic 3425).
The King of the Stroll (1958, Atlantic 8018).
Tribute to Chuck Willis (1958, Epic 3728).
I Remember Chuck Willis (1963, Atlantic 8079).

WILLIS, RALPH

- b. 1910; near Birmingham, AL
 d. 11 June 1957; New York City, NY

Born in Alabama but having lived in the Carolinas and New York City, Ralph Willis absorbed much of the Piedmont guitar style of Blind Boy Fuller and his friend Brownie McGhee, with whom he recorded subsequently thoughtful compositions such as "In-come Tax Blues" and "Church Bell Blues" or driving, almost proto-rockabilly pieces such as "I Wanna Rock."

GÉRARD HERZHAFT

WILLIS, RALPH

Bibliography

Herzhaft

Discography: LSFP

Ralph Willis, Complete Recorded Works in Chronological Order Vol. 1 & 2 (Document CD 5256/5257).

WILLIS, ROBERT LEE “CHICK”

b. 24 September 1934; Cabiness, GA

Vocalist and guitarist who was for three years driver and valet to his cousin Chuck Willis. During this time Willis learned the guitar (much influenced by Guitar Slim) and also made his first record in 1956 for Ebb. When Chuck died in 1958, Chick became a journeyman blues artist, traveling all over the country and recording whenever the opportunity offered. Singles appeared on Bay-Tone of Oakland, California, and LaVal of Kalamazoo, Michigan (1960–1961), on Alto of New York (1962), on various of Henry Hines’s Greenville, Mississippi, labels, and on Mark IV of Atlanta, Georgia (1968).

In 1972 his big break came, back on LaVal with a risqué song “Stoop Down Baby,” which became a huge seller. LaVal attempted to repeat the successful formula, but the company went bankrupt and Chick formed his own Stoop Down label, issuing a succession of singles and an LP up to 1985. There were also singles on Kris (1976) and True Soul (1982) and an album on the MT label. Then in 1987 he was signed by Ichiban, for whom he made half a dozen albums up to 1994, which gave him much greater visibility and enabled him to tap into the white blues audience. Since then he has recorded albums for William Bell’s 5 Star label (1998), for Ifgam (1999), Rock House (2001), and Deep South (2002). His act will inevitably always include “Stoop Down Baby” or similar material, but he is now a solidly reliable blues artist, not just a one hit wonder.

RAY ASTBURY

Bibliography

Santelli

Bonner, Brett J. “Chick Willis: Stoop Down.” Living Blues no. 147 (September/October 1999): 22–31.

Empson, Alan, Dave Williams. “Chick Willis: Stoop Down.” Juke Blues 45 (Autumn 1999): 12–21.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

See also Guitar Slim; Ichiban; Willis, Harold “Chuck”

WILLIS, WILLIE

b. 12 December 1932; Fairfield, TX

d. 29 April 2000; Dallas, TX

The year 1931 has also been cited for his birth. Willis began playing guitar in high school. He served in the U.S. Army in Korea and moved to Dallas in 1955 and was active in local blues until his death. He recorded for the labels Ride, Soul Staff, Trix, and Fedora.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Ottensman, Don. “Let ‘Em Have a Good Time!” Blues and Rhythm no. 134 (November 1998): 4–5.

WILLSON, MICHELLE

b. 5 January 1958; Boston, MA

New England–based vocalist with a full-bodied, dark-hued, slightly nasal voice that recalls Dinah Washington. The resemblance goes beyond sonic similarities, as Willson readily admits identifying with Washington on many levels, sharing the late diva’s earnest approach to art and life, her potent and conflicting combination of self-confidence and angst, and her willingness to explore multiple musical genres. The sassy Ruth Brown is another major influence on Willson’s music.

Having sung since childhood and performed in Boston-area pop bands, Willson won the Blues Foundation’s blues competition in 1993, soon after forming her first blues group, Evil Gal (named, not surprisingly, after a Dinah Washington tune). This led to an appearance at the King Biscuit Blues Festival and a signing to the Bullseye Blues subsidiary of Rounder, for which she cut four albums.

Although best known for her work in a retro-swing and jump-blues style, she is a restless artist who resists comfort zones and through her music seeks emotional release as much if not more than commercial success. She once told an interviewer that she didn’t want to be pigeonholed in a “rollicking blues mama schtick,” and her evolving repertoire includes southern soul, funk, and jazz in addition to blues.

STEVE HOFFMAN

Bibliography

AMG (Jason Ankeny)

Van Vleck, Phillip. “Michelle Willson: Tryin’ to Make a Little Music.” Blues Access no. 44 (Winter 2001): 40–43.

Discography: AMG

WILMER, VAL

b. Valerie Sybil Wilmer, 7 December 1941; Harrogate, England

Writer and photographer. Wilmer fell in love with jazz and blues as a teenager and immersed herself in the music world. Widely published as both writer and photographer, she has conducted many interviews for the oral history collection at the National Sound Archive of the British Library. She is best known for her ground-breaking books Jazz People and As Serious as Your Life (a "social history of the new music") and also wrote a frank autobiography, Mama Said There'd Be Days Like This. Her revealing photographs of blues artists are featured in Paul Trynka's Portrait of the Blues. She is working on further books on black music in Britain.

KENNY MATHIESON

Bibliography

- Trynka, Paul. Portrait of the Blues. London: Hamlyn, 1996.
 Wilmer, Val. As Serious as Your Life: The Story of the New Jazz. London: Allison & Busby, 1977.
 ———. The Face of Black Music. New York: Da Capo Press, 1976.
 ———. Jazz People. London: Allison & Busby, 1970.
 ———. Mama Said There'd Be Days Like This. London: Woman's Press, 1989.

WILSON, AL

b. 4 July 1943; Boston, MA
 d. 3 September 1970; Torrance, CA

Harmonica player, guitarist, and writer. Early in his career Wilson worked and performed on harmonica with Son House during the first year after the latter's return to performing. His 1965 Broadside (Boston) series on House remains one of the most important publications on him. Later he was a founding member of Canned Heat.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

- Larkin (under Canned Heat)
 "Son House." Broadside (Boston) 4, no. 3 (March 31, 1965): 3–4 [part 1]; 4, no. 4 (April 14, 1965): 12–13 [part 2]; 4, no. 5 (April 28, 1965): 6 [part 3]; 4, no. 6 (May 12, 1965): 4 [part 4]; 4, no. 7 (May 26, 1965): 2 [part 5]; 4, no. 8 (June 9, 1965): 9 [part 6]; 4, no. 9 (June 23, 1965): 7 [part 7]; 4, no. 10 (July 7, 1965): 4 [part 8]; collected and reprinted as Alan Wilson, Son House: An Analysis of His Music and a Biography, Bexhill-on-Sea: Blues Unlimited, 1965.

WILSON, CHARLES

b. 27 January 1957; Chicago, IL

Contemporary singer of blues and soul; nephew of Little Milton. During his early performing years, Wilson was the opening act for Bobby Rush, Z. Z. Hill, Tyrone Davis, and Bobby Bland. His 1991 Ichiban release Blues in the Key of C helped to establish him in the American South and Midwest. His recent records are on Ecko Records.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

AMG (Andrew Hamilton)

WILSON, EDITH

b. Edith Goodall, 2 September 1896; Louisville, KY
 d. 30 March 1981; Chicago, IL

Singer. Wilson had an act with Lena Wilson and her pianist brother Danny, whom Edith married. She worked and recorded with trumpeter Johnny Dunn from late 1921, including "Evil Blues"/"Pensacola Blues" (1922, Columbia A3746). Her revue appearances included the Plantation Revue in London (1923), residency at Club Alabam, New York (1924), Blackbirds of 1926, Connie's Hot Chocolates (1929–1930), and Blackbirds of 1933/34. She was mainly an actress after 1940 until a 1971 comeback, frequently appearing with Little Brother Montgomery.

HOWARD RYE

Bibliography

- AMG (Frank Powers); Harris; Larkin; Santelli; Southern Koester, Bob. "He May Be Your Man: Biography of Edith Wilson." Jazz Report 9, no. 4 (1978): 21.
 O'Neal, Jim. "Edith Wilson" [obituary]. Living Blues no. 50 (Spring 1981): 44.

Discography: DGRWILSON, HARDING "HOP"

b. 27 April 1921; Grapeland, TX
 d. 27 August 1975; Houston, TX

Aka "Harp," "Poppa," "Poppy." Wilson's parents had a large family of thirteen children and moved to Crockett (East Texas), where he was raised from childhood. Influenced by Blind Lemon Jefferson, he learned guitar and harmonica as a teenager and worked outside music to earn a living for himself and his family.

WILSON, HARDING "HOP"

Wilson got his first steel guitar in 1939 and played in Houston clubs and juke joints, influenced by the steel players of hillbilly and Western swing bands. He served in the U.S. Army (1942–1946) then held odd jobs again in Crockett before moving to Houston in the early 1950s, where he teamed with King Ivory Lee Semien in 1956 to tour clubs and dance halls in Texas and Louisiana. He let the harmonica aside but he beautifully played an electric Hawaiian steel slide guitar, and this led to recordings for Eddie Shuler's Goldband Records in 1958 and 1959 in Lake Charles, Louisiana, and Houston and for the Ivory label in 1958–1962 in Houston.

He influenced Texas guitarists such as L. C. "Good Rockin'" Robinson and Sonny Rhodes, but because he was not keen on touring, shy, and in poor health, Wilson's own popularity stayed fairly local. After 1961, he worked in and around Houston, in clubs and bars, with Ivory L. Semien until 1970 and solo until his death in 1975. Unhappily, he turned down offers to make more recordings.

A great singer with a deep and gloomy voice ideally suited to the blues and a skillful, intense and lyrical guitarist, Hop Wilson will stay as one of the most original Texas bluesmen of his time.

ROBERT SACRÉ

Bibliography

Harris; Larkin; Santelli
Lomax, Joseph F., and William Orten Carlton. "Hop Wilson." Living Blues no. 26 (March/April 1976): 8–10.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

Reissues include Steel Guitar Flash: Hop Wilson & His Buddies (1994, Ace Records [UK] CDCHD240).

WILSON, JIMMY

b. 1921 or 1923; near Lake Charles, LA
d. 5 February 1965; Dallas, TX

Wilson's mournful, bluesy voice ensured him a huge hit in California in 1953 with his version of "Tin Pan Alley," a masterpiece with an unmistakable gloomy tone. Unfortunately, Wilson's drinking habit prevented him from cashing in on his success and he went back to Louisiana, where he recorded again for local labels such as Goldband.

GÉRARD HERZHAFT

Bibliography

Larkin; Santelli
Herzhaft, Gérard. Liner notes to Jimmy Wilson (1985, Aladdin EP 1259).
Mazzolini, Tom: "Bob Geddis" [interview]. Living Blues no. 34 (September/October 1977): 19–30.

Discography: LSFP

Jumpin' from Six to Six (1999, Official CD 5256).

WILSON, KIM

b. 6 January 1951; Detroit, MI

Singer and harmonica player most associated with the Fabulous Thunderbirds. Wilson moved with his family to Goleta, California, in 1960; at about that time he was playing guitar and trombone. He began playing harmonica at seventeen and soon met and learned from Eddie Taylor, George Harmonica Smith, Albert Collins, Lowell Fulson, and Peewee Crayton.

Wilson lived in Minnesota in 1973–1974, moving to Austin, Texas, in October 1974. In the winter of 1974–1975 he and Jimmie Vaughan formed the Fabulous Thunderbirds, which received early encouragement from Muddy Waters and important bookings from Clifford Antone. The Fabulous Thunderbirds eventually enjoyed mainstream success with the 1986 Epic/Associated LP Tuff Enuff, but Jimmie Vaughan left in 1990. Since then, Wilson has maintained the Thunderbirds with new lineups as well as developing his own Kim Wilson Band, playing up to two hundred nights per year between the two groups.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

AMG (Richard Skelly); Larkin
Vorel, Bob. "Kim Wilson: Driven by the Memory of the Blues Greats." Blues Revue no. 30 (August/September 1997): 16–21.

Discography: AMG

See also Fabulous Thunderbirds

WILSON, LENA

b. ca. 1898; Charlotte, NC
d. ca. 1939; New York City, NY

Vocalist. Wilson was in a trio with her pianist brother Danny and his wife Edith Wilson in 1918–1920 and moved to New York in 1921. Her recordings during 1922–1924 include “Four Flushin’ Papa” (1924, Brunswick 2590). She appeared in many revues and recorded again during a 1929–1931 residency at the Lenox Club in New York with Cliff Jackson. She died of pneumonia.

HOWARD RYE

Bibliography

Harris

Rye, Howard. Insert notes to Lena Wilson, Complete Recorded Works in Chronological Order, Volume 1, 1922–1924 (1996, Document DOCD5443 [Vienna]).

Discography: DGR

WILSON, QUINN

b., 26 November 1908; Illinois
d. 14 June 1978; Chicago, IL

Chicago bass player who played on innumerable jazz, rhythm and blues, and blues recording sessions in the post–World War II era. Wilson began his career as a tuba player and first recorded with Jelly Roll Morton in 1926. By the end of the 1920s he had switched to string bass, playing in Erskine Tate’s pit band. During 1931–1940, Wilson played in Earl Hines’s house band at the Grand Terrace Ballroom. After World War II, Wilson performed and recorded as a member of the Aristokats. During the 1950s, he performed with guitarist Lefty Bates and pianist Horace Palm in the Lefty Bates Trio. At the same time, the members of the trio became some of the most in-demand session musicians for Chicago’s burgeoning black recording industry.

ROBERT PRUTER

Bibliography

“Jazz Composer, Bassist Quinn Wilson Dead at 69.” Chicago Sun-Times (June 16, 1978).

WILSON, SMOKEY

b. Robert Lee Wilson, 11 July 1936; Glen Allan, MS

Born and raised in the Mississippi Delta, Robert Lee “Smokey” Wilson made his first guitar out of broom-wire and nails attached to the family house, after being inspired to duplicate the recordings of Memphis Minnie, Arthur “Big Boy” Crudup, and Blind Boy Fuller. During his teens, Wilson caught performances by Elmore James and Howlin’ Wolf in juke joints around nearby Greenville. Starting out on the bass, Wilson soon switched to guitar and by the late 1950s was working with Delta musicians Big Jack Johnson, Sam Carr, Frank Frost, and Little Milton. He also worked regularly with harmonica player Roosevelt “Booba” Barnes in juke joints around Greenville.

In 1971, he relocated to Los Angeles and opened The Pioneer club in Watts. Wilson’s raw Mississippi juke joint blues was a hit with its Southern California clientele, and soon the club was also showcasing emerging local talent such as William Clarke, Rod Piazza, and Hollywood Fats, as well as established acts such as Pee Wee Crayton, Big Joe Turner, and Albert Collins. Wilson made his first recordings in the late 1970s for Big Town Records, followed by a release each for Murray Brothers and Black Magic in the early 1980s.

He finally gained national attention when he signed with Bullseye Blues in the early 1990s and produced several highly acclaimed albums, including his notable label debut Smoke N’ Fire. Wilson’s gritty vocals and intense juke joint–style guitar playing delighted fans on the international blues festival circuit. In the early 2000s, Wilson was plagued by a series of strokes that curtailed his performing career.

GENE TOMKO

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Larkin
Bonner, Brett J. “Smokey Wilson: Corn Shuckin’ Blues.” Living Blues no. 130 (November/December 1996): 14–25.

Discography: AMG

Smoke N’ Fire (1993, Bullseye Blues CD BB 9534).

WILSON, U. P.

b. Huary Perry Wilson, 4 September 1935; Shreveport, LA

Singer and guitarist in Texas-style and soul blues. Wilson moved to the Dallas area in the 1950s, where he became associated with Mercy Baby, Zuzu Bollin, and Frankie Lee Sims. Later he moved to Fort Worth. He became prominent in the 1980s through regional tours and in the 1990s on JSP label releases.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

AMG (Richard Skelly); Larkin

Discography: AMG

WINSLOW, VERNON

(See Dr. Daddy-O)

WINTER, JOHNNY

b. 23 February 1944; Beaumont, TX

Guitarist, singer, producer. Combining a strong and seasoned voice belying his youth and frail frame with rapid-fire guitar solos seemingly defying physical possibilities, Winter emerged as one of the prime popularizers of blues during its discovery by rock fans in the late 1960s. He also became an unfortunate example of the rock scene's ability to corrupt and commercialize the sensibilities and sound of anyone attempting to play roots-oriented music.

Winter and his multi-instrumentalist brother Edgar, who would ultimately enjoy a bit of rock stardom himself with the hit "Frankenstein," were precocious show business kids who began playing music before they were old enough to attend school. After winning talent contests and performing on local television with Edgar, Winter formed his first band, Johnny and the Jammers, at age fourteen. The group released several regional singles and Winter's professional career was off and running. By the mid-1960s Winter had made several regional recordings under his own name, moved to Chicago briefly, and toured the Southeast in a series of funk, rock, and blues bands.

Winter eventually focused his musical activities and furious but fluid guitar lines directly on Texas blues. A 1968 Rolling Stone story drew attention to his Austin-based Progressive Blues Experiment with drummer Uncle John Turner and bassist Tommy Shannon, the latter of whom would later play behind Stevie Ray Vaughan as a member of Double Trouble. Winter signed a highly publicized deal with Columbia Records and the label pulled out all the stops to make him a rock star. Winter responded by delivering a series of blues-flavored rock albums that sold well while slowly eroding his blues reputation as each successive release moved him and his music farther away from his original sound. His self-titled debut was an energetic exploration of blues, but the law of diminishing returns set in, and by his third release he was playing with the pop band the McCoys and doing songs such as "Rock 'n' Roll, Hoochie Koo."

Winter regained his blues credibility in 1977 as the catalyst for bringing Muddy Waters back into the blues spotlight as the producer of the legend's Grammy-winning landmark Hard Again. Winter, who also played on the sessions, produced three more Muddy Waters releases, including I'm Ready, and won two more Grammy awards for him in the process. And Winter took advantage of the opportunity to record a straight-ahead blues album of his own, cutting Nothin' but the Blues with the Muddy Waters Band backing him.

Winter, who produced and performed on Sonny Terry's "I Think I Got the Blues," also did guest spots on John Lee Hooker's Mr. Lucky and albums by Lonnie Brooks, James Cotton, and several fellow Texans, including guitarists Rocky Hill and Bugs Henderson and, of course, brother Edgar. Recurrent physical problems, both self-induced via substance abuse and hereditary via his albinism, took Winter out of action several times in the 1980s. But Winter rebounded in the 1990s, garnering Grammy nominations for his 1991 album Let Me In and Hey, Where's Your Brother released the following year. He continued to regularly record and tour, combining the two on his Live in NYC 1997 album.

MICHAEL POINT

Bibliography

AMG (William Ruhlmann); Harris; Larkin; Santelli Romano, W. "Johnny Winter: Still Alive and Well." Blues Revue no. 75 (April/May 2002): 23–24.

Discography: AMG

WITHERS, ERNEST C.

b. 7 August 1922; Memphis, TN

Renowned Memphis photographer of local black culture, including music, sports, and the Civil Rights era.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

Withers, Ernest C., and Daniel Wolff. The Memphis Blues Again: Six Decades of Memphis Music Photographs. New York: Viking Studio, 2001.

WITHERSPOON, JIMMY

b. 18 August 1921; Gurdon, AR

d. 18 September 1997; Los Angeles, CA

Perhaps no artist in blues or jazz so wholly personified the boundary-defying spirit of the 1960s as vocalist Jimmy Witherspoon, whose music was equal parts jazz, blues, R&B, and rock. 'Spoon, as he was affectionately known to fans and friends alike, had such broad stylistic range that he is likely the only person to ever sing (or perform any instrument, for that matter) with both jazz luminary Art Tatum and the British Invasion rock band the Animals.

Some sources give an alternate birth date of August 8, 1923. Raised up in the gospel of his family's church—he was soloing in choir by age five—Witherspoon moved to Los Angeles at sixteen, where he met and performed with T-Bone Walker and Tatum. When World War II broke out, he joined the Merchant Marines and ended up singing over Armed Forces Radio with Teddy Weatherford's orchestra during a shore leave in India.

While back home visiting family in 1944, he got a chance to audition for Kansas City bandleader Jay McShann, a job he got and kept for the next several years. While with McShann, Witherspoon made his first recordings, using McShann's band for his own solo studio work, including a number one hit in 1949 with the blues single "Ain't Nobody's Business."

As did many musicians of his generation, Witherspoon struggled as popular musical tastes changed in the 1950s. At one point, he apparently sought bankruptcy protection. But he kept plugging away, by now having left McShann to perform as a solo act. In the late 1950s, he began to move away from the blues and to sing in a more purely jazz vein. A live album from the 1959 Monterey Jazz Festival sold well and reestablished his presence in the music public's mind. For the early part of the 1960s, Witherspoon concentrated rather successfully on straight-ahead jazz, but as the public's musical palate began to broaden—with the arrival of the folk revival and the rock 'n' roll counterculture—Witherspoon began reincorporating his blues and R&B roots into his repertoire.

His recordings from the mid-1960s through the late 1970s again reflected popular tastes, and Witherspoon achieved his greatest commercial success. Although he never again charted at number one, he was a popular draw on the blues, jazz, and soul circuits, and as late as 1975 he had a moderate R&B hit with "Love Is a Five Letter Word." For his 1972 tour, Witherspoon hired young guitarist Robben Ford, starting a friendship and professional relationship that would last the rest of his life.

In the early 1980s, throat cancer and the resultant radiation therapy robbed Witherspoon of his once powerful vocals. He continued to perform and record, and his audience still loved him despite the new limitations on his voice. Listening to recordings made after the cancer, it is easy to see why his fans stayed with him: The passion that always drove his music is even more obvious through his tattered vocal cords than it was when he was in strong voice. His Live at the Mint album with Ford was even nominated for a Grammy for best traditional blues album.

Just a year after that recording was released, however, Witherspoon died of natural causes, bringing to a close a remarkable career that stretched from the big band swing era to rock 'n' roll and soul.

JIM TRAGESER

Bibliography

AMG (Bob Porter, Scott Yanow, and Al Campbell); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; New Grove Jazz; Santelli; Southern Dahl, Bill. "Jimmy Witherspoon" [obituary]. Living Blues no. 136 (November/December 1997): 48–49.

Discography: AMG; Lord; LSFP

Selected Recordings

Jimmy Witherspoon at the Monterey Jazz Festival (1959, Hi Fi 421).

Live at the Mint (1996, Private Music 82137; with Robben Ford).

Singin' the Blues (1959, Pacific Jazz/Blue Note 94108).

The Blues Is Now (1967, Verve 5030).

WOLF/BEST OF BLUES

Record company formed in Vienna, Austria, in 1982 by members of the Vienna Blues Fan Club, including Dr. Herbert Pessiak and Hannes Folterbauer, to put out reissues of prewar blues programmed by Johnny Parth and to issue new recordings of Chicago blues. The former endeavor, which also used a subsidiary Best of Blues label, continued into the CD era in the early 1990s, after which the material was progressively repackaged on Parth's own Document label.

The success of a Magic Slim release in 1986 established Wolf as a major player in contemporary blues. The catalog includes important work by such artists as Vance Kelly, Vaan Shaw, Nick Holt, Johnny B. Moore, John Primer, Michael Coleman, and more than fifty issues in the Chicago Blues Session series documenting the city's blues scene. Wolf has also issued systematic documentations of defunct small labels such as Bea & Baby, Abco, La Salle, and Elko.

HOWARD RYE

Bibliography

Wolf Records International website, <http://www.wolfrec.com/> (accessed December 14, 2004).

WOLFMAN JACK

b. Robert Weston Smith, 21 January 1938; Brooklyn, NY

d. 1 July 1995; Edenton, NC

U.S. disc jockey who contributed to the increased visibility of African American music from the early 1960s.

A pioneer disc jockey on American radio stations, Wolfman Jack began his career in the media as Bob Smith, after various jobs. In 1963, Smith became a radio announcer for XERF-AM, a super-powered station located south of Ciudad Acuña, Mexico, which could be heard almost anywhere in the United States. Partly inspired by bluesman Howlin' Wolf, he created a wild and enigmatic character who would howl in his late-night show: "This is the Wolfman Jack! Gonna get you some soul! Get naked!"

Instead of the conventional top forty, his audience could listen to African American popular music at a time when U.S. radio waves were still segregated in content. Located outside the United States but dedicated to the American audience, such border radio stations could escape any control or regulators.

Wolfman Jack was not the first deejay to advocate African American music, but his influence was unequaled. He remained audible all over America from 1963, and his musical choices were often imitated by other deejays. Until he appeared in his own character in the George Lucas movie American Graffiti (1973), many listeners of Wolfman Jack's radio shows thought this unusual deejay was African American since he played mostly R&B, soul, and blues combined with rock 'n' roll music.

In 1974, Canadian rock group The Guess Who got a hit with a song titled "Clap for the Wolfman" that included spoken prerecorded comments by the famous deejay. A similar tribute was made by Freddy King. From the mid-1970s, Wolfman Jack had his own TV shows, The Midnight Special followed by Rock 'n' Roll Palace, before returning to a syndicated radio show for Liberty Broadcasting in 1994. Wolfman Jack died of heart failure at fifty-six, just after the publication of his autobiography.

YVES LABERGE

Bibliography

Larkin

Douglas, Susan J. Listening In: Radio and the American Imagination, from Amos 'n' Andy and Edward R. Murrow to Wolfman Jack and Howard Stern. New York: Crown Publishing Group, 1999.

Fowler, Gene, and Bill Crawford. Border Radio: Quacks, Yodelers, Pitchmen, Psychics, and Other Amazing Broadcasters of the American Airwaves. 2nd ed. Austin: University of Texas Press, 2002 [1987].

Wolfman Jack, with Byron Laursen. Have Mercy! Confessions of the Original Rock 'n' Roll Animal. New York: Warner Books, 1995.

See also Marketing; Radio

WOMEN AND THE BLUES

From classic blues singers such as Ma Rainey and Bessie Smith to modern blues singers such as Etta James and Koko Taylor, women have always been essential contributors to blues songwriting and singing. Though far less prevalent, there have also been some notable female blues instrumentalists, such as Memphis Minnie and Geechie Wiley and, more recently, Jessie Mae Hemphill and Deborah Coleman, all of whom have accompanied themselves on guitar.

Throughout the "classic blues" era of the 1920s and up to the present, women blues singers have developed unique yet universal expressions of their experiences. Their songs express themes such as love, sex, poverty, betrayal, loneliness, domestic violence, and travel. The majority of songs performed by women blues artists were written by others (often men, in fact); however, both Bessie Smith and Ma Rainey, the two most popular "classic blues" singers, did write or cowrite a large number of the songs they recorded: Rainey, forty-eight; Smith, forty-five. But even the songs not written by the performers—especially in the case of Rainey, Smith, Ida Cox, Victoria Spivey, and Sippie Wallace—were personalized through vocal style, subtle changes in wording, or changes in lyrical emphasis. Bessie Smith was particularly adept at improvisational vocalizing, in part reflecting her association with such great jazz musicians such Louis Armstrong and Sidney Bechet.

As blues singers these women had an extremely large influence on a variety of musicians, for instance, Bessie Smith's influence on Mahalia Jackson and the popularity of Ma Rainey's "See See Rider Blues." These singers were just as inspirational to African American women, who saw these performers as successes. Whereas the average woman of African descent in the 1920s and 1930s hardly ever traveled or enjoyed personal freedom, these blues women experienced a wide variety of American life and often translated those experiences into song. Moreover, singers such as Rainey and Smith sang about the specific personal/social problems of African American women at a time when their problems were ignored and/or ridiculed by American culture at large.

Despite the often demeaning, blackface depictions of black men and women in their advertisements, the "race records" sold by record companies such as Columbia and OKeh helped to popularize these blues singers and their messages throughout the urban and rural African American populace, making many of these singers household names and, in effect, some of the first African American popular entertainers.

Beyond the "classic blues" era, women blues singers have continued to be vital influences on other musicians, the African American community, and American popular culture at large. Blues women such as Etta James, Denise La Salle, Koko Taylor, Big Mama Thornton, and many lesser-known artists such as Lynn White and Peggy Scott-Adams have continued the tradition of voicing the personal and social concerns of African American women, proving that blues music still packs a powerful punch in songs such as La Salle's "Lick It Before You Stick It," James's "Wet Match," and Taylor's "Stop Watching Your Enemies." Besides the "classic blues" themes, these singers deliver a variety of straightforward messages and advice to the listener. Moreover, some instrumentally inclined modern female performers such as Katie Webster and Jessie Mae Hemphill and, more currently, Deborah Coleman have recorded a number of blues albums garnering critical acclaim.

JUSTIN WERT

Bibliography

- Aldin, Katherine. "Down in the Bottom of That Chitlin' Bucket: an Interview with Koko Taylor." Living Blues no. 110 (July/August 1993): 10–21.
- Carpenter, Bil. "Big Mama Thornton: 200 Pounds of Boogaloo." Living Blues no. 106 (November/December 1992): 26–32.
- Davis, Angela Y. Blues Legacies and Black Feminism. New York: Random House, 1998.
- Harrison, Daphne Duval. Black Pearls. New Brunswick, NJ: Rutgers University Press, 1988.

Discography

- Bessie Smith. The Bessie Smith Story/The Complete Recordings, Vols. 1–5 (Chess, 10 CDs).
- Big Mama Thornton. Ball and Chain (1989, Arhoolie CD 305); Hound Dog: The Peacock Recordings (1992, MCA CD 10668).
- Denise La Salle. Lady in the Street (1986, Malaco LP 7412); This Real Woman (2001, Ordena CD).
- Koko Taylor. Jump for Joy (1990, Alligator CD 4784); What It Takes: The Chess Years (1991, MCA/Chess 2 CD 9328); Royal Blue (2000, Alligator 4873).
- Ma Rainey. Ma Rainey (1992, Milestone CD 47021); Ma Rainey's Black Bottom (1992, Yazoo CD 1071).

WOMEN AS LYRIC SUBJECTS

(See Women and the Blues)

WOODFORK, "POOR" BOB

- b. 13 March 1925; Lake Village, AR
d. June 1988; Chicago, IL

Guitarist, mostly as sideman to Chicago blues musicians. Woodfork learned some guitar as a youth. While serving in the U.S. Army in England during the 1940s, he was recruited to perform in the USO. For much of his Chicago career, he assisted Otis Rush, Jimmy Rogers, Howlin' Wolf, George Smith, and Little Walter Jacobs.

EDWARD KOMARA

Bibliography

- Harris; Larkin
Smith, Chris. "Bob Woodfork" [obituary]. Blues and Rhythm no. 40 (November 1988): 11.

WOODS, JOHNNY

- b. 1 November 1917; Looxahoma, MS
d. 1 February 1990; Olive Branch, MS

Johnny Woods was a rough, rhythmic Delta blues harmonica player who was able to back his friend Fred McDowell, as well as playing moving unaccompanied solos that gained him a huge reputation in his native Mississippi.

GÉRARD HERZHAFT

Bibliography

- Larkin
Johnson, Matthew. "Johnny Woods." Living Blues no. 92 (July/August 1990): 44.

Discography: LSFP

- Going Down South* (1998, Swingmaster CD 2203).
Mama Says I'm Crazy (2002, Fat Possum 0364).

WOODS, MITCH

- b. 3 April 1951; Brooklyn, NY

Pianist; blues and boogie revivalist who carries the torch of late 1940s–early 1950s jump-blues. Woods took classical piano lessons as a youngster in Brooklyn and taught himself to play boogie-woogie piano, primarily by listening to records, carefully studying the technique of boogie-woogie pioneers such as Meade Lux Lewis, Albert Ammons, and Pete Johnson.

Attending college in Buffalo, New York, Woods sat in with local groups and began focusing on music as a career. In 1970, he moved permanently to San Francisco and formed Mitch Woods and His Red Hot Mama (with singer Gracie Glassman). In 1980, he formed his full-fledged jump-blues band, Mitch

WOODS, MITCH

Woods and His Rocket 88s, and began performing around the United States and Europe. Since 1984, he has recorded five albums for Blind Pig and one for Viceroots/Lightyear.

In addition to mastering the boogie-woogie piano techniques of his early heroes and picking up tips from living piano masters such as Pinetop Perkins and Johnnie Johnson, Woods was greatly influenced by the musical style and jaunty showmanship of jump-blues stars Louis Jordan and Cab Calloway. As his career developed, he also incorporated elements from the rich piano-playing tradition of New Orleans; a 2004 DVD project paired him with veterans from Fats Domino's band. For a time in the 1990s, Woods's career benefited from the a revived swing dance craze.

Members of the Rocket 88s have included notable West Coast guitarist Danny Caron and saxophonist John Firmin (Johnny Nocturne).

STEVE HOFFMAN

Bibliography

- AMG (Bill Dahl and Stephen Thomas Erlewine)
Ivey, E. "Mitch Woods: Mr. Boogie." Blues Revue no. 55 (March 2000): 23–26.
Rideout, E. "Master Class: Rockin' the Boogie: Mitch Woods Breaks Down the Art of Rippin' It Up." Key-board 23, no. 4 (April 1997): 60–64.

Discography: AMG

WOODS, OSCAR "BUDDY"

- b. ca 1900; Shreveport, LA
d. 1956; Shreveport. LA

Aka "The Lone Wolf." Woods was an important part of the Shreveport blues scene, performing at parties on his sonorous slide guitar, which he played flat on his lap. He recorded for Victor in 1930 with Ed Shaffer as the Shreveport Home Wreckers, but some of the Home Wreckers' best work was heard backing country singer Jimmie Davis. Woods recorded again in 1936, both solo and with Kitty Gray's Wampus Cats, and performed four songs for the Library of Congress. He continued playing but died in 1956, largely forgotten.

DAVID HARRISON

Bibliography

Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli

Discography: DGR

WORK WITH ME ANNIE

"Work with Me Annie" is the first in an "Annie" series of top ten 1954 and 1955 R&B hits. It was cowritten by Henry Glover, eastern A&R director of King Records, and Syd Nathan, president of King Records, who used the pseudonym Lois Mann. The song was recorded by singer/songwriter Hank Ballard with the Midnighters group and became immensely popular. The lyrics were sexually suggestive, causing many radio stations not to play it, thus adhering to the strict censorship rules of the time.

This censorship had been promoted by a group from the South—the Houston Juvenile Delinquency and Crime Commission—who promoted themselves as being arbiters of morality and taste. They compiled a list of recordings that they deemed objectionable—without stating why they were—and strongly suggested that the radio stations not play those on the list. There were more than thirty titles on the list, and black performers, or those on rhythm and blues recording labels, were prominently listed.

In spite of this censorship, the song became so popular that it was one of the top ten hits on the rhythm and blues lists for 1954. In England, where the blues was very popular, "Work with Me Annie" sold well enough to record a million sales for 1954. This occurred despite the fact that it had not been listed on the general hit lists in the United States.

The song is a shuffle ballad with a "rolling eight note figuration in the bass and a wailing blue note in the melody." It also has a strong backbeat (where the second and fourth beats are stressed instead of the first and third). The popularity of "Work with Me Annie" gave rise to two answer records, "Roll with Me Henry," and "Dance with Me Henry." "Roll with Me Henry" was less sexually explicit than "Work with Me Annie" and was actually the first line of the eventual title "Wall Flower." Co-written by singer Etta James, who recorded it, and bandleader/drummer/record producer Johnnie Otis, the song was a top ten R&B hit. "Dance with Me Henry," a cover of Etta James's "Roll with Me Henry" by white singer Georgia Gibbs, was a top hit—#13 on the pop charts—and million seller.

Hank Ballard answered the "Henrys" with his own Henry, "Henry's Got Flat Feet (Can't Dance No More)." This title also made the Houston Commission's list but did not have the success of the "Annie" series or the two other "Henrys." Two sequels, "Annie Had a Baby" and "Annie's Aunt Fannie," as well as another answer record, "Annie Doesn't Live Here Anymore," were derived from the popularity of "Work with Me Annie." "Annie Had a Baby," as had "Work with Me Annie," became a number one 1954 R&B hit, and while "Annie's Aunt Fannie" made the 1954 top ten R&B list, it did not make the number one spot. The answer record "Annie Doesn't Live Here Anymore" was recorded by the Platters but did not quite have the success of other of their songs.

MONICA J. BURDEX

Bibliography

Evans, Simon. "Working with Annie." Blues and Rhythm no. 69 (1992): 8–10.

WORLD WAR II

The Second World War started in 1939 with Adolf Hitler's invasion of Poland on September 1. American blues singers such as Leadbelly, the Florida Kid, Frank Edwards, and Doctor Clayton warned against Hitler and his Italian ally Benito Mussolini in 1940 and 1941. The most outspoken black tirade against Hitler on record was recorded by an unidentified man for the Library of Congress in 1942.

From his Baptist pulpit Reverend J. Gates preached about Hitler and Hell a few weeks before the attack on Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941. The Japanese bombs were made of American brass and scrap iron, Doctor Clayton bitterly commented after the attack. The resultant anti-Japanese sentiment led to racist songs by African Americans. The most virulent of these was recorded by the Lucky Millinder band. The foremost Pearl Harbor saga was recorded by the Selah Jubilee Singers. It was later augmented in recordings by the Soul Stirrers and Blind Connie Williams. In blues and gospel music Japan was not personified by the Emperor Hirohito but by General Hideki Tojo, who was hanged for war crimes in 1948.

For President Roosevelt, General Douglas MacArthur, with his presidential ambitions, was one of the most dangerous people in the United States, but by the blues and gospel singers he was hailed as the war hero par excellence. Willie "61" Blackwell, Son House, Sonny Boy Williamson, and many more sang his praises.

In 1943 Stalin was still praised by the Golden Gate Quartet after the German invasion of Russia.

Rationing was an unfortunate side effect of the war and blues singers such as Wee Bea Booze, Louis Jordan, and Buzz Ezell lamented the shortage of clothes, drink, groceries, meat, oil, rubber, and tobacco on 78 records.

One of the most unpopular wartime agencies was the Office of Price Administration, the OPA, and artists such as Ann Sorter-McCoy and Louis Jordan vented their dissatisfaction with it.

John Lee "Sonny Boy" Williamson recorded three songs in which he imagined himself the pilot of a warplane. The minds of the soldiers at war were often haunted by worries about the women left behind, and songs about the Jody Man who took care of the women back home were quite popular. Many blues songs were recorded for Victory Discs and broadcast to the armed forces. Louis Jordan, "the Global G. I. Favorite," was one of the most popular of these blues artists.

In early 1945 James McCain sang that he had voted for Roosevelt because there was still a war to win. In blues and gospel music Roosevelt was idolized as the ideal leader, who had mobilized the army in time and who was bound to secure an American victory. However, at the beginning of his fourth term, on April 12, 1945, Roosevelt suffered a fatal hemorrhage. The many memorial songs by artists such as Jack Dupree and Big Joe Williams virtually canonized him. The foremost Roosevelt tribute was recorded by Miami disc jockey Otis Jackson. Upon Roosevelt's death, Harry Truman was sworn in as his presidential successor, and he led the United States through the remaining months of the war in Europe and in Japan and into the postwar era from August 1945 through 1952.

GUIDO VAN RIJN

Bibliography

Rijn, Guido van. Roosevelt's Blues: African-American Blues and Gospel Songs on FDR. Jackson: University Press of Mississippi, 1997.

———. The Truman and Eisenhower Blues: Blues and Gospel Songs 1945–1960. London: Continuum, 2002.

WRENCHER, "BIG" JOHN THOMAS

b. 12 February 1923; near Sunflower, MS

d. 15 July 1977; Clarksdale, MS

Aka "One-Arm John." Generally considered a Chicago musician, singer, and harmonica player, John Wrencher also lived for several years in St. Louis and Detroit and throughout his life kept ties to his native Mississippi. Reputedly he lost his left arm in a traffic accident in the 1950s down south. In Detroit during the 1950s he played the club and tavern circuit, frequently with Little George Jackson and also Baby Boy Warren, with whom he is said to have recorded. Beginning in the early 1960s he was a regular performer on Chicago's Maxwell Street and became inextricably associated with it through his two decades of playing there and also for the LP Maxwell Street Alley Blues (1974, Barrelhouse), also notable for its cover by cartoonist Robert Crumb.

WRENCHER, "BIG" JOHN THOMAS

Wrencher also recorded a single on Ja-Wes, "Tell Me Darlin'" b/w "Memphis to Maxwell Street," and appeared on Testament LPs with Johnny Young, John Lee Granderson, and Carl Martin (Chicago String Band) and with Robert Nighthawk (Modern Chicago Blues). Wrencher sings and plays three numbers, accompanied by Nighthawk, on And This Is Maxwell Street (P-Vine/Rooster). He toured Europe in the 1970s, where he recorded two Big Bear LPs, Big John's Boogie and American Blues Legends 1974, with Eddie Taylor and others.

Though meager by most measures, Wrencher's fine body of work has nonetheless been anthologized on numerous collections. Wrencher possessed an authoritative, powerful voice, and his strong boogie-style harp playing, unhampered by his handicap, was marked by a vigorous vibrato that drew on his physicality and stamina.

Despite his muscular playing style and engaging personality, he made infrequent club appearances, although he held a weekly gig at Elsewhere in Chicago for more than a year with Floyd Jones before traveling to visit his father in Clarksdale, Mississippi, where he died in his sleep.

JUSTIN O'BRIEN

Bibliography

AMG (Cub Koda); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin

Discography: AMG; LSFP

Maxwell Street Alley Blues (Barrelhouse BH-02).

WRIGHT, BILLY

b. 21 May 1932; Atlanta, GA

d. 27 October 1991; Atlanta, GA

Vocalist Billy Wright remained an Atlanta, Georgia, phenomenon throughout his career. He came to the attention of Sammy Green, owner of the 81 Theatre and the most influential local entrepreneur for African American talent. In 1949, Wright impressed out-of-town headliner Paul "Hucklebuck" Williams, who recommend the vocalist to his label, Savoy Records, owned by Herman Lubinsky. Wright's first release, "Blues for My Baby," hit the national charts, but all the others remained only local successes. The Savoy contract was curtailed in 1952, though Wright later cut unsuccessful, and in some cases unreleased, tracks for Duke/Peacock and Fire/Fury. Wright kept up his visibility as a topliner in the Atlanta community, befriended a young Little Richard, and influenced the younger man with his flamboyant persona as "Prince of the Blues."

DAVID SANJEK

Bibliography

AMG (Bill Dahl); Larkin; Santelli
Powell, Bryan. "Billy Wright" [obituary]. Living Blues no. 103 (May/June 1992): 52–53.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

WRIGHT, EARLY

b. 10 February 1915; Jefferson, MS

d. 10 December 1999; Memphis, TN

Wright moved to Clarksdale, Mississippi, in 1937 and held a series of jobs (including farmer) before becoming a mechanic and opening his own garage. In 1947 he became the first black deejay in Mississippi on radio station WROX; on his legendary nightly "Soul Man" broadcast he presented live interviews, obituaries, and other news until his death in 1999.

ROBERT SACRÉ

Bibliography

Arentson, Bob. "Early Wright." Juke Blues no. 46 (Spring 2000): 66–67.

Mayfield, Panny. "Early Wright" [obituary]. Living Blues no. 151 (May/June 2000): 119–120.

McWilliams, Andy. "The Night Time Is the Wright Time: Delta DJ Early 'Soul Man' Wright." Living Blues no. 82 (September/October 1988): 16–19.

WRIGHT, MARVA

b. 20 March 1948; New Orleans, LA

Vocals, composer, bandleader. Marva Wright turned her powerful voice from gospel to blues in mid-life and assembled a first-rate band of top Crescent City musicians to establish a successful career as New Orleans's modern-day "Queen of the Blues." She has worked with Allen Toussaint, Aaron Neville, Fats Domino, Cyril Neville, Walter "Wolfman" Washington, Rockin' Dopsie, Wild Magnolias, and J. Monque'D.

JOHN SINCLAIR

Bibliography

Santelli

Discography

Heartbreakin' Woman (1991, Tipitina's Records).
I Still Haven't Found What I'm Looking For (1995, AIM).
Marvalous (1995, Mardi Gras).
Born with the Blues (1996, Virgin).
My Christmas Song (1996, Mardi Gras).
Bluesiana Mama (1999, AIM).
Let Them Talk (2000, AIM).

WRIGHT, OVERTON ELLIS "O. V."

b. 19 October 1939; Leno, TN
 d. 16 November 1980; Memphis, TN

Wright was originally a gospel performer while a member of the Harmony Echoes and the Sunset Travelers, signing initially with Peacock Records, a gospel label owned by Don Robey. A prolific songwriter, his secular debut was entitled "That's How Strong My Love Is," also covered by Otis Redding and the Rolling Stones, for Goldwax in Memphis. When Robey learned of his secular success, he forced Wright to honor his contract and record exclusively on one of Robey's labels, Back Beat. Wright had R&B hits with other of his compositions, including "You're Gonna Make Me Cry" in 1965 and "Eight Men and Four Women" in 1967.

A period of incarceration interrupted his career in the mid-1970s, but Wright reappeared in 1975 with a move to Hi Records. He released "Rhymes" in 1976 and "I Feel Love Growin'" in 1978. Both releases were commercially unsuccessful and did little to enhance his reputation. And, as his career stagnated, his fans wished for a return of the soulful, dynamic O. V. Wright of the mid-1960s. He was a powerful voice of transition from the traditional blues of the 1950s to soul. Wright died in 1980 from a heart attack.

TOM FISHER

Bibliography

Larkin; Santelli

Discography

(If It's) Only for Tonight (1965, Back Beat BLP-61).
Eight Men and Four Women (1968, Back Beat BLP-66).
Nucleus of Soul (1969, Back Beat BLP-67).
A Nickel & A Nail and Ace of ... (1971, Back Beat BLP-70).
Memphis Unlimited (1973, Back Beat BLP-72).

Y

YANCEY, JAMES EDWARD(S) “JIMMY”

b. 20 February 1898; Chicago, IL
d. 17 September 1951; Chicago, IL

Pianist and one of the progenitors of boogie-woogie. His father was a vaudeville entertainer, brother Alonzo a ragtime pianist. Yancey toured the United States and Europe as a tap dancer and singer as a child. He was taught piano by his brother, but he also played baseball and was groundskeeper for the Chicago White Sox from 1925 to 1951.

Yancey played house parties in Chicago. He was never a full-time musician for any length of time, and is not as well known as players like Albert Ammons, Meade “Lux” Lewis, or Pete Johnson. Nonetheless he was a key figure in the development of boogie-woogie piano, and had an important influence on other players. Lewis’s appropriation of his “Yancey Special” led to a court case over the rights to the tune, which Yancey won.

Yancey made his first recordings for the Solo Art label in 1939–1940. They revealed his ability to compensate for his relative technical limitations by investing his playing with real expressive depth. He excelled at slow and medium tempos, where his deep feeling for the blues shone through his often complex left-hand bass figures and melancholy melodies. He went on to record for several other labels in rather desultory fashion, including Victor, Vocalion, Session, Paramount, and Atlantic.

Yancey recorded some sessions with his wife, singer Estelle “Mama” Yancey, and fellow boogie-woogie pianist Cripple Clarence Lofton, and performed with his wife at Carnegie Hall in 1948. He played at the Beehive Club in Chicago in 1948–1950. He suffered from diabetes, and died after a stroke at his home.

KENNY MATHIESON

Bibliography

AMG (Chris Kelsey); Harris; Larkin; New Grove Jazz; Santelli; Southern
Chilton, John. Who’s Who of Jazz: Storyville to Swing Street. 4th ed. London: Macmillan; New York: Da Capo, 1985.
Silvester, Peter. A Left Hand Like God: The Story of Boogie Woogie. London: Quartet Books, 1988.

Discography: DGR; LSFP

“Bear Trap Blues”/“Odd Quaker Blues” (1939, Vocalion 5490); “Jimmy’s Stuff”/“The Fives” (1939, Solo Art 12008); “Slow and Easy Blues”/“The Mellow Blues” (1939, Victor 26591); “Tell ’Em About Me”/“Five O’Clock Blues” (1939, Victor 26590); “Yancey Stomp”/“State Street Special” (1939, Victor 26589); “Cryin’ in My Sleep”/“Death Letter Blues” (1940, Bluebird 8630); “Yancey’s Bugle Call”/“35th and Dearborn” (1940, Victor 27238).
With Mama Yancey: “At the Window” (1943, Session 10-005); “How Long Blues”/“Pallet on My Floor” (1943, Session 12-003); “Yancey Special” (1943, Session 12-001).

YANCEY, MAMA ESTELLE

b. Estelle Harris, 1 January 1896; Cairo, IL
d. 4 May 1986; Chicago, IL

Lived in Chicago from age six months; sang in church choirs and learned guitar and piano in childhood. She was married to blues/boogie-woogie pianist, Jimmy Yancey. Although she was inhibited from performing in public first by her father and then by her husband, she sang often with her husband at home, at house parties, in clubs, and in Carnegie Hall (New York) and Orchestra Hall (Chicago) in 1948. She recorded with her husband in 1943 and in 1951 just before his death. Subsequently she recorded with Don Ewell (1952), Little Brother Montgomery (1961), Art Hodes (1965), Erwin Helfer (1983), and Axel Zwingenberger (1988). She performed with Erwin Helfer at the Indianapolis Jazz Club (1956), at the University of Chicago Folk Festival (1977–1978), the Chicago Jazz Festival, and at Elsewhere (late 1970s), and with Earl Hines at Northwestern University (1978). She also performed at the Limelight Club (1962), Red Lion Club (1962), and Touch of Olde Club (1964) in Chicago, and at Barbara Dane's Sugar Hill Club in San Francisco (1961).

Yancey recorded twenty-four different songs, seven of them several times: "How Long Blues," "Make Me a Pallet," "Monkey Woman Blues," "4 O'Clock Blues," "Santa Fe," "Weekly Blues," and "Trouble in Mind." She used a great deal of incremental repetition in her lyrics varying them considerably from version to version. Her melodies and singing style changed after Jimmy's death in part due to the different styles of her new accompanists. Yancey was an outgoing, fun-loving, proud yet unassuming singer and storyteller. In her words—"I can stand more trouble than any little woman my size" ("How Long Blues," 1951).

MARIA V. JOHNSON

Bibliography

- AMG (Richard Skelly); Harris; Santelli; Southern Bowers, Jane. "I Can Stand More Trouble Than Any Little Woman My Size": Observations on the Meanings of the Blues of Estelle 'Mama' Yancey." American Music 11, no. 1 (Spring 1993): 28–53.
- , and William Westcott. "Mama Yancey and the Revival Blues Tradition." Black Music Research Journal 12, no. 2 (Fall 1992): 171–213.

Discography: AMG; DGR; LSPF

YARDBIRDS

Formed 1963; broke up 1968. Re-formed intermittently since 1984. Along with John Mayall's Bluesbreakers and Peter Green's Fleetwood Mac, the Yardbirds were among the first British bands to play Chicago-style electric blues for a young rock audience. The Yardbirds differed from the others in mixing the blues with rock 'n' roll and, later, psychedelia, to create a new hybrid.

The band is best remembered for a string of hit songs in the mid-1960s and for having rock guitarists Eric Clapton, Jeff Beck, and Jimmy Page as members. Blues fans will be most interested in the band's first incarnation, with Clapton; Five Live Yardbirds is the band's most blues-oriented album.

The Yardbirds was formed in 1963 by singer Keith Relf, with guitarists Anthony "Top" Topham and Chris Dreja, bassist Paul Samwell-Smith, and drummer Jim McCarty. Relf named the band after Charlie "Yardbird" Parker, the jazz saxophonist. Topham soon left the band, and was replaced by Clapton. That fall, the band backed a visiting Sonny Boy (Aleck Miller) Williamson for a live recording session.

When Clapton quit in early 1965 to join Mayall's Bluesbreakers and was replaced by Beck, the band's focus on the blues was significantly lessened. Page joined the band as a bassist in the summer of 1966, and took over lead guitar when Beck left that fall. By late 1968, all of the original members of the band were gone and Page renamed the band Led Zeppelin.

Relf died in 1976. Original members Dreja and McCarty have performed and recorded under the band's name intermittently since 1984. A 2001 two-disc collection, The Yardbirds Ultimate!, contained their most popular and influential 1960s recordings.

JIM TRAGESER

Bibliography

- Russo, Greg. Yardbirds: The Ultimate Rave-Up. Floral Park, NY: Crossfire Publications, 1997.

Discography

- Five Live Yardbirds* (1964, Columbia 33SX-1677).
Sonnyboy Williamson & The Yardbirds (1966, Mercury SR-61071).
The Yardbirds Ultimate! (2001, Rhino R2 19825).

YAZOO

(See Shanachie/Yazoo/Belzona/Blue Goose)

YOUNG, JOHNNY

- b. 1 January 1918; Vicksburg, MS
 d. 18 April 1974; Chicago, IL

Well known in the mid-1940s on Maxwell Street, an associate of men like Floyd and Moody Jones and Snooky Pryor, singer, guitarist, and mandolinist Young was involved in some of the earliest postwar recordings of southern-style Chicago blues. With singer/guitarist Johnny Williams he cut “Money Taking Woman” and “Worried Man Blues” (Ora Nelle) in 1947, and with Williams and Pryor “My Baby Walked Out” and “Let Me Ride Your Mule” (Planet/Old Swingmaster) in 1948. Fifteen years later, beached by the tides of the more modern Chicago blues styles, he participated in sessions for Pete Welding’s Testament label that further documented the quieter small-band music of those earlier days. Modern Chicago Blues, in particular, illustrates his flair for drawing varied groups of compatible musicians from a pool that included Otis Spann, Jimmy Walker, and Little Walter. The skill no doubt grew from his long and varied experience, but it was perhaps somewhat surprising in a man whom not all his contemporaries regarded with affection. A similar air of professional competence hangs over his subsequent albums for Arhoolie, made with Spann, Walter Horton, and James Cotton, and other labels. His own talents were respectable rather than remarkable, but his singing, though limited in range, was by no means unexpressive. Also, as European enthusiasts discovered when he visited during a 1972 blues festival package, he could hold an audience alone with just a mandolin, which at that date made him an endangered species. He spent his last years working with pianist Bob Riedy’s band.

TONY RUSSELL

Bibliography

- AMG (Barry Lee Pearson); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli
 O’Neal, Jim. “Johnny Young.” Living Blues no. 17 (Summer 1974): 6.
 Russell, Tony. “Farewell Blues—Two Tributes: Johnny Young 1917–1974.” Into Jazz 1, no. 5 (June 1974): 7.

Discography: LSFP

See also McCoy, Charlie; Rachell, Yank; Riedy, Bob; Williams, Johnny (2)

YOUNG, “MIGHTY” JOE

- b. 23 September 1927; Shreveport, LA
 d. 24 March 1999; Chicago, IL

Singer/guitarist Mighty Joe Young learned guitar as a boy from his father, and spent time as a teenager in Los Angeles before relocating to Milwaukee around 1945. There, Young continued to study music and worked briefly as an amateur boxer. By 1950, he had devoted himself to music and began playing various clubs in the area. He temporarily moved back to Louisiana in 1955 and cut his first record for the tiny Jiffy label. In 1956, Young moved to Chicago and played for years on the South and West Sides, often behind Jimmy Rogers, Billy Boy Arnold, and Otis Rush. He recorded for Atomic-H in 1958, and throughout the 1960s had releases on a variety of labels including Fire, U.S.A., and Webcor. He also recorded behind Magic Sam, Otis Rush, and Jimmy Dawkins on several landmark 1960s Delmark sessions.

Young’s aptly titled 1970 Delmark LP, Blues with a Touch of Soul, combined his tough West Side guitar playing with his powerful, soul-tinged vocals. He went on to record two excellent albums for Ovation in the 1970s and continued to be a very popular and much-loved Chicago bandleader throughout the 1980s, but surgery to correct a pinched nerve in 1986 sadly ended his ability to play guitar. Young’s anticipated 1997 comeback album on Blind Pig, Mighty Man, was praised by critics, but in 1999, he elected to have a second operation in hopes of restoring the feeling in his fingers that would allow him to play guitar again. Tragically, Young died of complications from the surgery at age seventy-one.

GENE TOMKO

Bibliography

- AMG (Bill Dahl and Al Campbell); Harris; Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli
 O’Brien, Justin. “Mighty Joe Young.” Living Blues no. 146 (July/August 1999): 46–47.

Discography: AMG; LSFP

- Blues with a Touch of Soul* (1971, Delmark DD-629).
Mighty Joe Young (2002, Blind Pig BPCD 5073).

YOUNG, ZORA

- b. 21 January 1948; West Point, MS

Chicago-based vocalist. Young got her start singing in church; she also sang on radio station WROB, along with her mother and stepfather. When she was about eight, she moved with her family to Illinois—first to downstate Carbondale, then to Chicago. Although the blues were forbidden in her home, she heard the music emanating from clubs and on the radio.

In the 1970s she joined a show band called Cleaning Company Number Three, with whom she worked soul/blues revues with stars like Denise LaSalle and Little Milton. In Chicago she also performed on the burgeoning (predominantly white) North Side circuit; pianist Sunnyland Slim was an important mentor during this period. In 1981, she toured France, an engagement that led to 1982's Blues with the Girls (Paris), which cofeatured Bonnie Lee and Big Time Sarah. She also appeared with Sunnyland on his "She Got a Thing Goin' On" (Earwig).

Young's self-produced Stumbling Blocks and Stepping Stones was issued in 1983; that same year she initiated a three-year run with the play Heart of the Blues, in which she portrayed Bessie Smith. Subsequent recordings have included 1992's Travelin' Light (Deluge), I Got a Right to Sing the Blues (1995, Blues Rock Connection), and, in 2002, Learned

My Lesson (Delmark). She continues to perform regionally and nationwide, as well as on frequent overseas tours. Her onstage presence combines regal dignity with a gritty sass that is accentuated by her raspy voice, flamboyant outfits, and saucy, self-confident demeanor.

DAVID WHITEIS

Bibliography

AMG (Linda Seida); Herzhaft; Larkin; Santelli
Bock, Scott M. "Zora Young: The Money Wasn't There But We Had It in Our Hearts." Living Blues no. 165 (2002): 21–26.

Discography: AMG

Z

ZIEGLER, JOHN LEE

b. 12 April 1929; Kathleen, GA

A plumber for a living and a deep Georgia bluesman playing in juke joints every weekend nights, John Lee Ziegler developed a highly personal, rhythmic approach to the guitar, playing left handed and upside down, accompanied only by percussions. Discovered by George Mitchell in the 1970s, he has since been recording sporadically for several labels.

GÉRARD HERZHAFT

Bibliography

- Duffy, Tim. "John Lee Ziegler." Living Blues no. 137 (January/February 1998): 16–17.
Mitchell, George. Blow My Blues Away. New York: Da Capo Press, 1984.

Discography

- Georgia Blues Today* (1981, Flyright LP 576).
Came So Far (1994, Music Maker CD CF130).

ZINN, RUSTY

b. 3 April 1970; Long Beach, CA

Guitarist, singer, and songwriter. Guitarist Luther Tucker, who Zinn befriended at a jam session when he was eighteen, and harpist/bandleader Kim Wilson, who hired him in 1993, were the catalysts for Zinn's career. With Tucker as his mentor, Zinn joined the Mark Hummel Band. He met Wilson at the San Francisco Blues Festival and was recruited for the harpist's solo album Tigerman. Wilson subsequently coproduced Zinn's 1996 Sittin' and Waitin' debut on Black Top Records, which helped earn him a W. C. Handy Award nomination for best new artist. In addition to his own Confessin' and The Chill albums, Zinn also recorded with Jody Williams on The Legend Returns and with Little Charlie & the Nightcats on the group's That's Big.

MICHAEL POINT

Bibliography

AMG (Richard Skelly)

Discography: AMG (Richard Skelly)

ZZ TOP

Founded 1970. Guitarist Billy Gibbons, bassist Dusty Hill, and drummer Frank Beard are among a handful of trios that have maintained a devotion to blues, yet also enjoyed rock superstardom. Their long beards and legendary antics both on the road and during live performances shouldn't obscure their long blues advocacy. One of their first big hits, "La Grange," was based directly on John Lee Hooker's

ZZ TOP

“Boogie Chillen,” and they have been intimately involved in fund-raising and support activities for the Delta Blues museum in Clarksdale. Gibbons is both a magnificent technical player and great showman, and the original line-up has remained intact since the group’s formation in 1970.

RON WYNN

Bibliography

AMG (Cub Koda); Larkin; Santelli
Blayney, David. Sharp Dressed Men: ZZ Top Behind the Scenes from Blues to Boogie to Beards. New York: Hyperion, 1994.

Discography: AMG

INDEX

A

- A la Bridges, 595
A.F.O., 10
AACM (Association for the Advancement of Creative Musicians)
 jazz since 1970s, spearheading developments in, 517 members, musical experiments of, 517
Abbey, Jon, 488
Abbott, Robert, 375
ABC-Paramount/BluesWay, 1, 458
 Bell, Carey, 70
 Bland, Bobby “Blue,” 98
 Charles, Ray, 192–193
 Domino, Fats, 277–278
 Gordon, Rosco(e), 371
 King, Riley B. “B.B.,” 573–574
 Reed, Jimmy, 1
 Rushing, Jimmy, 1
 Spann, Otis, 1
Abdullah, Khaled, 118
Aberdeen Mississippi, 1070
Abernathy, Marion, 28, 212, 859
Abilene, 462
Abner, Ewart, 1, 144
 with Carter, James C. and Vivian, 1
About Them Shoes, 939, 994
Abrams, Muhal Richard, in AACM, 517
Abramson, Herb, 35, 551, 1014
Abshire, Nathan, 2, 635
ACA Studios, 646
Accompaniment
 Blind Blake and, 54, 100, 495, 928
 gospel quartets and, 91
 Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” difficulty of playing with, 462 jazz, for classic blues vocalists, 117, 134, 480, 510, 768, 804
 Jefferson, Blind Lemon and, 45, 231, 348, 385, 434, 495, 555
 Johnson, Lonnie as, 17, 54, 117, 474, 534, 882, 996
 new roles in free jazz, 516, 517 string, bebop musicians experimenting with, 513
Accordion, 2–4
 Chenier, Clifton, and, 197
 Creole blues and, 3 earliest photograph of American playing, 2 fifth chord, inability to play, 3
 Mississippi blues and, 2–3 in pre-blues era, 2 sales of, 2 styles of playing, 3 types of, 2
 zydeco, 3–4
 See also button accordion; piano accordion
Ace (United Kingdom), 5
Ace (United States), 5
Ace 100 Series, The CDs (Ace-UK), 5
Ace, Buddy, 5
 with Hollimon, Clarence, 450
Ace, Johnny, 6, 98
 with Beale Street Boys, 98
 Buffalo Booking Agency and, 205, 288
Aces, The, 6 with Below, Fred, 71, 72
 in Japan, 506
Acey, Johnny, 6
Achievement in Photography, Blues Foundation, Flerlage, Raeburn, 332, 333 Acid jazz, 517, 597, 772
Acklin, Barbara, 6–7
 with Chandler, Gene, 6
Ackroyd, Dan (“Elwood Blues”), 126, 130, 328
Acoustic guitar, 383, 384
 Broonzy, Big Bill and, 150
 Hovington, Franklin “Frank,” 469
 Keb’ Mo’ and, 561
 1960s folk revival, 497, 561, 657 steel string flat-top, 389 technique, Hooker, John Lee, 459
Acquaye, Saka, 12
Across 110th Street (film), 353
Across the Board, 102
Adams, Alberta, 7
 Detroit, 301
Adams, Arthur, 7
Adams, Dr. Jo Jo, 7
Adams, Faye, 7
Adams, J.T., 660
Adams, Jo Jo, 859
Adams, John Tyler “J.T.,” 8
Adams, Johnny, 8
 with Brown, Ruth, 161
 with Katz, Bruce, 560
Adams, Marie, 8
Adams, Woodrow Wilson, 9
Adaptation of locale or gender in blues lyrics, 106, 1008 Adderly, Cannonball, 515, 516
 hard bop and, 515
Adegbalola, Gaye, 855
Adelphi Records, 9, 474, 929
 Beauregard, Nathan, 69
 Thackery, Jimmy, 9
 Waters, Muddy, 9
Adins, Joris “Georges,” 9
Admirals, The, 9
Advent Records, 9
Adventures in Babysitting (film), 328, 329
AFBF (American Folk Blues Festival), 23, 964–966, 1088 audience, 23
 with Below, Fred, 23 with Chenier, blues festivals, 23, 120
 Clifton, 233
 with Embry, “Queen Sylvia,” 303
 European, Lenoir, J.B., 23, 966 France, 23
 with Guy, George “Buddy,” 23
 with Hooker, John Lee, 23
 with Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” 23
 with House, Eddie “Son,” 23 international, 23
 with Jackson, Armand “Jump,” 493
 See also blues festivals AFBF tours
AFM (American Federation of Musicians)
 in postwar era, 119
 recording, ban on, 189, 272, 514
Africa, 10–13
 cosmology, hoodoo and, 111, 455–457
 Africa and the Blues, 12, 13
African Americans banjo, development of, 53–54 blues antecedents through 1830 and, 111 church of, 89
 civil rights activism, 689 communities, juke joints and, 588 culture of, institutionalization of jazz and, 517 discrimination, 800 dozens and, 270 fiddle traditions, 316

INDEX

- African Americans banjo, development of (Continued)
- Hispanics and, musical syncretisms, 432
 - in Jim Crow South, 15, 78, 274, 615, 641
 - Junior Kimbrough's, open weeknights for, 554
 - literature and, 41
 - middle class, 795
 - migration of, 511, 1025
 - music hall songs, 100
 - post-World War II, 631
 - producing blues festivals, 442
 - racial identity, celebrating, 122 and racism, 794-796
 - in recording industry, 654
 - religion and, 455
 - slavery. See slavery
 - southern, recruiting to northern factories, 615
 - in Texas, Mexican street singers and, 432
- African Blues*, 11
- African culture
- folklore, 880
 - musical scales, 840
 - musical traditions, 53, 874
 - religion, and sexuality, 872
- African Hunch, 594
- "African Hunch" sound, 594
- African Influences on the Music of the Americas* (Waterman), 872
- African Methodist Episcopal (AME), 90
- African music
- antecedents of drums, 322
 - antecedents of fiddle, 315
 - antecedents of field hollers, 320-340
 - antecedents of guitar, 383-384
 - banjo, antecedents of, 52, 53
 - bass, antecedents of, 61-62
 - black string bands, influences on, 45
 - blues, similarities with, 11
 - in Creole blues, 3
 - fife and drums, antecedents of, 112, 322, 1016
 - funk and, 352
 - influences on modern sacred music, 88
 - jazz antecedents, 509
 - kazoo, antecedents of, 560
 - nonverbal substitutions in blues lyrics, 106
 - slaves discouraged from performing, 112
 - zither, 268, 384
- See also* Africa
- African-American literature, insights about blues in, 41, 446, 617, 980
- African-American musicians, 78
- Chicago, 1902, 200
 - Dorsey House of Music and, 280
 - early film of, 325
 - English-speaking, 3
 - fiddlers, 316, 975
 - Grand Ole Opry and, 40
 - "John Henry," favorite among, 524
 - street performers, Jefferson, Blind Lemon as, 518, 519
- Africans, French-speaking descendants of, 2
- Afro-American Folk Music from TAtE and Panola Counties, Mississippi, 323
- After Dark*, 8
- After Hours*, 415, 762
- After Work*, 303
- Aftermath*, 846
- Agee, Ray, 793
- Agee, Raymond Clinton "Ray," 13
- with Celeste, 190
- Agram Blues/Old Tramp, 13
- Alexander, Algernon "Texas," 13
- Agricultural workers, Hurt, John Smith "Mississippi John" as, 482
- Agriculture, Alabama, 14
- Agwada, Vince, 13
- Ailey, Alvin, 246
- Ain't Enough Comin' In*, 853
- Ain't Gonna Cry, 306
- Ain't Gonna Do It, 602
- Ain't Got No Home, 363, 422
- Ain't It a Pity and a Shame, 1068
- Ain't It a Shame, 277
- Ain't No Tellin, 649
- Ain't Nobody Here But Us Chickens, 549, 861
- Ain't Nobody's Business, 1095
- Ain't Nothing You Can Do, 124
- Ain't That Loving You Baby, 481
- Ainslie, Scott, Robert, Johnson, transcriptions of, 538
- Ain't I a Woman*, 101
- Ain't It a Shame, 490
- Ain't Superstitious, 338
- Airbusters*, 613
- Airplane Blue, 475
- Airy Man Blues, 994
- Aitken, Laurel, 793
- Ajax, 14
- Akers, Garfield, 14
- field hollers and, 320
 - guitar, 1920s, 385
- Al Braggs and the Organizers, 145
- Al Green Gets Next to You*, 376
- Al Grey All Stars, with Brown, Clarence "Gatemouth," 156
- Alabama Blues*, 594
- Alabama Bound, 39, 478
- Alabama March, 594
- Alabama Music Hall of Fame, and Alexander, Arthur, 17
- Alabama Strut, 234
- Alabama, 14-16
- Austin and, 16
 - blacks migrating from, postwar era, 16, 48, 116
 - blacks migrating to, postwar era, 16
 - Depression years, 117
 - pre-World War II era, 117
- See also* Memphis/Old Memphis
- Alabamians, the, 144
- Aladdin Boogie, 691
- Aladdin/Score, 16
- Allen, Lee, 19
- Brown, Clarence "Gatemouth," 156
- Crawford, James "Sugar Boy," 236, 237
- Drifting Blues, 283
- Garlow, Clarence "Bon Ton," 360
- Green, Lil, 378
- Harris, Thurston, 412-413
- Hopkins, Sam "Lightnin'," 462
- Jackson, Little Willie, 498
- Jordan, Louis, 548-549
- Kelton, Robert "Bob," 562
- King, Saunders, 576
- Liggins, Jimmy, 611
- Mesner, Leo and, 16
- Shirley & Lee, 16
- Soul Stirrers, 16
- The Trumpeteers, 16
- Ultra, 296
- Young, Lester, 16
- Alan Freed's Rock 'n' Roll Orchestra, 42, 788
- Albatross, 332, 379
- Albert Collins Live 92-93*, 220
- Albertson, Chris, 444
- songbooks by, 444
- Alcoholism, 342, 449, 464, 469, 495, 637, 691, 723, 805, 824, 1024
- Alcorn College, and blacks, education of, 113
- Aldin, Mary Katherine, 444, 666
- Alert, 17
- Abrams, Solly, 17
 - Dupree, Champion Jack, 17
- Alexander, Algernon "Texas," 17
- with Carter, Bo, 221
 - with Chatmon, Sam, 231
 - field hollers and, 320
 - with Hopkins, Sam "Lightin'," 462
 - with Johnson, Lonnie, 532
 - with Jones, Dennis "Little Hat," 545
- Alexander, Arthur, 17
- Alexander, Dave, 17-18
- Alexander, Honey, 772
- Alexander, J.W., 225
- Alexander, John Marshall, Jr.
- See* Ace, Johnny
- Alexander, Texas, 884

- Alexander, Willard, with Johnson, Pete, 535
- Alford, James, Smitty's Red Top Lounge, proprietor of, 555
- Ali, Quraysh, with Brown, Oscar III "Bobo," 160
- Alison, Gene, with Jarrett, Theodore "Ted," 507
- Alive!*, 220
- Alix, May. See Hunter, Alberta, 18
- All Aboard, 229
- All Alone Blues, 102
- All Along the Watch Tower, 420
- All Around Man*, 778
- All Around the World, 525
- All for Business*, 259
- All I Could Do Was Cry, 501
- All I Want Is a Spoonful, 923
- All Media Guide to Blues* (book), Koda, Michael "Cub," coauthor, 578–579
- All My Life*, 156
- All My Life, 44, 836
- All My Money Gone*, 970
- "All Negro Radio Hour" radio program, WSBC, Chicago, and Cooper, Jack L., 225–226
- All Night Long* (Jr. Kimbrough), 744
- All Night Long Blues, 533
- All Night Long, 164
- All Night Long*, 744
- All of a Sudden, 699
- All Over You and Blues Stop Knockin'*, 586
- All Over You, 586
- All She Wants to Do Is Rock, 413
- All Shook Up, 96, 839
- All Star Blues World of Maestro Willie Dixon, The*, 75
- All the Things I Did for You, 4
- All Your Love (I Miss Loving), 1014
- All Your Love, 338, 646, 853, 989, 1081
- Alla Blues, 378
- "All-American Rhythm Section," 60
- Allen Brothers, country music and, 231
- Allen, Annisteen, 18
- Allen, Bill "Hoss," 18
Blues Hall of Fame, 18
- Allen, Geri, 518
- Allen, Lee, 19
- Allen, Pete, 19
with Collins, Albert, 19
- Allen, Ricky, 19
- Allen, William Francis, 438
- Alley Blues, 194
- Alley Cats, 302
- Alley Special, 452
- Alligator Records, 19, 220
Living Chicago Blues series, 154, 388, 592, 648
- "Alligator sound," the, 125, 204
- Alligator, 19–20
- Ball, Marcia, 43
- Black Top and, 96
- Brown, Charles, 20
- Brown, Clarence "Gatemouth," 156
- Buchanan, Roy, 164–165
- CD format and, 123
- Chenier, Clifton, 20
- Clarke, William, 211
- Collins, Albert, 20, 220
- Copeland, Johnny, 20
- Copeland, Johnny "Clyde," 226
- Copeland, Shemekia, 227
- cornerstone of Chicago blues, 204
- Cotton, James, 228–229
- Cray, Robert, 20
- Ellis, Tinsley, 302
- Guitar Jr., 391
- Harvey, Ted, 414
- Hole, Dave, 448
- Hound Dog Taylor & the Houserockers, 20
- Hunter, Long John, 481–482
- Jackson, John, 497
- Jones, Casey, 544
- Lazy Lester, 586
- Lee, Lovie, 591
- Left Hand Frank, 592
- Living Chicago Blues anthology, 20
- Robinson, Fenton, 20
- Saffire–The Uppity Blues Women, 20
- Seals, Son, 20
- Taylor, Hound Dog, 20
- Taylor, Koko, 20
- Winter, Johnny, 20
- Allison, Bernard, 20, 388
with Allison, Luther, 21
- Allison, Luther, 20–21
with Allison, Bernard, 20
diddley bow, 269
with Iglauer, Bruce, 125
- Allison, Mose, 21
- Allison, Ray "Killer," 22
- Allman Brothers Band, 22, 50, 209, 305, 334, 675, 775, 934, 1012
in Georgia, 365
Hoochie Coochie Man, 454
- Allman, Duane, 22, 36
with Clapton, Eric, 209
with Hammond, John Paul, 399
influences on, 528
Key to the Highway, 600
- Allman, Gregg, 22
- All-Star Blues Jam*, 653
- Almanac Singers, with Guthrie, Woodrow Wilson "Woody," 394
- Almond, John, 661
- Along for the Ride*, 661
- Alpin, Harry S., 86
- Already Gone, 238
- Alston, Jamie, 22
- Alston, Johnny, 36
- Alternative country, 232
- Alzheimer, Joshua "Josh," 23
- Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater, 246
- Always for Pleasure (film), 327
- Alyn, Glen, 445, 614
- Am I a Soldier of the Cross?, 89
- AME (African Methodist Episcopal), 90
- Amélie* (film), 752
- American Ballads and Folk Songs* (book), 439
- American Ballads and Folksongs*, 627
- American Bandstand* (TV show), 44, 783, 840, 912, 964
- American Blues Legends*, 904
- American Blues Legends 1974*, 1100
- American Defense, 466, 476
- American Federation of Musicians (AFM)
in postwar era, 815
recording, ban on, 189, 272, 514
- American Folk Blues (& Gospel) Festivals, 581
- American Folk Blues Festival.
See AFBF
- American Folk Music Occasional (periodical), 441–442
- American Folk Songs for Children*, 228
- American Folklife Center, Washington, D.C., 611
- American left, music of, Bear Family, 68
- American Missionary Association, 34, 89
- American Negro Songs and Spirituals* (book), 439
- American People*, 951
- American Primitive*, 505
- American Promise, The* (PBS television series), Davis, Guy, 253
- American Record Company (ARC), 39, 261, 920
- American Recording Corporation (ARC), 27, 56, 163, 629, 739, 752, 1038
- Alabama artists, 15
- Bogan, Lucille, 15
- Cameo and, 177
- Columbia and, 222
- Conqueror and, 815
- Fuller, Blind Boy, 629
- Johnson, Robert, 536–537, 631–632, 636, 858, 867
- American Roots Music* (documentary), 328–329 with Hinton, Algia Mae, 432
- American Skiffle Band*, 194
- American Skiffle Bands, 194, 816
- American South
blacks migrating from, Depression era, 117

INDEX

- American South (Continued)
 blacks migrating from, postwar era, 119
 Broonzy, Big Bill, 150–151
 Broonzy, Big Bill, descriptions of, 150 convict labor, 223–224, 428
 11–29 prison sentences, 301–302
 Fifties (1950s), 119
 harmonica, 404
 highways, development of, 427
 hoodoo and, 454–455
 Jim Crow South, 78, 274, 615, 641
 juke-joint licenses, 552 lumber camps in, 639 nineteenth-century, 44 plantations, country music and, 246
 American Southwest, Walker, T-Bone, influences on blues in postwar era, 48
American Visions—The Magazine of Afro-American Culture (magazine), 754
 American Women in Jazz: 1900 to the Present. Their Words, Lives, and Music (book), 443
 Amerson, Richard, 24
 Ames, Roy, 453
 Ammons, Albert, 24
 Ammons, Gene, 212
 boogie-woogie at house-rent parties, 504
 boogie-woogie pianists, return of, 512
 “From Spirituals to Swing” concern, Carnegie Hall, 1938, 152
 with Hammond, John Paul, 474
 with Humes, Helen, 475
 with Lewis, Meade “Lux,” 597
 Amos Boogie, 691
 Amplification, electric, 107, 286, 296, 771
 Amtrak Blues, 481, 517
An Evening with Wild Man Fischer, 827
An Offer You Can't Refuse, 904
And I Love Him, 765
And This Is Free (documentary), 725
And This Is Maxwell Street (documentary), 651
And This Is Maxwell Street, 1100
 Anderson, “Little” Willie, 25
 Anderson, Alvin “Little Pink,” 24–25
 Anderson, Bob “Little Bobby,” 25
 Anderson, Elester, 25
 Anderson, Jimmy, 25
 Anderson, Kip, 25
 Anderson, Little Pink, 869
 Anderson, Pinkney “Pink,” 26
 Andrews, Ben, 652, 870, 998
 Andrews, Inez, 92
 Andrews, Ruby, 365
 Andy Kirk & His Twelve Clouds of Joy, 559
 Andy Kirk band, with Booze, Beatrice “Wee Bea,” 140
 Andy Kirk's Orchestra, 39
 Angel Eyes, 417
Angel of Mercy, 101
 Angel, Jack, 423
 Angelic Choir (Nutley, New Jersey, First Baptist Church), 93
 Angelic Gospel Singers, 92, 372
 Angelou, Maya, 753, 856
 Angels in Harlem, 213
 Angola Blues, 224
 Angola prison, Louisiana
 convict labor, 224
 Angola, in history of the blues, 111, 132, 224
 Animals, The, 865 with Burdon, Eric, 26
Animals In the Beginning, The, 865
 Ann Arbor Blues and Jazz Festivals, 36, 265, 1074
 with Allison, Luther, 21
 Atlantic/Atco/Spark and, 36
 with Burns, Eddie, 168
 Detroit blues, showcasing, 265
 with Griffith, Shirley, 417
 Ann Arbor, Blind Pig Cafe, 100–101
 Anna (Go to Him), 17
 Anna Lou Blues, 954
 Annie Doesn't Live Here Anymore, 1098–1099
 Annie Get Your Yo-Yo, 746
 Annie Had a Baby, 44, 1098
 Annie Lee Blues, 725
Annie Mae, 970
 Annie's Aunt Fannie, 1098
Another Good Loving Blues (book), 653
Another Good Loving Blues, 617
 Another Man Done Gone, 398, 1077
Anschlaege: Zeitschrift des Archivs fur Populare Musik journal, 602
 Anson Funderburgh and the Rockets, 96
 Antecedents of the blues, 105–108 from 1830 to 1865, 111–112
 African, 53
 bass instruments and, 63–64
 European music, 61
 pre-blues, 1865–1890, 113
 through 1830, 111–112
Anthology of American Folk Music, 440, 484, 629, 656
 Capitol 70000 series, 180
 Champion 50000 Race series, 191, 260
 Decca, 261
 DooTone 300 series, 278
 Gotham 600 gospel series, 372
 with Hurt, John Smith “Mississippi John,” 484
 King Race catalog, 232
 Living Chicago Blues, 125
 Anthony, Eddie, 317, 471
 Antiphony, big band style, replacing polyphonic New Orleans jazz, 512
 Antone, Clifford, 26–27
 Antone's (club)
 Ball, Marcia, 43
 as blues showcase, 125
 Fabulous Thunderbirds, performing at, 125 with Foley, Sue, 26, 976
 with Lazy Lester, 586
 Antone's (label), 26–27
 Ball, Marcia, 43
 Barton, Lou Ann, 26
 Cotton, James, 228
 Lynn, Barbara, 642
 Strehli, Angela, 26
 Apex records, 646
 Any Other Way, 710
Any Place I'm Going, 853
 Anyone Who Knows What Love Is (Will Understand), 985
 Anytime, 238
 Apollo Records, 27, 498
 instrumentals, Jackson, Lee, 67, 591, 777, 1013
 Apollo Theater, 124, 235, 269, 326, 350, 508, 525, 597, 817, 834, 933, 978 amateur night contest, Blackwell, Otis and, 96
 Brown, James, 124
 Butterbeans and Susie, 172
 Carter, Betty and, 185
 “Chitlin circuit” and, 205
 with Cox, Ida, 235
 with Hunter, Alberta, 480
 jazz performances at, 550
 with King, Riley B. “B.B.,” 611 musical shorts filmed at, 326
 Apollo/Lloyds/Timely, 27
 Dixie Hummingbirds, 273
 Jackson, Mahalia, 498
 Appalachia, 364
 Apparent, Eire, with Hendrix, Jimi, 422
 Appropriation in blues lyrics, 105 Arab music flatted thirds and sevenths in, 12 influences of, 10
 Arab trade and culture, 10
 Aragon Ballroom, Chicago, with Rockets, 1940, 595
 Alabama artists, 15
 Bogan, Lucille, 15
 Cameo and, 177
 Fuller, Blind Boy, 349
 I Believe I'll Make a Change (Dust My Broom), 487
 Johnson, Robert, 536–537
 Montgomery, Sam, 39
 Arcade Building Moan, The, 1000
 Arceneaux, Fernest, 551

- Archia, Tom, 7, 28, 198, 991
 Archiv Fur Populare Musik,
 Bremen, 602
 Archive of African American
 Music, 603, 736
 Archive of Contemporary Music,
 New York, 608
 Archives of African American Music and Culture, Indiana University, Bloomington, 603
 Arctic label, 867
 Ardoin, Amédé and, 3
 assassinations, 1960s, 123
 Blackwell, Scrapper, death of, 97 in blues music, 1037
 Broonzy, Big Bill and, 150–152
 Burks, Eddie and, 167
 Cooke, Sam, 224–225
 domestic, Johnson, Blind Willie and, 527–528
 fatal shootings, 342
 Foster, Little Willie and, 342
 Hare, Auburn “Pat,” 402
 Holiday, Billie and, 448–450
 House, Eddie “Son” and, 465–467
 Jackson, Lee and, 497
 James, Nehemiah “Skip” and,
 503–505
 King Curtis, 570
 Leadbelly, 586–587
 with Lejeune, Iry, 593, 635 manslaughter convictions, 222, 525
 in 1950s, 379, 807
 pre–World War II era, 117
 racial. See lynching
 “Red Summer” riots, 86
 Till, Emmett, 170, 397
 White, Bukka, prison term,
 1070–1071
 Williamson, Sonny Boy I (John Lee Williamson), 1086–1087
Are You Experienced?, 422
 Are You Satisfied, 217
Arelean Brown Sings the Blues in the Loop, 880
 Arhoolie/Blues Classics/Folk Lyric, 29
 Alexander, Dave, 17–18
 Beauregard, Nathan, 68–69
 Black Ace, 84
 blues LPs, 308, 440, 442, 816, 819
 Bonner, Weldon H. Phillip
 “Juke Boy,” 137
 Burnside, R.L., 125
 Burris, J.C., 169
 Cage, James “Butch,” 298
 CD format and, 123
 Charles Ford Band, The, 192
 Chenier, Clifton, 197
 Chenier, Morris “Big,” 198
 Guitar Kelley, 392
 Heartsman, Johnny, 417
 Hooker, Earl, 458
 Hopkins, Joel, 461
 Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” 462
 Jackson, John, 497
 Jackson, Lil’ Son, 497
 Lipscomb, Mance, 614
 “sacred steel” issues, 93
 Arista Records, 860
 Aristocrat label, 300, 941
 Arkansas Delta, during 1970s and
 1980s, 125
 Arlen, Harold, 132
 Armed forces, influences of, 119
 Armstead, Joshie Jo, 365–366
 Armstrong, Howard “Louie Bluie,” 31,
 103, 317, 609
 Armstrong, Howard, 31, 652, 659
 Armstrong, James, 32, 895
 Armstrong, Louis, 32, 885
 with Alix, May, 18
 “Black and Blue,” 1929
 recording, 616
 in Creole bands, 511 with Hill, Bertha “Chippie,” 430
 with Hunter, Alberta, 480
 jazz and blues, intertwining of, 124 jazz/blues overlap/crossover, 510
 with Johnson, Lonnie, 532
 with Jones, Maggie, 547
 with Jordan, Louis, 548–549
 with Lewis, Meade “Lux,” 599
 polyphonic to homophonic transition in blues melodies, 110 solo performances by, 512 theatrical possibilities of solo performance, 512
 Armstrong, Roger, 5
 Army Blues, 287
 Army Blues, The, 298
 Army Corps of Engineers, black levee-building, Mississippi River, 113
 Arnold, Augustus, 444
 Arnold, Billy Boy, 32
 Arnold’s Archives, Grand Rapids,
 Michigan, 605
 Arnold’s, Cincinnati club, and, Jarret,
 James “Pigmeat,” 507
Arrival of B.B. King, The (book), 443
Art and Grit, 506
 Art Blakey and his Jazz Messengers, 380, 515
 hard bop and, 515
 Art Ensemble of Chicago, musicians, 517
 from, in AACM, 517
 Arthur Smith Trio, 869
 Artist Most Deserving of Wider, Recognition, W.C. Handy Awards, and Clark, W.C., 211
 Artistic label, 83
 Art-Tone records, 363, 668, 566
 arhoolies. See field hollers, 320
 As the Years Go Passing By, 123, 835
 ASCAP, 40, 194, 216, 597, 600, 629, 933
 with Levy, Louis “Lou,” 597 Lewis, Meade “Lux,” membership
 in, 600
 radio station boycott, 40
 ASCAP-Deems Taylor Award, Cohn,
 Larry, 216
Ascension, 516
 Asch, Moses, 394
 Asch/Disc/Folkways/RBF, 34
 Amerson, Richard, 24
 Burns, J.C., 166
 Cannon, Gus, 179
 Carradine, William “Cat-Iron,” 184
 Charters, Samuel Barclay, 194
 Dane, Barbara, 248
 Folkways Records, book about, 446
 Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” 462
 Lewis, Meade “Lux,” 600
 Library of Congress and, 24 postwar-era recordings, 269
 reissues, 442
 Ashford, R.T., with Jefferson, Blind
 Lemon, 519
 Ask Me, 343
 Askew, Alec, 323, 419
 Asman, James, 755
 Aspects of the Blues Tradition (book),
 441, 736
 Associated Negro Press, 86
 Associates, gospel choirs, 93 Association for the Advancement of Creative Musicians (AACM), jazz since 1970s, spearheading developments in, 517
 Association of Black Journalists, 86
At Home with the Blues, 342
 At Last, 199, 339, 501
 Atkins, Alex, 651
 Atkins, Chet, 232
 Atkins, Harold “Hal,” 346
 Atlanta (Georgia), postwar era, 117
 Atlanta Blues, 649
Atlanta Daily World (newspaper), 86
 Atlanta Fire, 1000
 Atlanta Rag, 234, 768
 Atlanta, Georgia, 364
 Atlantic Records, 35–36, 161, 865
 Charles, Ray, 1
 Atlantic/Atco/Spark, 35
 Allison, Mose, 22
 Baker, Laverne, 42
 Brown, Ruth, 161
 Carbo, Leonard “Chick,” 181
 Clay, Otis, 213
 Clovers, The, 215
 Copeland, Johnny “Clyde,” 226
 Franklin, Aretha, 124
 Gold Star and, 369
 Guy, George “Buddy,” 395
 Hammond, John Paul, 400

INDEX

- Atlantic/Atco/Spark (Continued)
Jacquet, Illinois, 499
King, Al, single by, 566
King Curtis, 389
Leiber and Stoller, producers for, 592
Lomax, Alan, 36
soul guitar, 389
Soul to Soul concert and, 36
Atlas, 36
Atomic Energy, 288
Atomic-H, Harrington/Clearwater family, 410
Atonality, modal jazz and, 515–516
Attack of the Killer V, 645
Audience
1990s, 1075
AFBF tours, 23
African Americans, films
for, 325–326
black and white, for jug bands, 45–46
blues revival, 1990s, 126
Hooker, John Lee and, 459–460
identifying blues melodies, 862 improvised solos, desire for, 515 international, 1990s, 59, 252 introducing to blues, Folkways, 442 Japanese blues fans, 506 for jug bands, 552 mainstream, in 1938, 247 new, 1960s, 49 regional, Chenier, Clifton, 4 rock and roll, King, Riley B. “B.B.” performing for, 573–575 rock, reissued recordings influence on, 542 for university sacred music vocal groups, 88 for zydeco, 4
AudioQuest, 36, 645, 665
AudioQuest label, 294
Auger, Brian, with Baldry, “Long” John, 43
August, Joe “Mr. Google Eyes,” 36
August, Lynn, 37, 880
Aunt Hagar’s Children Blues, 281, 401
Austell, Leo, 98, 306
Austin
Alabama and, 16
Antone’s, 26–27
Ball, Marcia, 43
as blues center, emergence of, 125
Fabulous Thunderbirds, 311
Grey Ghost and, 379
Johnson, Al “Snuff” and, 526
Joplin, Janis, 548
Vaughan, Stevie Ray and, 125, 1031
Austin City Limits (PBS television series), 125
Clark, W.C., honoring, 211
Austin City Limits Festival with Green, Al, 376
Austin High School Gang, recordings, collective improvisation in, 511
Austin, Claire, 37
Austin, Jesse “Wild Bill,” 37
Austin, Lovie, 37, 884
Austin Music Hall of Fame, Ball, Marcia, 43
with Hunter, Alberta, 480
Austrian record labels, 276
avant-garde jazz. See free jazz, 516
Avery, Elijah, kazoo playing of, 560
Avildsen, John G., 598
Avocado Seed Soup Symphony, 356
Away Down in the Alley, 533
Axis: Bold as Love, 422
Ay Ai Ai, 197
Ay Tete Fee, 197
Ayler, Albert, 124
free jazz and, 516
B
B Movie Boxcar Blues, 666
B.B. Junior, 733
B.B. King’s (club chain), 655–656
B.B. King’s (club), 7, 123
Babe It Ain’t No Lie, 228
Babineaux, Sidney, accordionist, 3
Baby (You Got What It Takes), 1052
Baby Boy Warren, 265, 328, 346, 555
Baby Doll (film), 326, 329
Baby Don’t Do It, 331
Baby Don’t You Want to Go, 666
Baby Let’s Play House, 307
Baby Please Don’t Go, 39, 188, 670, 841, 1020 Baby Scratch My Back, 307, 410
Baby Seals Blues, 767
Baby What You Want Me to Do?, 281, 502, 782, 890, 1072
Baby You Can Get Your Gum, 293
Baby You Just Don’t Know, 9
Baby, Cadillac, 175, 266, 497, 881
Baby, It’s Cold Outside, 743
Baby, Let’s Play House, 393
Baby, Please Don’t Go, 1076–1077
Baby’s Arms, 238
Bacharach, Burt, 865
Back Country Suite, 21
Back Door Man, 275, 472, 841
Back Door Wolf, 473
Back for a Taste of Your Love, 540
Back Home, 349
Back in the Alley, 234
Back in the Game, 540
Back on My Feet Again, 598
Back Street, 695
Back to the Beach, 1032
Back to the Country, 878
Back to the Roots, 661
Back Up Train, 375
Backbeat (Sherman), 707
Backbiter’s Club, Kansas City, with Johnson, Pete, 535
Backbop, 419
Backtrack, 21
Back-Water Blues, 995–996, 1001
Bad and the Beautiful, The, 962
Bad Axe, 868
Bad Boy, 958
Bad Condition, 368
Bad Influence, 237
Bad Influence, 237, 427
Bad Love, 21
Bad Luck Blues, 440, 568
Bad News Is Coming, 21
Bad Nigger Makes Good Minstrel, 1037
Bad Situation, 577
Bad to the Bone, 991
Bad, Bad Whisky, 691
Badger, Ron, with Heartsman, Johnny, 417
Badluck Blues, 613
Bad-man ballads, 115
Hurt, John Smith “Mississippi John” and, 483
Baez, Joan, influences on, 440
Bag Full of Blues, 902
Bailey, DeFord imitating sounds of animals, 40 sounds of, Hurt, John Smith “Mississippi John,” 504, 649
Bailey, DeFord, 40
Bailey, John “Buddy,” 215
Bailey, Kid, 40
Bailey, Mildred, 40–41
Bailey, Ray, 41
Baker, Chet, influences of Davis, Miles sound, 515
Baker, Ernest. See King Ernest, 41
Baker, Etta, 41
Baker, Frankie, 345, 926
blues ballad descriptions, 114
Baker, Ginger, 136, 239, 580, 704, 1021
Baker, Houston, Jr., 446
Baker, LaVern, 41–42
with Bailey, Ray, 41
with Baker, Mickey, 42
Gary, Indiana, 361
postwar era, 121
Baker, McHouston, 42
Baker, McHouston. See Baker, Mickey
Baker, Mickey, 42, 859
with Brown, Clarence “Gatemouth,” 156
with Hawkins, Screamin’ Jay, 415
Baker, Willie, 42–43
Bald Head Pete, 218
Bald Head, 786
Baldry, “Long” John, 43, 132, 580, 623

- Ball & Chain, 548
 Ball and Chain, 15, 842, 887
 Ball the Wall, 786
 Ball, Marcia, 43, 60, 125
 with Bramhall, Doyle, 145
 with Caron, Danny, 182
 with Hollimon, Clarence, 450
 with Landreth, Sonny, 582
 W.C. Handy Awards, 145
Ball 'N Chain, 469
 Ballad of Hollis Brown, 385
 Ballad of the '93 Storm, 999–1000
 Ballard, Hank, 43–44, 121
 Ballen, Ivin, 372
 Ballin' the Jack, 247
 Ballou, Classie, 3, 44
Baltimore Afro-American (newspaper), 86
 Baltimore Blues, 106
 Baltimore, southern blacks migrating to, 410
 Bamalong Blues, 318
Bamboula-Danse des Negres
 (Gottschalk), 766
 Banashak, Joe, 490
Band of Gypsies 2, 422
 Band of Gypsies, 421–422
 Band, The, (303 entries) 22, 30
 Bandera, 44
 Bandleaders, 372, 451, 472, 681, 853, 861
 Landreth, Sonny, uneven results as, 582
 swing era, influenced by Harlem stride piano, 512–513
 Bands, 44–52
 black string, 45
 blues ensembles, 1930s, 45
 blues ensembles, early recordings, 45–46
 formats of, Sixties, 49–50
 jug bands, 46–47, 116
 in Nineties, 51
 in postwar era, Chicago, 48–49 in postwar era, influences on, 80–81 rhythm sections in, homophony
 and, 110
 in 1970s and 1980s, 50 in Southwest, postwar era, 47–48
 zydeco, 50–51
 Bang, Billy, with Harris, Don
 “Sugarcane,” 411
 Bangham, Kid, with Fabulous
 Thunderbirds, 311
Banjo (book), 438
 Banjo Joe, 54
 “Banjo Joe.” See Cannon, Gus, 179
 Banjo, 52–56
 African-American development
 of, 53–54
 African antecedents, 53 in black string bands, replacing with guitar, 45
 claw-hammer style, 53, 55, 775 country music and, 230
 guitar and, 383
 guitar, replaced by, 112
 Jackson, Charles “Papa Charlie,” 494–495
 jazz antecedents, 509
 in jug bands, 47
 pre-World War II era, 54–55 revival in postwar era, 55 technical description, 52–53
 Bankhead, Tommy, 56
 Banks, Chico, 56
 Banks, Jerry, 56
 Banks, L.V., 56
 with Big Bad Smitty, 77
 Bankston, Dick, 56
 with Johnson, Tommy, 540
 Banner, 56–57
 Tampa Red, 39
 Banty Rooster Blues, 386, 845–846
 Baptist Training Union Congress, 90
 Bar Fly, 781
Bar Wars, 499
 Baraka, Amiri, 57, 440, 980 with Coltrane, John, 516
 Barbara's Playhouse, Gary,
 Indiana, 361
 Barbecue Bob, (Rober Hicks) 42, 57, 221, 425, 775, 996 black sacred music, performances by, 89
 guitar, 1920s, 385
 with Hicks, Charlie, 425
 pre-World War II era, 116
 Barbee, Elmer
 with Hooker, John Lee, 460
 Barbee, John Henry, 57, 581, 965
Bare Wires, 661
 Barefoot Bill. See Bell, Ed, 70
 Barefoot Rock, 746
 Bar-Kays, with King, Albert, 568
 Barker, Blue Lu, 58
 Barker, Danny, 58
 Barksdale, Everett, 58
 Barlow, William, 444, 603
 Barn Dance (WSM, Nashville), 40
 Barner, Juke Boy, 491
 Barner, Wiley, 58
 Barnes, George, 59
 Barnes, Roosevelt Melvin “Booba,” 59, 326, 388
 with Big Bad Smitty, 77
 Barnett, Claude, 86
 Barney, Willie, 240, 249, 343
 with Allen, Ricky, 19
 Barracuda, The, 738
 Barrel House Club, 739
 Barrelhouse piano, 314, 768, 874
 Barrelhouse style, 64, 91, 250, 703
 Dupree, Champion Jack, 290
 Ezell, Will and, 308–309
 Johnson, James “Stump,” recordings
 of, 530
 Laury, Booker T. and, 584
 piano, Kid Stormy Weather, 564–565
 Barrelhouse, 59
 Carter, Joe, 186
 Hill, Joseph “Blind Joe,” 430
 Kansas City Red, 59, 559
 Barth, Bill. See Watson, R.L.
 Bartholomew, Dave, 59–60, 238, 259, 278, 744, 773, 783, 785, 828, 832
 with Allen Lee, 19
 with Chudd, Lewis Robert “Lew,” 207
 Hispanic soul blues of, 436
 with Lewis, Smiley, 601, 602
 with Shirley & Lee, 878
 Barton, Lou Ann, 60, 975–976
 with Ball, Marcia and Strehli, Angela, 43
 with Bramhall, Doyle, 145 with Fabulous Thunderbirds, 311
 Barwalkin', 68
 Bascomb, Paul, 60, 1027
 Basie, Count, 60–61, 512, 808, 850
 1930s, 118, 122
 big band, boogie-woogie adapted
 for, 513
 Depression-era blues, 117
 “Drifting Blues,” 283
 with Hammond, John, Jr., 398
 with Hume, Helen, 474
 Sunset Club, Kansas City, 558
 polyphonic to homophonic transition in blues, 110
 Bass, 61–64
 alternate instruments playing, 63–64 antecedents of, 61–62 in black string bands, 45
 electric, 63–64
 four-to-the-bar, 79, 117 gospel quartets, accompanying,
 91–92
 Bass, Fontella, 65, 666, 855
 Bass, Ralph, 65, 140, 572, 860
 with Jackson, Lee, 497
 Bass, Ralph, Jr., 84
 Bass on Top, 600
 Bassett, Johnnie, 65–66
 Detroit, 265
 Bastin, Bruce, 66, 230, 445, 718 blues in Eastern states, 443
 Bates, Deacon L. J. (Blind Lemon Jefferson), 869
 Bates, Lefty, 66, 877
 with Carmichael, James “Lucky,” 182
Baton Rouge, 360
 Baton Rouge, Gray, Henry, 373
 Battiste, Harold Raymond, Jr.
 A.F.O., 10
 with Jones, Joe, 546

INDEX

- Batts, Will, 67, 317, 932
- Baty, "Little Charlie," 618, 857
 Alabama, 16
 Nightcats, 16, 346, 618
- Bay Area Blues Society, 732
- Bay Area, West Coast, 731, 857
 blacks migrating to, postwar era, 119
 Geddins, Bob and, 363
 King, Al, 566
- Bayou, 67
- BBC broadcasts, with Hunter,
 Alberta, 480
- BBC Radio One program, with Korner,
 Alexis, 580
- Be Careful, 148, 623
- Be Careful How You Vote, 941
- Be on Your Merry Way, 568
- Be Ready When He Comes, 505
- Bea & Baby, 67
 Boyd, Eddie, 142
- Bea & Baby label, 881, 959
- Beacon, 67
- Beale Street (Memphis)
 in postwar era, 120
 whites attracted to blues clubs on, 88
- "Beale Street Blues Boy," King,
 Riley B. "B.B." and, 575
- Beale Street Blues, 401, 424, 480, 681, 685
- Beale Street Boys, 746
- Beale Street Boys/Beale Streeters with Ace, Johnny, 6
 with Bland, Bobby "Blue," 98
- Beale Street Caravan, 796
- Beale Street Jug Band, 995 with Corley, Dewey, 227 with Davenport, Jed, 250
- Beale Street, Memphis, 680–686, 796
 Gordon, Rosco(e), inspiration from, 371
- Beale Street's gone dry, 682
- Beaman, Lottie, 68
- Bear Cat, 148, 288, 939
- Bear Family label, 68, 672
- Bearcat Crawl, 601
- Beard, Chris, 68
- Beard, Joe, 36, 68–69
 with House, Eddie "Son," 466
- Beasley, Jimmy, 69
- "Beat, The," Allen, Bill "Hoss," 18
- Beatles, 660
 1960s, 387–388
- Beatty, Josephine. See Hunter,
 Alberta, 480
- Beatty, Talley, 246
- Beaucatcher Tunnel project, 256
- Beauregard, Nathan, 69, 104, 967
- Beausoleil, with Landreth, Sonny, 582
- Be-Baba-Le-Ba, 16, 475
- Bebop
 Africa, imported to, 11 arrival of, big bands declining before, 515 influences of, 123, 558
 origins of, 513
- Because of You, 1025
- Because, 528
- Bechet, Sidney, 510–511, 615, 860
- Beck, Blind James, 88
- Beck, Jeff, 389, 420
 "Mannish Boy," 489
- Beck's Bolero, 389
- Bed on the Floor, 649
- Bedwell, Maggie, 540
- Bee Gees, 36
- Beecher, Russell, 188
- Beedle-Um-Bum, 477, 676
- Beekman, Dick, 243
- Beer Drinking Woman, 688
- Beer drinking, in juke joints, 552
- Beggars Banquet*, 1075
- Beggin' Back, 519
- Bel Aires, 877
- Bela Lam and His Greene County
 Singers, 869
- Belfour, Robert, 69
- Believe I'll Go Back Home, 487
- Believe It*, 222
- Bell Bottom Blues, 209
- Bell Boy Boogie, 828
- Bell, Al, with Higgins, Monk, 426
- Bell, Archie, with Hill, Michael, 431
- Bell, Brenda, 69–70
- Bell, Carey, 63, 70, 551
 Branch, William Earl "Billy"
 and, 145
 with Harper, Joe, 410
 with Lee, Lovie, 591
- Bell, Carrie, 866
- Bell, Earl, 70
- Bell, Ed, 70–71, 116
- Bell, Elmon "Shorty," 751
- Bell, Jimmie, 71
- Bell, Lurrie, 71, 396, 551, 591
- Bell, Paul, 726
- Bell, T.D., 71, 141
- bellows shakes, accordions, early
 recordings, 3
- Belly of the Sun*, 670
- Beloved*, 617
- Below, Fred, 71–72
 with Aces, The, in Japan, 506
 AFBF European tours, 23
 influential music of, 414
 with Lenoir, J.B., 630
- Below, LaMarr Chatman, 72
- Belushi, John, 126, 130, 328
- Belvin, Jesse, 72–73
- Belzona label, 874
- Bender, D.C., 73, 491
- Bending technique, harmonica, 405
- Benecke, Werner, 439
- Bennett, Al, 424
- Bennett, Anthony "Duster," 73
- Bennett, Bobby "Guitar," 73
- Bennett, Edward, 88
- Bennett, Wayne T., 73–74
- Bennie Moten Orchestra, Sunset Club,
 Kansas City, 558
- Benny Goodman Sextet, with Christian,
 Charlie, 206
- Benny Goodman's Camel Show, with Johnson, Pete, 535
- Benoit, Tab, 74, 251
- Benson, Al, 74, 102, 644, 797
 with Boyd, Eddie, 142
- Benson, George, 297, 865
- Benson, Jo Jo, 818
- Bentley, Gladys, 74
- Bentonia blues style, 741
- Berendt, Joachim-Ernst, AFBF initiated by, 23
- Berg, Tony, with Hawkins, Ted, 416
- Berkeley Blues Festival, with
 Douglas, K.C., 280–281
- Berkeley Folk Festival, with Chenier,
 Clifton, 197
- Berklee College of Music
 honorary doctorate, King,
 Riley B. "B.B.," 573
 Katz, Bruce, instructor at, 560
- Berlin Jazz Festival, 145
- Berliner, Emile, 14
- Berman, Ike and Bess, 27
- Bernay, Eric, 564
- Bernie Pearl Blues Band, 239, 409
- Berry, Brooks, with Blackwell,
 Scrapper, 97
- Berry, Chuck, 76, 119, 597, 653
 Chess, Leonard, 198–199
 "Hoochie Coochie Man," 454
 with James, Etta, 501 with Johnson, Johnnie, 531
 with Jordan, Louis, 550
 with Katz, Bruce, 560
 with Odie Payne, Jr., 750
 use of scales, 865
- Berry, Richard, 76–77
- Berthold, Julius, 404
- Besman, Bernard, 871
- Besman, Bernie, with Hooker,
 John Lee, 460
- Bessie* (book), 443
- Bessie Jackson, 999
- Bessie Smith (book), 440
- Bessie Smith: Empress of the Blues
 (book), 444
- Best Blues Album of the Year award,
 Montreaux Jazz Festival
 Collins, Albert, 220
- "Best Blues Club in America," Grand
 Emporium, The, Kansas City, 559
- Best Comeback Album, W.C. Handy Awards, Dixon, Floyd, 273
- Best Contemporary Album,
 W.C. Handy Awards, Clarke,
 William, 211–212

- Best Contemporary Female Artist, W.C. Handy Awards, Davies, Debbie, 251
- Best Foreign Release, W.C. Handy Awards, Lazy Lester, 586
- Best Friend Blues, 544
- Best Jazz Album, Grammy Awards, James, Etta, 502
- Best Keyboardist, W.C. Handy Awards, Dr. John, 282
- Best Selling Retail Rhythm & Blues Records, 829
- Best Song, W.C. Handy Awards, Clarke, William, 212
- Best Soul Vocalist, W.C. Handy Awards, Hill, Z.Z., 431
- Best Traditional Blues Album (Grammy Awards), Clapton, Eric, 209
- Best Traditional Blues Album award, Grammy Awards, Johnson, Johnnie, 531
- Best Traditional Blues Album, W.C. Handy Awards, Fulson, Lowell, 350
- Best Traditional Gospel Album, Gospel Music Association, Five Blind Boys of Alabama, 331
- Best Unknown Guitarist in the World, The* (documentary), 165
- Bethune, Blind Tom, 766
- Better Days*, 163, 963
- Better Git It in Your Soul, 124
- Better Off with the Blues, 963
- Better than the Rest*, 991
- Better Watch Your Step, 234
- Betts, Dickie, 22
- Betty and Dupree, 1089
- “Betty Bebop”. See Carter, Betty
- Betty Jean, 169
- Between Midnight and Day*, 411
- Between the Devil and the Deep Blue Sea, 474
- Beware (film), with Jordan, Louis and his band, 549
- Beware, 549
- Beware*, 549
- BeWho, 129
- Bewildered, 167
- Bicycle Boogie, 355
- Big Al Dupree Swings the Blues*, 290
- Big Apple, 626
- “Big B,” 268
- Big Bad Love* (film), with Burnside, R.L., 169
- Big Bad Smitty, 77–78
- Clayton, Willie, 214
- Big band swing music, Africa, imported to, 11
- Big bands, 512
- boogie-woogie adapted for, 513
- decline of, preceding arrival of bebop, 513
- vocalists, void left by, 512
- Big Beat, The* (film), 326
- Big Beat, The, 110
- Big Bend Tunnel, Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, 524–525
- “John Henry” describing, 524
- Big Bill Blues* (book), 153, 164
- Big Bill Broonzy award, Big Lucky, 79
- Big Bo and the Arrows, 380
- Big Book of the Blues, The* (book), 446
- Big Boss Lady*, 289
- Big Boss Man, 78, 120, 192, 782, 890, 1014
- Big Boy Knox, 104, 737
- Big Boy, 841, 921
- Big Brother and the Holding Company, 548
- Big Bro’s Chicago Blues*, 154
- Big Butter and Egg Man, 18
- Big Chief Ellis, with Dallas, Leroy, 245
- Big Chief, 436
- Big City Laundry, Chicago, 452
- Big City, 406
- Big Daddy*, 1070
- Big Del and the Vibrators, with Harper, Joe, 410
- Big Doo Wopper, 78–79
- Big E. See Walker, Earnest “Big E.”
- Big Fat Mama, 541, 921
- Big Fat Woman, 891
- Big House Blues, 348
- Big John’s Boogie*, 1100
- Big Leg Beat, 736
- Big Legs Ida Blues, 737
- Big Lucky, 79
- Big Maceo, 79–80
- with Brim, John, 144
- in Chicago, 594
- Detroit, 265
- with Lenoir, J.B., 594
- Big Mama Jump, 462
- Big Maybelle, 80
- Big Memphis Ma Rainey, 80
- Big Mojo Elum, 63
- Big News from Baton Rouge*, 719, 763
- Big Push, The, 376
- Big Road Blues* (book), 132
- Big Road Blues, 453, 541, 698
- Big Sadie, with Hollywood Fats, 451
- Big Shoulders, 862
- Big Star Fallin’ Mama, 444
- Big Star records, Jenkins, Bobo, 522
- Big Ten-Inch Record, 493
- Big Three Stomp, 81
- Big Three Trio, 80–81
- with Caston, Leonard “Baby Doo,” 80
- with Dixon, Willie, 80
- with Leake, Lafayette, 81
- Big Time Sarah, 81
- Big Town Playboy, 546, 958
- Big Town, 81
- Geddins, Bob and, 81
- Big Twist, 81–82
- Big Walter and His Combo, 464
- Big Walter Horton with Carey Bell*, 20
- Big Wheeler’s Bone Orchard*, 1069
- Big Willie, 644
- Bigeou, Esther, 82
- Biggest Thing Since Colossus, The*, 1021
- Bihari brothers, 77, 129
- with James, Elmore, 500
- Bihari, Joe, 500
- with James, Elmore, 500
- Bihari, Jules, 150, 624
- Bihari, Lester, 700
- Bihari, Saul, 700
- Bilbo is Dead, 198, 991
- Bill Haley and the Comets, 106, 267, 838
- Bill Monroe and his Blue Grass Boys, 869
- Bill Wyman’s Blues Odyssey (book), 444
- Bill, 16, 867
- Billboard* magazine, 608
- Billboard magazine, 829
- charts, Latimore, Benny on, 584
- charts, Led Zeppelin, 590
- Billboard* magazine, Cray, Robert, recordings of, 237
- Billboard* magazine, rhythm and blues charts, Lenoir, J.B. and, 594
- Billie’s Blues, 449
- Billinton, Johnnie, 82
- Billman, Pete, Johnson, Robert, transcriptions, 539
- Billy Battle Band, 303
- Billy Diamond Band, with Domino, Fats, 277
- Billy Eckstine band, with Kolax, King, 579
- Billy Goat Blues, 172
- Binder, Dennis “Long Man,” 82
- Binghamton Blues Boys, 857
- Bio on the Bayou*, 719
- Biograph, 83
- Biographies
- of blues singer, first, 439
- of blues vocalists, 443–444
- “Bird.” See Parker, Charlie
- Birdnest on the Ground*, 145
- Birdnest on the Ground, 585
- Birmingham Jail, 231
- Birmingham Jug Band, with Coleman, Jaybird, 218
- Birmingham Sam. See Hooker, John Lee
- Birmingham, Alabama, 742
- Birth of Success*, 489
- Biscuits and Blues (club), 857

INDEX

- Bishop, Elvin, 20, 83, 442, 717, 857, 1023
 1960s, 387–388
 with Bloomfield, Michael, 101 with Lawhorn, Samuel “Sammy,” 585
 South Side blues clubs, 442
- Bit of Soul, A, 699
- Bitch Done Quit Me, The*, 870
- Bitches Brew*, 516
- Bizor, Billy, 83
- Black & Blue, 161
- Black & Blue/Isabel/Riverboat, 83
 Brown, Clarence “Gatemouth,” 156
 Capitol and, 180
 Davis, James “Thunderbird,” 253
 Guitar Jr., 391
 with Humes, Helen, 474
- Black & White, 84
 Bass, Ralph, 65
- Black Ace, 84, 326
 with Hogg, Smokey, 448
- Black and Blue*, 42
- Black and Blue, 616
- Black and Evil Blues, 885
- Black Angel Blues, 84, 85, 117, 134, 201, 725, 886
- Black Artists Group
 jazz since 1970s, spearheading developments in, 517
- Black Arts Movement
 Coltrane, John, solos of, 516
- Black Banjo Songsters of North Carolina & Virginia*, 55
- “Black Belt,” 15
 Mississippi Delta, 15
- Black Birds of Paradise, 15
- Black Bob, 85
- Black Bud label, 866
- Black Caesar* (film), 353
- Black Candle, Rochester
 with House, Eddie “Son,” 465–467
- Black Cat Records, 85
- Black Culture and Black Consciousness* (book), 443
- Black Denim Trousers, 593
- Black Diamonds, with K-Doe, Ernie, 561
- Black Dust Blues, 456
- Black education, Civil Rights Movement and, 120
- Black Gal What Makes Your Head So Hard?, 788
- Black Gal, 4, 198
- Black labor agricultural workers, 375
 Alabama, 14
 black newspaper press and, 86–88
 convict-leasing system, 596
 Dockery’s plantation, 3, 892
 Great Migration and, 374–375
 Jackson, John and, 497
 levees on Mississippi River, 112
 Mississippi Delta, 15
 pianists, 15
 in postwar era, 119
See also convict labor; working class
- Black Magic
 Bell, T.D., 71
 Big Bad Smitty, 77
- Black Magic*, 611, 875
- Black Magic Woman, 379, 989, 1021
- Black Music in Ebony: An Annotated Guide to the Articles on Music in Ebony Magazine* (CBMR), 754
- Black Music Review* (magazine), Japan, 507
- Black newspaper press, 86–88
 pre–World War II classic blues, 114
- Black Night, 155, 293, 350, 836, 858
- Black Night*, 214
- Black Patti #8030, 605
- Black Patti, 39, 88, 364
 Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 507–508
- Black Pearls: Blues Queens of the 1920s* (book), 445
- Black Perspective in Music Foundation for Research in the Afro-American Creative Arts, 754
- Black Perspectives in Music* (periodical), 444
- Black Rat Swing, 687
- Black record labels, Black Swan Records, 95–96
- Black River Blues, 106, 934–935
See Straight Alky Blues
- Black Rock Coalition, 431
- Black rural communities conditions of, blues as covert resistance to, 478
- Black sacred music, 88–95
 Africa, 10–13
 black churches, 90, 982
 CD releases, 29, 371, 380, 819 evolution of, 91–93 gospel choirs, 92–93, 659, 903, 1046 gospel composers, 90 gospel evangelists, 91
 Green, Al and, 375–376
 quartets, 91–92
 spirituals, Dr. Watts and, 89 university groups, 89
- Black Singles charts, James, Etta, 501–502
- Black Snake Blues, 4, 922
- Black Snake Moan, 520
- Black Song: The Forge and the Flame* (book), 443
- Black Spider Blues, 678
- Black Stars* (magazine), 754
- Black string bands, 45 tradition of, continued in jug bands, 46
- Black Swan Records, 95–96
 Crippen, Katie, 95, 240
 Hunter, Alberta, 95, 480
 Pace, Harry, 95, 281, 401, 681, 1055
- Black Top, 96
 August, Lynn, 37
 Brown, Nappy, 159–160
 Clark, W.C., 60, 71, 975, 976
 Davis, James “Thunderbird,” 253
 Hollimon, Clarence, 450
 Hollywood Fats, 451
 Holmstrom, Rick, 452
 King, Earl, 570–571
- Black World* magazine, 753, 754
- Black writers, house-rent parties, writing about, 86, 468, 753
- Black, Brown, and White, 153
- Black, Jimmy Carl, 785
- Blackface, performers in, 113
- Blackfoot Native American tribe, Hawkins, Screamin’ Jay, 415
- Black-owned labels, 1
 Carter, Vivian and, 186
 Fire/Fury/Enjoy/Red Robin, 329–330
 Merit, 690
- Blacks, Whites and Blues* (book), 441, 445
- Blackwell Guide to Blues Records, The* (book), 446
- Blackwell Guide to Recorded Blues* (Oliver and Cowley), 736
- Blackwell, Otis, 96
- Blackwell, Robert “Bumps,” 96
- Blackwell, Scrapper, 97 with Carr, Leroy, 183
 with Griffith, Shirley, 381 guitar/piano duets in early blues ensembles, 45
 How Long How Long, 470
 I Believe I’ll Make a Change (Dust My Broom), 487
 nonverbal substitutions in blues lyrics, 106
- Blackwell, Willie “61,” 97
- Blaine, Jerry, 551
- Blake, Arthur. See Blind Blake
- Blake, Blind, 100
- Blake, Cicero, 97–98
- Blake, Corey. See Blake, Cicero
- Blake, Eubie, with Hunter, Alberta, 480
- Blakey, Art, 282, 380, 513, 515
 hard bop and, 515
- Blakey, Art, bebop percussion style, 513
- Blakey, Wellington, 361–362
- Blanchard, Edgar, concretized blues with Latin rhythm, 290, 436
- Bland, Bobby “Blue,” 98–99
 with Ace, Buddy, 5
 with Bennett, Wayne T., 73–74
 with Braggs, Al “TNT,” 144–145
 Brown, “Texas” Johnny and, 162
 with Curtis Salgado, 856

- with Hill, Z.Z., 431–432
with Hollimon, Clarence, 450
with Houston, Edward Wilson
“Bee,” 469
with Hughes, Joe “Guitar,” 474
Japanese blues showcases, 506
with Lucky Peterson, 763
- Bland, Charles, 427–428
- Blank, Les, 327
- Blanks, Birleana, 99
- Blasters, with Allen, Lee, 19
- Blaylock, Travis “Harmonica
Slim,” 100
- Blesh, Rudi, 439, 538
- Blessed Blues*, 522
- Blind Blake, 100
Depression years, 117, 811
guitar, 1920s, 387
guitar style of, 12
Harney, Richard “Hacksaw” and, 409
humor in music of, 476–479
- Blind Blues, 591
- Blind Boy Fuller #2, 671
- Blind Boys of Alabama. See Five Blind Boys of Alabama
- Blind Boys of Mississippi, 92, 330
- Blind Faith, with Clapton, Eric, 208–209
- Blind Lemon’s Song, 869
- Blind Melon, with Jefferson, Blind
Lemon, 518–520
- Blind Pig Cafe, 100
- Blind Pig Records, 21, 82, 222, 229, 762, 857
- Blind Pig, 100–101
Allison, Luther, 20–21
Big Twist, 81–82
Campbell, Eddie C., 178
Carrier, Roy Jr. “Chubby,” 184
Castro, Tommy, 188
Connor, Joanna, 222–223
Cotton, James, 228–230
- Blind Willie Johnson: His Story Told*, 194
- Blind Willie Johnson: His Story Told, 527–528
- Block* magazine, 126
- Block, Rory, 101
- Blood Hound Blues, 923
- Blood of Jesus, The* (film), 326
- Blood Red River, 775
- Blood Thirsty Blues, 922
- Bloodlines*, 431
- Bloodshot Eyes, 413
- Bloomfield, Michael, 101–102, 300, 857
1960s, 388
with Cotton, James, 229
with Gillum, Jazz, 367
with Henderson Mike (I), 420
with Hammond, John Paul, 399
influences on, 122
South Side blues clubs, 442
- Blow Mr. Low, 102
- Blow My Blues Away* (book), 323, 443
- Blow Wind Blow, 916
- Blow Your Brains Out, 882
- Blow Your Horn, 788
- Blowin’ a Rhumba, 436
- Blowin’ in the Wind, 1029
- Blowin’ Like Hell*, 211
- Blowing My Blues Away*, 83
- Blue and Lonesome, 623, 695
- Blue Bonnet label, 448, 881
- Blue Coat Blues, 317
- Blue Devils, 60
- Blue Flames, 421, 707, 746
- Blue Ghost Blues, 885
- Blue Goose label, 698, 874
- Blue Heat, with Lembo, Kim, 594
- Blue Horizon label, 878
- Blue Horizon, 102
Bennett, Anthony “Duster,” 73
Butler, George “Wild Child,” 171
Fleetwood Mac, 332
- Blue Lake, 102
- Blue Light, 407
- Blue Light Boogie, 836
- Blue Monday Party* (radio program), 717, 857
- Blue Monday, 253, 490, 601
- Blue Moon (Spain), 103
- Blue Moon*, 335
- Blue Note Orchestra, with Bassett,
Johnnie, 66
- Blue Note
Allison, Mose, 22
Dr. John, 282
Lewis, Meade “Lux,” 600
“Blue notes” origins of, scholarly differences about, 12
performers’ variations of, 108
- Blue Shadows, 947
- Blue Smitty, 31, 103, 844
- Blue Streak*, 21
Allison, Luther, 20–21
- Blue Suede Shoes, 338, 841
- Blue Suit, 103–102, 266, 873
- Blue Texas Soul*, 547
- Blue Thumb, 1, 104, 1014
Collins, Albert, 104, 219–220
- Blue Velvet, 215
- Blue Yodel, 231, 843
- Blue, Little Joe, 102–103
- Blueberry Hill, 277, 490, 840
- “Bluebird beat,” Boyd, Eddie and, 142
- Bluebird Blues, 1086
- Bluebird Blues*, 919
- Bluebird label, 104, 665, 666, 872, 880
Black Bob, 85
Chicago blues and, 202
Clayton, Peter Joe “Doctor,” 213
Johnson, Earnest “44 Flunkey,” 529
Melrose, Lester, 118
- Rockets, 595
Williams, Big Joe, 118
- Bluebloods, 420, 672
- Bluegrass music
banjo and, 55
emergence of, 232
- Blues & Gospel Records 1890–1943*
(discography), 271, 272, 276
- Blues & Rhythm Midnight Matinee*, 711
- Blues & Rhythm: The Gospel Truth* magazine, 446
- Blues & Soul Records* (magazine)
Japan, 507
- Blues According to Lightnin’ Hopkins,
The* (film), 327, 442, 463
- Blues Across America, 289, 779
- Blues Across America, Chicago
Scene*, 289
- Blues Aesthetic: Black Culture and Modernism* (book), 446
- Blues After Hours, 238, 699
- Blues Alley, Dallas, 380
- Blues All-Stars, with Bell, Carey, 70
- Blues Alone, The*, 661
- Blues and Evil* (book), 87, 445
- Blues and Gospel Records 1890–1943, 1022
- Blues and Me, The*, 42
- Blues and the Poetic Spirit* (book), 360, 443
- Blues Appreciation Society, Leadbitter, Michael Andrew “Mike” founder,
587–588
- Blues Archive, John Davis Williams
Library, University of Mississippi,
Oxford, 444, 609–610
- Blues archives, 638. See also libraries
ephemera, including
- Blues artists, performing Hunter, Ivory
Joe songs, 481
- Blues at Sunrise, 481, 1033
- Blues at the Top*, 75
- Blues ballads, 1037. See also
bad-man ballads
- blues bands in, 506
- Blues Before Sunrise, 183, 189, 460,
677, 885
- “Blues Before Sunrise” radio program, 444
- Blues Blasters, 668
- Blues Blues Blues*, 845
- “Blues boom,” Japan, 506
- Blues Boy Willie, 129
- Blues Boy: The Life and Music of B.B. King, The* (book), 445
- Blues Boy’s Kingdom, 129–130
- Blues Brothers* (film), 130, 329, 464, 856 with Cleveland, Reverend James, 215
with Hooker, John Lee, 464
- Blues Brothers, 126, 130, 666, 782
- Blues Brothers*, 215
- Blues by Lonnie*, 882

INDEX

- “Blues Capital of the World, The.”
See Chicago
- Blues Cha-Cha, 436
- Blues circuit
 Kansas City, 513, 557
 with King, Riley B. “B.B.,” 573
- Blues Come Home to Roost*, 942
- Blues Connoisseur, 130
- Blues Consolidated, 746
- Blues Cruise*, 346
- Blues de Basile, 3
- Blues Deluxe*, 591
- Blues Don’t Bother*, 712
- Blues Estafette, with Dale,
 Larry, 245
- Blues Explosion*, 485
- Blues Express label, 650, 857
- Blues Fell This Morning* (book), 122, 131, 440, 736, 817
- Blues festivals, 126, 442, 701, 1070
 AFBF tours, 123, 873, 959
 American Folk Blues Festival, 23–24,
 264, 727, 1046
 Ann Arbor Blues Festival, 21, 647,
 737, 1084
 Berlin Jazz Festival, 145, 906
 with Burnside, R.L., 127, 577
 Davis, “Maxwell Street” Jimmy, 255
 Doggett, Bill and, 276–277
 Grant Park, 145
 with Heartsman, Johnny, 1076
 with House, Eddie “Son,” 298, 465–467 international, Clay, Otis and, 249
 in Japan, 213, 507
 with King, Albert, 657, 994
 King Biscuit Blues Festival, 30, 126, 324, 605, 877, 1090
 with King, Earl, 633
 with Lewis, Furry, 1960s, 598
 Long Beach Blues Festival, 780
 Marin County Blues Festival,
 717, 857
 McKean County Blues Festival, 779
 Memphis Country Blues Festivals, 744
 in Memphis with Hunt, Van Zula
 Carter, 480
 Monterey Jazz Festival, 717, 740,
 882, 1074, 1095
 Monterey Pop Festival, 133,
 300, 548
 New Orleans Jazz and Heritage
 Festival, 291, 1084
 Newport Jazz Festival, 727, 861
 1960s, 1970s, 126
 in North America, Joplin, Janis performing at, 647
 San Francisco Blues Festival, 126,
 658, 857, 1107
 Smithsonian Festival of American
 Folklife, 862
- tours, 94
 Utrecht Festival, Holland, 662
- Blues for Alice, 338
- Blues for Dummies* (book), 579
 Koda, Michael “Cub,” coauthor, 578–579
- Blues for Greeny*
- Blues for Hawaiians, 898
- Blues for My Baby, 1100
- Blues for Two, 377
- Blues Foundation Lifetime
 Achievement Award, 99, 161
 Bland, Bobby “Blue,” 99
- Blues Foundation, “Best Blues Club in America,” 559
 Grand Emporium, The, Kansas
 City, 559
- Blues Foundation, Hall of Fame, 156, 395
 Brown, Charles, 156
 Flerlage, Raeburn, 333
 Guy, George “Buddy,” 395
 Hooker, John Lee, 459–461
 Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” 462
- Blues Foundation, The, Memphis, 127, 605
- Blues from Kansas City*, 558
- Blues from Laurel Canyon*, 661
- Blues from Los Angeles County*, 211
- Blues from the Apple*, 1041
- Blues from the Delta* (book), 441, 443, 578, 985
- Blues from the Gutter*, 245, 290, 368
- Blues from the Heart*, 902
- Blues Get Off of My Shoulder, 211
- Blues Goes On, The*, 828
- Blues Guitar, 458
- Blues Hall of Fame, 18, 156, 281, 647
 Allen, Bill “Hoss,” 18, 719, 966
 Brown, Charles, 155–157
 Nobles, Gene, 18, 798
 Richbourg, John, 18
- Blues Hang Out*, 214
- Blues I Like to Hear, The, 854
- Blues in D-Natural, 458
- Blues in My Bedroom*, 1072
- Blues in the Dark and Alphabet
 Blues*, 772
- Blues in the Key of C*, 1091
- Blues in the Mississippi Night, 152
- Blues in the Mississippi Night*, 689
- Blues in the Night* (film), 132
- Blues in the Night*, 132, 338, 488
- Blues in the Red, 75
- Blues in the Schools program, 126, 145, 253, 695
 Branch, William Earl “Billy” and, 145
- Blues Incorporated, 132–133, 579, 846, 1020,
 with Baldry, “Long” John, 132, 251
 with Davies, Cyril, 43, 132, 251
- Blues Interactions, Tokyo, 788–789
- Blues Is a Feeling: Voices and Visions of African American Blues Musicians*
 (book), 446
- Blues Is Alright, The, 125
- Blues Jam at Chess*, 1021
- Blues Jam at Chess, 158
- Blues Jumped the Rabbit, 67
- Blues Leave Me Alone, 845
- Blues Legacies and Black Feminism:
 Gertrude “Ma” Rainey, Bessie
 Smith and Billie Holliday*
 (book), 446
- Blues Life, A* (book), 445
- Blues Line, The* (book), 441
- Blues Lyric Poetry* (book), 446
- Blues Lyric Poetry: A Concordance*
 (book), 446
- Blues Machine
 with Allison, Bernard, 20
- Blues Makers, The* (book), 194
- Blues Mandolin Man* (book), 445
- Blues Mob, 431
- Blues Moon (Spain), 103
- Blues News* (periodical), 441, 755
- Blues Off the Record: Thirty Years of Blues Commentary* (book), 444, 736
- Blues on Broadway*, 161
- Blues on the Run and Plays the Blues for You*, 961
- Blues Original*, 36
- Blues Palace, Dallas, 380
- Blues People: Negro Music in White America* (book), 57
- Blues Portrait*, 865
- Blues Power Hour* (radio program), 857
- Blues Power, 209, 568
- Blues Project, 133, 388, 842
- Blues Project, The*, 133
- Blues Records, 1943 to 1970*
 (discography), 272, 1022
- Blues Records, 1943–1966*
 (discography), 441, 588
 Leadbitter, Michael Andrew “Mike” coauthor, 587–588
- Blues Research, 441
- Blues revival, 394, 414, 451
 “C.C. Rider,” 189–190
 Chicago, 203
 Cray, Robert and, 273
 Johnson, Blind Willie and,
 527–528
 1960s, Hopkins, Sam
 “Lightnin’,” 462
- Blues Revue* (magazine), 259, 446, 593, 645
- Blues Revue and Blues Access*, 126
- Blues Rockers, 300, 307, 644
- Blues Roll On*, 25
- Blues scale, 108, 111, 389, 863
- Blues Series, The* (documentary), 43
 Ball, Marcia, 43

- Blues shouters, 103, 512, 604, 887
 Kennedy, Jesse “Tiny,” 563
 Rushing, Jimmy, 474, 489, 490, 512–513, 854
 Turner, Big Joe, 512, 558, 721, 1015
- Blues Show!, Japan, 506
- Blues shuffle
 Lewis, Smiley and, 601
- Blues Singer*, 396, 762
- Blues societies, 125, 776, 1021
- Blues Spectrum label, 498, 740
- Blues Stage*, NPR radio program, 161
 Ruth, Brown, 161
- Blues Stay Away from Me*, 262
- Blues Stop Knockin’, 586
- Blues Suite, 246
- Blues Survivor*, 1042
- Blues Survivors with Hummel, Mark, 475, 857, 1055
- Blues Today, The*, 485
- Blues Train*, 847
- Blues Unlimited* magazine, 66, 122, 124, 137, 272, 441, 588, 610, 638, 718, 736, 1022, 1049, 1063
 Leadbitter, Michael Andrew “Mike” and, 587–588
- Blues Vault Series (Adelphi), 9
- Blues Who’s Who* (book), 444
- Blues with a Touch of Soul*, 136, 1105
- Blues with the Girls*, 1106
- Blues Woman, The, 917
- Blues World Booklet No. 1
 Johnson, Robert, researching, 538
- Blues World* magazine, 122, 441, 610
- Blues, 105–129
 jazz and, 510
- Blues, Ideology and Afro-American Literature: A Vernacular Theory* (book), 446, 617, 980
- Blues, Jake and Elwood, 126
- Blues, Stay Away from Me, 231
- Blues, The* (documentary), 180
- Blues, The* (film), 84, 194, 327
 Charters, Samuel Barclay and, 194
- Blues, The* (magazine), Japan, 507
- Blues, The, 1016
- Blues, The, label, 873, 1064
- Blues: An Anthology* (songbook), 438
- Blues: Bibliographic Guide, The* (book), 446
- Bluesbreakers, 133, 661
 1960s, 424 with Bennett, Anthony “Duster,” 73
 with Clapton, Eric, 133
 with Green, Peter, 133, 378
- Bluesbreakers*, 661
- Bluesiana Triangle*, 282
- Bluesland, 431
- Bluesman, The*, 194, 538, 935
- Bluesmen, The* (book), 445, 538
- Bluesmen, The* (documentary), 935
- Bluesmen: The Story and the Music of the Men Who Made the Blues, The* (book), 194
- BluesotERICA Archives, Kansas City, Missouri, 605
- Blues-rock
 Allman Brothers Band and, 22, 50, 334
 Davies, Cyril and, 251
 Foghat and, 334
- Blues-shouting vocalists, in postwar era, 119
- Bluestime Power Hour, The, 609
- Bluesville label, 97, 442
- BluesWay. See ABC-Paramount/BluesWay
- Blythe, Jimmy, 285, 347, 610, 768, 851
- BMG Video/DVD 80008, 326
- B-Movie Boxcar Blues, 130
- Bo Cortes’ Banana in Your Fruit Basket, 476
- Bo Diddley Is a Gunslinger, 267
- Bo Diddley Is a Lover, 267
- Bo Diddley Is a Twister, 267
- Bo Diddley, 199, 211, 267, 489, 840, 888 with Chess, Phil, 198, 267, 1025
- Bo Diddley’s Beach Party, 267
- Bo, Eddie, 133–134
- Boarding House Blues* (film), 326
- Boas, Franz, 131, 438
- Bob Crosby Orchestra, 600
 with Lewis, Meade “Lux,” 599
- Bob McKinney, 114, 338, 649
- Bob Wills and his Texas Playboys, with Duncan, Tommy, 119
- Bobbin, 5, 65, 134, 326, 531, 619, 637, 734, 930
 Bass, Fontella, 134, 619, 666
 Gibson, Clifford, 15, 116, 742, 1007
 King, Albert, 5, 68, 134, 360, 618, 734, 930
- Body and Soul, 512
- Bogan, Lucille, 15, 84, 134, 737, 819
 Depression years, 117, 811
 with Owens, Marshall, 15, 116
 with Roland, Walter, 15, 117, 845
- Bogan, Ted, 31, 134, 317, 659, 1063
- Bogart, Deanna, 135
- Bohee Brothers, 135–136
- Bohee, George, 54, 135
- Bohee, Isabella, 135
- Bohee, James Douglass, 135–136
- Bohee, Laura, 135
- Bolden, Buddy, 385, 436, 509
 jazz musician, first, 510 popular music styles of, 509
- Boll Weevil Bill, 136
- Boll Weevil, The, 129
- Bollin, Zuzu, 136
- Bolten, Hattie. See Hart, Hattie
- Bon Ton Roula, 360, 646
- Bond, Graham, 136–137
- Bonds, Son, 137
- Bone Me Like You Own Me*, 183
- Boney Maronie, 840
- Bonham, John, 590
- Bonner, Juke Boy, 137, 491, 975, 1062
- Bonner, Weldon H. Phillip
 “Juke Boy,” 137
- Bonneville Power Authority, 394
- Bontemps, Arna, 87
- Boogie At Midnight, 161
- Boogie Beat/Motherless Child, 129
- Boogie Blues, 359
- Boogie Chillen, 120, 137, 138, 266, 387, 460, 699, 888, 1108
 “Boogie Chillen,” 137–138
- Boogie Down label, 664
- Boogie in the Dark*, 430
- Boogie Jake, 138
- Boogie ‘N’ Shuffle*, 33
- Boogie on Reggae Woman, 353
- Boogie Uproar, 156
- Boogie Woogie (I May Be Wrong), 854
- Boogie Woogie Country Girl, 1015
- Boogie Woogie Dream* (film), 325
- Boogie Woogie Prayer Parts 1 & 2, 600
- Boogie Woogie Red, 101, 138, 264, 265
 with Hensley, William P.
 “Washboard Willie,” 422
- Boogie Woogie Trio, 535
 with Johnson, Pete, 535
 with Turner, Big Joe, 535
- Boogie Woogie Woman, 665, 764
- “Boogie” time, blues melodies, 108
- Boogie-Woogie Stomp, 24
- Boogie-woogie, 767–768, 770
 Africa, imported to, 11
 Alabama and, 14
 Allison, Mose, and, 21–22
 Ammons, Albert and, 24
 Chenier, Clifton, and, 197
 craze, 1938, 600, 770
 Davenport, Cow-Cow and, 250
 Domino, Fats and, 277–278
 Dirty Dozens, The, and, 270
 Ezell, Will and, 308
 house-rent parties in Saint Louis, Chicago, and Detroit, 478
 Lewis, Meade “Lux” as seminal figure in, 599
 Lewis, Meade “Lux,” famous themes in compositions of, 601 lumber camps in Deep South, origins in, 468 origins of, 767
 piano style, 270, 513 recording of, 769
- Book Binder, Roy, 139
- Booker T. and the MGs, 568, 908, 930
 with King, Albert, 930
- Booker, Charlie (Charley), 139
- Booker, James, 139

INDEX

- Booker, John Lee. See Hooker, John Lee Bookero!, 139
 Boom Boom, 26, 120, 130, 460
 Boom Boom Out Go the Lights, 1013
 Boom Boom Room, 857
Boom Chang, 506
 Boom Chang, 506
 Boone, Blind, 648, 766
 Boone, Pat, 68, 481, 882
Boot 'Em Up, 703
 Booted, 371
 Booth, Stanley, 478
 Booze, Beatrice "Wee Bea," 140
 Boppin' the Rock, 4
 Border ballads, 433
 Born Dead, 594
 Born in Chicago, 172
 Born in Hard Luck, 141
 Born to Play the Blues. Live Wire, 68
 Born Under a Bad Sign, 123, 421, 502, 890, 930
Born Under a Bad Sign, 568, 734
Born with the Blues (book), 87, 440
 Borrowings in blues lyrics. See phrase-formulas in lyrics Borum, "Memphis" Willie, 140
 with Hart, Hattie, 414
Boss of the Blues, The, 1015
 Bostic, Earl, 140
 Boston Blackie, 140
 Bottle It Up and Go, 170, 338, 665
 Bottleneck guitar. See slide guitar
Bottom of the Blues, 589
Bottom of the Top, The, 427, 1044
 Bouchillon, Chris, 141
 Bound for the Land of Canaan, 339
 Bourgeois Blues, The, 1005
 Bourne, Lisa, 551
Bow Wow, 1059
 Bowman, Priscilla, 141
 Bowser, Erbie, 141
 Box Car Shorty and Peter Blue, 233
 Boy Blue, 141
 Boyack, Pat, 141
 Boyd, Eddie, 142
 with Curtis, James "Peck," 243–244
 Boyd, Louie, 142–143
 Boykin, Brenda, 143 with Johnny Nocturne Band, 526, 857
 Boy's Best Friend Is His Mother, A, 135
 Boyson, Cornelius "Boysaw," 143
 Boze, Calvin B., 143
 Bozeman, Virgil, 2
 Bracey, Ishmon, 91, 116, 143, 305, 540, 920
 with Johnson, Tommy, 540–542
 Bracken, James C., 144
 Gary, Indiana, 361–362
 Bradford, Perry, 87, 116, 144, 440, 654, 884, 900 with Smith, Mamie, 440, 900
 Bradshaw, Evans, 144
 Bradshaw, Myron "Tiny," 144
 Braggs, Al "TNT," 144–145
 Griffin, Raymond L. "R.L.," 380–381
 Brain Cloudy Blues, 119
 Brainstorm, 145
 Bramhall, Doyle II, 145
 Bramhall, Doyle, 145
 Branch, William Earl "Billy," 145
 Brandon, Gene, 736
 Brandon, Skeeter, 146
 Braverman, Jack, 423
 Braxton, Anthony, 517 in AACM, 517
 Brazilian Candomble, 455
 Bread and Water Blues, 564
 Break 'Em On Down, 873
 Break O'Day Blues, 153
 Breakdown, The, 988
 Breakfast Dance, 474
 Breaking Up Is Hard to Do, 678
 Breaking Up Somebody's Home, 751
 Breathless, 96
Brenda Bell and the 9th Street Stompers, 70
Brenda Bell Sings the Blues of Victoria Spivey, 70
Brenda Bell: Ain't Nobody's Business What Brenda Bell May Do!, 70 Brenston, Jackie, 146
 with Hill, Raymond, 431
 Breslaw, Andy, with Holmes Brothers, 452
 Breuer, Lee, 330
 Brewer, Clarence "King Clarentz," 146
 Brewer, Jim "Blind," 147
 Brewster, Reverend William Herbert, 147
 Brewster, W. Herbert, 93
 Brick Alley Band, 779
 Bridgeport Die & Machine Company (BD&M), 148, 788
 Bridges, Curley, 147
 Bright Lights, 406
 Bright Lights, Big City, 890
 Bright Star, Allen, Ricky, 19
 Brim, Grace, 147
 Brim, John Jr., 148
 Brim, John, 147–148
 Bring It Home to Me, 528
 Bring It on Home to Me, 121, 890
 Bring it on Home, 275
 Bring Me Another Half-a-Pint, 59
Bringing It All Back Home, 226
 Britain, blues in. See United Kingdom British blues. See United Kingdom, music of British Invasion, 123, 388
 in Japan, 506
 Britt, Allan, blues ballads descriptions, 114
 Britton, Joe, 148
 Broadcast Music Inc. (BMI), 654
 Broadside magazine, 442, 754
 Broadway Express tour, with Hopkins, Linda, 462
 Broadway, 148
 Broadway, Baker, Laverne and, 41
 Brockman, Polk, 149
Broke Man Blues, 744
 Broke My Mother's Rule, 1085
 Broken Hearted, 273, 448
 Broken Levee Blues, 996, 1001
 Brokenhearted Blues, 419
 Broken-Hearted, Dirty and Ragged Too, 305
 Bromberg, Bruce M., 542
 Bronze, 149
 Brooks, "Big" Leon, 149
 Brooks, Columbus, 149
 Brooks, Hadda, 149–150
 Brooks, Harvey, 300
 Brooks, Lonnie, 85, 150, 388, 738, 1044
 Brooks, Rosa Lee, with Hendrix, Jimi, 422
 Broomdusters, 120, 487, 750
 with Homesick James, 453
 Broonzy, Big Bill, 23, 47, 150–153, 185, 251, 367, 488, 578, 627, 752, 815, 871, 1000 with Altheimer, Joshua "Josh," 23 autobiography, 153, 439
 with Black Bob, 85
 with Bruynoghe, Yannick, 163
 in Chicago, 1920–1950, 152
 Chicago blues and, 374
 with Davis, "Blind" John, 251
 Europe, 152
 fiddle, 152
 film of, 326, 439, 736
 "From Spirituals to Swing" concern, Carnegie Hall, 1938, 152
 with Gillum, Jazz, 367 with Green, Lil, 378
 with Howard, Rosetta, 471
 international performances, 439
 "John Henry," 524
 with Johnson, Lonnie, 532
 "Key to the Highway," 563–564
 with Lenoir, J.B., 594–595
 Levee Blues, 596
 in the South, 150–153
 at Thursday Night Blues and Barrelhouse Club, London, 579
 Brothel piano music
 Johnson, James "Stump," recordings of, 530

- Brother George and His Sanctified Singers, 349
 Broven, John, 443, 588, 718
 Brown Buddies, 617
Brown Skin Gal: The Story of Barbecue Bob, 57
 Brown Skin Girls, 626
 Brown, "Texas" Johnny, 36, 975
 Brown, Andrew, 154
 Brown, Arelean, 154
 Brown, Bessie (Ohio), 154
 Brown, Bessie (Texas), 154
 Brown, Buster, 154–155
 Brown, Charles, 155–156
 with Caron, Danny, 182
 "Drifting Blues," 283–284
 with Hollimon, Clarence, 450
 with James, Etta, 501–502
 with Johnson, Plas, 535–536
 in postwar era, 119
 Brown, Clarence "Gatemouth," 63, 120, 156–157, 469, 570, 1017, 1044
 with Copeland, Johnny "Clyde," 226
 fiddle, 315–319
 guitar, 1940s, 318
 Japanese blues showcases, 506
 Brown, Claude, 615
 Brown, Cleo, 157
 Brown, Clifford, hard bop and, 515
 Brown, Devora, 341
 Brown, Dusty, 157
 Brown, Gabriel, 157, 524
 "John Henry," 524
 Brown, Hash, 158
 Brown, Henry "Papa," 158
 Brown, Henry, 769, 704, 927
 Brown, Hi Henry, humor in music
 of, 158, 478–479
 Brown, Honey, 215, 646
 Brown, Ida G., 158
 Brown, J.T., 158
 Brown, Jackson, 258
 Brown, James, 11, 65, 124, 158–159, 638, 663, 831, 857, 1045 with Ballard, Hank, 43–44 funk, development of, 351–353
 Brown, Joe, 523, 594, 738
 Brown, John Henry "Bubba," 159
 Brown, Lillyn, 159
 Brown, Marion, free jazz and, 516
 Brown, Milton, polyphonic to homophonic transition, 110
 Brown, Nappy, 159
 Brown, Olive, 160
 Brown, Oscar III "Bobo," 160
 Brown, Oscar, Jr., 160, 880
 Brown, Pete, 160
 Brown, Richard "Rabbit," 160–161
 Brown, Roy James, 161
 Brown, Roy, 657, 866
 Brown, Ruth and, 161
 Brown, Ruth, 161–162, 711, 850
 with Baker, Mickey, 42
 with Caron, Danny, 182–183
 with James, Etta, 501
 Brown, Sterling, 438, 615, 979
 Brown, Thomas "Big Piney" juke joint owner, 558–
 Brown, Tommy, 860
 Brown, Walter, 118, 162, 558, 879
 Brown, Willie Lee, 162
 with House, Eddie "Son," 465–466
 with Howlin' Wolf, 471–473
 with Johnson, Louise, 533
 with Johnson, Tommy, 540–541
 Brown's Ferry Blues, 231
 Brown-Hudson Award (North Carolina Folklore Society) Baker, Etta and Phillips, Cora, 41
 Brownie Blues, 956
 Brownie McGhee & Sonny Terry, 327, 789, 964
 Brownlee, Archie, 92
 Brown-Skin Baby Doll, 670
 Brownsville Station, 579
 Brozman, Bob, 162–163
 with James, Steve, 505–506
 Brubeck, Dave, influences of Miles,
 Davis sound, 515
 Bruce, Jack, 661, 672, 1021
 "Catfish Blues," 188–189
 Brunner label, 752
 Brunning, Bob, 332
 Brunson, Reverend Milton, 93
 Brunswick label, 68, 163, 250, 1079
 Brunswick, 84, 163
 Acklin, Barbara, 6
 Bailey, DeFord, 40
 Baker, Laverne, 41
 Davis, Carl, 252
 Henderson, Katherine, 420
 Brunswick-Balke-Collender
 Company, 163
 Bruynoghe, Yannick, 163–164
 with Broonzy, Big Bill, 150, 164
 Bryant, Beulah, 164
 Bryant, Don, 751
 Bryant, Jimmy, 273
 Bryant, Precious, 164
 Bryant, Rusty, 164
 Bubis, Alan, 191
 Bubis, Reynold, 191
 Buchanan, Roy, 9, 164–165,
 779, 862
Buck Starts Here, 871
 Buck, Mike, 311
 Buckner, Willie (Willa) Mae, 165
 Buckwheat, Zydeco, 165–166
 Buddah, Alexander, Arthur, 17
 Buddy Bolden's Blues, 436
Buddy Guy and Junior Wells Play the Blues, 36, 395, 1065
 Buddy, 349
 Buffalo Bearcats, with Jackson, Benjamin Clarence
 "Bullmoose," 493
 Buffalo Booking Agency, Houston, 205
 Buford, George "Mojo," 166
 with Leary, S.P., 589
 with Lee, Lovie, 591
Bug Juice, 258
 Build Myself a Cave, 299
 Built for Comfort, 476, 585, 939
 Bull City Red, 166, 256, 629, 775
 with Fuller, Blind Boy, 166
 Bull Doze Blues, 842
 Bull-fight No. 2, 297
 Bull Frog Moan, 533
 Bull Moose Jackson Blues, 493
 Bulleit, James Albert, 166
 Bullet, label, 166–167
 Big Three Trio, 80–81, 880
 Dixon, Willie, 273–275
 Bullfight, 297
 Bullfrog Moan, 533
 Bullfrog, 763
 Bullseye Blues label, 584, 669
 Cobbs, Willie, 216
 Laury, Booker T., 584
 Bully Wully Boogie, 150
 Bumble Bee Slim. See Easton,
 Amos, 885
Bumble Bee Slim: Back In Town!, 295
 Bumble Bee, 686
 Bumpity Bump, 602
 Bunch, William. See Wheatstraw, Peetie
 Bunky label, 877
 Bunn, Teddy, 167
 Burbridge, Graham, 212
 with Clay, Francis, 212
 Burdon, Eric, 26, 190, 488, 889, 1020
 Bureau of Public Roads, 428
 Burke, Solomon, with Hollimon,
 Clarence, 450
 Burks, Eddie, 167
 Burlesque in Harlem (film), 326
 Burley, Dan, 167–168
 Burma Road Blues, 694
 Burnett, Chester. See Howlin' Wolf
 Burnette, Ranie, 873
Burnin' Down the House, 502
Burning Desire, 783
 Burning Desire, 783
 Burning, The, 1000
 Burns, Eddie, 120, 168
 with Hensley, William P.
 "Washboard Willie," 422
 Burns, Jimmy, 168
 Burnside Records, 169, 820
 Burnside, R.L., 9, 122, 125, 168–169, 388, 427, 494, 566, 699, 728, 1024 with Jackson, Calvin (2), 494
 with Jones, Tutu, 547
 Mississippi hill country sound, 390

INDEX

- Burnt Weeny Sandwich*, 411
 Burrage, Harold, 169
 Burris, J.C., 169
 Burrow, Cassell, 169
 Burse, Charlie, 170, 384, 652, 964
 Burton, Aron, 170 with Covington, Robert, 233–234
 with Jones, Casey, 544
 Burton, John, 300
 Burton, W. E., 768
 Business of the blues, 128
 But I Do, 363
 But I Forgive You, 546
 Butler Twins, 171
 Butler, “Wild Child,” with Horton,
 Big Walter, 464
 Butler, Clarence, 171
 Butler, Curtis, 171
 Butler, George “Wild Child,” 170–171
 Alabama and, 14
 Butler, Henry, 171
 Butler, Jerry, 65, 171
 with Bass, Fontella, 65
 with Holmes Brothers, 451
 Butler, Madkin, with Johnson,
 Blind Willie, influences on, 528
 Butler, Mary, with Carter, Bo, 185
 Butterbeans and Susie, 172, 315,
 804, 897
 Butterfield Blues Band. See Paul
 Butterfield Blues Band
 Butterfield, Paul, 172, 283, 301, 337, 655, 717, 857, 904, 944
 harmonica, 408
 with Lay, Sam, 585
 Button accordion, 2, 29
 in early blues era, 115
 Buzzard Pie, 167
 By the Moon and Stars, 533, 1036
 Bye Bye Blues, 540–541
 Byrd, Donald acid jazz and, 517
 jazz scholarship, 517
 Byrd, Henry Roeland “Roy.”
 See Professor Longhair
 Byrd, John, 173
 Jefferson, Blind Lemon, tribute to, 518–520
 Byrds, alternative country, 232
- C
- (1-2-3-4-5-6-7-) Count the Days, 343
 “C” for Chicago, 346
 40 Cups of Coffee, 740
 C.C. Rider, 115, 189–190, 625, 708, 840, 1089
 C.J., 208
 Jones, Carl, 543
 C.J. Records, 276, 543, 881
Cab Driver’s Blues, A, 874
Cab Drivin’ Man, 772
 Cabarets, higher taxes resulting in smaller bands, 514
 Cadet. See Chess/Aristocrat/Checker/
 Argo/Cadet
 Cadillac Assembly Line, 830
 Cadillac Baby, 175
 with Jackson, Lee, 497
 Cadillac Baby’s Club (Chicago), 67, 165
 Cadillac Boogie, 146, 1014
 Caesar, Harry “Little,” 175
 Caesar, Shirley, 92, 93, 889
 Café Au-Go-Go, Greenwich
 Village, 399
 Café Society, New York
 with Humes, Helen, 474–475
 Turner, Big Joe, 476
 Café Wha?, 421
 Caffey, Marion J., 481
 Cage, James “Butch,” 176
Cain Does King, 176
 Cain, Chris, 176
 Cain, Perry, 176
 Cairo Blues, 1000
 Cajun artists, 197, 646, 850
 Cajun musicians
 accordionists, 2–4
 Chenier, Clifton, 4
 Lejeune, Iry, emulating vocal style of, 635
 single-row accordion design popular among, 2
 synthesis of Creole blues, music of, 3
 Cake Walking Babies (From Home), 895
Caldonia (film), with Jordan, Louis and his band, 549
 Caldonia Boogie, 549
 Caldonia Club, 785
Caldonia, 549
 Cale, J.J., 233, 399
 with Hammond, John Paul, 399
 Caledonia, 861
 “Calico Joe.” See Callicott, Joe
California Eagle (newspaper), 86
 California Mudslide, 1000
 California Showers, 1000
 Call It Stormy Monday [But Tuesday
 Is Just As Bad], 84
 Call Me, 376
 Call My Job, 266
 Call Operator 210, 273
 Call the Fire Wagon, 687
 Callahan Brothers, country music
 and, 231
 Callahan, Harry, 333
 Callahan, Homer, 231
 Callahan, Walter, 231
 Call-and-response pattern, 11 African musical traditions of slaves, 53
 Callender, Red, 176
 Callicott, Joe, 14, 125, 177, 699 with Akers, Garfield, duet, 14
 Calling All Cows, 307
Calling Card, 358
 Calling Margie, 783
 Calloway, Cab, 177, 210, 322, 344
 big band, boogie-woogie adapted
 for, 513
 with Jacquet, Illinois, 499
 Japanese blues showcases, 506
 Calloway, Harrison, 177
 Calt, Steve, 874
 Calvanes, The, 427
 Camarillo All-Stars, 41
 Camel Caravan radio show with Bailey, Mildred, 40–41
 Camel Walk, 425
 Cameo, 39, 56, 266, 688, 747, 847
 Hegamin, Lucille, 39
 Cameron, Johnny, 874, 1017
 Campbell, “Blind” James, 178, 327
 Campbell, Bebe Moore, 617
 Campbell, Carl, 178
 Campbell, Charlie, 667
 Campbell, E. Simms, 439
 Campbell, Eddie C., 71, 178, 551, 893
 Campbell, John, 178–179
 Campbell, Little Milton, 387, 763
 with Lucky Peterson, 763
 Campbell, Lucie E., 90
 Campbell, Wilgar, 357
 Camptown Races, 113
 Can I Change My Mind, 258
 Can You Blame the Colored
 Man? 179
 Can’t Be Satisfied, 387, 1056
Can’t Be Satisfied: The Life and Times of Muddy Waters (book), 445
 Can’t Buy Me Love, 841
Can’t Keep from Crying, 1063
Can’t You Read, 79
 Can’t You Read, 880
 Can’t You See What You Done
 to Me, 965
 Canada, Ajax, 14
 Can-Do Club (Minnie’s Can-Do), 857
 Candomble, 491
 Candy Licker, 869
 Candy, 887
 Cane Cutters, 237
 Canned Heat Blues, 541
 Canned Heat, 179, 219, 414, 541, 842, 865, 869
 with Harrison, Wilbert, 414
 with Hooker, John Lee, 459
 Cannon Ball Blues, 436
 Cannon, Gus, 9, 47, 100, 116, 179, 327, 754, 884
 jug and banjo playing of, 552 Cannon’s Jug Stompers, kazoo on early jazz recordings, 560

- Cannonball Records, 20, 180, 597
 Adams, Alberta, 7
 Allison, Bernard, 20
 Levy, Ron, 597
 Can't Stay Here, 473
Can't You Hear Me Calling, 211
 Canton Spirituals, 93
 Capitol 70000 series, 180
 Capitol Lounge, Chicago with Louis Jordan and His
 Tympany Five, 549
 Capitol Records, 7, 18, 180, 644, 816
 Acklin, Barbara, 6
 Allen, Annisteen, 18
 Ball, Marcia, 43
 Hendrix, Jimi, 420–422
 McDowell, Fred, 40
 Caplin, Arnold S., 83
 Caravans, 92, 380, 889, 1027
 Carbo, Hayward “Chuck,” 180
 Carbo, Leonard “Chick,” 181
 Careful Love, 611
 Careless Love Blues, 181, 510
 Careless Love, 115, 181, 278, 337
 Carelessly, 449
 Carey, Dave, 439
 Carl's Blues Club (Houston), 178
 Carlton, Larry, use of scales, 864
 Carmichael, James “Lucky,” 182
 Carmichael, Stokely, 351
 Carnegie Hall concerts with Baez, Joan, 462 with Hopkins, Sam “Lightin’,” 462–463
 with Johnson, Pete, 535 with Seeger, Pete, 462
 Carnegie Hall
 jazz, preserving repertoire and fostering new compositions, 517
 Carney, Harry, 861
 Carnival Day, 436
 Carnival Time, 526
 Carol, 531
 Carolina Boogie, 182
Carolina Country Blues, 25
 Carolina Slim, 182, 349, 860
 Carolinas
 Depression-era blues, 117
 postwar era, 119
 Caron, Danny, 182
 Carr, Barbara, 183
 Carr, James, 92, 370, 909
 Carr, John, 183
 Carr, Leroy, 181, 183, 505, 578, 770, 885, 1000, 1079 with Blackwell, Scrapper, 97,
 106, 117
 Caston, Leonard “Baby Doo”
 and, 188
 Depression years, 117
 11-29 prison sentences, 301–302
 with Griffith, Shirley, 381
 influential music of, 117, 127
 on Johnson, Robert, 536 melodies, eight-measure harmonic
 progression in, 109
 Carr, Sam, 125, 184, 287, 347, 1076, 1093
 with Johnson, Big Jack, 526
 Carradine, William “Cat-Iron,” 184
 Carried Water for the Elephant, 183
 Carrier Brothers, with Carradine,
 William “Cat-Iron,” 184
 Carrier, Roy Jr. “Chubby,” 184
 Carroll, Ted, 5
 Carson, Fiddlin' John, 230 hillbilly, opening market for, 519
 Carson, Johnny, 482, 763
 Carson, Mindy, 882
 Carson, Nelson, 184
 Carter Brothers, Japanese blues showcases, 506
 Carter Family, 345, 440, 814, 869, 956
 Carter, Betty, 185
 Carter, Bo (Chatmon), 104, 185, 195, 386, 734, 872
 humor in music of, 576
 pre-World War II era, 114, 116
 style kept alive by, 125
 See also Chatmon, Armenter “Bo”
 Carter, Bo. See Chatmon, Armenter “Bo”
 Carter, Clarence, 15, 488, 496,
 546, 910, 956
 Alabama and, 14
 with Jackson, George Henry, 496
 Carter, Goree, 186
 Carter, Jimmy, 126, 330, 364, 653
 with Waters, Muddy, 122–123, 1055
 Carter, Joe, 186
 Carter, Levester “Big Lucky,” 186
 Carter, Lonnie, 116, 697
 pre-World War II era, 114
 Carter, Vivian, 1, 144, 186, 797, 1034
 Gary, Indiana, deejay, 361
 Cary, Mary Ann Shadd, 86
 Casey Jones, 115, 129, 187, 483, 598
 Casey, Smith, 187–188, 869
Cashbox magazine, 6
 Burrage, Harold and, 169
 poll (1954), 6
Cashbox magazine, R&B Record of the Year, Brown, Charles, 155
 Casino de Paris concerts, with Hunter,
 Alberta, 480
 Casinos, Kansas City, jazz and blues fusion in, 512
 Cassettes archive, Bowling Green State
 University, 603
 archive, Indiana University, 603
 Castle Communications, 871
 Castle Rock, 868
 Castle, Johnny, 726
 Caston, Leonard “Baby Doo,” 80, 188
 with Dixon, Willie, 273–275
 Castro, Tommy, 188, 857
 Cat Squirrel, 848
 Catfish Blues, 188–189, 244, 337,
 500, 763–764, 886
 Catfish Keith, 189
 Catfish, 188
 Grey Ghost, 379–380
 Catfish, 726
 Cather, Pat, 668
 Cats Don't Stomp, 359
 Cat's Squirrel, 189
 Caught Me Wrong Again, 537
 Cause I Love You, 930, 987
 Cavaleri, Nathan, 390
 Cava-Tone Recording, 189
 Geddins, Bob, 363
 CBS radio, 815
 with Bailey, Mildred, 40–41
 CBS television series “Odyssey,” 326
 CCC (Civilian Conservation Corps),
 374, 434, 785
 Professor Longhair and, 434
 CCS (Collective Consciousness Society), 580
 CDs (compact discs), 127
 archive, Bowling Green State University, 603 collection, Europe's Blues
 Library, 602–603
 compilations, box sets, and individual recordings, archive, Indiana University, 603 imported, Tower Records, 507 Internet benefiting labels releasing, 126
 Ceatrix Did It, 426
 Cecil's Boogie, 359
 Cee-Jay, 190
 Celeste, 190
 Censorship, Ballard, Hank and,
 43–44
 Center for Black Music Research Library and Archives, Columbia College, Chicago, 604
 Center for Black Music Research,
 Columbia College, Chicago, 444,
 604, 754
 Center for Popular Music, Middle Tennessee State University,
 Murfreesboro, Tennessee, 606–607
 Center for Southern Folklore,
 Memphis, 606
 Center for the Study of Southern Culture
 blues films by, 328
 Central Africa, voice-modifying mirlitons in, 560
 Central Avenue Boogie, 475
 Central Avenue clubs, New York City,
 Humes, Helen and, 474–475

INDEX

- Cephas, John, 118, 190, 257, 445, 776, 869, 1073
book about, 445
- Chain Gang Bound, 678
- Chain Gang, 225
- Chain gangs, Georgia, 223
- Chain of Fools, 890
- Chains and Things, 210
- Chains of Love, 212, 840
- Chamblee, Edward Leon "Eddie," 190
- Champ Joe Louis (King of the Gloves), 1003
- Champagne Charlie Is My Name, 100
- Champion (Indiana), 191
- Champion (Tennessee), 191
Jarrett, Theodore "Ted," 507
- Champion 50000 Race series, 191
Decca, 260
- Chance records, 361, 1034
- Chance, 191
Abner, Ewart, 1
Homesick James, 453
Sheridan, Art, 1, 191, 726, 1034
- Chandler, Chas, with Hendrix,
Jimi, 26, 421
- Chandler, Gene, 192
with Acklin, Barbara, 6
with Davis, Carl, 252
- Change in My Pocket*, 351
- Change Is Gonna Come, A, 121, 890
- Change My Blues*, 613
- Change My Luck, 105
- Changing Blues, 481
- Changing Seasons*, 411
- Channel, Bruce, 666
- Chapake Shawee, 237
- Chappell, Louis W., 438
- Chappell, Ray, 859
- Chappelle, Fat, with Jordan,
Louis, 548–550
- Characteristics, musical, of the
blues, 105–110
- Charity, Pernell, 192
- Charles Ford Band, The*, 192
- Charles Ford Band, The, 192, 335
- Charles, Ray, 1, 37, 39, 192, 215, 251, 502, 663, 719, 771, 955, 1053
with Baker, Mickey, 42 blues mannerisms, country music with, 341
with Carter, Betty, 185 with Cleveland, Reverend James, 214–215
- Cow Cow Blues and, 234
with Dixon, Floyd, 273
- Drifting Blues, 283–284
with Glenn, Lloyd, 367
- Going Down Slow (I've Hand My Fun), 368 gospel quartets, origins in, 91 with Guitar Slim, 378
Hispanic soul blues of, 436
with Houston, Joe (Joseph Abraham), 469
- I'm Gonna Move to the Outskirts of Town, 489–490
influential music of, 119
with Jordan, Louis, 548
postwar era, 1950s, 119 with Scott-Adams, Peggy, 16
soul guitar, 389
- Charles, Rockie, 193
- Charleston, The, 247
- Charley Bantley Combo, 303
- Charley Patton* (book), 441
- Charley Patton and the Mississippi
Blues Traditions: Influences and Comparisons* (book), 445
- Charlie Brown, 593, 839
- Charlie Snyder, 187
- Charly, 193
- Charmin' Betsy, 476
- Charming Betsy, 984
- Chart, 193–194
- Charters, Ann, 195
- Charters, Samuel Barclay, 194–195
Anderson, Pinkney "Pink" and, 26 biographies of blues artists, 443
with Broonzy, Big Bill, 150–153
with Cotton, James, 228–229
Fantasy/Prestige/Bluesville/Galaxy/
Milestone/Riverside, 313 field recordings by, 440
with Hopkins, Sam "Lightin'," 462–463
with Lewis, Furry, 598
songbooks by, 444
- Chasin' That Devil Music: Searching for the Blues* (book), 444
- Chatman, Christine
with Big Maybelle, 80
- Chatman, Peter. See Memphis Slim
- Chatmon, Armenter "Bo," 195, 697–698
- Chatmon, Henderson and Eliza, 195
- Chatmon, Lonnie, 185, 195, 317, 697, 871
- Chatmon, Sam, 195, 684, 697–698, 873, 929, 967
- Chavis, Boozoo, 3, 44, 121, 165, 195–196, 369, 635, 648
with Ballou, Classie, 44
- Cheap Thrills*, 548
- Cheaper to Keep Her, 830, 959
- Ceatham, Jeannie, 196, 449
- Ceatham, Jimmy and Jeannie, 196
- Cheatin' Habit*, 619
- Check Out Time*, 253
- Check Up on My Baby, 1086
- Checker label, 197, 666
- Checker, Chubby
Ballard, Hank and, 43–44
- Checker. See Chess/Aristocrat/Checker/
Argo/Cadet
- Checkerboard Lounge
Agwada, Vince, 13
- Checklist of Recorded Songs in the English Language in the Archive of American Folk Song to July, 1940*
(book), 438
- Cheeks, Julius "June," 92
- Cheeks, Reverend Julius, 196
- Cheers
Leiber and Stoller, songs by, 592–593
- Chelsea House Folklore Center
(West Brattleboro, Vermont), 69
- Chenier, C.J., 4, 196, 498
with Jackson, Vasti, 498
- Chenier, Cleveland, 196–197
- Chenier, Clifton, 2, 4, 40, 97, 121, 197, 360, 582, 648, 830, 871, 1014
with Caron, Danny, 182–183
with Garlow, Clarence "Bon Ton," 360
influences on, 3
with Landreth, Sonny, 582 legacy of, 4
- Chenier, Morris "Big," 198
- Chenier, Roscoe, 198
- Cherokee Conyers Orchestra, with Adams, Marie, 8
- Cherokees, 321, 364
- Cherry Red, 535, 1015, 1037
- Cherry Tree Carol, The, 524
- Cherry, Don
free jazz and, 516
world music explorations of, 517
- Chess Producing Corporation, 199
- Chess Records, 18, 48, 76, 120, 186, 393, 488, 604, 650, 714, 986, 1088
Diddley, Bo, 266–267
I'm a Man (Mannish Boy), 488
See also Chess/Aristocrat/Checker/
Argo/Cadet
- Chess, Leonard and Phil
I'm a Man (Mannish Boy), 488
- Chess, Leonard, 123, 199, 502, 961, 1058
with Boyd, Eddie, 142
- Chicago, postwar era, 48–49
with Cotton, James, 228
with James, Etta, 538
See also Chess/Aristocrat/Checker/
Argo/Cadet
- Chess, Phil. See Chess/Aristocrat/
Checker/Argo/Cadet
- Chess/Aristocrat/Checker/Argo/Cadet,
198–199
Adams, Alberta, 7
Allen, Bill "Hoss," 18
Bass, Fontella, 65
Bass, Ralph, 65
Below, Fred, 71–72
Berry, Chuck, 76
Bland, Bobby "Blue," 98–99
Blue, Little Joe, 102–103

- Blues Brothers, 130
 Blue Smitty, 103
 Boyd, Eddie, 142
 Brim, John, 147–148
 Burns, Eddie, 168
 Carr, Barbara, 183
 Carter, Vivian, 186
 “Catfish Blues,” 188–189
 Chess Records, book about, 446
 Chicago, postwar era, 48–49
 Crawford, James “Sugar Boy,” 236–237
 Diddley, Bo, 266–268
 Dixon, Willie, 81, 273–274
 Edmonds, Elga, 296
 Edwards, David “Honeyboy,” 298–299
 Ferguson, Robert “H-Bomb,” 314–315
 Fulson, Lowell, 350
 Gates, Reverend James M., 362
 Genesis box set, Leadbitter, Michael Andrew “Mike,” 587
 Gibson, Lacy, 366
 Gordon, Rosco(e), 371
 Gray, Henry, 373
 Guy, George “Buddy,” 395–396
 “Hoochie Coochie Man,” 453–454
 Hooker, Earl, 458
 Hooker, John Lee, 459
 Horton, Big Walter, 464
 Howlin’ Wolf, 199, 471–472
 I Just Want to Make Love to You, 488
 James, Clifton, 499–500
 James, Elmore, 500–501
 James, Etta, 501–502
 Jenkins, Bobo, 521
 Jenkins, Duke, 522
 Jenkins, Gus, 522
 Jenkins, Johnny, 522
 Johnson, Johnnie, 531
 Jones, Floyd, 545
 Killing Floor (The Lemon Song), 565
 Kizart, Willie, 578
 Leake, Lafayette, 588
 Lenoir, J.B., 594–595
 reissued recordings from, 122
 Rolling Stones, 123
 Waters, Muddy, 40, 1055
- Chessmen, the, 145
 Chevalier des Arts, 883
 Chevrolet, 323
 Chew, Chris, 728
 Chica Boo, 367
 Chicago Amphitheater, Howlin’ Wolf’s last performance, 473
 Chicago Blue Stars, 104
 Chicago Blues (film), 329 with Lewis, Johnie (Johnny), 599
 Chicago Blues All-Stars, with Jackson, Lee, 497
- Chicago Blues Archive, Chicago Public Library, 444, 603
Chicago Blues As Seen from the Inside: The Photographs of Raeburn Flerlage (book), 333, 446
Chicago Blues at Home, 715
 Chicago Blues Festival, 126
 with Acklin, Barbara, 6
 with Chandler, Gene, 192 with Davis, “Maxwell Street” Jimmy, 255 first annual, 203–204
 Jarret, James “Pigmeat,” 507
 with Kansas City Red, 559
 with Lance, Major, 582 with Lee, Frankie and Rhodes, Sonny, 828
Chicago Blues Stars, 625
 Chicago blues, 200, 373, 967
 Antone’s and, 26
 Bell, Lurrie, 71
 blues revival, 1990s, 124
 Delta blues and, 387 early artists, recordings with Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 507
 Guralnick, Peter, writings of, 393
 Guy, George “Buddy” and, 395–396
 harmonica and, 404
 humor in, 476 jump blues influences on, 44
 Myers, David and, 72 popularity of, Jones, “Little” Johnny and, 546
 in postwar era, 124
Chicago Blues, 653
 Chicago Bound, 844
 Chicago Breakdown (book), 443
Chicago Breakdown, 80
 Chicago Breakdown, 848
 Chicago club circuit
 Lenoir, J.B. and, 595
Chicago Daily News, Flerlage, Raeburn, photographs of, 332–333
Chicago Defender (newspaper), 86, 87, 200, 375, 438, 495, 508, 615, 753 advertisements, WJJD, 508
 Jackson, Charles “Papa Charlie,” 494
 race records, advertisements for, 438
 See also Tri-State Defender
- Chicago Film Festival, Gold Hugo Award for Outstanding Documentary, 463 Blues According to Lightnin’ Hopkins, The (film), 463
 Chicago Flood Song, 1000
 Chicago Flying Saucer Band, 772
 Chicago Historical Society, 358
Chicago Jump, 234
 Chicago Loop, 382
 Chicago Public Library, Chicago Blues Archive, 603–604
- Chicago Record Company, 88, 144, 248, 953
 Chicago Rhythm & Blues Kings, 82, 664
Chicago Scene magazine, 333
 Chicago School of Composition and Music, Dorsey, Thomas A., 279
 Chicago soul, 192, 306, 351, 352, 365, 531, 539, 582, 738, 873, 911, 992, 1017
 Chicago sound, 23, 148, 396, 582, 966, 1065
 Chicago Steppers, 234, 250
 with Davenport, Cow-Cow, 250
 Chicago Stomps, 768
 Chicago String Band, 372, 1100
 Chicago Sun Times, 754
 Chicago Tribune, The, 737, 754
Chicago Urban Blues, 266
Chicago Whip (newspaper), 86
 Chicago World’s Fair, 669
 Chicago, 199–204
 1960s, 1970s, 203
 AACM in, 517
 Alabama, musicians from, 16
 Alligator and, 19–20
 Ammons, Albert and, 24
 Bandera and, 44
 Barrelhouse and, 59
 Below, LaMarr Chatman and, 72 blues harmonica, 404
 Blue Smitty and, 103
 blues rediscovery movement, folk music revival, 122 blues scene, 828, 846, 877 blues sound, 879 boogie-woogie, origins in house-rent parties, 512
 Bronzzy, Big Bill, 150
 Cadillac Baby and, 175
 Dixon, Willie, 273–274
 Earwig, 294
 Gillum, Jazz, 367
 Gray, Henry, 373
 Harrington/Clearwater family, 410 house-rent parties predating Prohibition, 467
 I’m a Man (Mannish Boy), 488–489
 Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint” and, 507–508
 jazz clubs, Jones, Willie performing at, 548
 jazz, emergence of, 509
 jazz style, declining in 1929, 512
 JOB (J.O.B.), 523
 Lee, Lovie and, 591
 Left Hand Frank and, 592
 Legendary Blues Band and, 592 musicians, photographs of, 332
 New Orleans jazz musicians migrating to, 511 postwar blues bands, 47–48

INDEX

- Chicago (Continued) race riots, 86, 926
 radio, 74
Chicago, 485
Chicago/The Blues/Today series,
 Vanguard, 194, 229, 589, 853,
 878, 1030
Chicago-style Dixieland jazz, 509, 511
Chick Webb band, popularity of, 1940s, 515
Chicka Boo, 947
Chicken Baby Chicken, 413
Chicken Gumbo, 637
Chicken Heads, 852
Chicken Hearted Woman, 226
Chicken Shack Boogie, 691
Chicken Stuff, 870
Chicken You Can Roost Behind the Moon, 932
Chicken, The, 371
Chief Thundercloud. See Kahdot, Leo
Chief/Profile/Age, James, Elmore,
 500–501
Chi-Fours, the, 166
Chill Out, 845
Chill, The, 1107
Chills and Fever, 266
Chilton, John, 547
 with Jones, Max, 547
Chirping the Blues, 480
Chiswick Records, reissue catalog, 5
“Chitlin circuit,” 123, 205, 206, 332,
 619, 657, 662, 787, 868, 913, 960,
 962, 1021, 1069, 1082
Chmielewski, Edward, 101
Choates, Harry, 646
Chocolate Drops, 31, 45, 134, 239, 317
Chocolate Music Bars, 239
Choirs church affiliation and, 93
 gospel, 93
Choo Choo Ch’Boogie, 515, 549, 861
Choo-Choo Boogaloo, 166
Chop Chop Boom, 222, 1027
Chord Distributors, 589
 Leaner, George and Ernest, 589
Chordophonic music tradition, 432
Chords in blues melodies, 111, 840
Chris Cain Live at the Rep, 176
Chris Powell and the Five Blue
 Flames, 389
Christian Recorder The, (newspaper), 86
Christian sacred music. See black sacred music
Christian Singers, 91, 136, 256, 629
Christian, Charlie, 47, 103, 236, 377, 381, 386, 387, 389, 618, 863
 electric guitar pioneers, 381, 387, 576
 with Hammond, John, Jr., 398
 influential music of, 47
Christian, Johnny “Little,” 56, 218, 259
 with Coleman, Michael, 218
Christianity, 89, 455, 478, 621 in history of the blues, 111
 hoodoo and, 454–456
Christina, Fran, 311, 718, 847
Christine Chatman Orchestra, 80
 with Big Maybelle, 80
Chromatic harmonica, 404, 408,
 623, 898
Chromatic scales, 863
Chromaticism, Lewis, Meade “Lux,” in work of, 601
Chuck Berry-Hail, Hail Rock and
 Roll (film), 531
Chuck D., 127
Chudd, Lewis Robert “Lew,” 207, 490
 with Jackson, Lil’ Son, 496–497
Church Bell Blues, 1089
Church of God in Christ, 90, 91,
 93, 115, 377, 528, 653, 670, 884, 977, 1075
 gospel evangelists and, 91
 Northern California State Youth
 Choir, 93
Church, Eugene, 207, 212
Churchill, Savannah, 524
Cinch Blues, 691
Cincinnati Jug Band, 47, 208, 934
Cincinnati Southern Blues, 208
Cincinnati Stomp, 291
Cincinnati, 207–208
 Admirals, The, and, 9
 Jarrett, James “Pigmeat” and, 507
 jug bands in, 47
Cincinnati, Green, Al and, 375–376
Cinderella’s, Chicago, with Lee,
 Lovie, 591
City Stages Festival, 16
Civil Rights Act of 1964, 364, 795
Civil Rights Movement
 African American popular music
 and, 351
 black newspaper press, 86
 Fifties (1950s), 121–122
 free jazz musicians inspired by, 516
 in lyrics of Lenoir, J.B., 594–595 Civil War era
 black newspaper press, 86–88
 Chicago, 199–204
 country music, 266
 depicting, Hazell, Patrick, 417
 guitar, 383–390
Civil Works Administration
 (CWA), 374
Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC),
 374, 434, 785
 Professor Longhair and, 434, 785
Clack’s General Store, Mississippi,
 House, Eddie “Son”
 recordings, 465–467
Clap for the Wolfman, 1096
Clapton, Eric, 36, 208–209, 643, 657,
 658, 734, 796
 1960s, 388
 with Allman, Duane, 209 with Bluesbreakers, 133, 442, 568 with Broomzy, Big Bill, 153 with Bruce, Jack, 189
 Catfish Blues, 188
 Drifting Blues, 283
 with Fabulous Thunderbirds, 311
 with Green, Peter, 378
 Hoochie Coochie Man, 453–454
 with Howlin’ Wolf, 471
 Japanese audience, attracting new, 506
 with Johnson, Johnnie, 531
 Key to the Highway, 563–564
 with King, Freddie, 388
 Mannish Boy, 488
Clara Ward and the Ward Singers, 92
 with Bass, Fontella, 65
Clarence Williams Blue Five with Johnson, Margaret, 570
Clarinet, early jazz ensembles, New Orleans, 511
Clark, “Big” Sam, 210
Clark, Dave, 210, 796
 with Jenkins, Duke, 522
Clark, Dee, 211
Clark, Glen, 666
Clark, W.C., 211
 with Bell, T.D., 71
Clarke, Kenny, bebop pioneer, 513
Clarke, William, 211–212
Clarksdale Moan, 466
Class, 212
Classic blues, early recorded blues ensembles, 45
Classic blues era, 68
 Beaman, Lottie and, 68
 Cox, Ida and, 235–236 songs of, Levy, Louis “Lou” obtaining rights to, 597 vocalists, accompanied by jazz bands, 510
Classics, 212
Classified!, 139
Claunch, Quentin M., 370
Clay Custer, 768
Clay, Francis, 212
Clay, Otis, 92, 124, 213
 with Burrage, Harold, 169
 soul performances in Japan, 506
Clayborn, Reverend Edward W., 91
Claypool, Les, 876
Clayton, Buck, with Count Basie band, 60
Clayton, Peter Joe “Doctor,” 213
Clayton, Willie, 214
Cleanhead Blues, 836
Cleanhead Vinson, 847
Cleanhead Vinson, 847

- "Cleanhead." See James, Elmore
 "Clear Waters and His Orchestra." See
 Clearwater, Eddy
 Clearwater, Eddy, 214
 Clefones, 245
 Cleo's Mood, 840
 Cleveland, Reverend James, 124
 influential music of, 215
 Climbing on Top of the Hill, 678
 Cline, Patsy, 665
 Clinton, Bill, 741
 Cliques, 207 with Church, Eugene, 207
 Clock Stuck 12, The, 319
 Clock, The, 76, 287
 Clothesline, 412
 Clouds of Joy, 56
 Clovers, The, 215
 Leiber and Stoller, songs by, 593
 Club 51, 215
 Club 90, 662
 Club 99 (Joliet), with Blue Smitty, 103
 Club Alabam, San Francisco, 856
 Club B&C, with Adams, Alberta, 7 Club DeLisa, 859 with Bates, Lefty, 66
 Club Ebony, Indianola,
 Mississippi, 206
 Club Long Island, San Francisco, 857 Club Oasis, New York City, 475
 with Humes, Helen, 475
 Club owners. See nightclub owners
 Club Reno, Chicago, 559
 Kansas City Red, manager of, 559
 Club Three Sixes (club), 265
 CMA (Country Music Association), 232
 Coahoma County, Mississippi, 131
 Coal Man Blues, 471
 Coasters, The, 215
 with King Curtis, 570
 Leiber and Stoller, songs by, 592
 Coates, Dorothy Love, 92
 Cobb, Arnett, 156
 Cobbs, Willie, 216
 Cobra/Artistic Records, 216
 Lewis, Stan, 523
 Cocaine Annie, 218
 Cocaine Blues, 550
 Cocaine Habit Blues, 414
 Cocaine, 923
 Coco's, Cincinnati club, Jarrett,
 James "Pigmeat," 507
 COD, 230
 Coday, Bill, 477
 humor in music of, 477
 Codono trio, 517
 Coffee Blues, 462, 923
 Coffeehouse circuit, 133
 Coffin Blues, 236
 Cohn, Larry, 216
 Cohodas, Nadine, 446
 Cold Blooded Murder, 678
 Cold Cold Feeling, 836
 Cold Day in Hell, 853
 Cold Is the Night, 1042
 Cold Shot, 740, 1082
 Cold Snap, 220
 Cold Sweat, 351, 352
 Cole, Ann, 217
 Cole, James, 317
 Cole, Nat "King," 180, 217
 with Brown, Charles, 155
 with Handy, William Christopher
 "W.C.," 400
 with Humes, Helen, 474
 Coleman, Anne, 190
 Coleman, Bob, 208
 Cincinnati and, 208
 Coleman, Deborah, 217
 Coleman, Gary "B.B.," 217
 Coleman, Jaybird, 218
 Alabama and, 15
 field hollers and, 320
 pre-World War II era, 114
 Coleman, Michael, 218
 Coleman, Ornette, 516
 free jazz and, 516
 free jazz style of, 515
 Coleman, Sherman Leo, 190
 Coleman, Wallace, 218
 Coleman, Walter, 208
 Cincinnati and, 208
 with James, Jesse, 503
 Coleslaw, 933
 Collectables, 218
 Collections of blues lyrics, 444
 Collective improvisation, 511
 dissonant style of, free jazz, 516
 Collectors, blues recordings, 126
 See also libraries Jordan, Louis, recordings of, 548
 Collegians, the, 144
 Collins, Albert, 219
 with A.C. Reed, 861 with Alexander, Dave, 18 with Allen, Pete, 19 with Anderson, Alvin "Little Pink," 24 with Burton, Aron, 170
 with Curtis Salgado, 856
 with Davies, Debbie, 251
 film of, 364
 guitar, 1950s, 423
 with Iglauer, Bruce, 125
 influences on, 256
 influential music of, 122
 Japanese blues showcases, 506
 with Jones, Casey, 544
 with Lee, Frankie, 590 satire in music of, 512-513
 use of scales, 864
 Collins, Bootsy, 124
 Collins, Catfish, 124
 Collins, Little Mac, 221
 Collins, Louis "Mr. Bo.," 221
 Collins, Mel, 365
 Collins, Sam, 221
 with Hill, King Solomon, 221
 pre-World War II era, 113
 Collver, Gary, 300
 Color Purple, The (film), 210
 with Gaines, Roy, 357
 Colored Catalog (Okeh Records), 734 Colour of Love, The, 294
 Colton, Bob, 755
 Coltrane, John, 516 with Coleman, Ornette, 516
 free jazz and, 516
 solos of, 516
 world music explorations of, 517
 Columbia Broadcasting System
 (CBS), 752
 Columbia College, Center for Black Music Research (CBMR), 754
 Columbia Records, 882
 Columbia, 221
 August, Joe "Mr. Google Eyes," 36
 Bailey, DeFord, 40
 Bailey, Mildred, 40
 Big Three Trio, 80
 Bouchillon, Chris, 141
 Davis, Carl, 252
 Franklin, Aretha, 121
 Hammond, John Paul, 399
 House, Eddie "Son," 465
 Howell, Joshua Barnes "Peg Leg," 471
 Howell, Peg Leg, 116
 Jackson, Mahalia, 498
 Johnson, Blind Willie, 527
 Johnson, Blind Willie, promotional advertisement about, 528
 Johnson, Robert, 119, 536
 Johnson, Robert, master
 recordings, 537
 Johnson, Robert, reissues, 538
 Jones, Maggie, 547
 Lance, Major, 582
 reissues, 423
 Smith, Bessie, 894
 Williams, Big Joe, 39
 Williamson, Sonny Boy
 (John Lee), 23
 Winter, Johnny, 388
 Columbia/OKeh, 859
 "Columbian Exposition" World's Fair,
 Chicago, 604
 Columbus Stockade Blues, 231
 Combo, 222
 Higgins, Charles William
 "Chuck," 426
 Jenkins, Gus, 522
 Come By Here, 343
 Come Go With Me, 840
 Come On and Sock It to Me, 540, 1017

INDEX

- Come on Home, 669
 Come On in My Kitchen, 110, 470, 537
 Come On in This House, 1065
 Come On Over to My House Baby, 559
 Come On, 421, 846
 Come On, Let the Good Times
 Roll, 570
 Come to Mama, 502
 “Comeback” recordings, Alligator, 19
 Comedy, blues and, Binder, Dennis “Long Man” and, 82
Comin’ Your Way, 703
 Coming to America, 1031
 Command performances for Queen
 Elizabeth II, 462
 Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” 462
 Commit a Crime, 473
 “Common” time, rhythm in blues melodies, 780
 Communitarity vs. individuality, 656–657
 Compact discs (CDs), Internet benefiting labels releasing, 126
Company Man, 785
 Compilation recordings, 103
 Blue Moon, 103
 Blue Suit, 103
Compleat Albert Collins, The, 219
 Complete Robert Johnson, The, 216
 Compo Company, 14
 Berliner, Herbert, 14
 Composers. See songwriters Compositions, blues dimensions of, 109–110 early gospel, 75
 improvisation and, 107
 Presley, Elvis, songwriting credits, 96
Concordance (book), 446
 Concrete Reservation, 540
 Confederacy, 200
 Alabama, 14
 Georgia, 364
 Confessin’ the Blues, 162, 1013
Confessin’ the Blues (documentary),
 Confessin’ the Blues, 674
Confessin’, 1107
Confessions of a Blues Singer, 101
 Conga Rhumba, 436 Congo Square Sundays (New Orleans), 112
 Congo Square, New Orleans, 112
 jazz and, 511
 Congress, Richard, 445
 Conley, Charles, 222
Connected, 1006
 Connor, Joanna, 222
 Connors, Gene “Mighty Flea,” 551
 Conover, Willis, with Brown,
 Ruth, 161
 Conqueror, 223
 Conroy, Jack, 87
 Consolidated Film Industries, 27
 Brunswick and, 163
 Constellation label, 877
 Contracts, recording, 779
Conversation with the Blues
 (BBC series), 736
Conversation with the Blues
 (book), 441
 Carter, Bo and, 185
 Convict labor, 223–224
 Cooder, Ry, 224
 Cook, Ann, 224
 Cook, Will Marion, 509
 Cooke, Sam, 224–225
 Drifting Blues, 283
 gospel quartets and, 91
 with Hendrix, Jimi, 420–4211
 with James, Etta, 501
 with King Curtis, 570
 postwar era, 1950s, 119 with White, Clif, 389
 Cookery (club), 784
 Cookery, The, Greenwich Village,
 with Hunter, Alberta, 480–481
Cookin’ at the Cookery: The Music & Times of Alberta Hunter (theater production), 481
 Hunter, Alberta, tribute to, 480
 Cool Blues, 176
 Cool Breeze, 992
Cool Down, 1073
 Cool Drink of Water Blues, 541
 Cool Driver, 878
 Cool jazz style of, 515 transition to hard bop, 515
 Cool Playing Blues, 544
 “Cool,” concept of, early bebop era, 513
 Coon on the Moon, 473
 Coon shows, 766
 Coon-Can Game, 471
 Cooper, Jack L., 225
 Cooper, Trudi, 226
 Coopwood, Jesse, Gary, Indiana, deejay, 361
 Copa Cabana Club, Chicago, 395
Copeland Special, 226
 Copeland, Johnny “Clyde,” 226–227
 with Collins, Albert, 256
 with Green, Clarence, 377
 with Hughes, Joe “Guitar,” 474
 Copeland, Sandra, 227
 Copeland, Shemekia, 227
 Copley, Al, 227
 Cops and Robbers, 412
 Copyright
 Berry, Richard and, 76
 European, expiration of, 212
 Flerlage, Raeburn, photographs
 of, 332–333
 lyrics, appropriation of, 105
 Robey, Don and, 287
 Corbin, Alice, 433
 Corea, Chick, 517 fusion and, 517
 Corinna Blues, 190
 Corinna, Corinna, 840
 Corinne Blues, 508
 Corinne, Corrina, 186
 Corley, Dewey, 227
Corregidora (book), 616
 Corrine Blues, 507
 Corrine, Corrina, 1015
Cosby Show, The (television series), 328
 Cosmopolitan Club, East St. Louis, 531
 Johnson, Johnnie, 531
 Cosse, Ike, 227
 Costello, Sean, 228
 Cotten, Elizabeth, 228
 Cottillion. See Atlantic/Atco/Spark
 Cotton Club, Cincinnati, 208
 Cotton Club, Harlem, 177, 227, 669
 Cotton Club, New York, 480
 European tour with Hunter,
 Alberta, 480
 Cotton Crop Blues, 229, 1037
 Cotton economy, 375
 Cotton Fields, 587
 Cotton gin, slavery and, 11, 112
 Cotton Seed Blues, 229
 Cotton, James, 228
 with Bennett, Wayne T., 73
 with Burton, Aron, 170
 in Chicago, 203
 with Clay, Francis, 212
 with Davies, Debbie, 251
 harmonica, 441, 443
 with Howlin’ Wolf, 508
 Japanese blues showcases, 542
 with Leary, S.P., 625
 Cottonfield Blues Parts 1 and 2, 14
 Cottonfield Blues, 321
 Couch, Tommy, 649, 912
 Couldn’t Stand the Rain, 890
Couldn’t Stand the Weather, 1032–1033
 Council of Learned Societies, 438
 Council, Floyd “Dipper Boy,” 230, 348
 Council, Floyd, 256, 629, 776
 Count Basie Orchestra decline of, 515
 featuring blues, 490
 with Holiday, Billie, 448
 in 1936, 61
 Count Otis Walker and his West
 Oakland House Rockers, 739
 Countin’ the Blues-1, 271
 Coun-Tree, 230, 568, 930
 Country blues, 122, 230 accordions fueling growth of, 2
 Alabama, 15, 591
 bass and, 64
 Block, Rory and, 101
 classic blues, 112
 Columbia issues, 221
 Dallas, Leroy and, 245

- drums and, 285
 early recorded blues ensembles
 and, 45, 163
 Handy, William Christopher “W.C.”
 and, 402
 Lawhorn, Samuel “Sammy” and, 585
 1920s, 385
 1950s lull in interest in, 462 recordings of, pre–World War II, 134
 Speir, H.C. and, 386
 urban blues bridging, Blackwell,
 Scrapper and, 97
 varieties of, lack of recordings
 in 1930s, 47
 vocalist, Lewis, Furry, 598 vocalists, accompaniment for, 510
 Country Blues, 714, 1056
Country Blues, The (book), 122,
 194, 440
Country Blues, The (recording),
 194, 442
Country Boy in New Orleans, 293
 Country Boy, 59, 300, 301, 623
 Country Line Special, 1020 Country Music Association
 (CMA), 232, 1006
 Country Music Hall of Fame and Museum, Nashville, 507
 Country music, 266–269, 676, 869, 882
 in 1930s, 117
 banjo and, 55
 in Georgia, 364
 Guralnick, Peter, writings of, 393
 polyphonic to homophonic transition in, 110
 County Jail Blues, 79
 Courlander, Harold, 440
 Courtney records, 668
 Courtney, Tom “Tomcat,” 233
 Cousin Joe, 233
 Covington, Robert, 233–234
 Cow Cow Blues, 15, 116, 234, 250, 533, 768
 Cow Cow Boogie, 234
Cowboy Songs and Other Ballads, 628
 Cox, Billy with Hendrix, Jimi, 421
 Cox, Ida, 235–236, 885
 with Austin, Lovie, 37
 with Crump, Jesse “Tiny,” 243
 How Long How Long (Sitting on Top of the World), 470
 lyrics of, 106
 Crafton, Harry “Fats,” 236
 Cramer, Floyd with Henry, Clarence
 “Frogman,” 422
Crash Landing, 422
 Crash Records, 647
 Crawdaddy magazine, 393
Crawfish Fiesta, 786
 Crawford, Davell, 237
 Crawford, James “Sugar Boy,” 236–237
- Crawford, Ollie with Caston, Leonard “Baby Doo,” 188
 with Dixon, Willie, 275
 Crawford, Pete with Helfer, Erwin, 418
 Crawl’in’ Kingsnake, 155, 450, 460, 951
 Cray, Robert, 125, 237–238, 427,
 655, 856
 Chicago and, 204
 with Clapton, Eric, 209
 with Collins, Albert, 220
 Georgia roots, 365
 with Hooker, John Lee, 460
 Crayton, Curtis Connie “Pee Wee,” 238
 with Baker, Mickey, 42
 with Holloway, Red, 451
 in postwar era, influences on, 48
 Crazy About You Baby, 1088
 Crazy Blues, 45, 87, 114, 115, 144, 654, 657, 768, 884, 900, 953, 993
 Crazy Cajun Records, 239
 Crazy Girl, 482
 Creach, Papa John, 239, 318
 Cream, 36, 123, 239–240, 658, 734
 “Catfish Blues,” 189
 with Clapton, Eric, 50, 209
 with James, Nehemiah “Skip,” 504
 1960s folk revival, 389
 Creath, Charlie, 530, 533
 Creative music, exponents of, AACM performers, 517
Creator Has a Master Plan, The, 987
 Creeks (Native American tribe), 364
 Creole artists, 630, 632, 635, 653
 Creole Belle, 923
 Creole blues, influences of Chenier,
 Clifton, 197
 Creole dances, blues music banned at, 3
Creole Moon, 282
 Creoles, early jazz performers, 511
 Crescent City. See New Orleans
 Crescent City Blues, 702
Cricklewood Green, 969
 Crippen, Katie, 60, 95, 240
 Cripple Creek, 936
Crisis (newspaper), 615, 753, 979–980
 Criticism of the blues, 23, 520, 995
 from 1984 to 2002, 444–446
 emergence of, 440–442
 Jackson, Willis “Gator” “Gator
 Tail” and, 499
 Criticism, free jazz style of Coleman,
 Ornette, 516
 Critics Awards, Living Blues Branch,
 William Earl “Billy” and, 145
 Critics’ Poll, Downbeat Magazine,
 King, Riley B. “B.B.,” 573
 Critiques, modern criticism, emergence
 of, 440–442
 Crochet, Cleveland, 240
 Crockett, G.L., 240
 Crockett, George. See Crockett, G.L.
- Crooning, 885
 Cropper, Steve, soul guitar, 130, 389,
 683, 909, 1043
 Crosby, Bing, 836, 885, 1053
 with Jordan, Louis, 549
 Cross Cut Saw Blues, 450
 Cross My Heart, 6, 287
 Cross Road Blues, 209, 239, 537,
 934–935
 Crosscut Saw, 436, 568, 930
 Crossed position, on harmonica, 3
 Crossfire Time, 211
 Crossing over Jordan, 339
 Crossover artists, 502, 568, 646
 Cooke, Sam, 225
 gospel choirs as, 93
 Leadbelly, 224
 zydeco, 4
 Crossover recordings
 “Hide Away,” 425
 Hoodoo Man Blues, 388
 Crossover styles, world music explorations of jazz musicians, 517
 Crossroad Blues (book), 617
 Crossroad Blues, 106, 162
Crossroad Blues, 617
Crossroads, 209, 239, 546, 841, 1021
 Crothers, Benjamin “Scatman,” 180, 240–241
 Crouch, Andrae, 93
 influential music of, 124, 891
 Crow Jane, 183, 249
 Crowing Rooster Blues, 3
 Crown Records, 241, 700
 Crown, Houston, Edward Wilson
 “Bee,” 469
 Crowns, The, 793
 Crudup, Arthur William “Big Boy,” 48,
 64, 117, 241–243, 643
 Dust My Broom, 487
 with El, Edwards H. “Eddie,” 300
 influential music of, 103–104
 Crudup’s Vicksburg Blues, 1036
 Cruel Hearted Woman, 118, 678
 Crumb, Robert, 444, 706, 874, 1100
 Crump, Edward, (E.H.), 478, 684 with Handy, William Christopher
 “W.C.,” 400
 Crump, Jesse “Tiny,” 243
 with Cox, Ida, 235–236
Crusade, 661
 Crusaders, 104
 “Crushed notes,” Lewis, Meade
 “Lux,” piano playing of, 601
 Cry Before I Go, 915
Cry of Love, The, 124, 422
 Cry On, 985
 Cry to Me, 890
 Cry, 246
 Cry, Cry, Cry, 73, 98
 Cryin’ and Driftin’ Blues, 283
 Cryin’ for the Moon, 580

INDEX

- Crying for the Carolines* (book), 66, 443
Crying for You Baby, 169
Crying in the Chapel, 217, 739, 782
Crying Mother Blues, 1073
Crying the Blues, 342
Crying/Sad Story, 103
CTI label, 877
Cuban Lukumi, 455
Cuban musical influences, 432, 434–436 on jazz, 517
Cuban Room, Kansas City, 559
Cubop, 436
Cuby and the Blizzards, 243
Cullum, Lola Anne, with Hopkins, Sam
 “Lightin’,” 462
Culture, and blues, 656–657
Culture, blues, 444
 1990s, 126
 hoodoo and, 455–457
 Jefferson, Blind Lemon, impact on, 518
 social and psychological meanings, 443
 white involvement in, 122
Cummings, Lauren, 88
Cummins Prison Farm, 31, 589
Cunningham, Agnes “Sis,” 754
Cuoghi, Joe, 424, 909
Cupid, 121
Curfman, Shannon, 390
Curry, Ben, with Hill, King
 Solomon, 270, 430, 918
Curry, Isaac “Boo,” 4
Curtis Knight and the Squires, with Hendrix, Jimi, 422
Curtis, James “Peck,” 243–244
Curtis, King
 with Hendrix, Jimi, 422
 soul guitar, 389
Cushing, Steve, 444
Cusic, Eddie, 122, 244, 619
Custer, Clay, 117, 768, 983
Cut You A-Loose, 19, 205
Cuttin’ Out, 363
Cuttin’ Loose, 176
Cuttle, Joe with Corley, Dewey, 228
CWA (Civil Works Administration), 374
Cylinders, archive, Bowling Green, 603
Cymbals, 285–286
Cypress Grove Blues, 505
Cyril Davies All-Stars, 251
- D
- (Do the) Push and Pull (Part 1), 988
21 Days Jail, 646
Daddio, 839
“Daddy Deep Throat,” 176
Daddy Rollin’ Stone, 96
Daddy Talk to Your Son, 651
Dago Frank’s, Chicago, 480
Dale, Larry, 245, 355
Dallas Blues, 114, 273, 767
Dallas Jubilee Quartet with James, Nehemiah “Skip,” 503
Dallas Rag, 246
Dallas String Band, 246, 652
Dallas, Leroy, 245–246
Dallas-Arbiter Fuzz Face distortion unit, 422, 1033
Damman, Peter, 263
Damn Right I’ve Got the Blues: Buddy Guy and the Blues Roots of Rock-and-Roll (book), 481
Damn Right, I’ve Got the Blues,
 395, 445
Damn Right, I’ve Got the Blues, 395
Damn Your Eyes, 502
Dan Lynch Club (New York City), 69
 with Holmes Brothers, 452
Dance artistic, 246 audience participation, 247–248
 blues antecedents, 1830–1865, 111–112
 “gandy,” 114, 358, 891 music, acid jazz as, 517
Dance bands
 Johnson, Buddy and, 314, 528, 689, 787
 jug bands as, 551–552, 588, 860
Dance blues, 388, 873
Dance halls, higher taxes resulting in smaller bands, 514
Dance music, black string bands
 and, 45, 51, 652
Dance of the Redskins, 828
Dance orchestras, big band and, 40, 48,
 117, 512
Dance with Me Henry, 121, 1098
Dance with the Devil (film) with Hawkins, Screamin’ Jay, 415
Dance, Stanley, with Humes, Helen, 475
Danceland, 248
Dances, 564
Danchin, Sebastian, 445
Dancin’ the Blues, 952
Dancin’ to the Music of Love, 739
Dane, Barbara, 248, 280, 440, 442, 1104
Daniel in the Lion’s Den, 978
Daniels, Jack, 248–249, 343, 704, 1065
Daniels, Julius, 348
Daniels, Sam, 782
Daniels, Ted Eatmon, Narvel and, 67
Danko, Rick with Hammond,
 John Paul, 399
Danny Boy, 237
Darby, Ike “Big Ike,” 249, 1072
Darby, Teddy, 117, 231, 249, 298, 643
Dark and Cloudy, 1000
Dark End of the Street (book), 370, 617
Dark End of the Street, 370, 617
Dark Night, 32
Dark Rapture, 474
Dark Road, 545
Dark Town Scandals Review, 325
Dark Was the Night—Cold Was the Ground, 527
Darky’s Awakening, 135
Darky’s Dream, 135
Darlin’, You Know I Love You, 470
Darn That Dream, 41
Darnell, Larry, 249, 490
Dave Clark’s Blues Swingers, 669
Dave Rosenbaum’s Rhythm Record
 Shop, 857
Dave’s Cafe, Chicago with Jaxon,
 Frankie “Half Pint,” 508
Davenport & Co., 234
Davenport and Smith, Chicago
 Steppers Revue, 234, 250
Davenport, Charles “Cow-Cow,” 117,
 234, 250, 364, 768, 784, 868
 Alabama and, 15
 boogie-woogie at house-rent parties. See also Cow-Cow Blues, 504, 533
Davenport, Jed, 250
Davenport, John. See Blackwell, Otis
Davenport, Lester “Mad Dog,” 250
David, Hal, 865
Davidson County Blues, 234
Davies, Cyril, 123, 132, 251, 1020
 with Baldry, “Long” John, 43
 influences on, 123
 with Korner, Alexis, 440
Davies, Debbie, 74, 101, 251, 390, 874
Davis Sisters, 92, 372
Davis, “Blind” John, 251
Davis, “Little” Sammy, 254
Davis, “Maxwell Street” Jimmy, 255
Davis, Angela, 445, 617, 1097
Davis, Anthony, 517
Davis, Billy, Bass, Ralph and, 65
Davis, Blind Gary. See Davis,
 Reverend Gary
Davis, Bobby “Top Hat,” 44
Davis, Carl, 252, 877, 955
 Chandler, Gene and, 192
Davis, Cecil with Korner, Alexis, 579
Davis, Cedell, 31, 125, 252
Davis, Charlie “Boogie Woogie,” 490
Davis, Eddie “Lockjaw,” 252,
 380–381, 1078
Davis, Emmett, 871
Davis, Francis, 444
Davis, Gary. See Davis,
 Reverend Gary
Davis, Geater, 253
Davis, Guy, 253
Davis, Hugh, 868
Davis, James “Thunderbird,” 253,
 272, 571

- Davis, Joe, (Joseph Morton), 66–67, 364, 524, Brown, Gabriel and, 157
 Davis, Katherine, 253, 418
 Davis, Larry, 254, 307, 856, 1000
 Davis, Mamie “Galore,” 254
 Davis, Maxwell, 156, 254–255 with King, Al, 566
 with King, Riley B. “B.B.,” 575
 Davis, Miles, 124, 192, 420 black audiences, alleviating alienation of, 516 cool jazz style of, 515 with Evans, Gil, 515 formal training of, 517
 funk and, 353
 influential music of, 515–517
 Davis, Quint, 255–256
 Davis, Reverend Gary, 115, 118,
 121–122, 139, 248, 256–258, 369,
 391, 774–775
 Depression years, 115
 Grossman, Stefan and, 382 with Hawkins, Ernie, 257
 influences on, 528
 1960s folk revival, 424–425 style of playing, 257–258, 774–777
 Davis, Tiny, 258
 Davis, Tyrone, 258
 Davis, Walter, 91, 104, 117, 119, 208,
 258, 522, 643, 668, 679, 702,
 723–724, 737, 769–770, 927,
 1015, 1068
 Dawkins, James Henry “Jimmy,” 259, 263, 294, 551
 with Brown, Clarence “Gatemouth,” 156
 with Christian, Johnny “Little,” 207
 with Harper, Joe, 410
 with Kent, Willie, 563
*Day Is So Long and the Wages So Small: Music on a Summer
 Island, The* (book), 194
 Day Tripper, 842
 Day, Bobby, 259, 871
 De la Parra, Fito (Adolpho), 179
 De Lavallade, Carmen, 246
 De Luxe/Regal, 259–260
 Gayten, Paul and, 363
 De Soto, Hernando, 364, 971
 De’ath, Rod, 357
 De’bonairs, 778
 Deacon’s Hop, 673
 Deacons, 874
 Dead Man Blues, 708
 Dead Shrimp Blues, 678
Dealin’ with the Devil, 703
 Dean, Joe “Joe Dean from Bowling
 Green,” 260
 Death Letter Blues, 106
 Death Letter, 106
 Death of Blind Boy Fuller, 349
 Death of Sonny boy Williamson,
 The, 244
 Death of Walter Barnes, 188
 Death of Walter Barnes, The, 999
 DeBerry, Jimmy, with Horton, Big
 Walter, 464
 Decca, 260, 490, 784, 859
 Ace (UK) and, 5
 Andy Kirk’s Orchestra, 39
 Black Ace, 84
 Broadway 500 Race series, 148
 Brown, Cleo, 157
 Burrage, Harold, 163
 Champion (Indiana), 191
 Clark, Dave, 210
 Clayton, Peter Joe “Doctor,” 213
 Davenport, Cow-Cow, 250
 Estes, John Adam “Sleepy
 John,” 305
 Ferguson, Robert “H-Bomb,” 314
 Fuller, Blind Boy, 348
 Gant, Cecil, 359
 Gordon, Jimmie, 371
 Harlem Hamfats, 118
 Hogg, Smokey, 448
 Hollins, Tony, 450
 Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” 462
 I’m Gonna Move to the Outskirts of Town, 490
 Jackson, Mahalia, 498
 James, Jesse, 503
 Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 508
 Johnson, Buddy, 528
 Jordan, Louis, 121, 549
 Lewis, Meade “Lux,” 600
 reissued recordings, 163
 Tampa Kid, 39
 Decca Records, 261, 815, 948
 Decca (United Kingdom), 261
 Decca/Coral/MCA, 261
 Brainstorm, 145
 Charly and, 193
 reissues from Chess, 127
 Dedicated to the One I Love, 331
 Dee, David, 261
 Dee, Joey, with Hendrix, Jimi, 421
 DeeJays. See disk jockeys, 120, 656, 719,
 796–799, 839, 944
 Daddy Deep Throat, 176
 Dr. Daddy-O, 282, 1094
 Freed, Alan, 42, 73, 199, 415, 528
 Gibson, Jack, 366
 Hill, Big Bill, 501, 664
 Honesty, Eddie, 361
 James, Steve, San Antonio, 505
 King, Riley B. “B.B.” on WDIA, 573
 McCormick, Mac, 462
 Payne, Sonny, 30, 439, 796–798
 Stewart, Shelley “The Playboy,” 205
Deep Are the Roots, 721
Deep Blues (book), 443
Deep Blues (documentary), 59, 328, 526, 744, 778
 with Burnside, R.L., 168
 diddle bow, 269
 with Johnson, Big Jack, 526
 with Kimbrough, Junior, 566
Deep Blues of Paul Oscher, The, 589
Deep Blues, 538, 935
 Deep Ellum, Dallas Jefferson, Blind
 Lemon and, 518
Deep in the Blues, 229
Deep in the Night, 502
Deep in the Well, 830
 Deep Sea Blues, 188
Deep South Piano (book), 441
 Deep South. See American South
 Definition of the blues, 128, 951
 DeForest, Lee, 325
 Defrost, 219
 Del Junco, Carlos, 750
 Delafosse, Geno, 261–262
 Delafosse, John, 261–262
 Delaney and Bonnie and Friends,
 with Clapton, Eric, 209
 Delaney, Mattie, 386, 884, 1000
 Delaney, Thomas Henry “Tom,” 262
 Delaunay, Charles, 271, 1039
 DeLay Does Chicago, 263
 DeLay, Paul, 262–263
 Delgiudice, Jerry, 100–101
 DelGrosso, Rich, 134, 652
 Delia, 129
 Dell Kings, 359
 Delmar. See Delmark
 Delmark, 299, 859
 Allison, Luther, 21
 Bell, Carey, 70
 Bell, Lurrie, 71
 Big Doo Wopper, 78
 Big Time Sarah, 81
 CD format and, 123
 Coleman, Michael, 218
 Davis, “Little” Sammy, 254
 Dawkins, James Henry
 “Jimmy,” 259
 El, Edwards H. “Eddie,” 300
 Estes, John Adam “Sleepy
 John,” 305
 Gibson, Lacy, 366
 Guy, Phil, 396
 Hutto, Joseph Benjamin “J.B.,” 485
 Iglauer, Bruce, 20
 Johnson, Syl, 540
 Jones, Curtis, 544
 Kolax, King, 579
 Lee, Bonnie, 590
 1960s, 123
 postwar-era recordings, 440
 Delmark Records, 727, 859
 Delmore Brothers, country music
 and, 231
 Delmore, Alton, 231

INDEX

- Delmore, Rabon, 231
 Delta Blues Festival 1985 (film), 328
Delta Blues Singer—James “Sonny Ford” Thomas (film), 328
 Delta blues, 126, 328, 466, 748
 accordionists, 2–3
 Chicago blues and, 386
 Cusic, Eddie and, 244
 Hollins, Tony and, 450
 Hoochie Coochie Man, 454
 House, Eddie “Son” and, 465–466
 Howlin’ Wolf and, 472
 James, Nehemiah “Skip” and, 503–505
 Leadbitter, Michael Andrew “Mike” manuscript, 588 magician, myth about making a deal with the devil, 107
 Delta Cultural Center, Helena Arkansas, 605
 Delta Fish Market, Chicago, 480, 951
 Delta John. See Hooker, John Lee
 DeLuxe Records, 161, 363, 695
 Democrat Blues, 521
 Dempsey records, 646
 Dennis, Bernardo, 275
 Denomination Blues, 766, 887
 Depression era, 34, 87, 117, 134, 674, 737, 775, 785, 924, 1079
 Alabama, Red Cross stores, 15
 country music, 231
 jug bands, diminished record sales, 552 and marketing, 654, 752 musical career of Lewis, Furry, abandons, 598 Race records, market collapse, 503 recorded ensembles, 47
 Depression-era recordings, 115
 early recorded blues ensembles, 45
 Derby (New York), 208, 263
 Ferguson, Robert “H-Bomb,” 315
 Derek and the Dominos, 209, 564
 DeSanto, Sugar Pie, 170, 264, 363, 731, 829
 Descriptive Novelty, 495
 Desegregation, 684
Desert Blues—Ambiances du Sahara, 12
 DeShay, James, 264
 DeSylva, Buddy, 180
 Detroit, 264–265, 770
 Adams, Alberta and, 7
 Giant/Gamma/Globe, 365
 Jenkins, Bobo and, 521
 southern blacks migrating to, 115
 southern blacks migrating to, postwar era, 119–120
 Detroit Junior, 266, 418, 543, 892, 993
 Detroit Queen of the Blues (club), 265
 Devil Got My Woman, 504–505
 Devil Is a Busy Man, The, 102, 941
 Devil or Angel, 215
 Devil, John, with Creach, Papa John, 239
Devil’s Music: The History of the Blues, The (book), 443
Devil’s Music—A History of the Blues, The (BBC television program), 180
 Cannon, Gus, 179
 Devil’s Son-in-Law, The, 1067
Devil’s Son-in-Law: The Story of Peetie Wheatstraw and His Songs (book), 361, 443
 Dial That Telephone, 898
 Dial, 176, 193, 266, 745
Diamond Jubilation, 273
 Diamond Teeth Mary. See McClain, Mary “Diamond Teeth” Diatonic accordion. See button accordion
 Diatonic harmonica, 408
 Diatonic scales, 863
 Diatonic scales, blues melodies
 early blues, 1890–1920, 114
 harmony and, 109 patterns of whole steps/half-steps, 108
 Dickerson, “Big” John, 266
 Dickinson, Cody, 728
 Dickinson, Jim, 728
 Dickinson, Luther, 324, 728
 Dickinson, Reverend Emmett, Jefferson, Blind Lemon, tribute to, 520
 Did You Ever Love a Woman?, 706
 Diddey Wah Diddey, 902
 Diddie Wa Diddie, 100, 477, 775
 Diddley bow, 269
 Diddley Daddy, 267
 Diddley, Bo, 123, 199, 266–268
 with Davenport, Lester “Mad Dog,” 250
 fiddle, 318
 with Gray, Henry, 373
 “I’m a Man” (“Mannish Boy”), 489 with James, Clifton, 499–500
 with Katz, Bruce, 560
 Didn’t It Rain, 965, 978
 Didn’t Reach My Goal, 288
Die Blues (documentary), 327
 Different Approach, 37
 Different Strokes, 540
 Dig label, 740
 Dig My Grave wid a Silver Spade, 869
 Dig this Boogie, 167
 Dig/Ultra, 269
 Ace (UK) and, 5
 Alladin/Score, 16
 Digital recording, 127
 Dillar, Varetta, 269–270, 711
 Dime-store labels, 27, 56, 679, 739, 752
 Dimples, 460, 1020
Dinah 63, 1052
 Ding Dongs, 410
 Dinwiddie Colored Quartet, 89
 Dip My Dipper, 98
Directory of Recorded Jazz and Swing Music, The, 439
 Dirty Deal Blues, 1075
 Dirty Dozen Brass Band, 255–256
 Dirty Dozen, The, 918
 Dirty Dozen—No. 2, The, 918
 Dirty dozens, 270
 Dirty Dozens, The, 106, 270, 507
 Dirty People, 602
Dirty Pool. Bang That Bell, 961
 Dirty Work Is Going On, 102
 Disc jockeys, 656, 750, 796–798
 Allen, Bill “Hoss,” 18
 Conover, Willis, 161
 Nobles, Gene, 18
 Richbourg, John, 18, 719
 WLAC, Nashville, 18
 Disco Lady, 960
 Disco
 Africa, imported to, 11
 Bland, Bobby “Blue” and, 98
 Discographies, 271–272
 Discography, 271–272
 DISCoveries magazine, 579
 Disraeli Gears, 239, 734
 Diving Duck Blues, 304
 Dixie, 113
 Dixie Cups, 237
 with Jones, Joe, 546
 Leiber and Stoller, songs by, 593
 Dixie Hummingbirds, 92, 119, 272–273, 331, 372, 889
 Dixieland Jazz Band first jazz recording, 511
 Dixieland Jug Blowers, 46, 64, 273, 685
 fiddle, 317
 influential music of, 551
 Dixieland Rhythm Kings with Austin, Claire, 37
 Dixieland sound, string bands, 317
 Dixon, Bill
 free jazz and, 516
 jazz scholarship, 517
 Dixon, Floyd, 36, 273, 287
 with Hogg, Smokey, 448
 Dixon, Luther, 78
 Dixon, Popsy, 451–452
 Dixon, Willie “Big Jump,” 80
 Dixon, Willie, 48, 63, 252, 273–275, 604, 750, 763, 859, 875
 AFBF, recruiting musicians for, 23
 Bell, Carey, 446
 with Bennett, Wayne T., 73
 Braggs, Al “TNT” and, 145
 with Broonzy, Big Bill, 153
 with Caston, Leonard “Baby Doo,” 188
 Chess, royalties and, 199, 274
 Chicago blues, 374

- with Fleetwood Mac, 332
with Fulson, Lowell, 350 with Guitar Shorty, 392
with Guy, George “Buddy,” 395
Hoochie Coochie Man, 453–454
with Horton, Big Walter, 408, 500
with Howard, Rosetta, 471
humor in music of, 476–477 humorous nicknames, music of, 477
I Just Want to Make Love to
 You, 488
influential music of, 106
with Jackson, Lee, 497
Killing Floor (The Lemon Song), 565
with Leake, Lafayette, 588
with Lenoir, J.B., 594
reissues of, 442
singles, Led Zeppelin remakes of, 590
Dizz, Lefty, (Walter Williams) 276, 303,
 959, 1086
Do Drop Inn, Shelby, Mississippi,
 juke joint, 554–555
Do I Make Myself Clear, 264
Do It (‘Til You’re Satisfied), 962
Do It Sloppy, 744
Do Lord, Remember Me, 936
Do Not Disturb, 403
Do Re Mi, 279
Do Remember, 361
Do Right Woman, 910
Do the Funky Chicken, 353, 988
Do the Georgia, 919
Do Unto Others, 238
Do You Want It, 591
Do Your Duty, 896
Do Your Thing!, 218
Dobard, Ray with Heartsman,
 Johnny, 417
Dockery’s plantation, 116
 Lewis, Homer with Patton,
 Charley, 3, 748
Doctor Clayton’s Buddy, 213
Doctor Feel-Good, 840
Document, 276
 prewar blues 78s, reissuing, 446
Documentaries
 American Roots Music
 (documentary), 328, 968
 Best Unknown Guitarist in the World, The, 165
 The Blues, 84
 The Bluesmen, 26, 194
 The Blues Series, 43
 with Burnside, R.L., 168
 Deep Blues, 269, 328, 526, 744
 *Devil’s Music—A History of the
 Blues*, The, 33, 180, 443
 Die Blues, 327
 Honeyboy, 299
 *Land Where the Blues Began,
 The*, 131, 741
 Search for Robert Johnson, The, 400
 *Searching for Robert Johnson,
 The*, 481
 And This Is Free, 122, 725, 820
Documentaries, blues, 442, 569,
 656–657, 820, 967
Blues According to Lightnin’
 Hopkins, The, 442 Conversation with the Blues (BBC series), 736, 1059
Deep Blues, 269, 328, 526, 744
Hootie’s Blues, 674
Land Where the Blues Began,
 131, 741
Last of the Blue Devils, 674
Poet of the Blues, 717
Rock and Roll: An Unruly History
 (PBS series), 744
 And This Is Free, 122, 725, 820
Dog House Music, 785
Doggett, Bill, 276–277, 475, 571, 662, 770–771, 840, 861, 912 with Clifford Scott, 866
Doggin’ the Blues, 1015
Doing the Hambone, 139
Dollar, Johnny, 218, 277
Dollard, John, privacy, whites and blacks different perspectives of, 552
Dolphin, John, 277
Domino, Fats, 39, 103, 121, 277–278, 434, 490
 with Allen, Lee, 18–19
 with Chudd, Lewis Robert “Lew,” 207
 with Lewis, Smiley, 259, 490, 601
Dominoes, The, 65, 572, 673, 839
Don and Dewey, 319, 411, 841
Don’t Advertise Your Man, 901
Don’t Be Afraid of the Dark, 238
Don’t Be Angry, 159, 668
Don’t Be Cruel, 96, 839
Don’t Blame Him, 985
Don’t Break Down on Me, 495
Don’t Care Blues, 901
Don’t Change Your Pretty Ways, 376
Don’t Cry No More, 73
Don’t Explain, 449
Don’t Get Hooked on Me, 910
Don’t Go Reaching Across
 My Plate, 1017
Don’t Go No Further, 750
Don’t Hang My Clothes from No Barb
 Wire Line, 1068
Don’t Hurt No More, 5
Don’t Knock the Rock, 621
Don’t Know Which Way to Go, 395
Don’t Know Why But I Do, 422
Don’t Lay Your Blues on Me, 1061
Don’t Leave Me Here, 39
Don’t Let That Music Die, 81
Don’t Let the Devil Ride, 763
Don’t Let This Happen to You, 576
Don’t Let Your Deal Go Down, 923
Don’t Lose Your Cool, 220
Don’t Mess Up a Good Thing, 65, 666, 855
Don’t Put Me Down, 611
Don’t Put Yourself on the Spot, 1067
Don’t Start Me Talkin’, 72
Don’t Start Me to Talkin’, 476, 1088
Don’t Stay Out All Night, 33
Don’t Throw Your Love on Me So
 Strong, 568, 858, 964
Don’t Touch My Head, 594
Don’t You Just Know It, 899
Don’t You Know I Love You, 215
Don’t You Leave Me Here, 39, 115
Don’t You Lie to Me, 201, 278, 734
Don’t You Make Me High, 58
Don’t, 839
Donald Byrd and the Blackbirds, 517
Done Changed My Mind, 598
Donegan, Dorothy, 278, 551
Doobie Brothers with Booker,
 James, 139
Dooley, Simeon “Blind Simmie,”
 278, 775
 Anderson, Pinkney “Pink” as protege of, 26
Doors, 389, 644, 822
DooTone 300 series, 278–279, 426
DooTone/DooTo/Authentic
 Higgins, Charles William
 “Chuck,” 426
 Humes, Helen, 475
Doo-wop, 829, 840, 911
 Admirals, The, 9
 Ballard, Hank, 43
 Garibay, Randy, Jr. and, 359 groups, Hightone recordings of, 427
 Harris, Don “Sugarcane” and, 411
Dope Head Blues, 922
Dopsie, Rockin’, 121, 194, 842, 1100
Dorian mode, 340, 407, 864
Dorothy’s Medallion Lounge, Adams,
 Johnny, 8
Dorsey Brothers with Kirkland,
 Leroy, 577
Dorsey House of Music, 280
Dorsey, Georgia Tom
 hokum blues, 476
 with Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 508
Dorsey, Lee, 279
Dorsey, Mattie, 279
Dorsey, Thomas A., 92, 152, 279–280, 331, 365, 676, 753, 886
 in Chicago, 237
 Five Blind Boys of Alabama, 331
 influential music of, 116, 119, 124
 with Jackson, Mahalia, 498
Dorsey, Thomas Andrew, “Georgia
 Tom” Reverend, 202, 231, 315
 Georgia roots, 365
 with Hill, Bertha “Chippie,” 430 white band, dance bands competing with, 508

INDEX

- Dot Records, 280, 719, 882
 Alexander, Arthur, 17
 August, Joe “Mr. Google Eyes,” 37
 Dotson, Jimmy “Louisiana,” 280
- Dottie Ivory’s Stardust Lounge, 857
- Double Bayou Dancehall, 662
- Double Crossing Blues, 739, 836
- Double L. Records, 783
- Double Meaning in the Popular Negro Blues* (book), 131
- Double Trouble (group), 876
- Double Trouble Records, 85, 476, 662
- Double Trouble, 876, 1014
 with Davies, Debbie, 251
 Hummel, Mark, 476
- “Double V” campaign, black newspapers, 86
- Dough Roller Blues, 106, 845
- Douglas, K.C., 280–281
- Douglas, Lizzie. See Memphis Minnie
- Douglas, Tommy, 882
- Douglass, Frederick, 200
 black newspaper press, 86
- Dove Award, Gospel Music Association, 331
- Dowd, Tom, 302, 963
- Dowling Street, Houston, Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” 452, 463
- Down at the Depot, 591
- Down at Theresa’s Chicago Blues* (book), 446
- Down Beat* magazine, 402, 737, 755
- Clark, Dave, writing for, 210
- Flerlage, Raeburn, photographs of, 333
- Handy, William Christopher “W.C.” and, 402
- Down Hearted Blues, 480, 895
- Down Home Blues, 95, 125, 262, 431, 496, 502, 650, 890
- Down Home Girl, 833
- Down Home Live*, 166
- Down Home*, 210
- Down in Mississippi, 122
- Down in Mississippi*, 594
- Down in the Alley*, 653
- Down in the Bottom, 546, 844
- Down on Bending Knees, 226
- Down on Stovall’s Plantation*, 970
- Down on the Levee Blues, 425
- Down South Blues, 480, 846, 1005
- Down the Road Apiece, 691
- Down the Road, 602
- Down Town records, 272, 280, 363, 668
- Down Yonder*, 293
- Down Yonder, 602
- Downhearted Blues, 994
- Downhome Blues Lyrics: An Anthology from the Post–World War II Era (book), 444
- Down-home blues, Jefferson, Blind Lemon opening market for, 519
- Doyle, Charlie “Little Buddy,” 281
 with Horton, Big Walter, 464
- Dozier, Katie, 183
- Dozzler, Christian, 869–870
- Dr. Feelgood, 919
- Dr. Daddy-O, 282
- Crawford, James “Sugar Boy” and, 237
- Dr. Hepcat, 282
- Dr. John. See Rebennack, Mac “Dr. John,” 282
 with Lastie, David, 584
- Dragging My Heart Around, 743
- Dragnet, 67
- Drain, Charles, 283
- Dranes, Arizona, 91, 670
- Dream Girl, 72
- Dream Shoes*, 253
- Dream, 542
- Dreamer*, 98
- Dreamland Cafe, Chicago, with Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 508
- Dreams Come True*, 60
- Dreams, hoodoo and, 455–456
- Drifters, 283
 with Hammond, Clay, 398
 Leiber and Stoller, songs by, 592
- “Drifting Blues,” 16, 155, 283–284
- Drifters, The, 673
- Driftn and Driftn, 283
- Driftn’ Blues, 283
- Driftn’, 283
- Drifting Blues, 16, 155, 283, 691
- Drinkin’ and Stinkin’*, 1062
- Drinkin’ Wine Spo-Dee-O-Dee, 671
- Drip Drop, 839
- Drive ‘Em Down, 290
- Driving Wheel Blues, 948
- Driving Wheel, 21, 746
- Drop Down Mama, 299, 305
- Drop That Zero, 891
- Drown in My Own Tears, 121, 889
- Drowning at the Bottom, 21
- Drummers, 750
- Drummond, 284, 1049
- Drums, 284–287
 early blues, 285
 in New World, 284–285
 trapsets, 285–286
 urban blues, 286–287
- Drunk, 611
- Drunken Barrel House Blues, 687
- Drunken Hearted Man, 537
- Drunken Spree, 504, 505
- Drury Lane Theater, London, with Hunter, Alberta, 480
- Dry Spell Blues, 162, 466, 565, 749, 997
- Dry Well Blues, 997
- Du Bois, W.E.B., Harlem social hierarchies, 468
- Du Sable High School, Below, Fred and, 71
- Dual Trumpeter, 710
- Duarte, Chris, 145, 287, 388, 390
- Duck’s Yas-Yas-Yas, The, 530
- Dudlow Joe, 702
- Duets
 Aladdin/Score, 16
 Blackwell, Scrapper and Carr, Leroy, 97, 183
 Blind Blake and Spand, Charlie, 100
 Butler, Jerry and Everett, Betty, 171
 Butler Twins, 71
 Butterbeans and Susie, 172
 Callicott, Joe and, 177
 Don and Dewey, 411
 grassroot, “gospel evangelists,” 91 guitar, early recorded blues ensembles, 45, 104
 Johnson, Lonnie and Lang, Eddie, 532–533
 Johnson, Pete and Turner, Big Joe, 535 piano-guitar, 1930s blues ensembles, 47 piano-guitar, early blues ensembles, 45–46
- Duffel Bag Blues, 297
- Dukays, 877
 with Chandler, Gene, 192
- Duke Elegant*, 282
- Duke Ellington band, decline of, 515
- Duke of Earl, 192, 252, 890
- Duke, 287
 Bland, Bobby “Blue,” 98
 Bragg, Al “TNT,” 144
- Duke, new instrumentation, 124
- Duke/Peacock label, 866
- Duke/Peacock/Back Beat, 288
 Ace, Buddy, 5
 Ace, Johnny, 6
 Brown, Clarence “Gatemouth,” 156
 “Chitlin circuit” and, 205
 Clark, Dave, 210
 Copeland, Johnny “Clyde,” 226
 Davis, James “Thunderbird,” 253
 Davis, Larry, 254
 Gaines, Grady, 356
 Green, Clarence “Candy,” 377
 Hollimon, Clarence, 450
 Hunter, Long John, 482
 Lee, Frankie, 590
- Dukes, Laura, 288
- Dukes of Rhythm with Hughes, Joe “Guitar,” 474
- Dukes of Swing, 878
- Dulceola, 91, 766
- Dumb Woman Blues, 158
- Dunas, Jeff, 446

- Dunbar, Scott, 288
 Duncan and Brady, 340
 Duncan, Al, 289
 Duncan, Little Arthur, 289
 Duncan, Tommy, 119
 Dunn, Blind Willie. See Lang, Eddie
 Dunn, Donald “Duck,” 63
 Dunn, Johnny, first recordings of, 511
 Dunn, Roy Sidney, 289
 Dunn, Roy, 660
 Dunn, Sara. See Martin, Sara
 Dunner, Sherwin, 325
 Dunson, Johnnie Mae, 289
 Duolian model, National Steel resonator guitar, 386
 Dupont, August “Dimes,” 289–290
 Dupree Blues, 1041
 Dupree, Al “Big Al,” 326
 Dupree, Betty, with Jones, Willie, 548
 Dupree, Champion Jack, 17, 27, 36, 278, 290
 with Baker, Mickey, 42
 with Bennett, Wayne T., 74
 with Dale, Larry, 245
 Going Down Slow (I’ve Hand My Fun), 368
 with Gordon, Sax, 372
 international performances, 439
 Dupree, Cornell, 287, 389, 975, 991
 Dural, Stanley “Buckwheat Zydeco,” 4, 165–166, 693, 880, 1083
 Dural, Stanley. See Zydeco, Buckwheat Durham, Eddie, 291
 electric guitar pioneers, 387
 Durham, North Carolina, 776
 Durst, Lavada. See Dr. Hepcat
 DuSable, Jean-Baptiste, 200
 Duskin, Big Joe, 208
 Dust My Blues, 1015
 Dust My Broom, 21, 158, 340, 386, 387, 487, 500, 834, 1012
 Dutson, Tom, 869
 DVDs, 127, 327, 821, 827, 874, 996–997
 Dvorak, Antonin, 385
 Dyer, Johnny, 291 with Holmstrom, Rick, 452
 Dying Man’s Plea, A, 869
 Dykes, Kent, 736
 Dylan, Bob, 586, 674, 749, 870
 alternative country, 232
 with Bloomfield, Michael, 102
 with Hammond, John Henry, Jr., 398
 influences on, 440
 with Johnson, Blind Willie, 522–523
 with Lewis, Furry, 598
 remaking tunes of blues artists, 442
 Dynatones, 103, 830, 857
 Dyson, Joe, with James, Elmore, 500
- E
- 3 Epitaphs, 246
E. C. Was Here, 283
 Each Day, 217
 Eagle Ridin’ Papa, 231
 Eagles on a Half, 1073
 Eagles, Brenda, 446
 Eagles, Charles Brown and The, 156
 Eaglin, Snooks, 96, 282, 335
 Japanese blues showcases, 506
 with Lastie, David, 584
 Ealey, Otis
 with James, Elmore, 500
 postwar era, 120
 Ealey, Robert, 293, 975
 Earl, Roger, 334
 Earl, Ronnie, 36, 293–294
 with Campbell, Eddie C., 179
 early blues, 35, 45, 285, 338
 from 1890 to 1920, 115–116
 circuit with Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 507 drums and, 321
 fiddle and, 115, 315 field hollers, 320
 guitar and, 115
 hokum and gospel, 90
 Mississippi Delta, 2
 1970s, 388
 piano-guitar in ensembles, 35, 45–46
 recordings, 11
 recordings, jazz musicians on, 113 vocals, free jazz vocals similar to, 516
 Earle, Steve, 233
Early Blues Songbook, 444, 736
 Early in the Morning, 299, 500, 918–919, 1086
Early Show, The, 502
 Early This Morning, 845
 Early, Emory, 779
 Earth Angel, 72
 Earth, Wind, and Fire, 124, 332
 Earthquake Blues, 1000
Earthshaker, The, 705, 961
 Earwig, 295
 Carr, Sam, 184
 Kansas City Red, 559
 Lee, Lovie, 591
 East Chicago Blues, 917
 East Coast blues style, 66, 773, 865, 871
 East Coast Blues, 773
 East End District, London, 246
 East St. Louis Blues, 337
 Easton, Amos, 294–295
 Fattenin’ Frogs for Snakes, 313
 How Long How Long (Sitting on Top of the World), 470
 phrase-formulas in lyrics, 105
East–West, 101, 172
- Easy Baby, 21, 295, 646
 Easy Easy Baby, 217, 269
 Easy Lovin’, 332
 Easy Rider, 189, 190
 Easy, 408, 464
 Eatmon, Narvel, 67, 175
 Ebony (1), 295
 Ebony (2), 295
 Ebony Brothers, 874
 Ebony magazine, 754
 first white woman in, 442
 Eckstine, Billy, 296
 Drifting Blues, 283
 ECW Press, 333
Ed Sullivan Show, 121, 763, 783, 846, 985
Ed Sullivan Show, The, 846
 Eddie Mae’s Cafe, Helena, Arkansas juke joint, 553
 Eddie Shaw and the Wolf Gang, 875, 939
 Eddy Jones, 340
 Eden Roc Hotel, Miami Beach, Jenkins, Duke, residence of, 522
 Edison, 296
 Edmonds, Elga, 296–297
 Edsel, 297
 Education
 music, in Kansas City, 559
 Reconstruction era, 113
 Edwards Generation, 298
 Edwards, “Good Rockin,” Charles, 299
 Edwards, Archie, 297 book about, 445
 Edwards, Bernice, 298
 Edwards, Carrie, 313
 Edwards, Chuck, 297–298
 Edwards, Clarence, 298
 Edwards, David “Honeyboy,” 28, 294, 298–299, 327, 537–538, 559, 665, 678, 748, 763, 873, 886
 with Bell, Carey, 70
 film of, 327
 Edwards, Frank, 299
 influences on, 118
 with Johnson, Robert, 537
 Edwards, Joe “Jody” (Butterbeans), 172
 Edwards, John, archive established by estate of, 521
 Edwards, Wilfred, 793
 Edwards, Willie, 299–300
 Edwin Hawkins Singers, 93
 Egan, Willie Lee, 300
 Eight Men and Four Women, 1101
 Eighties (1980s), 388, 443 changes of, 125–127
 dance music, acid jazz as, 517 jazz musicians, options available to, 510, 512, 517

INDEX

- Eight-measure form, 337
 8000 Race series, OKeh
 Records, 27, 734
 Eight-track tape, archive, Bowling
 Green State University, 603
 Eiland, Walter, 303
 Eisenhower Blues, 594
 El Bee (El + Bee), 300
 El Lirio, 434
 El Loco Cha Cha, 77
 El, Edwards H. "Eddie," 300
 Elder Green Blues, 478
 Elder Greene Blues, 39, 882
 Elder Greene, 39
 Elder Moten Hour (radio show), 878
 Eldorado Ballroom, Houston,
 Johnson, Conrad, as bandleader at, 529
 Electric amplification, 885, 954
 Electric bass, 44, 49–51, 61–63, 1009
 Electric Flag, 102, 300, 842, 857
 with Butterfield, Paul, 172
Electric Flag, The, 300
 Electric guitar, 387–388
 development of, 388–390
Electric Ladyland, 124, 189, 422
Electric Mud, 658, 1058
Electric Storyland Live, 431
 Electrical and Musical Industries
 (EMI), 221
 Electrobeams, 364
 Electro-Fi, 300, 881
 Electronic instruments in black sacred music, 93
 Chicago blues and, 202
 Davis, Miles and, 516
 drums, 287
 electric guitar, 387–388
 violin, 315
 Electronic synthesizer keyboards, bass line on, 64
 Elektra Records
 Davis, "Maxwell Street" Jimmy, 255
 Elem, Robert "Big Mojo," 301
 1125 Club, Chicago with Lee,
 Lovie, 591
 11-29, 301–302
 Elektra Records, 301
 Eleven Light City, 737
 11–29 Blues, 302
 Eli's Mile High Club, 732
 Elk's Rendezvous Band, 549
 Elk's Rest Club, 205
 Elko, 302
 Chenier, Clifton, 197
 Ella Speed, 340
 Ellington, Duke, 512–513, 650, 683, 868 with Gibson, Lacy, 366
 with Johnson, Lonnie, 532
 Ellington, Mercer, 423
 Elliott, Ramblin' Jack with Baldry, "Long" John, 43
 Ellis, Big Chief, 302
 Ellis, Tinsley, 302
 Georgia roots, 365
 Ellison, Ralph, 441
 Elmina Castle (Ghana), 10
 Elmore's Contribution to Jazz, 501
 Emancipation Proclamation, 112–113
 Embry, "Queen" Sylvia, 303
 Emerson, William Robert "Billy the Kid," 303
 with LaSalle, Denise, 583
 EMI (Electrical and Musical Industries), 221
 Empty Bed Blues, 895
 End of the Night, 389
 End of the Rainbow, The, 699
 England, blues in. See United Kingdom
 Ensembles
 accordion, 2
 bebop, 513
 early recordings, 45–46 electric of Davis, Miles, spin-off groups, 517
 Hooker, John Lee and, 460
 with Jackson, Willis "Gator"
 "Gator Tail," 499
 jazz, typical New Orleans, 511
 Johnson, Lonnie in, 533 jug bands. See jug bands large, musical arrangements,
 1950s, 515
 larger, jazz played in, 512 melodic and metric improvisation
 in, 47
 nineteen thirties recordings, 47
 ragtime, instruments, 509 small, Jefferson, Blind Lemon as member of, 519
 See also big band
 Entertainer Café with Jaxon, Frankie "Half Pint," 508
Entertainer, The (Joplin), 767
 Environment, social, in New Orleans, 511
 Epic Records, 645
 Epiphone Electar Hawaiian guitar, 387
 Epstein, Dena, 443
 Erby, Jack, 303–304
 Eric Burdon and the Animals, 26
 Eric Clapton, 208–209
Eric Clapton, 209
 Eric Gales Band, 357
 Ernie's Record Mart, 719
 Erskine Hawkins Orchestra, 415
 Ertegun, Ahmet, 551, 673
Erwin Helfer Plays Chicago Piano, 418
Erwin Helfer Plays Chicago Piano, 418
 Escaped Convict, The, 1079
 Eskridge, Art, with Hawkins,
 Ernie, 414
 Esquerita, 304
 Esquires, 877
*Essential Stevie Ray Vaughan,
 The*, 1033
 Estes, John Adam "Sleepy
 John," 304–305
 with Gary, Tommy, 362
 with Homesick James, 453
 humor in music of, 478 with Japanese blues bands, 506
 with Koester, Robert, 442
 with Lewis, Furry, 598
 with Lewis, Noah, 179, 601
 Estes, Sleepy John, 727, 737, 793, 794, 845
 biography of, 443
 Estevanico, 432
Esther, 765
 Estrin, Rick, 618, 857
 Ethel Mae, 346
 Ethel's (club), 265
 Ethnic fusion styles, 517 Ethnic identity, segregation in churches and, 90
Etta Is Betta Than Evah, 502
 Etta James and the Vibrations, Bass,
 Ralph and, 65
 Etta James Revue, 663
Etta James Rocks the House, 502, 719
 Eugene Miller Collection, Etobicoke,
 Ontario, 602
 Eunice Playboys, 261, 262
 euroblues.org (website), 603, 736
 Europe
 AFBF tours in, 23, 1008 cosmological influences on hoodoo, 455
 See also AFBF tours
 Europe, blues in, 661, 673
 publications, 754
 Utrecht Festival, Holland, 662
 Europe, James Reese, 424, 509–511, 685, 813
 Europe's Blues Library, Notodden, Norway recordings, CDs, and videos, collection, 603
 European Blues Association/Archive of African American Music, The,
 Cheltenham, U.K., 603 hosts Blues Week workshop, Exeter
 University, 603
 European Blues Caravan with Dixon,
 Floyd, 273
 European music traditions, 766
 European music, 61, 62, 863
 bass, antecedents of, 62
 Cuby and the Blizzards, 243 performance practices, cool jazz and, 509, 515 twentieth-century concert, bebop experimenting with sonorities
 of, 513
 See also United Kingdom, music of Eva's Man (book), 617

- Eva's Man*, 617
 Evans, Bill, 516
 Evans, Clarence Richard. See Nappy Chin (Clarence Richard Evans), 718
 Evans, Dr. David Huhne, Jr., 305 with Holts, Roosevelt, 452
 with Johnson, Tommy, 540
 with Willis, Mott, 434
 Evans, Gil, with Davis, Miles, 515
 Evans, Herschel, 512, 861
 with Count Basie band, 957
 Evans, Jean. See Cheatham, Jimmy and Jeannie, 196
 Evans, Joe, 84, 167, 190
 Evans, Margie, 306
 Evans, Sam, Gary, Indiana, deejay, 361
 Evans, Terry, with Cooder, Ry, 224
 Evejim records, 669
 Even Dozen Jug Band, 382
Even in a Guitar, 219
 Evening Sun, 464, 878
Everybody Hollerin' Goat, 324
 Everett, Betty, 306
Everlasting Tears, 300
 Evers, Medger, 122
 Every Day I Have the Blues, 350,
 575, 689
 Every Day I Have to Cry, 17
 Every Dog Has His Day, 238
 Every Goodbye Ain't Gone, 240
 Every Night About This Time,
 278, 425
 Every Time I Get to Drinking, 941
 Everybody Needs Somebody, 623
 Everyday I Have the Blues, 60,
 947, 1081
 Everything's Gonna Be Alright, 623
 Evidence, 234, 303, 307
 Evil Blues, 854, 1091
 Evil Gal Blues, 564
 Evil Mama Blues, 153
 Evil Twin Blues, 1073
 Evil, 229, 275, 472, 765, 939, 1081
 Evolution of the blues, 87, 124,
 196, 273, 711
 black sacred music, 89, 91–93
 in U.S., affecting Japanese
 blues, 506
 Excello label, 25, 123, 329, 586, 613, 629
 Excello/Nashboro, 307–308
 Fran, Carol, 343
 Garrett, Robert “Bud,” 361
 Gunter, Arthur Neal, 393
 Harpo, Slim, 410
 Excelsior label, 74, 239, 611, 612,
 633, 668, 739, 815, 947
 Excelsior/Exclusive, 308
 Creach, Papa John, 239
 Liggins, Joe, 611
Exciting Harmonica Sound of Mojo
Buford, 589
- Exclusion of women from blues history. See women and the blues, 308–309
 Exclusive label, 611, 815
 Experience Music Project, Seattle, 127, 610, 1051
 Expressman Blues, 793
 Expressway Lounge, 868
Extra Napkins, 403
 Eyesight to the Blind, 1012
 Ezell, Will, 308–309
- F
- 100% Fortified Zydeco*, 165
 1927 Flood, The, 996
 F&J Lounge, Gary, Indiana, 361
 F. S. T., 36
 Fab Five Freddy, 127
 Fabulous Thunderbirds, 50, 60, 125, 302, 311
 with Ellis, Tinsley, 302
 1980s, 388
 Fahey, John. See Jones, Josiah, 311–312
 with Hovington, Franklin
 “Frank,” 469
 1960s folk revival, 311
 Fairfield Four, 119, 312 FAIRR (Foundation for the Advancement of Inmate Recreation and Rehabilitation), 573
 Falcons, 96, 389
 Falling Down Blues, 885
 Falling Rain Blues, 102, 317, 342
False Accusations, 237
 Fame, 312
 Calloway, Cab, 177
Family Circle, 691
 Family Rules, 150
Family Style, 1033
 Famous Hokum Boys, 752
 Fan It, 507–508
 Fan Waves revue, with Cox,
 Ida, 235
 Fannie Mae, 155, 330, 834
Fanning the Flames, 302
 Fanning the Flames, 302
 Fanny Lee Blues, 1047
 Fantasy/Prestige/Bluesville/Galaxy/
 Milestone/Riverside, 313
 Allison, Mose, 22
 Fanzines, 755
 Far East Network, as source of
 blues, 506
 Fare Thee Honey Blues, 901
 Fare Thee Well, Titanic, 998
 Farish Street Jive, 702
 Farr, Deitra, 313
 Farris, Reverend Lonnie, 91
Farther on the Road, 733
- Farther Up the Road, 98, 679
Fast Fingers, 259
 Fast Freight Train, 752
Fast Texas, 506
 Fast Texas, 506
 Fat and Greasy Blues, 885
 Fat Greasy Baby, 751
 Fat Lady Blues, 117
 Fat Mama Blues, 117, 1080
 Fat Man, The, 278
 Fat Possum records, 168, 744, 820
 Fat Possum, 127
 Burnside, R.L., 168
 Johnson, Big Jack, 526
 Father of Rock 'n' Roll
 Crudup, Arthur William
 “Big Boy,” 241
 Father of the Blues”
 Handy, William Christopher
 “W.C.,” 400
Father of the Delta Blues, 466
 “Father of the Delta Blues,”
 See Patton, Charley
Father of the Folk Blues, 714
Father, Son, and the Blues, The, 763
Fathers and Sons, 586
 Fathers and Sons, 916
 Fattenin' Frogs for Snakes, 313
 Fattening Frogs for Snakes, 313
 Fear No Evil, 1048
Fear No Evil, 96
 Feather Bed, 179
 Feature, 314
 Features of blues music critical fifth chord, 3 glissandos, 3 slides, 3
 Federal Records, Bass, Ralph, 182
 Fedora, 56, 314, 650
 Feel Like Goin Home, 387
Feel Like Going Home (film), 394, 411
 Feel Like Going Home, 714, 1056
Feel Like Going Home: Portraits in Blues and Rock 'n' roll
 (book), 393
Feel Me Good, 164
 Feel So Good, 878
 Feelin' Good, 419
 Feeling Good, 746
Feeling the Blues, 882
Feels Like Rain, 395
 Fender Precision Bass (P-Bass), 63
 Fender Quad Reverb amplifier, 220 Fender Stratocaster guitar development of, 421, 1033
 Hendrix, Jimi and, 420–422
 Fender Telecaster guitar, 232
 Buchanan, Roy and, 164–165
 Collins, Albert and, 251
 Fender, Leo, 63, 386
 Ferguson, H-Bomb, 208, 314–315

INDEX

- Ferguson, Johnny and His Twisters with Hutto, Joseph Benjamin
“B.J.,” 484
- Ferguson, Keith, 311
- Ferguson, Robert “H-Bomb,” 314–315
- Ferris, William, 441, 578, 985
Delta blues, writings about, 488
- Festivals. See blues festivals
- Fever, 96, 525, 782
- Fickle Pickle (club), 699, 879
- Fiddle players, slaves as, white esteem for, 112
- Fiddle, 315–320
African antecedents, 315
amplification of, Harris, Don
“Sugar cane,” 411
in black string bands, 45–46, 652, 928
in early blues era, 115 in electric blues bands, 63 folk music, adoption in, 349
in jug bands, 46–47
Mississippi Delta, 317–318
postwar era, 318
prewar blues, 316
- Field holler singers, 883–884
- Field hollers, 320
Alexander, Algernon “Texas,” 17
blues antecedents, 1830–1865, 112
early blues, 320
- Field recordings, 9, 10, 271, 418, 586,
741, 883
Adelphi Records, 9
Atlantic/Atco/Spark and, 35–36
Bluebird, 23, 39, 81, 104, 118, 213, 261
highways and, 427–429
pre-World War II era, 271
vocal and instrumental styles, 8–10
See also Lomax, John
- Fields, Bobby, 321
- Fields, Ernie, 167, 222
- Fields, Kansas, 321
- Fieldstones, 322, 427, 857, 1042
- Fiesta in Old Mexico, 471
- Fife and drums, 112, 322–323
film of, 328
- Fifteen Cents, 507–508
- Fifth chord, accordion and, 3
- Fifth Ward, Houston, Hollimon,
Clarence and, 450
- Fifties (1950s)
big bands declining, 515
country music, 230–232
Davis, Miles, large ensemble musical arrangements, 515
Davis, Reverend Gary, 256
guitar, 387
hard bop, 515
jazz in, 515
musical changes in, 124
- Fighting On, 936
- Fill This World with Love, 751
- Fillmore Auditorium,
San Francisco, 857
- Fillmore Ballroom, 657
- Fillmore Club, 647
- Fillmore District, San Francisco
James, Etta and, 501
- Fillmore West concerts
Collins, Albert, performing at, 219
with King, Albert, 567
- Filmore East concerts, House, Eddie “Son” and, 465
- Films, 325–328
funk and, 351–353
with Hawkins, Screamin’ Jay, 415
history of, 325–328
Jordan, Louis in, 548
with King, Chris Thomas, 569
with Lewis, Furry, 598
with Lewis, Meade “Lux,” 599
Ruth, Brown in, 161
- Find Another Girl, 171
- Fine and Mellow*, 161
- Fine Mellow, 449
- Finger Poppin’ Time, 44
- Finian’s Rainbow* (play), 733
- Finnell, Doug, 329
- Fire and Thunder Blues, 996
- Fire Department Blues (Martha Hardin), 1000
- Fire Detective Blues, 1000
- Fire It Up*, 302
- Fire Meets the Fury*, 1033
- Fire Station Blues [Martha Hardin], 305
- Fire/Fury/Enjoy/Red Robin, 329–330
James, Elmore, 500
- Firmin, John with Johnny Nocturne
Band, 526
- First Baptist Church (Nutley, New Jersey), 93
- First Church of Deliverance
(Chicago), 93
- First Lady of the Blues, 559
“First Lady of the Blues,” Lee, Julia, 559
- First Pressings*, 754
- First Rays of the New Rising Sun*, 124, 422
- First Shall Be Last, and the Last Shall Be First, The, 479
- First Stage of the Blues, 349
- First Time I Met the Blues, 395
- First Time I Met You, The, 641
- Fisher, Bob, 871, 1066
- Fisher, Dorothy, 361
- Fishin’ After Me (Catfish Blues), 189
- Fishin’ in My Pond, 497
- Fishing Blues 212
- Fisk Jubilee Singers, 91, 114, 889
- Fisk University (Nashville), 88
blacks, education of, 110
Library, 607
Lomax, Alan and, 131
- Fitchburg Street*, 145
- Fitzgerald, Bill, 287
- Fitzgerald, D. C., 779
- Fitzgerald, Ella
with Doggett, Bill, 277
JATP performances, 515
with Jordan, Louis, 549
5 Red Caps, 524
- Five Blind Boys of Alabama, 330–331 with Fountain, Clarence, 342–343 musical contexts, 331
- Five Blind Boys of Mississippi, 330
- Five Blue Flames, 389
- Five Breezes, 81
with Caston, Leonard “Baby Doo,” 188
with Dixon, Willie, 275
- Five Cs, 362
- Five Duttones, 862
5-4 Ballroom, Los Angeles, “Chitlin circuit” and, 206
54321, 1020
- Five Gospel Souls. See Soul Stirrers
- Five Guys Named Moe (film) with Jordan, Louis and his band, 549
- Five Guys Named Moe (stage musical), 550
- Five Guys Named Moe, 549
Five Guys Named Moe, 549–550
Five Live Yardbirds, 904, 1020, 1104
- Five Long Years, 142, 523, 1013, 1015
- Five O’Clock Stomp, 768
- Five O’Clock Blues, 317
- Five Royals, 663
- Five Scalders, 284
- Five Voices and The Bells of Harmony*,
The, 129
- Fives, The, 599
- Fixin’ to Die Blues, 118
- Fixin’ to Die, 1070
- Fiyo on the Bayou*, 722
- Flairs, with Berry, Richard, 77
- Flame, The (club), 265
- Flames, 259
- Flames, The, 871
- Flamingo, 140
- Flash, 331–332
- Flatfoot Sam, 363, 1017
- Flatted thirds and sevenths accordion, difficulty of playing, 3 folk and traditional music, 12
- Flava Flave, 127
- Fleetwood Mac, 102, 133, 332
with Green, Peter, 378–379
- Fleetwood, Mick, 133, 332, 661
- Flemons, Wade, 332
- Flerlage, Raeburn, “Ray,” 332–333
- Flerlage, Raeburn, 333
- Flerlage, Ray, 446
- Fletcher Henderson Orchestra with Crippen, Katie, 240
with Green, Charlie, 376

- Flight*, 222
 Flip, Flop and Fly, 355, 476, 1015
 Floating Bridge, 305, 1000
 Flood and Thunder Blues, 996
 Flood Blues, The, 996
 Flood Water Blues No. 1 & 2, 1000
 Flood Water Blues, 1000
 Flooded in the Delta, 1000
 Florence, Alabama Music Enterprises.
 See Fame
 Florence, Nellie, with Hicks,
 Charlie, 425
 Florence's Lounge, Chicago, 647
 with Lee, Lovie, 591
 Florida Flood Blues, 1000
 Florida Hurricane, 999
 Flower, Mary, 333
 Flowers, Arthur, 617
 Floyd, Frank "Harmonica," 333
 Floyd's Guitar Blues, 387, 898
 Fly Right Little Girl, 941
 Fly, The, 129
 Flyin' High, 474
 Flying Fish, 333–334
 Big Twist, 82
 Carrier, Roy Jr. "Chubby," 184
 Hammond, John Paul, 400
 Hill, Michael, 431
 Hummel, Mark, 476
 Flying Home, 16, 389, 400, 499, 593, 861
 Flynn, Billy, 334
 Flyright/Interstate, Hovington,
 Franklin "Frank," 469
 Foddrell, Turner, 334
 Foghat, 334
 Foley, Sue, 334–335
Folk and Traditional Music of the Western Continents, 12
Folk Blues (book), 440
 Folk blues
 James, Nehemiah "Skip" and, 504
 James, Steve and, 505–506
Folk Funk, 852
 Folk Heritage Awards, North Carolina Arts Council, Higgs,
 George, 426
 Folk music, 122, 339 black, development of, 443
 black string bands and, 45
 blues antecedents, 1830–1865, 112
 blues revival, 1950s, 121
 blues revival, Jackson, John and, 497
 Burriss, J.C. and, 169
 Cotten, Elizabeth and, 228 fiddle traditions, African American, 316
 "John Henry," as best-known folk song in U.S., 524 performances, film of, 327 revival of, 1960s, new jug bands formed, 552
 revival of blues from, Broonzy, Big Bill, 152–153 revival of, James, Nehemiah
 "Skip," 504
 revival of, Johnson, Blind Willie
 and, 528
Folk songs, 171
 Folk-blues
 Joplin, Janis and, 548 revival, Lewis, Furry and, 598 revival of, Koerner, Ray and Glover, 579
 Folklore, 130–132
 African-American, "John Henry" and, 524
 Handy, William Christopher
 "W.C." and, 400
 jazz and, 509
 Folkways Records, 656
 Follow the Leader, 582
 Fontenot, Canray, 335
Food Stamp Blues, 583
 Food Stamps, 862
 Fool Fool Fool, 215
Fool for the City, 334
 Fool in Love, A, 1014
 Fool That I Am, 501, 695
 Fool's Paradise, 349
 Fools Fall in Love, 839
 Fools Night Out, 1073
Foot in the Door, A, 845
 Footprints on My Mind, 266
 For Members Only, 125, 650
 For Sentimental Reasons, 225
 For You My Love, 249, 363
 For Your Precious Love, 171
Forbidden Tones, 60
 Forbidden Tones, 60
 Ford Blues Band, 192, 869
 Ford, Clarence J., 335
 Ford, Frank with Dr. John, 282
 Ford, James Lewis Carter
 "T-Model," 335
 Ford, Mark, 24, 192
 Ford, Patrick, 192
 Ford, Richard, 446
 Ford, Robben, 335–336
 use of scales, 864
 Ford, Wheeler with House,
 Eddie "Son," 466
 Forehand, "A.C.," 336
 Forehand, "Blind" Mamie, 336
 Forehand, A.C. and "Blind"
 Mamie, 336
 Foreign labels, Allison, Bernard, 20
 Forgive and Forget, 739
 Forgotten Blues, 495
 Formal, 336
 Forms, blues, 336–337 alternate structures, 338–339 melodic sources, 339–341 structures, 336–337
 Forrest City Joe, 31, 407
 Forsyth, Guy, 341
 with James, Steve, 505
 Forth Worth and Denver Blues, 1013
 Forties (1940s)
 Chick Webb band, popularity of, 515
 guitar, 386–387
 Hunter, Ivory Joe, best-known compositions of, 481
 Jordan, Louis, hit recordings, 548
 Memphis, 68
 recording industry in, 117
Fortune Telli' Man, 341
 Fortune, Jesse, 341
 45s archive, Bowling Green
 University, 603
 Fortune/Hi-Q, 341
 Bassett, Johnnie, 66
 Jenkins, Bobo, 521
 40 Cups of Coffee, 740
 Forty-Four, 765, 916, 939, 1081
 44 Blues, 948, 1035–1036
 Forty-Fours, The, 701, 1035
 Forty-Fours, The, Johnson, Earnest
 "44 Flunkie," 529
 43rd Street Blues Band with Connor,
 Joanna, 222
 49 Highway Blues, 1077
 Foster, Leroy, "Baby Face," 341–342,
 746–747
 Foster, Little Willie, 342
 Foster, Preston, 217
 Foster, Stephen Collin, music of, blues antecedents, 1830–1865, 112–113
 Foster, Willie James, 342
 Foundation for the Advancement of Inmate Recreation and Rehabilitation (FAIRR) King, Riley B. "B.B.," cofounder
 of, 573
 Fountain, Clarence, 342–343
 Founty, James (Dan Pickett), 773
 Four Brothers, 169, 343
 Daniels, Jack, 249
 Four Day Jump, 342
 4-11-44, 917
 Four Flushin' Papa, 1093
 Four Jumps with Dixon, Willie, 81
 Four Keys, 31, 134, 317, 659
 4 O'Clock Blues, 505, 1104
 Four Vagabonds, 36
 Fowler, Lem, Dorsey, Thomas A.
 and, 279
 Fowler, T.J., 343
 Fowler, Wally, 166
 Fox Chase, 405, 407, 408
 Fox Chase, harmonica, 407
 Foxx, Charlie, 343
 Foxx, Inez and Charlie, 343
 Foxx, Inez, 343
 Foxx, Redd, 278, 859
 Foxy Lady, 420

INDEX

- Fraher, James, 446
Fran, Carol, 343–344
 with Hollimon, Clarence, 450
France, AFBF tours in, 23
Francis, David Albert “Panama,” 344
Frank Frost and the Nighthawks, 184, 347, 526
Frank, Edward, 344
Frank, Michael Robert, 294
Frankenstein, 1094
Frankie and Albert, 114, 115, 338, 340, 384, 748
Frankie and Johnny, 114, 338, 384, 483
Frankie Jaxon’s Hot Shots, 508
Frankie Lymon and the Teenagers, 245
Frankie, 129, 344, 345, 483, 484
Franklin County Blues, 649
Franklin, Aretha, 345
 with Booker, James, 139
 with Dupree, Cornell, 290 gospel quartets, origins in, 92
 with Hammond, John Henry, Jr., 398
 with King Curtis, 570
Franklin, Ben, 384
Franklin, Guitar Pete, 345
Franklin, Kirk, 93
Franklin, Pete, 869
Franklin, Reverend C.L., 345–346
 influential music of, 98
Franks, Jay, with Carson, Nelson, 184
Fraternity label, 644
Frattoir. See rub board
Frazier, Calvin, 346
 with Johnson, Robert, 537
Fred Wolhowe Collection, Minot, North Dakota, 606
Freda and the Firedogs, with Ball, Marcia, 43
Freddie King Is a Blues Master, 572
Freddie Webster band, with Jackson, Benjamin Clarence
 “Bullmoose,” 493
Free and Equal Blues, 1071
Free at Last, 580
Free Enterprise (band), 874
Free jazz, 124, 516
 performers, previously in rhythm and blues bands, 516
 See also jazz
Free Jazz, 516
Freed, Alan, 740
 Baker, Lavern and, 42
 Berry, Chuck and, 76
 Johnson, Buddy in packaged shows of, 528
Freedom, 469
Freedom/Eddie’s, 346
 Alexander, Algernon “Texas,” 17
 Campbell, Carl, 178
 Houston, Edward Wilson “Bee,” 469
Freedom/Eddie’s, Johnson, Conrad, 529
Freedom’s Journal (newspaper), 86
Freeman, Denny, 346
Freeze, The, 219
Freight Train Boogie, 231
Freight Train, 228
Freight Trane, 338
French Academy of Jazz Big Bill
 Broonzy award
 Big Lucky, 79
French harp. See harmonica, 404, 776
French Rockin’ Boogie Band, 261
French
 Africans, descendants of, 3 music, in Creole blues, 3 record label, 83
French, David, 347
Frenchy’s String Band, 312
Fresh Cream, 189, 846, 924
Freud, Sigmund, 477
Freund, Steve, 346
Friesen, Gordon, 754
Frisco Hi-Ball Blues, 701
Frisco Leaving Birmingham, 1079
Frisco Town, 686
Frisco, 346
Frog/Cygnets, 347
Frogs, 314
From Austin with Soul, 211
From Me to You, 5
From Spirituals to Swing, 600, 770
From Spirituals to Swing, 1030
“From Spirituals to Swing” concert,
 Carnegie Hall, 152, 235, 408, 475, 514, 840, 1030
 Ammons, Albert and Lewis, Meade
 “Lux,” 399, 535, 600, 770
 with Johnson, Pete, 399, 535, 770
 Johnson, Robert, 439, 538
From The Cradle, 209, 284, 845
From the Heart, 8
From the Teacher to the Preacher, 6
Frost Texas Tornado Blues, 999
Frost, Frank Otis, 78, 347
 with Carr, Sam, 30, 125, 184
 with Johnson, Big Jack, 125, 526
Frostbite, 220
Frosty, 128, 219
“Frying Pan” pickup, 386
Fugs, 382
Fulbright, J. R., 855
Fulbright, John R., 302
 Chenier, Clifton and, 197
 Garlow, Clarence “Bon Ton” and, 360
Full Gain, 356
Full Tilt Boogie Band, 548
Full Time Love, 751
Fuller, Blind Boy, 27, 56, 91, 118, 121, 166, 222, 348, 349, 391, 408, 476, 791, 858, 886
 with Homesick James, 453
 “I’m Gonna Move to the Outskirts of Town,” 490 Fuller, Jesse “Lone Cat,” 349
 kazoo playing of, 561
Fuller, Johnny, 349
 first recording of, 542
Fuller, Walter, 36, 386
Fulp, Preston, 349
Fulson, Lowell, 189, 222, 327, 350, 669, 728, 731, 820, 845
 with Blaylock, Travis “Harmonica Slim,” 100
 with Glenn, Lloyd, 367
 Japanese blues showcases, 506
Funderburgh, Anson, 96, 125, 145, 253, 293, 350, 716, 729, 850, 975
 with Bramhall, Doyle, 145
 with Hollimon, Clarence, 450
 with Kubek, Smokin’ Joe, 580
Funk, 351–353
 from 1960s to the present, 352–353
 bass and, 61–62
 Brown, James, 158
 jazz musicians experiments in, 517
Funkifino, 20
Funk-Shun, 734
Funky Wordsmyths
 Brown, Oscar III “Bobo,” 160
Funny How Time Slips Away, 912
Funny Paper Smith, 899
Funny Stuff, 254
Funny Stuff, 254
Furry Plays the Blues, 598
Further Up the Road, 226
Fusion, 517 ethnic. See ethnic fusion styles
Future Blues, 162
Futuristic Blues, 436
- ## G
- (Gotta Go) Upside Your Head, 528
Gabbin’ Blues, 668
Gabon, 10
Gabriel, Peter
 Five Blind Boys of Alabama and, 331
 with Holmes Brothers, 452
Gaddy, Bob, 355
 with Dale, Larry, 245
Gaillard, Bulee “Slim,” 355–356
Gaines, Earl, 356 with Jarrett, Theodore “Ted,” 507
Gaines, Grady, 356
 with Hollimon, Clarence, 450 with “Guitar,” 474
Gaines, Roy, 356–357
Gaither, Bill (1), 357
Gaither, Bill (2) “Leroy’s Buddy,” 357
Gales Brothers of Memphis, 357, 573
Gales, Eric, 357
Gales, Eugene, 357

- Gallagher, Rory, 357–358
 Galloway, Andrew, 300
 Galore, Mamie. See Davis, Mamie “Galore,” 254
 Galveston, Texas, 377, 770
 Gambling Woman, 783
 Gandy Dancers, 358
 “Gang and task” system, convict labor, 223
 Gangster of Love, 1059
 Ganong, Overton, 166–167
 Gant, Cecil, 119, 358–359
 Garcia, Jerome John “Jerry,” 359
 Gardner, Poison, 490
 Garibay, Randy, Jr., 359
 Garland, Terry, 359–360
 Garlow, Clarence “Bon Ton,” 360
 Garlow, Clarence, 314, 976, 1062
 Garner, Larry, 360, 551
 Garon, Paul and Beth, 361, 445
 Garon, Paul, 360–361, 753 psycho-poetical study of blues, 443
 Garrett, Robert “Bud,” 361
 Garrison, Lucy McKim, 438
 Gart, Galen, 754
 Gary, Indiana, 361–362
 Gary, Tommy, 362
 Gas rationing, tours and, 514
 Gate’s Salty Blues, 156
 Gates, Reverend James M., 362, 996
 Gator horn, 499
 Gaye, Marvin, with James, Etta, 502
 Gayles, Billy, 362–363
 Gayten, Paul, 363
 Darnell, Larry and, 249
 Geddings, Bob, 363, 527, 668, 731
 DeSanto, Sugar Pie and, 264
 with Heartsman, Johnny, 417
 Geddings, Robert Lee, 81, 189
 “Geechie music,” 100
 Geils, J., Brim, John and, 148
 Gellert, Lawrence, 131, 439
 Gelling, Eelco, 243
 Gender, adaptation of, in blues lyrics, 105
 Gene & Eunice, 16, 222
Gene Krupa Story (film), 780
 Gene’s Blues Bar, Pittsburgh, 779
 General Recorded Tape (GRT), 199
Generic Blues, 1034
Genius of Ray Charles, The, 193
 Gennett, 363–364
 Baker, Willie, 42
 Champion (Indiana), 191
 Harris, William “Big Foot,” 413
 Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 508
 Kimbrough, Lottie, 566
 Gennett, Clarence, 363
 Gennett, Fred, 88, 363
 Gennett, Harry, 364, 365
 Gennett label, 191, 364, 943
 “Genuine Houserockin’ Music,” 19
 Geographical aspects, blues, 125
 George Bohee Medleys, 135
 George E. Lee and His Novelty Singing Orchestra
 from Kansas City, 559
 George, Nelson, 205
Georgia Blue, 302
 Georgia Boy, 1058
 Georgia Flood, 1000
 Georgia Grinder. See Davenport,
 Cow–Cow, 250
 Georgia Jazz Band, trapsets, 285
 Georgia Mass Choir, 93
 Georgia on My Mind, 1, 193, 339
 Georgia Piedmont. See Piedmont style, 118
 Georgia Sea Island Singers, 257, 543, 998
 with Hillery, Mabel, 432
 Georgia Sea Islands
 Blind Blake and, 100
 “Georgia Tom.” See Dorsey, Thomas
 Andrew, 279
 Georgia, 364–365
 artists from, 365
 Geremia, Paul, 9, 365, 388, 750
 Gershwin, George, chord changes, bebop derived from, 513
 Get a Job, 671
 Get Down With It, 266
 Get Down, 192
 Get It, 43
 Get on the Ball Paul, 198
 Get Out of My Life, Woman, 279
 Get Thee Behind Me, 440
 Get Yourself Another Fool, 155
Getting Ready..., 573
 Getz, Stan, influences of Davis, Miles sound, 515
 Ghana, 10, 12, 284
 Ghetto Fighters with Hendrix, Jimi, 422
 Giant Records, 876
Giant Step, 952
 Giant/Gamma/Globe, 365–366
 Gibbons, Billy, 661, 1107 Gibson ES-335, 302
 gospel evangelists and, 91
 guest guitarist, Landreth, Sonny, 582
 Hawaiian blues style, 84
 Hooker, Earl and, 458
 innovator, Christian, Charlie, 206 jazz, Johnson, Lonnie and, 532
 Johnson, Lonnie, influential guitarist, 532
 in jug bands, 47
 “Mean Machine, The,” 268
 New Orleans musicians, 36
 1930s, 386
 1970s, 388
 1980s, 388
 1990s, 388
 Piedmont style of playing, 41
 postwar era, 387–388
 pre-blues, 385
 pre–World War II era, 385–386 rock adaptations of blues techniques, 389
 “sacred steel,” 93
 slide technique, Davis, Cedell
 and, 252
 soul, 397
 Southern accoustic blues and, 11 steel, Blind Blake playing, 100 steel, gospel and, 91 styles since 1990, 388
 technical description, 383 technical virtuosity, emphasis on, 390 technique, Hooker, John Lee, 459 technique, James, Nehemiah
 “Skip,” 504–505
 technique, Jefferson, Blind
 Lemon, 519
 technique, Johnson, Lonnie, 532 technique, King, Albert, 568 technique, King, Riley B. “B.B.,” 575
 vihuela de mano and, 433
 Weaver, Savannah “Dip,” style of playing, 42
See also slide guitar technique,
 703, 838
 Gibson guitars, 383
 Ellis, Tinsley, 35, 302, 365
 ES-335, development of, 302,
 386, 1033
 King, Freddie and, 572
 Gibson Les Paul guitar, 422
 Gibson, Clifford, 15, 116, 366, 742,
 791, 927, 1007
 Gibson, Jack, 366
 Gibson, Lacy, 85, 234, 366–367
 Gillespie, Dizzy band as first great bebop group, 513
 bebop, development of, 123
 with Humes, Helen, 475
 with Jackson, Willis “Gator” “Gator
 Tail,” 499
 JATP performances, 515
 with Parker, Charlie, 745
 Gillespie, William, 132
 Gillum, Jazz, 104, 367
 with Broonzy, Big Bill, 152
 in Chicago, 202
 “Key to the Highway,” 367, 564
 Gilmore, Boyd, 367, 501, 643, 851
 Gilmore, Jimmie Dale, 233, 976
Gimme Shelter, 670
 Gin-mill, 897
 Gipson, Barney, 272
 Gipson, Byron “Wild Child,” 367
Girl Can’t Help It, The (film), 278, 326
Girl Can’t Help It, The, 621
Girl Don’t Care, 192
Girl I Love Is Dead, 714

INDEX

- Girl I Love, She Got Long Curly Hair,
 The, 304, 845
 “GI-Sing-Sation.” See Gant, Cecil, 358
 Give It Back, 905
 Give Me Central 209, 462
 Give Me Flowers While I’m Living, 1067
 Give Me That Old-Time Religion, 89
 Give My Poor Heart Ease (film), 328
 Givens, Bill, 442, 734, 817
 Giving It Up for Your Love, 666
 Giving Up on Love, 171
 Gladiators, The, with Lastie,
 David, 584
 Glaser, Joe, with King, Riley B.
 “B.B.,” 575
Glazed, 847
 Glenn, Lloyd, 157, 367–368, 436,
 490, 560
 Glissandos, Leake, Lafayette, 588
 Glissandos, feature of blues music, accordion, difficulty of playing, 3
 Globe label, 668
 Gloom and Misery All Around, 593
 Gloria, 1020
 Glover, 404
 Glover, Henry, 232, 368, 525, 657,
 826, 1098
 Glover, Lillie Mae Hardison. See
 Rainey, Gertrude “Ma.,” 803
 Glover, Mae, with Byrd, John, 173
 Glover, Tony, 442
 GMWA (Gospel Music Workshop of America), 93
 Go Down, Moses, 112, 339
 Go Down, Old Hannah, 596
 Go Girl, 496, 1011
Go Johnny Go (film), 326
Go Tell It on the Mountain, 331
 Go to Rhino Records, 827
 Go Wash in the Beautiful Stream, 90
 Gobblin, 989
 God Bless the Child, 449
 God Is Standing By, 858
 God Moves on the Water, 998, 1001
 “God of the Blues.” See Lockwood,
 Robert, Jr., 506
 God’s Gonna Separate the Wheat from the Tares, 498
 God’s Property, 93
 “Godfather of Soul.” See Brown,
 James, 158
 “Godfather of the Austin Scene, The.”
 See Clark, W.C., 211
 “Godfather of the Blues.” See Hooker,
 John Lee, 459
 Godfrey, Arthur, on KWEM, West
 Memphis, Arkansas, 575
 Goering, Charles “Barrelhouse Chuck,” Leake, Lafayette, describing talent of, 588
 Goffin, Gerry, 865
Goi’ Back to Dixie, 68
 Goin’ Down Slow, 939
 Goin’ Away Baby, 844–845
Goin’ Down South, 970
 Goin’ Down the Road Feelin’ Bad, 394
 Goin’ Home to Mother, 843
Goin’ to California, 733
 Goin’ to Richmond, 936
 Goin’ to the Country, 658
 Goin’ Away Blues, 535
 Going Away Blues, 566
 Going Down Slow, 295, 368, 732, 948
 Going Home, 278
 Going to Chicago (book), 446
 Going to Chicago, 854
 Going to Cincinnati (book), 445
 Going to Cincinnati, 208
 Going to the Dogs, 589
 Going to the Mardi Gras, 888
 Going to the River, 278, 1089
 Going Up the Country, 179, 842
Going Back to Tampa, 139
 Gold Hugo Award for Outstanding Documentary, Chicago Film Festival, Blues According to Lightnin’ Hopkins, The, 463
 Gold Star, 368–369
 Bender, D.C., 73
 Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” 462
 Jackson, Lil’ Son, 497
 Johnson, Conrad, 529
 Goldband Records, 369, 1092
 Lejeune, Iry, 593
 Goldberg, Arthur Newton, 36
 Goldberg, Barry, 300
 Goldberg, Larry, 793
 “Golden Age of Jazz,” 514
 Golden Bells, with Brown, Nappy, 159
 Golden Crowns Gospel Singers, with Hutto, Joseph Benjamin
 “B.J.,” 484
 Golden Gate Ballroom, New York, with Rockets, 1940, 595
 Golden Gate Quartet, 91, 119, 369
 Golden Slipper, 326
 Golden Slippers, 230
*Golden Voice of Robert Covington,
 The*, 234
 Goldenrods, 362
 Goldentones, 97
 Goldmine magazine, 272, 615
 Goldsmith, Peter, 446
 Goldstein, Kenneth, 369
 Goldwax, 369–370
 Gondoliers, 290
 Gone Dead Train, 430
 Gone Fishing, 261
Gone to Hell and All I Want, 703
 Gone, 985
 Gonzo, 139
Good Candy, 591
 Good Feelin’, 1046
 Good Golly Miss Molly, 621
 Good Lawd’s Children, The, 1067
Good Love, 960
 Good Lovin’, 215
 Good Man, Good Woman, 666
 “Good Mornin’ Blues” (PBS television special), with Horton,
 Big Walter, 464
 Good Morning Blues, 854
 Good Morning Heartache, 8
 Good Morning Judge, 413
 Good Morning Little School
 Girl, 670, 1086
 Good Morning School Girl, 408
 Good Roads Movement, 427, 428
 Good Rockin’ Sam, 646–647
 Good Rockin’ Tonight, 161, 413
 Good Rockin’ at Midnight, 841
Good Rockin’ Charles, 299
 Good Rockin’ Daddy, 501
 Good Rockin’ Tonight, 657, 782, 841
 Good Things, 341
 Good Time Records, 873
Good to Go, 146
Good Woman Go Bad, 183
Good Woman Is Hard to Find, A, 937
 Good, Good Whisky, 691
 Goodbye Baby, 175
 Good-bye Little Girl, 469
 Gooden, Tony, 370
 Goodman, Benny, 41, 864
 with Hammond, John, Jr., 398
 with Holiday, Billie, 449
 with Johnson, Pete, 535
 white band, dance bands competing with, 513
 Goodman, Shirley Pixley, 370, 878–879
 Goodnight Irene, 325, 587
 Goodnight My Love, 73
 Goodpasteur, Ralph, 93
 “Good-time flats,” house-rent parties outside New York, 468
 Goody, Sam, 372
 Goofer Dust, 186
 Gordon, Dexter, Bass, Ralph and, 65
 Gordon, Jay, 370
 Gordon, Jerry, 307
 Gordon, Jimmie, 370–371, 403
 Gordon, Odetta Felios, 733
 Gordon, Robert, 445, 833
 Gordon, Roscoe, 355, 746, 1034
 Gordon, Sax, 371–372
 Gordy, Berry, Jr., 1, 351
 Goree Island, 10
 Gospel, 375
 Aladdin/Score, 16
 Alert, 17
 Bass, Ralph and, 65
 bass singers in, 64
 Bea & Baby and, 67
 Bland, Bobby “Blue,” 98
 blues and, affinity between, 91

- choirs, 92
 early composers of gospel and, 90–91 evangelists, 91–92
 Five Blind Boys of Alabama, 330–331
 Johnson, Blind Willie and, 527–528
 in 1950s, 118
 in postwar era, 1943–1954, 119 scales borrowed from, 108 secular approach to, 93
 Tex, Joe, vocals, 5
 WLAC (Nashville), 18
See also black sacred music;
 sacred music, 90
Gospel at Colonus, The (Broadway musical), 330
 Gospel Keynotes, 92
 Gospel Music Association Hall of Fame, Jackson, Mahalia, 498
 Gospel Music Workshop of America (GMWA), 93 Gospel music, 7, 91, 331, 390, 498, 683, 753, 810, 887, 899, 954, 992 influence of, 355, 908
Gospel Records, 1943–1969 (discography), 24, 271–272
 Gospel Roots, 390
 Gospel Songbirds with Otis Clay, 664 Gospel Songbirds, 92, 213
 Gospel Wings, 390
 Gospelaire, 92, 1051
 Gospels, male vocal styles, 93
 Got a Penny, 36
Got My Mind Back, 580
 Got My Mojo Working, 217, 1058
 Got the Blues, 167, 385, 520
 Got the Kansas City Blues, 231
 Got to Find a Way, 169, 738
 Got to Have Some, 336, 644, 953
 Got You on My Mind, 81, 379, 981
 Gotham 600 gospel series, 372
 Gotham/20th Century, 372
 King/Federal/Queen and, 571
 Gotta Find My Baby, 213
 Govenar, Alan B., 446 with Johnson, Al “Snuff,” 526
 Government Fleet Blues, 466
 Goya, Francisco, 433
Graceland, 842
 Graham Bond Organization, 136
 Graham, Bill, 568, 657, 857
 Graham, Don, 104
 Grainger, Porter, 117, 768, 895 early blues compositions, 438
 Grammy Awards, 76, 209, 561, 573, 666, 805, 1058, 1094
 Alligator, 20
 Allison, Luther, 21
 Berry, Chuck, 76
 Brown, Ruth, 161
 Caron, Danny, 182
 Chenier, Clifton, 197
 Clapton, Eric, 209
 Cohn, Larry, 216
 Copeland, Johnny “Clyde,” 226
 Cotten, Elizabeth, 228
 Cotton, James, 229
 Five Blind Boys of Alabama, 331
 Guralnick, Peter, 393
 Hooker, John Lee, 459–460
 Hutto, Joseph Benjamin “J.B.,” 485
 James, Etta, 502
 Johnson, Johnnie, 531
 Keb’ Mo’, 561
 Taylor, Koko, 961
 Grand Emporium, The, Kansas City, 559
 Grand Ole Opry, 231 with Bailey, DeFord, 40 harmonica on, 619
 Grand Prix du Disque, Hot Club Dawkins, James Henry “Jimmy,” 259
 Grand Terrace Ballroom, 205, 1093
 Grand Theater, Chicago, with Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 508
 Grand, Otis, 251, 392
 Granderson, John Lee, 372
 Grandma Plays the Numbers, 413
 Grandmaster Flash, 127, 834
 Grandpappy Gibson, 366
 Grant Park blues festival, 145
 Grant, Jewell, 871
 Grant, Leola “Coot,” 372
 Grant, Norman, 515
 Grant, William, 401, 604
 Grants, local, state, federal jazz research, 517 Granz, Norman, 313
 with Holiday, Billie, 449
 with Humes, Helen, 475
 Gräsänkling Blues, 944
 Grateful Dead
 Casey Jones, 187
 C.C. Rider, 190
 with Cotton, James, 229
 with Hopkins, Sam “Lightin,” 463
 Grauer, Bill, 313
 Gravenites, Nick, 172
 with Bloomfield, Michael, 101
 Graves, brothers, pre–World War II era, 116
 Graves, Roosevelt, 372–373
 Graveyard Blues, 371
 Graveyard Dream Blues, 236
 Gray, Arvella “Blind,” 373
 Gray, Henry, 373
 Gray, Wardell, Bass, Ralph and, 65
 “Great Awakening” religious revival, 89
 Great Ball of Fire, 96, 839
 Great Depression era, 114–115
 Guthrie, Woodrow Wilson “Woody” and, 394
 Hurt, John Smith “Mississippi John” in, 482
 Great Depression, 373–374
 Great Flood of ’93, The, 1000
Great Guitars, 712, 1043
 Great Migration, 48, 374–375
 to Chicago, 200, 201, 203
 Depression years, 117 disseminating the blues, 615
 drummers and, 285 first wave, 375
 highways, development of, 427, 428
 New Orleans musicians to Chicago, 511
 postwar era, 119
 results in high rents in northern cities, 468
Great Tomato Blues Package, 994
 Greater Cincinnati Blues Society, 208
 Greater Salem Baptist Church, Chicago, with Jackson, Mahalia, 498 Greatest Hits, 1033
 Green Brothers, 375
Green Is Blues, 376
 Green Onions, 930
 Green, Al B., 860
 Green, Bud, 39
 Green, Cal, 376
 Green, Charlie, 376–377
 Green, Clarence “Candy,” 377
 with Houston Guitar Slim, 469
 Green, Clarence, 377
 Green, Garland, 365
 Green, Grant, 377–378
 Green, Jerome, with Diddley, Bo, 267
 Green, Jesse, 378
 Green, L.C., 59, 699
 Green, Lil, 378
 Green, Normal G. “Guitar Slim,” 378
 Green, Peter, 378–379
 Green, Wade Hampton, with Bell, Brenda, 69
 Green’s Blues, 376
 Greenberg, Alvin, 444
 Greenberg, Florence, 865
 Greene, Rudolph Spencer “Rudy,” 379
 Greene, Stephen, 446
 Greenlee, Bob, 576
Greens from the Garden, 63
 Greensmith, Bill, 445
 Greenville Levee Blues, 996
 Greenwich Village, social hierarchies, house-rent parties, 468
 Greenwood Blues Heritage Museum and Gallery, Greenwood, Mississippi, 605 Greer, “Big” John Marshall, 379
 Grey Ghost, 379–380
 Grey Goose, Kansas City, 535
 Greyhound Blues, 479
 Grief Will Kill You, 281

INDEX

- Griffin, “Big” Mike, 380
 Griffin, Bessie, 380
 Griffin, Johnny, 380
 Griffin, Raymond L. “R.L.,” 380–381
 Griffin, Tommy, with Johnson, Earnest
 “44 Flunkiey,” 529
 Griffith, Nanci, 233
 Griffith, Shirley, 417 with Adams, John Tyler “J.T.,” 8
 Grimes, Lloyd “Tiny,” 381–382
 Grinder Man Blues, 688
 Griot, Hooker, John Lee and, 461
 Griots, 10
 in manner of, Lipscomb, Mance, 614
Gris-Gris, 282
 Griswold Blues Band, 382
 Griswold, Art and Roman, 382
 Griswold, Art, 382
 Griswold, Roman, 382
 Groom, Bob, 441, 538
 I Believe I’ll Make a Change (Dust
 My Broom), 487
 Groove Me, 910, 912
 Groove Record Shop, Chicago, 589
Groove Time, 211
 Groovy Blues, 694
 Groovy Situation, 192
 Gross, Helen, 14
 Grossman, Albert, with Cotton,
 James, 229
 Grossman, Stefan, 382 instructional publications, 442
 with Johnson, Lonnie, 532
 1960s folk revival, 389
 Groundhogs, The, 673
 GRT (General Recorded Tape),
 123, 199
Gud Nuz Blues, 196
 Guesnon, George “Curley”
 “Creole,” 383
 Guess I Showed Her, 237
 Guess Who, 481
 Guinea Coast, 10
 Guitar, 383–390
 acoustic, 1960s, 388
 African antecedents, 384
 Alabama, musicians from, 15
 amplification, 47
 bass. See bass, 61
 “Big B.,” 268
 in black string bands, replacing banjo, 45
 Blind Blake, technique on, 100 blues instrument, suitability as, 45 bottleneck style of playing, 91 development/dissemination through 1890, 384–385 earliest musician, W.C. Handy’s description of, 45
 in early blues era, 112
 in early recorded blues ensembles, 45
 electric, 383–384, 386–387
 Fender Telecaster, 164, 220 finger-style playing, 232 Guitar Blues, 385
 Guitar Boogie, 327, 840
 Guitar Crusher, 390–391
 “Guitar Eddy.” See Clearwater,
 Eddy, 214
 Guitar Gable, syncretized blues with Latin rhythm, 436
 Guitar Gabriel, 391
 with Hawkins, Ernie, 414
 Guitar Grady, with Johnson, Joe, 531
 Guitar Jr., 391–392
 Guitar Kelley, 392
 Guitar Nubbitt, 392
 Guitar Pete’s Blues, 345 Guitar Player magazine, Hole, Dave
 and, 448
 Guitar players, 625, 727, 771, 775
 Guitar playing, 704, 748, 771,
 773–774, 775
 Guitar Rag, 385
 Guitar Rhumbo, 436
 Guitar Shorty, 392, 551
 with Hollimon, Clarence, 450
 Guitar Slim band with Lambert, Lloyd, 582 with Lang, Eddie, 583
 Guitar Slim Jr., 393
 Guitar Slim, 36, 247, 282–283, 667–668 with Davis, James “Thunderbird,” 253
 postwar era, 120
 Guitar technique of Hurt, John Smith
 “Mississippi John,” 482
 Guitarist of the Year, W.C. Handy Awards, Coleman, Deborah, nomination, 217
 Guitars
 Gibson, 644
 Hendrix, Jimi, 421–422
 National Tricone, 645
 pedal steel, 127
 Guitars, homemade. See homemade
 guitars, 304
 Gulf Coast Blues, 231, 895
 Gulf Coast, Hollimon, Clarence
 and, 450
 Gulfcoast Blues, 994
 Gunter, Arthur Neal, 393
 Guralnick, Peter, 393–394, 444–445
 Johnson, Robert, researching, 538
 Gus Cannon’s Jug Stompers, 754
 Gutbucket style, Butler, George “Wild Child,” 170
 Guthrie, Woodrow Wilson
 “Woody,” 394
 Guy, George “Buddy,” 395–396
 AFBF European tours, 23
 with Allen, Pete, 19
 with Clearwater, Eddy, 214
 film of, 328
 guitar, 1950s, 387
 guitar, 1960s, 387–388
 with Hollywood Fats, 451
 “Hoochie Coochie Man,” 454
 Japanese blues showcases, 506
 with Lang, Jonny, 583
 with Odie Payne, Jr., 750
 with Wells, Junior, 104, 122
 “West Side Sound” and, 203, 275
 Guy, Phil, 396
- ## H
- 8 Hands on 88 Keys*, 266, 418
 80 Highway, 137
 Habanera rhythm, 436
 Hacker, Ron, 857
 “Hacksaw,” Richard with Lewis, Homer, 3
 Haddix, Travis, 397
 Hager, Fred, 654
 Haig, Al, bebop pioneer, 513
 Hairston, “Brother” Will, 397
 Haitian Vodun, 455
 Haley, Bill, 121 lists in blues lyrics, 105
 Hall, Rene (Joseph), 497
 Hall, Rick, 312 with Calloway, Cab, 177
 Hall, Shirley, with Bass, Ralph, 65
 Hall, Vera, 398
 Hall of Fame, Blues Foundation
 Guy, George “Buddy,” 395
 Hooker, John Lee, 460
 Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” 463
 Hall of Fame, Gospel Music Association, Jackson,
 Mahalia, 498
 Hall of Fame, New Orleans, K-Doe,
 Ernie, 561
 Hall Negro Quartet, levee blues, 596
Hall of Shame, 176
Hallelujah (film), 884
 Hallelujah I Love Her So, 121, 889
 Ham Gravy, 1050
 Ham Hound and Gravy, 465
 Ham Hound Crave, 465
 Hambone, 211, 845
 Hamilton, George. See Davenport,
 Cow–Cow, 250
 Hamilton, Larry, 398
 Hammond B3 organ, Levy, Ron, 597
 Hammond, Clay, 398
 Hammond, John Henry, Jr., 398–399
 with Broomzy, Big Bill, 152
 with Bloomfield, Michael, 102
 with Caron, Danny, 183 with Christian, Charlie, 206
 “Hoochie Coochie Man,” 454
 with Holiday, Billie, 449
 with House, Eddie “Son,” 466

- with Johnson, Pete, 535
with Johnson, Robert, 536–538
with Lewis, Meade “Lux,” 512, 600
1960s folk revival, 389
- Hammond, John Paul, 399–400
- Hammond, John, 314, 399, 474, 512, 671, 770, 870
with Cox, Ida, 235
- Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute of Virginia, 89
- Hampton, Lionel, 400 with Adams, Alberta, 7
with Carter, Betty, 185
with Chamblee, Edward Leon “Eddie,” 191 dance band, competing with white bands, 513 with Griffin, Johnny, 380
- Hampton, Pete, harmonica, 405
- Hanapepe Dream*, 952, 994
- Hancock, Herbie, 353, 517, 907
- Hancock, Hunter, 656
- Hand Clappin’, 788
- “Hand jive,” Burns, J.C. and, 169
- Hand Me Down My Moonshine*, 21
- Handful of Aces*, 1016
- Handful of Riffs, A, 533
- Handley, Lillie with Howlin’ Wolf, 472–473
- Hands Off, 141
- Handy Brothers Music Company, 115
- Handy Foundation, 796
- Handy, Elizabeth Price, 402
- Handy, William Christoper “W.C.,” 400–402. See also W.C. Handy Awards, Memphis Blues Foundation blues history, 438 campaign tune for Memphis mayor, 478 earliest publication of blues sheet music, 114 early blues compositions of, 115
harmonica, 405
harmonica, comments on, 404
“Hesitation Blues,” 423–424 history of blues band, 45
with Lay, Sam, 585
with Lewis, Furry, 598
pre-World War II-era slide guitar, describing, 385 publications of, habanera rhythm and, 436
- Hang On*, 20
- Hang Up My Rock ‘n’ Roll Shoes, 1089
- Hangin’ On, 878
- Hangman Blues, 641
- Hangover Boogie, 601
- Hankerson, Alvin. See Guitar Nubbitt, 392
- “Happy Go Lucky” show, with Blind Blake, 100
- Happy Organ, The, 925
- Happy to Be Just Like I Am*, 952
- Hard Again*, 229, 1058, 1094
- Hard bop, Miles, Davis and, 515
- Hard Hearted Woman, 902
- Hard liquor, in juke joints, patrons bringing to, 552
- Hard Lovin’ 1990s, 475
- Hard Luck Blues, 161
- Hard Luck Child, 505
- Hard Notch Boogie Beat, 81
- Hard Pill to Swallow, A, 137
- Hard River to Cross*, 570
- Hard Road*, A, 661
- Hard Scuffin’ Blues, 281
- Hard Time Blues, 564, 879
- Hard Time Killin’ Floor Blues, 565
- Hard Times in New York Town, 1005
- Hard Times, 155, 545, 593, 1060
- Hard Travelin’, 394
- Hard Way*, 302
- Hard Way, The, 212
- “Hardest Working Man in Show Business.” See Brown, James, 159
- Hardy, Marion, 144
- Hare, Auburn “Pat,” 402–403
with Howlin’ Wolf, 472
- Harelik, Mark, 561
- Harlan Leonard’s Rockets, 595
- Harlem Blues with Durham, Eddie, 291
- Harlem Bound, 688
- Harlem Cafe, Chicago with Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 508
- Harlem Hamfats, 403
with Howard, Rosetta, 471
- “Harlem Hit Parade” (film short), 326
- Harlem Inn (club), 265
- Harlem Nocturne, 739
- Harlem Play-Girls with Davis, Tiny, 258
- Harlem Renaissance writers, 438
- Harlem Renaissance, 753
- Harlem stride style, of piano, 774
- Harlem, 784
as jazz capital, Armstrong, Louis big band, 512 nightclubs in, bebop and, 513–514 nightclubs in, Jones, Albenie and, 542 social hierarchies, house-rent parties, 468
- Harley, Joe, 36, 665
- Harman, James, 16, 403
- Harmograph, 403–404
- Harmonic progression, chords in blues melodies, 109 compositions, blues, 115
twelve-measure form, 109
- Harmonica, 404–408
“accordion” style, 751
Alabama and, 15
amplified, 612
bending technique, 405 in black string bands, replacing fiddle, 45 cross position, playing blues in, 3 diatonic scale, single key, 2
history of, 404
Johnson, Robert, first instrument, 536
in jug bands, 47
overbending technique, 405–406
playing, 405–406 playing categories, 407–408 playing positions, 406–407 scales, 864
types of, 404–405
See also single-key harmonica, 2
- Harmonica Fats, 409
- Harmonica players, 407–408, 472, 623–624, 864, 881
Gary Primich, 785
Puch, Joe Bennie “Forrest City Joe,” 788
- Harmonica Shah, 103
- Harmonica Stomp, 348
- “Harmonica Wizard.” See Bailey, DeFord, 40
- Harmonies, modal scales slowing down, 516
- Harmonizing Four, 119, 372
with Crudup, Arthur William “Big Boy,” 241
- Harmony Kings, with King, Albert, 567
- Harmony, in blues melodies, 109
- Harney, Ben, The Ragtime Instructor, 767
- Harney, Mylar, 409
- Harney, Mylon with Lewis, Homer, 3
- Harney, Richard “Hacksaw,” 409
- Harp & Soul*, 586
- Harp & Soul, 586
- Harp Attack*, 145, 1065
- Harpburn*, 451
- Harper, Joe, 410
- Harper, Lucius C., 87
- Harpo, Lovelle, 410
- Harpo, Slim with Lightnin’ Slim, 121, 613 perfecting craft in Baton Rouge clubs, 631
with Lazy Lester, 586
with Rolling Stones, 410
- Harrington, Carey Bell. See Bell, Carey, 70
- Harrington, Eddy, 214, 241, 410
- Harrington/Clearwater family, 410
- Harris, Blind Jesse, Library of Congress recording of, 3
- Harris, Corey, 410–411
Alligator, 20
- Harris, Don “Sugarcane,” 411
- Harris, Earl, 115, 748
- Harris, Hi Tide, 411–412

INDEX

- Harris, Homer, 412
Harris, Kent L. "Boogaloo," 412
Harris, Peppermint, 412
Harris, Pete, 39, 869
Harris, Ray, 424
Harris, Rebert H., 91
Harris, Sam, 246, 1074
Harris, Shakey Jake, 211, 873
Harris, Sheldon, 444 on Harris, Hi Tide, 411
Harris, Thurston, 412–413
 Aladdin/Score, 16
Harris, Tony, 413
Harris, William "Big Foot," 413
Harris, Willie B., with Johnson,
 Blind Willie, 527–528
Harris, Wynonie, 413 with Austin, Jesse "Wild Bil," 37
 humor in music of, 476
 Philo Records, 16
Harrison, Daphne Duval, 445
Harrison, Pattie Boyd, 208
Harrison, Vernon. See Boogie Woogie
 Red, 138
Harrison, Wilbert, 414
Harry Godwin Collection,
 Memphis, 606
Hart, Alvin "Youngblood," 414
Hart, Hattie, 414
Hart, Mary L., 446
Harvard University, 754
Harvey, Ted, 414
Harville, Bernie C., Jr., 44
Hasting Street Grease, The, 103
Hastings Street Bounce, 1083
Hastings Street, 100, 120
Hastings Street, Detroit, 265
Hatch, Provine, Jr. "Little Hatch," 414
Hateful Blues, 895
Hattie Green, 773
Haunted House, 349, 363
Hausa ethnic group, 10
Have Another Drink and Talk to me, 412
Have Blues . . . Must Rock, 419
Have I Seen Her, 6
Have Love, Will Travel, 76, 77
Have You Ever Loved a Woman, 572
Have You Gone Crazy, 570
Haven't Seen No Whiskey, 793
Havens, Richie, 124, 672, 762
Hawaiian Boogie, 500
Hawaiian Gardens, Kansas City with
 Johnson, Pete, 535
"Hawaiian Guitar Wizard, The." See
 Weldon, William "Casey Bill," 489
Hawk Squat!, 484–485
Hawkins, Buddy Boy, 416
Hawkins, Coleman, 513, 861
 big band era, 513
 with Holiday, Billie, 449
 JATP performances, 515
Hawkins, Dorothy, with James,
 Etta, 501
Hawkins, Edwin, 93
Hawkins, Ernie, 414–415
Hawkins, Erskin, 415 with Bascomb, Paul, 60
Hawkins, Screamin' Jay, 415–416
 with Bell, Brenda, 70
Hawkins, Ted, 416
Hawks, with Hutto, Joseph
 Benjamin "J.B.," 484
Hawthorn, Susie, 172
Hay, George D. See Bailey, DeFord, 40
Hayes, Clifford, 416
Hayes, Henry, 416–417
Hayes, Isaac, 124, 353, 683, 780, 782
Hayes, Louis, 871, 1068
 with Hooker, John Lee, 460
Hayes, Roland. See Boy Blue, 141
Haynes, Warren, 876
Haywood, Leon, 377, 669
Hazel, Eddie, 124
Hazell, Patrick, 417
He Arose from the Dead, 519, 869
He Will Break Your Heart, 171
He's Got the Whole World in His Hands, 965
He's Tall, Dark and Handsome, 559
Head Rag Hop, 721, 769
Head, Will, 323, 419
Headed and Gutted, 499
Headhunters, 353
 fusion and, 517
Healer, The, 460, 658, 845
Healey, Jeff, 417
Hear Dem Bells, 230
Hear My Train a Comin', 421
Hearse-Man Blues, 1067
Heart of the Blues, 1106
Heartbeat label, 872
Heartbreak Hotel, 267
Heartbreak, 211
Heartfixers, 302
Heartsman, Johnny, 417
Heat Waves, 290
Heaven on My Mind, 330
Heavenly Gospel Singers, 91,
 273, 280
Heavenly Lights, with Brown,
 Nappy, 159
Heavy Snow, 1000
Heavy Timbre, 418
Heckstall-Smith, Dick, 132–133
Hee Haw television program, 232
Hegamin, Bill, 417
Hegamin, Lucille, 417–418
Heinemann, Otto, 734
Helen's Advice, 475
Helfer, Erwin, 418
Hell Divers, 258
Hell Hound on My Trail, 537–538
Hell of a Spell, 1024
Hell or High Water, 302
Hellhound on My Trail, 455, 505
Hello San Francisco, 363
Hello World, 703
Helm, Levon, with Hammond,
 John Paul, 399
Help Me, 275
Hemphill, Jessie Mae, 418–419
 with Hill, Rosa Lee, 431
Hemphill, Julius Arthour, 419
Hemphill, Sid, 419
Henderson, Billy, with Jackson,
 Billy, 494
Henderson, Bugs, 419
Henderson, Duke "Big," 419–420
Henderson, Fletcher, 401, 861, 895 with Armstrong, Louis, 512
 Georgia roots, 364 with Grant, Leola "Coot," 372 with Hite, Mattie, 447
 with Holiday, Billie, 449
 with Hunter, Alberta, 480
 with Jones, Maggie, 547
Henderson, Horace, 75, 144, 169, 898
Henderson, Katherine, 420
Henderson, Mike (I), 420
Henderson, Mike (II), 420
Henderson, Mike, 857
Henderson, Ray, 39
Henderson, Rosa, 420
Henderson, Rose, 885
Henderson, Willie, 862
 with Acklin, Barbara, 7
Hendricks, Jon, 861
Hendrix, Jimi, 420–422
 at Blind Pig Cafe, 101
 "Catfish Blues" and, 189 early professional years, 421
 funk and, 124, 353
 with Hammond, John Paul, 399
 "Hoochie Coochie Man," 454
 influences on, 395, 421, 532
 influential music of, 420 instruments and sound, 421–422
 with James, Etta, 501
 "Mannish Boy," 489
 recordings of, 421
 use of scales, 865
Hendrix: In the West, 422
Henry Johnson's Boys, with Johnson,
 James "Steady Roll," 530
Henry, C.D., 646
Henry, Clarence "Frogman," 422
Henry, John, 438
Henry, Macy Lela, 646
Henry, Richard "Big Boy," 422
Henry, Simeon, 378
Henry's Got Flat Feet (Can't Dance
 No More), 1098
Hensley, Larry, 660
Hensley, William P. "Washboard
 Willie," 422–423

- Herald/Ember, 423
 Allen, Lee, 19
 Greene, Rudolph Spencer
 “Rudy,” 379
 Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin,” 463
Here and Now, 772
Here I Am, 1059
 Here I Am, 376
 Here I Stand, 332
Here We Go Again, 98
Here’s the Man!, 98
 Here’s a Little Girl, 58
 Heritage and Jazz Festival, with Adams, Johnny, 8
 Heritage, 423
 Hopkins, Joel, 461
 reissues, 442
 Hersal Blues, 768
 Herwin (pre-1943), 423
 Herwin, 125, 423
 Hesitating Blues, 401, 416,
 423–424, 708
 Hesitation Blues, 338, 424
 Hess, Chicago Bob, 424
 Hey Baby, 666
 Hey Bartender, 961
 Hey Bo Diddley, 32
Hey Boss Man!, 184, 347
 Hey Day Club, Kansas City, 559
 Hey Girl, Hey Boy, 212
 Hey Joe, 420
 Hey Little Girl, 211
 Hey, Bartender, 273
 Hey, Bo Diddley, 1081
 Hey, Fat Girl, 287
 Heywood, Eddie with Alexander
 Algernon “Texas,” 17
 Hezekiah, 239
 Hi Heel Sneakers, 1020
 Hi Records, 186, 370, 375, 424, 699,
 819, 874, 890, 908, 909, 1017, 1101
 Green, Al, 375, 424, 700, 890, 909
 Johnson, Syl, 700, 874, 909, 1017
 Hi Yo Silver, 169
 Hi, 998
 Hicks, Charley (Laughing Charley Lincoln), 775
 Hicks, Charlie, 425
 Hicks, Edna, 425
 Hicks, Robert (Barbecue Bob), 775
 Hicks, Robert and Charlie with Baker,
 Willie, 42
 “Hide Away,” 425–426
 Hidden Charms, 473, 585, 939
 Hide Away, 123, 425–426, 572, 863, 959
 Hide Me in Thy Bosom, 676
 Hideaway (club), with Domino,
 Fats, 277–278
 Hideaway, 128
 Hi-De-Ho Boys with Bates, Lefty, 66
 Higgins, Charles William “Chuck,” 426
 Higgins, Chuck, 793, 810, 1059
 Higgins, Monk, 426
 Higgs, George, 426
High & Lonesome, 881
 High Blood Pressure, 899
High Heeled Blues, 101
 High Heeled Sneakers, 713
 High Sheriff Blues, 749
 High Sheriff from Hell, The, 1067
 High Water (for Charley Patton), 750
 High Water Blues, 996
 High Water Everywhere, 749, 996
 High Water Everywhere, Part One and Two, 997
 High Water Flood Blues, 1000
 High Water Rising, 1000
High Water, 311
 High Water, 426–427
 Burnside, R.L., 168
 Hemphill, Jessie Mae, 418
 Higher and Higher, 890
Higher Ground, 331
 HighTone Records, 427, 820, 970
 Advent Records, 9
 HighTone, 427
 Hawkins, Ted, 416
 Highway Blues, 660
 Highway 49, 429
 Highway 51 Blues, 429
Highway 61, 503
 Highway 61 Blues, 429, 948
Highway 61 Revisited, 102, 586
 Highway QCs
 with Christian, Johnny “Little,” 207
 with Cooke, Sam, 959
 Highways, 463–464
 history of, 427–428 influence on blues, 429 interstate, emergence of, 428 social change, 428 traffic congestion on, 428
 Higurashi, Yasufumi, 788
 Hi-Heel Sneakers, 78, 1013–1014
Hill Country Revue: Live at Bonmaroo, 727
 Hill, Andrew, re-emergence of, 518
 Hill, Bertha “Chippie,” 285, 430, 706, 885, 1079
 Hill, Big Bill, 664
 with James, Elmore, 501
 Hill, Jessie, 104, 370, 584, 910, 1006
 Hill, Joseph “Blind Joe,” 430
 Hill, King Solomon, 221, 430
 Hill, Lauryn, 353
 Hill, Michael, 431
 Hill, Raymond, 431
 Hill, Rosa Lee, 431
 Hill, Teddy, big band, boogie-woogie adapted for, 513
 Hill, Z.Z., 36, 125, 210, 253, 281,
 380, 431
 “Down Home Blues,” 125, 650, 890
 with Jackson, George Henry, 496
 with Jackson, Vasti, 498
 with Jones, Tutu, 547
 Hillery, Mabel, 432
 Hindenberg Disaster, The, 1000
 Hines Farm, Toledo, 75, 382
 Hines, Earl “Fatha,” 155, 512, 513
 bebop pioneer, 513
 big band, boogie-woogie adapted
 for, 513
 Hines, J. Earl, 93
 with James, Etta, 501
 Hinton, Algia Mae, 432, 776, 1066
 Hinton, Edward Craig “Eddie,” 432
 Hinton, Joe, 146
 “Hip,” concept of, early bebop era, 513
 Hip-hop, jazz musicians experiments
 in, 517
 Hipsters, 267
His California Album, 98
His Eye Is on the Sparrow (book), 439
 Hispanic influences on the blues,
 432–438
 Texas, 432–436, 437
 Hispaniola blues antecedents through
 1830 and, 111
 Historiography, 45, 438–446, 753, 754
 blues antecedents, 1830–1865, 112–113
 blues antecedents, 1865–1890, 113–114
 blues antecedents through 1830, 111–112
 blues rediscovery movement, folk music revival, 122 books about, 753, 754
 changes, 1970–1990, 124–126 of country music. See country music
 early blues, 45
 early blues, 1890–1920, 114–115 early history, 438
 fife and drums, 322
 film as adjunct to, 329
 funk, 351–353
 Harlem Hamfats, 403
 harmonica, 404
 highways, development of, 427–428
 homophonic approach, adoption
 of, 118–119
 influences of highways on blues, 427 modern criticism, 441–442
 1970s, 1980s, 443
 from 1984 to 2002, 444–446
 performers, past and present, 442–443
 postwar era, 1943–1954, 119–121
 postwar era, 1954–1970, 121–124
 pre-World War II era, 116–117
 since 1990, 126–128
 Historiography, of blues, 753–754
History of Rhythm & Blues (Galen), 754
 History of the Blues, The (book), 444
 History, of blues music, 105, 107, 111

INDEX

- Hit It 'n' Quit It*, 856
 Hit it 'n' Quit, 856
 Hit the Road Jack, 1, 663
 Hitchcock, Conrad V. (C.V.), 166, 167
 Hite, Bob, 179, 219, 460, 889
 with Collins, Albert, 219
 with Hooker, John Lee, 460
 Hite, Les, 1030, 1045
 Hite, Mattie, 447
 Hitler Blues, 379
 Hitsville, USA, 710
Hitti' Heavy, 211
 Hittin' on Me, 528
 Hobo Blues, 964
 Hobo Jungle Blues, 305
 Hodges, Johnny, 381, 861, 868, 942
 Hoeke, Rob, 447
 Hogan, Carl, guitar, 1940s, 387
 Hogan, Silas, 121, 280, 360, 392, 447, 693, 901, 1016
 Hogg, John, 447
 Hogg, Smokey, 5, 17, 150, 167, 222,
 260, 447, 490, 497, 646, 689, 700,
 810, 918, 974
 Hogman, 999
 Hokum blues, 47
 Broonzy, Big Bill and, 152 early gospel and, 91
 guitar, 1920s, 385
 humorous lyrics, double entendres, 476
 Lewis, Meade "Lux" and, 600 more emphatically comic version of blues, 476
 rhythmic pattern in melodies of, 107
 Hokum Boys, 280, 385, 495, 752
 Hokum, 47
 Blind Blake and, 100
 Hold On I'm Comin, 706
 Hold On! I'm Coming, 780–781
Hold On, 350
 Hold That Train Conductor, 213
 Hold What You've Got, 266
 Holder, Ace, 448
 Hole, Dave, 448
 Holeman, John Dee, 448
 Holford, Bill, 646
 Holiday, Billie, 448–450
 with Ailey, Alvin, 246
 with Bailey, Mildred, 40
 with Grimes, Lloyd "Tiny," 381
 with Hammond, John Henry, 398
 JATP performances, 515
 Holland, Utrecht Festival, 662
 Hollerin' and Screamin', 593
 Hollimon, Clarence, 450
 Hollins, Tony, 450
 Holloway, Red, 451
 Hollywood Fats Band, 451
 Hollywood Fats, 451
 Hollywood Flames with Bobby Day, 871
 Hollywood Records, 810
 Holmes Brothers, 451–452
 Holmes, Joe. See Hill, King
 Solomon, 430
 Holmes, Sherman, 451
 Holmes, Wendell, 451
 Holmes, Winston with Kimbrough,
 Lottie, 566
 Holmes, Wright, 452
 Holmstrom, Rick, 452
 Holt, Morris. See Magic Slim, 647
 Holt, Nick, 452
 Holts, Roosevelt, 452
 Holy Night, 985
 Holzman, Jac, 301
Home at Last, 937
 Home Cooking label, 870
 Home Cooking, 453
 Home Girl, 891, 1072
 Home of the Blues, 681
 Home Sweet Home, 135
 Homeless Blues, 996
 Homemade guitars
 Holt, Nick, 488
 Hopkins, Sam "Lightnin'," 462
 Johnson, Blind Willie, 527
 Jones, Floyd and, 545
 King, Albert, 567
 Lewis, Furry and, 598
Homemade, 1073
 "Homeric Simile in Oral Tradition,
 The," 305
 Homesick and Lonesome Blues, 348
 Homesick Blues, 273
 Homesick James, 453
 with James, Elmore, 501
 Homesick, 453
 Homework, 853
 Homophony
 melodic/harmonic aspects of
 blues, 110
 transition from polyphonic approach, 118
 Homo-rhythmic, blues melodies, 110
 Honest I Do, 406
 Honesty, Eddie, 361
 Honey Bee Blues, 295
 Honey Bee, 295, 340
 Honey Dripper Blues, 948
 Honey Dripper, The, 85, 149, 498,
 529, 611, 737
 Honey Jump, The, 212
 Honey, What You Gonna Do, 231
Honeyboy (documentary), 299
 Honeydrinker, 407
 Honeydrippers, 611
 with Jackson, Little Willie, 498
 Honeymoon Blues, 678
 Honkers and Shouters (book), 443
Honky Tonk Part 2, 866
 Honky Tonk Train Blues, 117, 531, 599–601, 745, 769, 770
 Honky Tonk Train, 247
 Honky tonk, emergence of, 232
 Honky Tonk, 277, 840
 Honky Tonky, 961
 Honorary doctorates, King,
 Riley B. "B.B.," 573
 Hoochie Coochie Man, 72, 275, 421,
 453, 454, 488, 888, 916, 1058
 "Hoochie Coochie Man," 453–4554
 Hoochie Momma, 869
 Hoochie-Coochie Man, 1024
 Hood, Willie. See Rhythm Willie,
 454, 829
 Hoodoo Blues, 456
 Hoodoo doctors, 456
Hoodoo Man Blues, 123, 388, 1065
 Hoodoo Man, 1065
 Hoodoo, 454–458
 blues as anthem of, 454 confusion about, 454
 in history of the blues, 111 proactive standpoint, 455 transformation, 455
Hoodoo–Conjuration–Witchcraft– Rootwork (book), 456
 "Hook, The." See Hooker,
 John Lee, 459
 Hooker, Earl, 30, 70, 82, 85, 104
 with Gayles, Billy, 362
 with Kansas City Red, 559
 with Pinetop Perkins, 30, 367
 Hooker, John Lee, 459–460
 Ace (UK) CDs, 5
 AFBF European tours, 23
 BluesWay, 1
 with Canned Heat, 179
 with Caron, Danny, 182–183
 Detroit, 265
 different audience, 460
 early years, 495–496
 as elder statesman of the blues, 461
 film of, 327
 and the Groundhogs, 673
 with Guy, George "Buddy," 396
 with Harris, Don "Sugarcane," 411
 with Hollywood Fats, 451
 with Holmes Brothers, 451
 with Howlin' Wolf, 122
 influential music of, 266
 "Key to the Highway," 564
 with Lay, Sam, 586
 with Lee, John, 15
 1960s folk revival, 387–388 preface by, 446 recording labels, 871 resurgence, 460
 as soloist/bandleader, 460
 Hootie Blues, 162
 Hoover, Herbert, Great Depression, blamed for, 373
 Hopkins, Joel, 461
 Hopkins, Linda, 462

- Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin,” 462
 Ace (UK) CDs, 5
 AFBF European tours, 23
 Aladdin/Score, 16
 with Bizzor, Billy, 83
 with Butler, George “Wild Child,” 170 with Carolina Slim, 182
 with Chenier, Clifton, 197 with Coleman, Gary “B.B.,” 218
 with Collins, Albert, 220
 film of, 328
 with Harris, Peppermint, 412
 with Hopkins, Joel, 461
 influential music of, 463
 Japanese blues showcases, 506
 with Jefferson, Blind Lemon, 519
 life of, 462–463
 Mexican guitarists, admiration for, 433
 music of, 433
 Hopkins’ Sky Hop, 463
 Hopper, Edward, 725
 Hornbuckle, Linda, 464
 Horne, Lena, with Hammond, John, Henry, 398
 Horton, “Shakey.” See Horton, Big Walter, 464
 Horton, Big Walter, 464
 Chicago blues, 374
 Foster, Little Willie, 342
 harmonica, 405
 influences on, 464
 influential music of, 70, 145
 with Jones, Floyd, 545
 Hoskins, Tom with Hurt, John Smith “Mississippi John,” 482
Hot Buttered Soul, 909
 Hot Club, France, 259
 Hot Discography, 271
 Hot Dogs, 519
 Hot Fingers, 533
 Hot Five, 118
 with Alix, May, 18
 Hot Flames, 591
 Hot Little Mama, 847
 Hot Mallets, 400
 Hot Mattress Stomp, 297
Hot Night Tonight, 642
Hot Nocturne (film), 132
 Hot Pants, 124
Hot Rats, 319, 411
 Hot Seven, 32, 118
Hot Shot, 1082
 “Hot,” 509
 Hound Dog, 15, 85, 121, 147, 148, 288, 593, 601, 782, 839, 887, 990
 House Lady Blues, 845, 1080
 House of Blues Records, 467
 House of Blues restaurant chain, 467
 House of Blues, 655–656
 House of Blues, Myrtle Beach, 424
 House of God subdenomination, gospel evolution and, 93
House of Hearts, 101
 House of the Rising Son, The, 1020
 House of the Rising Sun, 26, 564, 733 House Rent Blues, 468
 House Rent Lizzie, 468
 House Rent Rag, 468
 House Rent Scuffle, 468
 House Rent Stomp, 468
 House Rent Struggle, 468
 House, Eddie “Son,” 465
 AFBF European tours, 23
 with Beard, Joe, 69 blues and religion, struggles with, 91
 Brown, Willie Lee and, 162 electric guitar, development of, 386
 film of, 327
 folk music revival, 122, 388
 Grafton and after, 465–466
 with Guy, George “Buddy,” 396
 with Howlin’ Wolf, 472
 humor in music of, 478
 humorous lyrics of, 476
 influential music of, 91
 with Johnson, Louise, 533
 with Johnson, Robert, 536
 levee blues, 596
 Library of Congress recordings, 466
 1960s, 388
 paraphrasing in blues lyrics, 106 with Perls, Nick, 125
 pre–World War II era, 117
 recordings, 122
 rediscovery, 466–467
 House-rent parties, 467–468
 in Chicago, boogie-woogie origins, 512 illegal activities, 468
 Lewis, Meade “Lux” and, 599 promotion of, 468
 Houserockers
 with Harvey, Ted, 414
 with Hutto, Joseph Benjamin “B.J.,” 484 with Johnson, Luther “Houserocker,” 534
 Houserocking Melotones, 390
 Houston blues scene, Copeland, Johnny “Clyde” and, 226
 Houston Guitar Slim, 469
 Houston Jump, 273
 Houston, Edward Wilson “Bee,” 469
 Houston, Joe (Joseph Abraham), 469
 Houston, Joe, 861
 Houston, Texas, 8, 762, 768, 783
 Hovington, Franklin “Frank,” 469–470
How Blue Can You Get, 462
 How Come? (musical revue, Apollo Theater), with Hunter, Alberta, 480
 How Long Blues, 110, 505, 1104
 How Long ‘Buck,’ 470, 505
 How Long Daddy How Long, 117, 470
 How Long How Long (“Sitting on Top of the World”), 470 cover versions, 470
 “Kitchen variant,” 470
 How Long How Long Blues, 97, 116, 118, 183, 470, 885, 1079
 How Long How Long, 337, 470
 How Many More Times, 590
 How Many More Years, 199, 590
 How Strong Is a Woman, 751
How to Play and Sing the Blues Like The Phonograph and Stage Artists (book), 438
How to Play Blues Guitar, 382
 Howard Theater, “Chitlin circuit” and, 206
 Howard, Camille, 470–471
 Howard, Rosetta, 471
 Howard-Tilton Memorial Library Special Collections Division, Tulane University, New Orleans, 607–608
 Howell, Joshua Barnes “Peg Leg,” 471
 postwar era, 117
 Howlin’ Mercy, 179
Howlin’ Wolf Sessions, The, 470
 Howlin’ Wolf, 471–472
 AFBF European tours, 23
 and Earl Phillips, 765 and Eddie Shaw, 875
 blues revival, 1950s, 121
 Chess, royalties and, 199
 Chicago blues, 374
 guitar, 1950s, 387
 in Chicago, 202
 influential music of, 77
 “Key to the Highway,” 564
 photographs of, 332
 publications about, 393
 Rolling Stones and, 328
 “Sitting on Top of the World,” 470
 telescoping in blues lyrics, 106
 Waters, Muddy, rivalry between, 472
 with Burrow, Cassell, 169
 with Butterfield, Paul, 172
 with Campbell, Eddie C., 178
 with Cotton, James, 229
 with Gray, Henry, 373
 with Guy, George “Buddy,” 395
 with Hare, Auburn “Pat,” 402
 with Johnson, Luther “Georgia Boy” “Snake,” 534
 with Jones, “Little” Johnny, 546
 with Jones, Calvin “Fuzzy,” 543
 with Leary, S.P., 589
 with Williams, Jody, 16
 Howling Wolf, 899
 Howorth, Lisa N., 446
 Hubbard, Preston, 302, 311

INDEX

- Huckle Buck, The, 1083
 Huckman, Fred, 793
 Hudson, Bob, with Black Bob, 85
 Hudson, Garth, with Hammond, John Paul, 399
 Huff, Luther and Percy, 473–474
 Huff, Luther Henry, 473–474
 Huff, Percy, 473–474
 Hughes, Joe “Guitar,” 474
 Hughes, Joe, with Copeland, Johnny “Clyde,” 226
 Hughes, Langston, 438, 615 house-rent party cards, 468
 Hull, Papa Harvey, 39, 88
 Humes, Helen, 114, 474–475
 Philo Records, 16
 Hummel, Mark, 475–476
 Humming Blues, 835
 Humor, 476–479
 as assertion of freedom from social strictures, 479 in blues history, 476–477
 comic devices, 477–478 social contexts of, 478–479
 Hung, Pee Wee, Milton’s on Troost, song about, 559
 Hunt, Daniel Augusta “D.A.,” 479
 Hunt, Otis “Sleepy,” 480
 Hunt, Van Zula Carter, 480
 Hunter, Alberta, 480–481
 Hunter, Ivory Joe, 481
 Gary, Indiana, 361
 Hunter, Long John, 481–482
 influential music of, 482
 Hunter, Lurlean, 872
 Hunter, Robert, “Casey Jones,” 187 Hurricane Audrey Blues, 1000 Hurricane Betsy, 1000
 Hurricane Beulah, 1000
 Hurricanes Carla and Esther, 1000
 Hurry on Down, 640
 Hurston, Zora Neale, 131, 247, 384, 438, 615 early boogie-woogie description, 384 folklore collecting of, 438
 Hurt by Love, 343
 Hurt, John Smith “Mississippi John,” 482–484
 Adelphi Records, 9
 black sacred music, performances by, 90
 influential music of, 484 museum honoring, 482
 music of, 482–483
 1960s folk revival, 387–388
 paraphrasing in blues lyrics, 106
 phrase-formulas in lyrics, 105
 telescoping in blues lyrics, 106
 Hurte, Leroy Edward, 149
 Hurts Me to My Heart, 7
 Huston, John, “Frankie and Johnny” and, 344
 Hutto, Joseph Benjamin “J.B.,” 484–485
 with Harvey, Ted, 414
 with Hollywood Fats, 451
 with Jackson, Lee, 497
 Huyton, Trevor, 579
 Hyatt, Harry Middleton, 456
 Hy-Tone, 485
 Memphis Slim, 485
- ### I
- (I Can’t Get No) Satisfaction, 889
 (I’ll be Glad When You’re Dead) You Rascal You, 250
 (I’ve Grown So) Ugly, 1085
 “I Believe I’ll Make a Change” (“Dust My Broom”), 487–488
 “I Created Jazz in 1902, not W.C. Handy,” Down Beat, 1938, 402
 “Ice Man, The.” See Collins, Albert
 “In the Open,” 426
 “It Ain’t Necessary,” 254
 I Ain’t Fattenin’ Frogs for Snakes, 314
 I Ain’t Got No Home, 394
 I Ain’t Got Nobody, 236
 I Ain’t Got Nothing But the Blues, 868
 I Ain’t Got You, 32
 I Ain’t Mad at You, Pretty Baby, 706
 I Ain’t Superstitious, 275, 472, 476, 477, 585, 841
 I Almost Lost My Mind, 481
 I Am a Streaker, Baby, 154
 I Am Somebody, 959
I Am the Blues (book), 274, 445
I Am the Blues, 577
 I Asked for Water, 939
 I Be’s Troubled, 1056
 I Beg of You, 668
 I Believe I’ll Dust My Broom, 487, 537
 I Believe I’ll Make a Change, 487
 I Believe in You (You Believe in Me), 959
 I Believe, 500
 I Call It Pretty Music But the Old People Call It the Blues, 711
 I Can Hear My Baby Calling, 376
 I Can See Everybody’s Mother but Mine, 330
 I Can’t Be Satisfied, 198, 202, 489
 I Can’t Escape from You, 55
 I Can’t Hold Out, 546
 I Can’t Last Long, 106
 I Can’t Lose with the Stuff I Use, 1083
 I Can’t Quit You Babe, 152, 275
 I Can’t Quit You Baby, 216, 590, 841, 852
 I Can’t Stand No Signifying, 19
 I Can’t Stand the Rain, 751
 I Can’t Stop Loving You, 1
I Can’t Stop, 376
 I Come for to Sing, 152
 I Cried a Tear, 42
I Didn’t Give a Damn If Whites Bought It (book), 497
 I Didn’t Give a Damn If Whites Bought It, 65
 I Didn’t Sleep a Wink Last Night, 787
 I Didn’t Take Your Man, 751
 I Didn’t Want to Do It, 180
 I Don’t Care, 234
 I Don’t Know About You, 727
 I Don’t Know What I’ll Do, 237
 I Don’t Know, 456–457, 626, 644
 I Don’t Want Nobody (To Have Love But You), 528
 I Done Somebody Wrong, 501
I Dream a World: Portraits of Black Women Who Changed America (book), 228
 I Feel Like Crying, 991
 I Feel Like Going Home, 202, 489
 I Feel Love Growin’, 1101
 I Feel So Good, 152, 1058
 I Found a Love, 96, 389, 1048
I Found Joy, 342
 I Get Evil, 436, 734
I Go Wild, 392
 I Got a Break, Baby, 387, 1045
 I Got a Mind to Give Up Living, 172
I Got a Right to Sing the Blues, 1106
 I Got a Woman, 121, 389, 782, 908
I Got Dem Ol’ Kozmic Blues Again Mama!, 548
 I Got Loaded, 412
 I Got Mine, 932
 I Got My Discharge Papers, 1015
 I Got Religion, 908
I Got That Feeling, 251
 I Got the Blues, 608, 925
 I Got the Will, 502
 I Got to Cross the River Jordan, 676
 I Got to Go, 623
I Got What It Takes, 20, 961
 I Gotcha, 266
 I Had a Dream, 959
 I Had It Hard, 941
 I Had My Fun, 368
I Had to Get Nasty, 409
 I Hate the Train Called the M&O, 886
 I Have News for You, 694
 I Have to Paint My Face, 195
I Have to Paint My Face, 902
 I Haven’t Got a Friend, 1051
 I Hear Some Blues Downstairs, 835
I Hear You Knockin’, 586
 I Hear You Knocking, 601
 I Heard It Through the Grapevine, 890
 I Held My Baby Last Night, 500
 I Just Keep Lovin’ Her, 738
 I Just Keep Lovin’ You, 747
 I Just Wanna to Make Love to You, 488

- I Just Want to Make Love to You, 275, 334, 339, 488, 502, 844
 I Keep on Worrying, 81
 I Knew You When, 332
 I Know [You Don't Love Me
 No More], 10
 I Know His Blood Can Make Me Whole, 116, 188, 527
I Know That's Right, 1062
 I Know, 233
 I Left My Blues in San Francisco, 712
 I Like It Like That, 564, 840
 I Like My Baby's Pudding, 413
 I Like Your Style, 1082
 I Live the Life I Love, 229
 I Looked Down the Line, 978
 I Love Everybody, 189
 I Love My Jelly Roll, 298
 I Love the Woman, 425
 I Love You So, 238
 I Love You, Mary Lou, 533
 I Miss You Jimmy, 269
 I Need My Baby, 213
 I Need Some Money, 460
 I Need You So, 481
 I Need You, 266
 I Never Loved a Man, 910
 I Pity the Fool, 73, 98, 120, 751, 890
 I Put a Spell on You, 415
 I Refuse to Sing the Blues, 475
I Say Me for a Parable (book), 445, 614
 I See My Great Mistake, 314
 I Smell a Rat, 990
 I Stand Accused, 343
 I Surrender, 65
 I Testify, 213
 I Thank You, 706, 782
 I Think I Got the Blues, 1094
 I Used to Work on a Tractor, 936
 I Wanna Be Loved, 846
 I Wanna Be Your Radio, 254
I Wanna Get Funky, 568
 I Wanna Rock, 1089
 I Want a Tall Skinny Papa, 978
 I Want My Fanny Brown, 413
 I Want Someone to Love Me, 541
 I Want To [Do Everything for
 You], 266
I Want to Boogie, 244
 I Want to Know, 264
 I Want to Ta-Ta You, 502
 I Want to Thank Ya, 234
 I Want to Walk You Home, 277
 I Was Born to Preach the Gospel,
 121, 889
 I Was Fooled, 33
 I Will Turn Your Money Green, 598
 I Wish I Could Shimmy Like My Sister
 Kate, 247, 337, 894
 I Wish It Would Rain, 890
 I Wish You Would, 32
I Wo't Cry Now, 8
 I Won't Be Back for More, 699
 I Won't Cry, 8
 I Wonder, 149, 358
 I Worry 'Bout You, 787
 I'd Love to Change the World, 969
I'd Rather Be the Devil: Skip James and the Blues (book), 445
 I'd Rather Go Blind, 199, 502, 1021
I'll Play the Blues for You, 568
 I'll Be Glad When You're Dead
 You Rascal You, 979
 I'll Be True, 7
I'll Be Your Mule, 346
 I'll Come Running Back to You, 389
 I'll Get Along Somehow, 249, 363
 I'll Just Keep Walking, 497
 I'll Keep Sittin' on It If I Can't Sell It, 476, 1071
 I'll Never Be Free, 18, 363
 I'll Never Turn Back, 149
 I'll Play the Blues for You (Parts 1
 and 2), 568
 I'll Play the Blues for You, 890, 930
 I'll Take You There, 353
 I'll Weep No More, 306
 I'm a Guitar King, 665
 I'm A King Bee, 126
 I'm a King Bee, 410, 830, 846
 I'm a Little Mixed Up, 190
 I'm a Lover, Not a Fighter, 586
I'm a Mad Man, 896
 I'm a Man (Mannish Boy), 488
 I'm a Man, 32, 267, 489, 888
 I'm a Woman, 578, 961
 I'm Alabama Bound, 748
 I'm Blue as a Man Can Be, 1085
I'm for Real, 547
I'm Gettin' Tired, 970
 I'm Glad for Your Sake, Sorry for Mine, 535
 I'm Glad, 644
 I'm Goin' Home, 969
 I'm Going Upside Your Head, 289
 I'm Going Where the Chilly Winds
 Don't Blow, 495
 I'm Gone, 595
 I'm Gonna Cramp Your Style, 1065
 I'm Gonna Leave You (on the Outskirts of Town), 479, 490
 I'm Gonna Move (to the Edge of Town), 490
 I'm Gonna Move to the Outskirts of Town, 490, 515, 549
I'm Gonna Sit Right Down and Write Myself a Letter, 70
 I'm Gonna Tear Your Playhouse
 Down, 751
I'm Good, 590
I'm Here!, 20
I'm Here, 194, 197
 I'm Here, 182, 197
 Charters, Samuel Barclay and, 194
I'm In a Phone Booth, Baby, 568
 I'm in Love Again, 277
 I'm in the Mood, 460, 845
 I'm Just Your Fool, 528
 I'm Losing You, 1065
 I'm Mad, 644
I'm Not Hungry, But I Like to Eat—Blues, 418
 I'm Ready, 275, 844, 1058
I'm Ready, 844, 1069, 1094
 I'm Satisfied, 213
 I'm Savin' It All for You, 668
 I'm Sick of Fattening Frogs for Snakes, 313
 I'm Slippin' In, 180
 I'm So Glad I'm Twenty-One
 Years Old Today, 260
 I'm So Glad, 239, 337, 389, 504,
 505, 658, 699, 841
 I'm Sober Now, 897
 I'm Still Here, 1017
 I'm Talking About You, 231, 687
 I'm the Man, 1051
 I'm Tired of Being Mistreated, 948
 I'm Tore Down, 572
 I'm Tore Up, 362
 I'm Walkin', 277
 I'm Wanderin', 460
 I'm What You Need, 563
 I'm Wondering and Wondering, 843
 I'm Your Hoochie Coochie Man, 844
 I'm Your Puppet, 909
 I'ma Man, 916
 I've Been Drinking Muddy
 Water, 905
 I've Got a Woman, 861, 982
 I've Got Everything I Need (Almost), 130
 I've Got Nothing Working Now, 217
 I've Got Rhythm, 513
 I've Got to Go and Leave My Daddy
 Behind, 385
 I've Had My Fun (Going Down Slow), 368
 I've Put a Spell on You, 890 Ice breakers with Burton, Aron, 170
 with Collins, Albert, 220
 with Jones, Casey, 544
 Ice Cream Man, 147, 148
Ice Man, 220
 Ice Pickin', 220
 Ice Storm Blues, 999–1000
 Ice Storm, 999
Iceman, 251
 Ichiban Records, 488
 Coleman, Gary “B.B.,” 217
 Johnson, Luther “Houserocker,” 534
 Johnson, L.V., 531
 Legendary Blues Band, 592
 Icy Blue, 219
 Ida Red, 76, 839

INDEX

- If I Can't Cut the Mustard (I Can Still Lick Around the Jar), 477
- If I Could Reach Out, 213
- If I Don't Get There, 90
- If I Had My Way I'd Tear the Building Down, 527, 528
- If I Had My Way*, 256
- If I Had Possession over Judgment Day, 537, 846
- If I Hadna Been High, 266
- If I May, 668
- If It's Good for the Gander, 880
- If the Sea Was Whiskey, 81'
- If Trouble Was Money*, 221
- If You Just Keep Still, 903
- If You Love These Blues, Play 'Em As You Please*, 102
- If You See My Rooster (Please Run Him Home), 85
- If You See My Rooster, 686
- If You See My Savior, 90
- If You Want to See These Blues*, 474
- Iglauer, Bruce, 125
- Aladdin/Score, 16
- Alligator, 20
- Delmark, 20
- Iko Iko, 237
- Illinois Blues, 505
- Illinois Central railroad, 375, 430
- Great Migration and, 375
- I'm Gonna Murder My Baby, 402
- Image Awards, NAACP, King, Riley B. "B.B.," 573
- Imagery of Louisiana Red and Brenda Bell, The*, 70
- Imes, Birney, 446
- Imperial records, 207, 490
- Allen, Lee, 19
- Bayou and, 67
- Brown, Roy James, 161
- with Carbo, Hayward "Chuck," 180
- Collins, Albert, 219
- Domino, Fats, 278
- Jackson, Lil' Son, 497–498
- Jones, Little Sonny, 546
- Lewis, Smiley, 601
- See also* Aladdin/Score
- Impressions, The, 44, 389
- with Butler, Jerry, 171
- Improvisation, 110–111
- analysis of, Ferris, William, 443
- compositions, blues, 104
- early jazz, 511
- early recorded blues ensembles, 45
- Jefferson, Blind Lemon and, 519–520
- Johnson, Lonnie, solos of, 532
- in jug bands, 47
- in modal blues, 515
- 1990s and later, 126
- by solo performers, big band era, 512
- study of, 421
- See also* collective improvisation; solo improvisation
- In a Sentimental Mood*, 282
- In Chicago*, 841
- In Here with Your Heavy Stuff, 737
- In My Time of Dying, 522
- In Step*, 1032–1033
- In the Alley*, 499
- In the Basement—Parts I and II, 264
- In the Beginning*, 1033
- In the Chapel, 217
- In the Evening When the Sun Goes Down, 155
- In the Evening, 102, 1015
- In the Groove Boys, with King, Albert, 568
- In the Key of Lightnin' Hopkins*, 994
- In the Land of the Crossroads*, 875
- In the Mission of St. Augustine, 739
- In the Night, 786
- In the Open, 426
- In the Pines, 440
- In the Right Place*, 282
- In the Same Old Way, 832
- In the Shadow of the City*, 1034
- In the Spirit*, 452
- In-A-Gadda-Da-Vida, 842
- Income Tax Blues, 1089
- Independent labels
- Aladdin Records, 16
- Alligator, 20
- Beacon, 67
- Blind Pig, 100
- Chance, 191
- Collectables, 218
- Delmark, 263
- DooTone Records, 278
- Internet, benefitting from, 126
- King Records, as major, 571
- 1990s, 127
- Philo Records, 16
- rhythm and blues, Jubilee Records, 551
- urban blues development, 48
- Independent record companies. See record companies, independent
- India, scales from, jazz and, 517
- Indian Jazz Club, Blackwell, Scrapper and, 97
- Indian music, flatted thirds and sevenths in music of, 12
- Indiana Avenue Stomp, 769
- Indianapolis, 770
- Influences on blues, 44
- from African-American to African, 11
- Alligator, 20
- Blind Blake, 100
- on Creole blues, 3
- Injustice, 129
- Ink Spots, with Doggett, Bill, 276
- Inphasion*, 239
- Insect Trust, 744
- Instant, 490–491
- August, Joe "Mr. Google Eyes," 37
- Instructional books, James, Steve, author, 542
- Instrumentals, King, Freddie and, 572
- harmonica, 658
- mandolin, 651–652
- Instruments. See also nightclub owners
- accordion, 2–4
- alternatives to bass guitar, 63
- banjo, 52–56
- in black string bands, 45
- blues recordings, 1970s, 123
- cool jazz sound, 515
- diddlely bow, 268–269
- in early blues era, 114–115
- early jazz ensembles, New Orleans, 511
- European American, slaves recruited to play, 112
- jug, 551–552
- in jug bands, 47
- lead, defining guitar as, 47
- in ragtime ensembles, 509
- Southwest ensemble style, 48
- swing bands, 1930s, 512
- in zydeco bands, 51
- Instruments, musical
- guitars. See guitars
- Insurance Man Blues, 794
- Integration of blacks and whites, Paul Butterfield Blues Band, 16
- International Sweethearts of Rhythm, with Big Maybelle, 80
- Internationale Jazz Festival (Bern), Brown, Clarence "Gatemouth," 156
- Internet, 126
- Interstate Grocer, King Biscuit Flour, 439
- Interstate/Flyright/Krazy Kat/Magpie/Harlequin/Heritage/ Texas Blues, Acey, Johnny, 6
- Interviews, archive, Indiana University, 638
- Intimacy, local, creating/sustaining by juke joints, 552
- Into the Mystic*, 1073
- Invisible Man (book), 616
- Ireland, AFBF, tours in, 23
- Irene, 434
- Irene's Blues 397
- Irish Tour '74*, 358
- Irma records, 491
- Irma Thomas Live*, 985
- Iron Butterfly, 36
- Iron City Houserockers, 779
- Ironing Board Sam, 491
- Is He Yours, 90
- Is It Because I'm Black, 540
- Is That All There Is, 593

- Is You Is or Is You Ain't My Baby, 515
 Is You Is or Is You Ain't My Baby?, 155, 549
 Isaac Hayes Movement, 909
 Isaia, Tom, 100
 Islam, free jazz musicians converting to, 516
 Island Records, Buckwheat Zydeco, 165
 Island, Booker, James, 139
 Isle of Wight Festival, Gallagher, Rory, 357
Isle of Wight, 422
 Isley Brothers, 124
 with Hendrix, Jimi, 421–422
 Isley, Ernie, 124
 It Ain't Easy, 43
 It Can't Be Done, 81
 It Don't Mean a Thing, 868
It Haven't Been Easy, 1073
 It Hurts Me Too, 158, 201, 330, 501, 546
 It Must Have Been the Devil, 741
It Must Have Been the Devil, 970
 It Wasn't God Who Made Honky Tonk Angels, 232, 693
 It Won't Be Long, 1036
 It's a Good Little Thing, 676
 It's a Man Down There, 240, 249, 343
 It's a Mess I Tell You, 19
 It's a Natural, 551
 It's All Over Now, 858
 It's All Soul, 1065
 It's Hard Time, 374
 It's in His Kiss (The Shoop Shoop Song), 306
 It's Love Baby (24 Hours a Day), 307, 356, 376
 It's Midnight, 624
 It's My Fault, Darling, 477
 It's Raining, 985
 It's Right Here for You, 900
 It's Tight Like That, 202, 280, 476, 508, 676, 953, 1079
 It's Too Late Baby, It's Too Late, 787
 It's Too Late, 1089
 It's Too Soon to Know, 739
 It's Torture, 474
It's a Good Day, 350
It's About Time, 71, 141
 Ivory Records, 491, 870
- J
- J.C. Holmes Blues, 187
 J. Geils Band, 36
J. T. Adams and Shirley Griffith, 8
 J.B. Hutto and the Hawks, with Hollywood Fats, 451
 J.J.'s, Clarksdale, Mississippi juke joint, 553
- Jack Kelly and His South Memphis Jug Band, 487
 "I Believe I'll Make a Change" ("Dust My Broom"), 487
 Jack of Diamonds Georgia Rub, 1007
 "Jack the Rapper" newsletter, 366
 Jack the Roguish Man, 114
 Jack's Tavern, San Francisco, 856
 Jackie Brenston with His Delta Cats, 389
 Jacks and Kings, 9
Jackson Advocate (newspaper), 88
 Jackson Blue Boys with Carter, Bo, 185
 Jackson Brothers, 494
 Jackson Five with Keith, Gordon, 362
 Jackson Southernaires, 92, 544, 820
 Jackson, Armand "Jump," 493
 Jackson, Arthur. See Peg Leg Sam; Peg Leg Sam (Arthur Jackson)
 Jackson, Benjamin Clarence
 "Bullmoose," 493, 593, 816
 Jackson, Bessie. See Bogan, Lucille
 Jackson, Bill, 494
 Jackson, Bo Weavil, 494, 745, 872
 Jackson, Bruce, 883, 899
 Jackson, Bull Moose, 326, 493, 571, 943
 Jackson, Calvin (1), 494
 Jackson, Calvin (2), 494
 Jackson, Charles "Papa Charlie," 54, 100, 201, 470, 494, 633, 745, 814, 923, 994
 influential music of, 495
 Jackson, Chuck, 678, 865
 with Hollimon, Clarence, 450
 Jackson, Cordell "Guitar Granny," 496
 Jackson, Frutelend, 300, 496, 998, 1000
 Jackson, George Henry, 496
 Jackson, George, "Down Home Blues," 281, 431
 Jackson, Grady "Fats," 496
 Jackson, Harold "George Hack," 494
 Jackson, Jim, 496
 Jackson, John, 497
 Jackson, Lee, 497
 Jackson, Lil' Son, 497–498
 Jackson, Little Willie, 498
 Jackson, Mahalia, 92, 124, 498, 887 first internationally recognized gospel vocalist, 91 with Griffin, Bessie, 380
 Jackson, Michael, with Crouch, Andrae, 93
 Jackson, Papa Charlie
 with Blind Blake, 100
 "How Long How Long" ("Sitting on Top of the World"), 470
 Jackson, Roosevelt "Ham,"
 guitar, 1940s, 387
 Jackson, Vasti, 498–499
 Jackson, Wesley, 389
 Jackson, Wilfred, 494
- Jackson, Willis "Gator" "Gator Tail," 499
 Jackson's Blues, 495
 Jacobs, Little Walter with Covington, Robert, 233
 with Edwards, David "Hone," 298
 Jacobs, Marion Walter. See Little Walter
 Jacobs, Steve with Bell, Carey, 70
 Jacobovitch, Daniel, 700
 Jacque, Beau, 535
 Jacquet, Illinois, 499, 861
 with Cobb, Arnett, 583
 with Grimes, Lloyd "Tiny," 381
 JATP performances, 515
 Jacquet, Illinois, Philo Records, 16
 Jacquet, Russell, 28, 871
 Jagger, Mick with Allen, Pete, 19
Jailhouse Blues, The (film), 325
 Jailhouse Rock, 593, 839–840
 Jali, 10
 Jamerson, James, 63
 James A. Michaels, 187
 James Brown Show, 663
 James Cotton Band
 with Coleman, Michael, 218
 with Lay, Sam, 585–586
 James Cotton Blues Band, 229
James Cotton Live, 229
 James Harman Band, 311, 403
 James, Clifton, 286, 902
 James, Colin, 772
 James, Elmore, 116, 536–537, 750, 855
 Adins, Joris "Georges" photographs of, 9
 with Allison, Luther, 21
 with Below, Fred, 72
 with Bruynoghe, Yannick, 164
 with Burrow, Cassell, 169
 diddley bow, 269
 "Dust My Broom," 487–488
 with Homesick James, 453
 influential music of, 500
 with Jackson, Grady "Fats," 496
 with Johnson, L.V., 531
 with Lenoir, J.B., 594
 reissues, 5
 James, Etta, 501
 "I Just Want to Make Love to You," 502
 James, Fred, 85
 James, Harry, with Humes, Helen, 474
 James, Jesse, 503
 James, Nehemiah "Skip," 503
 Adelphi Records, 9
 AFBF European tours, 23
 black sacred music, performances by, 89
 folk music revival and, 504
 with Guy, George "Buddy," 396
 1960s, 503

INDEX

- James, Nehemiah "Skip," (Continued) pre-blues style, minor scales in, 108 writings about, 445
- James, Sonny, 882
- James, Steve, 505–506
- Japan Blues Carnival, 542
- Japan, 506–507
- Japanese Americans, 856
- Jarrett, James "Pigmeat," 507
- Jarrett, Theodore (Ted), 191, 507
- JATP (Jazz and the Philharmonic) mainstream jazz performers, all-star lineup of, 515
- Java, 1006
- Jaws, 252
- Jaxon, Frankie "Half Pint," 507–508
 radio and recordings, 507
- Jaxyson, 508
- Jay and the Americans, Leiber and Stoller, songs by, 593
- Jay Gould's Daughter, 187
- Jay McShann Orchestra with Brown, Walter, 162
- Jay-Dee Records, 524
- Jazz, 509–517, 734
 artists, mandatory skill for, 510
 Bailey, Mildred and, 40–41 ballads, tempo of, 109
 bebop and modern jazz era, 1942–1959, 513–516 beginnings of, 112
 Below, Fred and, 72
 big band and, 512–513
 birthplace of, 510–511
 Blackwell, Robert "Bumps" and, 96 and blues, 512
 blues history and, 439 breakdown of blues forms/scales and reaffirmation of older black music forms, 1960–1967, 516 cool jazz, hard bop, and modal jazz, 515
 Decca, 260
 Document, 276
 early expression of, blues importance to, 514
 early jazz, 510–512
 early recordings, kazoo on, 560 ensembles, New Orleans, 535
 fiddle, 315
 fiddle, postwar era, 317–318
 Frog/Cygnet, 347
 Hampton, Lionel and, 400
 Holiday, Billie, 449 homophonic approach, adoption of, 118–119 influenced style, Louisville jug bands, 552 institutionalization of, 1980s, 517
 James, Etta and, 502
 jazz tradition and blues tradition, distinction between, 509–510 jazz tradition and blues tradition, overlap and crossover between, 510
 Johnson, Lemuel Charles "Lem" and, 531–532
 Larkin, Milton "Tippy" and, 583
 later styles of, stride piano influence on, 511
 Latin, bebop musicians playing, 513
 LP recordings, collections of, 602
 LP recordings, collection, Wadenswil, Switzerland, 603 melody-based, 124 modern, bebop and, 513 musicians, 1980s, 1990s, 517 musicians on early blues recordings and, 123
 New Orleans, 632
 New Orleans revival, rhythm and blues, and mainstream, 514–515 phrasing, Armstrong, Louis as model for, 512
 prewar era, 1900–1942, 510–513
 pre-World War II classic blues, 115
 ragtime and, 509–510
 recordings, archive, Bowling Green University, 603 recordings of, comprehensive collection, 602
 San Francisco, 856
 scholars, 517 scholars, interest in early blues, 439
 since 1967, 516–518
 writings about, 439
See also cool jazz; free jazz; mainstream jazz; modal jazz
- Jazz Ahead program, Carter, Betty and, 185
- Jazz and Blues Lover's Guide to the US* (book), 446
- Jazz and Blues magazine, Leadbitter, Michael Andrew "Mike," articles by, 588
- Jazz Appreciation Society, 719
- Jazz archives, blues collections as foundation of, 602
- Jazz artists
 Aladdin/Score, 16
 Allison, Mose, 21–22
- Jazz at the Philharmonic shows
 with Humes, Helen, 475
 with Jacquet, Illinois, 499
- Jazz Depot, 314
- Jazz festivals, JATP venture as model for, 515
- Jazz Fiddler, The, 698
- Jazz Hounds, trapsets, 285
- Jazz Journal* (periodical), 439
- Jazz* magazine, Flerlage, Raeburn, photographs of, 333
- Jazz Me Blues, 262
- Jazz Messengers, 380
- Jazz Monthly* (periodical), 439, 754–755
- Jazz Music* magazine, 547, 754
- Jazz musicians, 510–513, 516–517
- Jazz progressive. See progressive jazz
- Jazz Record Mart, 125
 Frank, Michael Robert, 294
 Garon, Paul, 360
- Jazz Report (periodical), 441
- Jazz rock. See fusion
- Jazz Train tour, with Hopkins, Linda, 462
- Jazz, New Orleans, 1885–1863* (book), 194
- Jazz: A History of the New York Scene* (book), 194
- JazzFest, 1979 with Ironing Board Sam, 491
- Jazzing the Blues, 932
- Jazzmen* (book), 439
- Jazz-O-Maniacs with Johnson, James "Steady Roll," 530
 with Johnson, Lonnie, 533
- JC's Theme, 710
- Jealous Kind of Lover, 365
- Jefferson Airplane
 with Hopkins, Sam "Lightin'," 462
 with Jefferson, Blind Lemon, 520
- Jefferson* magazine, 442, 520
- Jefferson, Blind Lemon, 518–521, 618, 624, 884
 acoustic guitar recording, 385
 Blind Blake, rivalry with, 100
 box set reissues of, 551
 first recording of, 45
 Hispanic influences on, 434
 with Hopkins, Sam "Lightin'," 462
 How Long How Long ("Sitting on Top of the World"), 470
 humor in blues of, 478
 humor in music of, 479 influences on recorded ensembles, 47
 influential music of, 231, 520
 with Leadbelly, 586
 lyrics of, interracial influences, 433
 music of, 519–520
 mysterious personal life and death of, 519 phrase-formulas in lyrics, 105
 recordings, 518
 reissues, 442
 tributes to, 518
 writings about, 441
- Jefferson, Bonnie, 521
- Jefferson, Thomas, 384
- Jeffrey, Robert Ernest Lee "Bob," 521
- Jelly Bean Blues, 271
- Jelly Jelly, 296
- Jelly Roll Blues, 708
- Jelly Roll Kings, The, 125, 294, 347, 427, 526, 877
 with Carr, Sam, 184

- JEMF (John Edwards Memorial Foundation), 521
- Jenkins, Bobo, 521–522, 873
Detroit, 521
- Jenkins, Duke, 522
- Jenkins, Gus, 522
- Jenkins, Hezekiah, 373
- Jenkins, Johnny, 522
- Jenkins, Robert, 746–747
- Jenny Jenny, 621
- Jenny's Ball, 901
- Jerry Bounce, 190
- Jerusalem Morning, 693
- Jesse Austin Band, 37
- Jesse James, 970
- Jesus Gave Me Water, 90
- Jesus Is a Dying Bed Maker (“In My Time of Dying”), 522–523
- Jesus Is a Dying Bed Maker, 115, 522
- Jesus Is a Mighty Good Leader, 505
- Jesus Is Coming Soon, 528
- Jesus Is on the Mainline*, 970
- Jesus Make Up My Dying Bed, 528
- Jet Propelled Papa, 475
- Jet, 754
- Jets, The, 871
- Jewel/Paula/Ronn, 523
Brown, Charles, 155
Carr, Sam, 184
Fulson, Lowell, 350
JOB (J.O.B.) masters sold to, 523
- Jig piano, 766
- Jim and John, 323
- Jim Crow Blues, 250, 795
- Jim Crow laws, 794
- Jim Crow South, 78, 274, 615, 641, 1005
“Black Belt,” Alabama, 15
“Chitlin circuit” and, 206
country music and, 230
hoodoo and, 455–457
literacy among blacks in, 224
See also American South
- Jim Crow, 113, 795
- Jim Dandy, 42
- Jim Dickinson's Catmando Quartet, 873
- Jim Lee Blues, Part 1, 301
- Jimi Hendrix Concerts, The*, 422, 458
- Jimi Hendrix Experience, 457
funk and, 389
- Jimi Hendrix: Blues*, 422
- Jimmie Jones, 187
- Jimmy Cotton Blues Quartet. See James Cotton Blues Band
- Jimmy James Jas Band, 872
- Jimmy Reed sound, The, 958
- Jimmy's Round-the-Clock Blues, 739
- Jin label, 880
- Jinx Blues, 466
- Jinx, The, 749
- Jittoku (club), Kyoto, 506
- Jive, Africa, imported to, 11
- Jivin' Woman, 167
- Jivin' with Bebop, 475
- JOB (J.O.B.), 523
Jones, Floyd, 545
Lenoir, J.B., 594
- JOB label, 878
- Jock-a-Mo, 236, 237, 363
- Jockey Jack, 366
- Jody's Got Your Girl and Gone, 959
- Joe Bussard's Vintage 78s, Frederick, Maryland, 605
- Joe Davis Music Co., New York City, 524
- Joe Davis/Davis/Beacon, 524
- Joe Louis Strut, 85
- Joe Tex Revue with Davis, James “Thunderbird,” 253
- Joe Tex
with Dr. John, 282
with Hinton, Edward Craig “Eddie,” 396
- Joe Turner Blues, 385, 401, 654
- Jogo Blues, The, 925
- Johansson, Jai Johnny, 22
- John A. Dix Industrial School, 89
- John Cotton Dana Library, Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey, 609
- John Dummer Blues Band, 637
- John Edwards Memorial Foundation (JEMF), 521
- John F. Kennedy Performing Arts Center, King, Riley B. “B.B.,” founding member of, 609
- John Henry (The Steel Driving Man), 598
- John Henry Blues, 318
- John Henry, 114, 129, 340, 524, 598, 1071
- “John Henry,” 488–489,” 524
- John Henry: A Folk-Lore Study* (book), 438
- John Henry: Tracking Down a Negro Legend* (book), 438
- John Mayall's Bluesbreakers with Eric Clapton*, 209
- John R. See Richbourg, John
- Johnnie B. Bad*, 531
- Johnnie B. Bad, 531
- Johnnie B. Goode, 338
- Johnnie's Boogie, 531
- Johnny Ace's Last Letter, 349, 363
- Johnny B. Good, 76, 588
- Johnny B. Goode*, 422
- Johnny B. Goode, 72, 275, 839
- Johnny Has Gone, 269
- Johnny Nocturne Band, 526, 857
- Johnny Otis Orchestra, 867
- Johnny Otis Revue, 765
- Johnny Otis Rhythm and Blues Caravan, 739
- Johnny Otis Show, 8, 880
with Jackson, Benjamin Clarence “Bullmoose,” 493
- Johnny Winter And*, 607, 643
- Johnny's House Party, 417
- Johnson Machine Gun, 97, 941
- Johnson, Al “Snuff,” 526
- Johnson, Al, 526
- Johnson, Alec with Carter, Bo, 185
- Johnson, Angeline, 433, 527
- Johnson, Bessie, 884
- Johnson, Big Jack, 562
- Johnson, Blind Willie, 527–528
guitar, 1920s, 385
influential music of, 528
Jesus Is a Dying Bed Maker (“In My Time of Dying”), 522
music and influence, 528
- Johnson, Buddy, 260, 528–529
with Glover, Henry, 368
- Johnson, Bunk, rediscovery of, New Orleans revival and bebop, 514
- Johnson, Candy, 248
- Johnson, Charles, Original Paradise Ten, 39
- Johnson, Clarence Edward (“Jack Raggs”), 190
- Johnson, Conrad, 529
- Johnson, Earnest “44 Flunkey,” 529
- Johnson, Edith North, 529
- Johnson, Ella with Johnson, Buddy, 528
- Johnson, Ernie, 529
- Johnson, Evelyn, 206
- Johnson, Freddie, 39
- Johnson, Guy B., 438
- Johnson, Guy, 438
- Johnson, Henry “Rufe,” 529
- Johnson, Herman E., 530
- Johnson, James “Steady Roll,” 530
- Johnson, James “Stump,” 530
with Johnson, Edith North, 531
- Johnson, James Price, 530, 879
stride piano style, influences of, 512
- Johnson, James Weldon, 89, 468
Harlem social hierarchies, 468 spirituals, 89
- Johnson, Jesse with Johnson, Edith North, 529
- Johnson, Joe, 531
- Johnson, Johnnie, 531, 856
- Johnson, L.V., 533
- Johnson, Larry, 531
- Johnson, Lemuel Charles “Lem,” 531–532
- Johnson, Leslie. See Lazy Lester
- Johnson, Lonnie, 532–534
AFBF tours, 23
Aladdin/Score, 16
with Alexander, Algernon “Texas,” 17

INDEX

- Johnson, Lonnie (Continued)
 in Chicago, 200–201
 field hollers and, 320
 guitar, 1920s, 385–386
 humor in music of, 477
 with Hurt, John Smith “Mississippi John,” 482 influences on guitar styles, 47
 influential music of, 47, 533
 international performances, 439 with Johnson, Mary, 534
- Johnson, Louis “Good Bootie” with Johnson, Pete, 535
- Johnson, Louis, 770
 with Johnson, Pete, 535
- Johnson, Louise, 533–534
- Johnson, Luther “Georgia Boy” “Snake,” 534
- Johnson, Luther “Guitar Jr.” with Levy, Ron, 597
- Johnson, Luther “Houserocker,” 534
- Johnson, Lyndon B., 795
- Johnson, Margaret, 534
- Johnson, Mary, 533–534
- Johnson, Merline, 39
- Johnson, Pete, 535
 with Ammons, Albert and Lewis, Meade “Lux,” 24
 boogie-woogie pianists, return of, 512 film and television work of, 536
 “From Spirituals to Swing” concert, Carnegie Hall, 1938, 399
 with Humes, Helen, 475
 with Turner, Big Joe, 558
- Johnson, Plas, 535–536
- Johnson, Reverend Ledell, 540
- Johnson, Robert, 124, 536–538, 607, 656, 878, 885, 886
 with Clapton, Eric, 209
 with Edwards, David “Honeyboy,” 334
 electric guitar and, 387 first song learned by, 97
 with Harney, Richard “Hacksaw,” 409
 with Howlin’ Wolf, 476
 with James, Elmore, 500
 with Johnson, Lonnie, 532
 “Kitchen” variant, 470 lyrics, verbal substitutions in, 103 melodies, eight-measure harmonic progression in, 107 Mexican guitarists and, 433
 myth of bluesman selling soul to devil, 107
 phrase-formulas in lyrics, 105
 polyphonic to homophonic transition in blues melodies, 110
 pre-World War II era, 114 recordings, 1990s sales, 388
 writings about, 441, 445
- Johnson, Syl, 539–540, 873–874
 with Jones, “Little” Johnny, 546
- Johnson, Tommy, 104, 540–541
 book about, 305
 myth of bluesman selling soul to devil, 107
- Johnson, Wallace, 542
- Johnson, Willie Lee, 542
- Joliet, 542
- Jolly Roll King, 78
- Jones family, 323–330
- Jones, “Little” Johnny, 546
- Jones, Albennie, 542
- Jones, Andrew “Junior Boy,” 542–543
- Jones, Bessie, 543
- Jones, Bill with LaSalle, Denise, 583
- Jones, Birmingham, 543
- Jones, Booker T., 123
- Jones, Brian, 388, 538, 744, 846, 1020
- Jones, Bruce, 736
- Jones, Calvin “Fuzzy,” 543
- Jones, Calvin, 592
 with Howlin’ Wolf, 472
- Jones, Carl, 208, 543, 881
 with Jackson, Lee, 497
- Jones, Casey, 544
- Jones, Charles Price, 88
- Jones, Clarence M., 544
- Jones, Clarence, 768
- Jones, Clifford “Snags,” 768
- Jones, Coley, 221, 246, 652
- Jones, Curtis, 429, 544
- Jones, Dennis “Little Hat,” 545
- Jones, Eddie “One-String,” 545
- Jones, Elvin, 124
- Jones, Esther Mae. See Phillips, Little Esther (Esther Mae Jones)
- Jones, Floyd, 523, 545
 with Howlin’ Wolf, 472
- Jones, Gayl, 616
- Jones, Grant, 859
- Jones, Hettie, blues children’s books, 444
- Jones, Jab, jug playing of, 552
- Jones, James “Middle Walter,” 545
- Jones, James “Tail Dragger” with Boston Blackie, 140
- Jones, Joe, 546
- Jones, John Paul, 590
- Jones, Johnny with James, Elmore, 500
- Jones, Josiah, with Watson, R.L., 104
- Jones, Little Hat with Alexander, Algernon “Texas,” 17
- Jones, Little Sonny, 546
- Jones, Luke, 36
- Jones, Maggie, 547
- Jones, Marshall “Memphis Sonny Boy” with Bell, Earl, 70
- Jones, Max, 547, 754 books by, 547
- Jones, Paul “Wine,” 547
- Jones, Quincy
 with Big Maybelle, 79
 with Charles, Ray, 229
- Jones, Richard M., 689
- Jones, Sam with Hooker, John Lee, 460
- Jones, Sissieretta, 87
- Jones, Tommy “Madman,” 646
- Jones, Tutu, 547, 551
- Jones, Willie, 548
- Jookit Jookit, 845
- Joplin, Janis, 548, 857
 with Ailey, Alvin, 246
 with Cotton, James, 229
- Joplin, Scott, 766
- Jordan, Charley, 548
- Jordan, Clifford, 117, 652
- Jordan, Louis, 548–549
 big band singers, swing era, 549
 with Doggett, Bill, 277
 guitar, 1940s, 387
 influential music of, 550
 music of, humor in, 476
 swing bands, filling void left by, 515
- Jordan, Luke, 550
- Joseph Mica, 187
- Joseph, Pleasant. See Cousin Joe
- Joshua White, the Singing Christian, 775
- Journal and Guide* (newspaper), 87
- Journeyman*, 209
- JSP, 551, 613
 Bell, Jimmie, 71
 Buford, George “Mojo,” 166
 Garner, Larry, 360
 Kansas City Red, 559
 Kirkpatrick, Bob, 578
- JSP label, 862
- Juanita, 497
- Juba rhythm, 112
- Jubilation*, 452
- Jubilee Gospel Team, spiritual music, common theme in, 522–523
- Jubilee Hummingbirds, 92
- Jubilee Singers. See Fisk Jubilee Singers
- Jubilee/Josie/It’s a Natural, 551
- “Jubilee-style” vocals, 92
- Judd, Alexander Arthur, 17
- Judge Boushay Blues, 598
- Judge Cliff Davies Blues, 495
- Judge Harsh Blues, 302
- Jug bands, 46–47, 116, 551, 649–650, 754, 793, 858
 fiddle in, 352
 harmonica in, 407
 Memphis scene, Lewis, Noah, 637
 in pre-World War II era, 117
See also jug
- Jug Stompers, 47, 113, 385
 with Cannon, Gus, 179
 postwar-era recordings, 440
- Jug, 551–552
 players, 552

- Juicy Fruit, 379
 Juke, 407, 408, 844
Juke Blues magazine, 446
 Heartsman, Johnny, career described by, 417
 Juke Box Boogie, 848
Juke Joint (book), 446
 Juke joints, 194, 552–553
 Bland, Bobby “Blue” and, 96
 Crudup, Arthur William “Big Boy” and, 242
 Do Drop Inn, Shelby, Mississippi, 554–555
 Eddie Mae’s Cafe, Helena, Arkansas, 553 highways leading to, 429
 with Hopkins, Sam “Lightin,’” 462
 J.J.’s, Clarksdale, Mississippi, 553–554
 Junior Kimbrough’s, Holly Springs, Mississippi, 554 in Kansas City, 557–558
 Poor Monkey’s Lounge, Merigold, Mississippi, 554
 pre-World War II era, 117
 Smitty’s Red Top Lounge, Clarksdale, Mississippi, 555
 West Lake Street, Chicago, 301
 The Jukes. See The Aces
 Julliard Conservatory of Music, Clark, Dave and, 210
 Jukebox multi-record, influence on recording industry, 48
 Juke-joint licenses, 552
 Jump blues, 861
 alert, 17
 arrangements deviating from, 124
 Chicago blues, influences on, 44
 Gaillard, Bulee “Slim” and, 346
 Hawkins, Screamin’ Jay and, 415
 Jordan, Louis and, 585
 Lewis, Smiley, master of, 601
 in postwar era, 48, 121
 in postwar era, vocalists, 119
 Tympany Five and, 515
 See also rhythm and blues (R & B)
Jump In, 1069
 Jump Steady Blues, 897
 Jump the Blues, 469
 Jump, Red, Jump, 788
 Jumpin’ with Jarvis, 612
Junco Partner, 139
 Junior Kimbrough’s, Holly Springs, Mississippi juke joint, 554
 Junker Blues, 290, 436
 Just a Little Bit, 371
 Just a Spoonful, 298, 923
 Just Ain’t No Love, 6
 Just As I Am, 21
 Just Be True, 192
 Just Before Dawn, 156
 Just Can’t Stay, 726
 Just Consider Yourself Baby, 190
 Just Do Me Right, 751
 Just Got to Know, 669
Just Jesse Belvin, 73
 Just Keep It Up, 211
 Just Like a Dog, 990
 Just Make Love to Me, 1058
Just One of Those Things, 98
 Just Pickin’ , 572
 Just Want to Make Love to You, 488
Just Won’t Burn, 228, 963
- K
- K. C. Lovin’, 593, 624
 K.O.B. (Kings of the Blues), 578
 Kaffel, Mike, 313
 Kahdot, Leo with Anderson, Pinkney “Pink,” 26
 Kalb, Danny, 388
 Kallman’s Syndrome, 867
 Kanaras, Pete, 726
 Kane, Candye, 521
 with James, Steve, 505
 Kane, Nick, 576
Kankan Blues, 12
 Kankan Blues, 12
 Kansas City Blues and Heritage Festival, 559
 Kansas City Blues Part 3, 188
 Kansas City Blues Society, 559
 Kansas City Blues Strummers, 317
 Kansas City Blues, 496, 558, 682
 Kansas City Orchestra with Leonard, Harlan, 595
 Kansas City Red, 559–560
 Kansas City Rockets with Leonard, Harlan, 595
 Kansas City Shuffle, 595
 Kansas City, 557–559
 contemporary blues scene, 558
 Depression-era blues, 117
 Hatch, Provine, Jr. “Little Hatch” and, 414
 juke joints, 558–559
 Kansas City sound, 557–558
 Kimbrough, Lottie, vocalist in, 566
 Lee, Julia and, 591
 Parker, Charlie, blues tradition in, 513 swing bands from, 512
Kant Sheck Dees Bluze, 259
 Kante Manfila & Kalla, 12
 Kaplan, Bruce, 125, 333, 817
 Kaplan, Fred, 560
 Kaplan, John S., 871
 Kaplan, Morry, 248
 Kapp, Jack, 163, 261
 Kari, Sax, 880
 Kassie Jones, 187, 598
 Katie May, 462
 Katz, Bruce, 560
 Kaukonen, Jorma with Block, Rory, 101
 Kazan, Elia, 132, 326
 Kazanoff, Mark “Kaz”
 with Clark, W.C., 211
 with Johnson, Luther “Georgia Boy” “Snake,” 534
 Kazoo, 560–561
 1920s, most popular in, 560
 in jug bands, 46–47
 KCOH, Houston, 176
 K-Doe, Ernie, 561
 with King, Earl, 571
 Keb’ Mo’, 561–562
 Kee, John P., 93
Keep on Driving, 411
 Keep Your Lamp Trimmed and Burning, 116
 Keep-A-Drivin’, 1089
Keepin’ the Blues Alive, 20
Keeping the Blues Alive Award, Blues Foundation, 20
 Keepnews, Orrin, 313
 with Hooker, John Lee, 460
 Keil, Charles, 132, 333, 441
 Keith Richards Blues Collection, 608
 Keith, Linda with Hendrix, Jimi, 421
 Keith-Albee-Orpheum theater circuit with Crippen, Katie, 240
 Kelley, Keith M. with Brown, Oscar II “Bobo,” 160
 Kellum, Alphonso “Country,” 562
 Kelly, Jack with Batts, Will, 67
 Kelly, Jo Ann, 562
 Kelly, Kevin, 779
 Kelly, Paul, 562
 Kelly, Vance, 562
 Kelly’s Love, 181
 Kelton, Robert “Bob,” 562–563
 Kemble Brothers Furniture Company,
 Fort Worth, 563
 Kemble, Will Ed, 563
 Kennedy Center Honors Award
 Berry, Chuck, 76
 jazz musicians, 517
 Kennedy Center, 76, 365, 517, 573
 Kennedy, Jesse “Tiny,” 563
 Kennedy, John F., 123 inauguration of, Jackson, Mahalia, 498
 Kennedy, Robert F., 123
 Kenner, Chris, 563
 Kent Records, 244, 350, 431, 700
 Kent, Don, 58, 125, 126, 651, 818, 874
 Kent, Willie, 563
 Kentuckians, The, 869
 Kentucky Stomp, 768
 Kentucky, Monroe, Bill and, 231
 Kerr, Barbara with Gordon, Rosco(e), 371

INDEX

- Keskidee* (magazine), 754
Key to Love, 251
 Key to the Highway, 152, 209, 367, 563–564
 Keyboards electronic synthesizer. See electronic synthesizer keyboards
 Keynote, 689–890
 Keys, melodies set in, 109
 KFFA (radio station), Helena, Arkansas, 30, 120, 243, 439, 656, 724, 750, 797
 with Curtis, James “Peck,” 243
 with James, Elmore, 500
 KFRC radio, San Francisco, 164
 Kickin’ the Blues, 158
 Kid Ory, with Glenn, Lloyd, 367
 Kid Stormy Weather, 564–565
 Kid, The, 583, 1014
 Kidney Stew Blues, 1037
 Kikongo language, “mojo” and, 457
 Killen, William D. (Buddy), 266
 Killer Diller (film), 326
 Killin’ Floor Blues, 565
 Killin’ Floor, 585
 Killing Floor
 with Dale, Larry, 245
 with Gaddy, Bob, 355
 Killing Floor, 421, 472, 568, 939
 “Killing floor,” definition of, 565
 “Killing Floor” (“The Lemon Song”), 565
 Kimbrough, David, Jr., 565
 Kimbrough, Junior, 565–566 with Belfour, Robert, 69 with Jackson, Calvin (2), 530
 juke joint belonging to, 554
 Mississippi hill country sound, 390
 Kimbrough, Kinny, juke joint belonging to, 554
 Kimbrough, Lottie. See Beaman, Lottie, 68
 Kimbrough, Sylvester, 68
 Kind Hearted Woman Blues, 118, 536–537
Kind of Blue, 515
 Kindhearted Woman Blues, 105–106, 678
 Kinds, Hans, 243
 King Biscuit Blues Festival, 30, 126, 347, 605, 877, 1090 King Biscuit Time (radio program), KFFA, 30, 120, 656, 750, 761, 796, 797 birth of, 439
 with Curtis, James “Peck,” 243–244
 with James, Elmore, 500
 Talaho medicine, 500
King Biscuit Time, 1088
 King Biscuit Time, 286
 King Cole, Nat, 650
 King Curtis, 290, 357, 421, 422
 with Allen, Annisteen, 18
 King Ernest, 571
 King Kasuals, 421
 King label, 870
 “King of Chicago Blues, The.” See Howlin’ Wolf; Waters, Muddy, 203
King of Delta Blues Singers, 658
 King of the Boogie.” See Hooker, John Lee, 459
King of the Delta Blues Singers, 846
King of the Delta Blues, 143
 “King of the Jukeboxes.” See Jordan, Louis, 549
King of the Jungle, 178
King of the Road, 875
 “King of the Rub Board, The.” See Chenier, Cleveland, 196
King of the Stroll, The, 1089
 King of the Stroll, The, 832
 King Records, 657
 King Size Papa, 591
King Size Soul, 570
 King Snake, 576
 King, Albert, 508, 567–569
 Ace (UK) CDs, 5
 appropriations from, 123
 guitar, 1950s, 387
 guitar, 1960s, 387–388
 with Hollywood Fats, 451
 influential music of, 125
 with Johnson, Johnnie, 531
 with Levy, Ron, 597
 music and influence, 568
 King, B.B., 421, 741
 band, 861
 scale combining, 864–865
 King, Ben E., 283, 570, 593, 839
 King, Black Ivory, 660
 King, Bnois, 569
 with Kubek, Smokin’ Joe, 580
 King, Bobby, 569
 with Cooder, Ry, 224
 King, Carole, 865
 King, Chris Thomas, 569
 King, Earl, 570–571
 King, Eddie, 571
 King, Freddie, 572–573
 with Allison, Luther, 21
 appropriations from, 123
 with Burton, Aron, 170
 with Clapton, Eric, 209
 with Cotton, James, 229
 guitar, 1950s, 387
 “Hide Away,” 425
 with Jones, Andrew “Junior Boy,” 542–543
 with Kubek, Smokin’ Joe, 580
 King, Little Jimmy, 357, 850
 King, Martin Luther, Dr., 35, 122, 351, 795 funeral, Jackson, Mahalia, 498
 in Georgia, 364
 King, Riley B. “B.B.,” 573–576 with Adams, Arthur, 7
 with Allen, Pete, 19
 with Allison, Luther, 21
 appropriations from, 123 awards, 573 becoming professional, 574–575 black sacred music, influence of, 91
 with Bland, Bobby “Blue,” 98
 BluesWay, 1
 with Brooks, Lonnie, 150
 Buffalo Booking Agency and, 205 career in full swing, 575 childhood years, 574
 with Clapton, Eric, 209 with Cosby Show, The (television series), 328
 with Cotton, James, 229 electric guitar, development, 386
 guitar, 1950s, 387
 guitar, 1960s, 387
 with Hendrix, Jimi, 421
 Hoochie Coochie Man, 454
 with Hooker, John Lee, 459
 influences on, 532
 influential music of, 91, 102, 395
 Japanese tour, 506
 with Jordan, Louis, 550
 with Lang, Jonny, 583
 with Levy, Ron, 597
 “Lucille” guitar, signed, in Europe’s Blues Library, Notodden, Norway, 603 music of, humor in, 477
 reissues, 5
 Southwest ensemble style, influences on, 48
 writings about, 445
 King, Saunders, 576
 King, Warren, 779
 King/Federal/Queen, 571–572
 Ace (UK) and, 5
 Allen, Annisteen, 18
 Bass, Ralph, 65
 Bostic, Earl, 140
 Bradshaw, Myron “Tiny,” 144
 Brown, Charles, 152
 Brown, Roy James, 161
 Cincinnati and, 208
 country music and, 231–232
 Delmore Brothers, 231
 De Luxe/Regal and, 259
 Dupree, Champion Jack, 290
 federal subsidiary of, 15, 673
 Glover, Henry, 368
 Hooker, Earl Zebedee, 458
 Howard, Camille, 471
 Hunter, Ivory Joe, 481
 Johnson, Syl, 539
 King’s Federal label, 673
 King’s Highway, The, 90
Kingpin, 302

- “Kings of Jazz” series, Smith,
 Bessie, 440
 Kings of Rhythm with Gayles, Billy, 362
 with Kizart, Willie, 578
 Kingsmen, on Berry, Richard, 77
 Kingston Mines club, Chicago, 234
 Kinman, Chris, with Diddley, Bo, 268
 Kinsey Report, 577
 Kinsey, Lester “Big Daddy,” 577
 Kirk, Andrew Dewey “Andy,” 577
 big band, boogie-woogie adapted
 for, 513
 Sunset Club, Kansas City, 558
 Kirkland, Eddie, 577
 Kirkland, Leroy, 577–578
 Kirkpatrick, Bob, 578
 Kirwan, Danny, 332
 Kiss Tomorrow Goodbye, 346
 “Kitchen variant,” “How Long How Long,” recordings of, 470
 Kittrell, Christine, 578
 Kizart, Lee, 578
 Kizart, Willie, 578
 KKJZ-FM (radio station), 645
 KLAC-TV (Chicago), 150
 Klatzko, Bernard, 125, 216, 423, 439, 442, 672
 Knife and a Fork, A, 25
 Knight, Curtis, with Hendrix, Jimi, 421
 Knight, Gladys, Georgia roots, 365
 Knight, Jesse, Jr., 63
 Knights of Pythias, with Handy,
 William Christopher “W.C.,” 400
 Knob Creek Flood, 1000
 Knockin’ 60, 496
 Knopfler, Mark, influences on, 395
 Knowles, R.L., 485
 Ko Ko Mo Blues Parts 1 and 2, 1080
 Ko Ko Mo Blues, 117, 737, 1008
 Ko Ko Mo, 222
 Kochi, Akira, 788
 Koda, Michael “Cub,” 578–579 writings of, 579
 Kodachrome, 1006
 Koerner, John, 442
 Koerner, Ray and Glover, 579, 869
 Koester, Robert “Bob,” 119, 299, 330, 476–477
 with Estes, John Adam “Sleepy
 John,” 305
 first blues recordings by, 442
 with Iglauer, Bruce, 20
 Koester, Robert, 440, 441, 442, 1077
 Kokomo Blues, 106, 118, 737, 977
 Ko-Ko-Mo Blues, 15
 Kokomo, 579
 Kolax, King, 579
 Konitz, Lee, bebop pioneer, 513
 Kool Gents, 98, 211
 Kooper, Al, with Bloomfield,
 Michael, 102
 Korner, Alexis, 579–580
 with Baldry, “Long” John, 43
 with Davies, Cyril, 251
 influences on, 123
 in postwar era, 440
 Kort, Franklin, 67
 Kozmic Blues Band, 544
 KPFA (radio station),
 San Francisco, 857
 Krasnow, Robert A., 104
 Crazy Kat label, 881
 KRC Records, 783
 Krell, William, 766
 Krupa, Gene, JATP performances, 515
 Ku Klux Klan, Great Migration
 and, 374
 Kubek, Smokin’ Joe, 101, 580
 Kubik, Gerhard, 13 with Toure, Ali Farka, 12
 Kunstadt, Leonard with Charters,
 Samuel Barclay, 196
 KWEM, West Memphis, Arkansas
 Howlin’ Wolf on, 472
 King, Riley B. “B.B.” and, 574
L
 L&N Railroad, 643
 L+R, 297, 778
La Bamboula—Danse des Negres, 766
 La Cucaracha, 902
 La Grange, 1107
 La Valse De Gueydan, 29
 Labels, 5, 6, 7, 8, 16, 17, 18, 25, 27, 56,
 65, 69, 129, 160, 163, 166, 207, 236,
 245, 250
 Ace (UK) licensing of black-owned, 1, 87, 88, 186, 329, 375, 566, 589, 681, 690, 911, 912
 Lacey, Rubin “Rube,” 581
 with House, Eddie “Son,” 465, 466
 Lacey, William James “Bill,” 581
Ladies and the Babies, The, 591
 Ladies and the Babies, The, 591
Lady in Satin, 449
Lady in the Streets, 583
 Lady Madonna, 278
 Ladyfinger Revue with Davies, Debbie,
 250, 251, 390, 670, 874
 Laibley, Arthur
 with House, Eddie “Son,” 466, 533
 James, Nehemiah “Skip,” 503, 504
 with Johnson, Louise, 533, 534
 Laine, Frankie, 36
 Lambert, Eddie, 389
 Lambert, Lloyd, 581, 582
 Lambert, Phamous, 581
 Lance label, 582, 912, 989
 Lance, Major, 582
 Land lord Blues, 481
 Land of 1000 Dances, 910
 Land of 1000, 564
 Land, James L. See Ace, Buddy
 Landis, John, 130, 328, 444
 Landreth, Sonny, 5
 Lane, Mary “Little Mary,” 752
 Lane, Mary, 582
 Lane, William Henry “Juba,” 112
 Lang, Eddie, 130, 583
 with Alexander, Algernon
 “Texas,” 17
 with Bailey, Mildred, 40
 with Johnson, Lonnie, 532, 534
 Lang, Jonny, 583
 Langford, William, 369
 Langley Avenue Jive Cats, 267
 Langston, Tony, 87
 Languages, 10, 11
 Lanker, Brian, 228
 Lanor Records, 583
Larger than Life, 431
 Larkin, Milton “Tippy,” 583
 Larkin, Milton with Jacquet,
 Illinois, 499
 LaRocca, Connie, 346
 Larsen, Nella, 616
 LaSalle, Denise, 583, 584
 “I Just Want to Make Love to You,”
 275, 334, 339, 488, 502
 Lass of Roch Royal, The, 524
 Last Fair Deal Gone Down, The,
 106, 537
Last Fair Deal, 101
 Last Go Round, 932
 Last Kind Words Blues, 1073
Last Man Standing, 214
 Last Night, 623, 930, 1013
Last Soul Company, The, 650
 Last Time, The, 844
 Last Two Dollars, 960
 Lastie, David, 584
 Late Freight, 695
Late Night Blues, 229
Late Night City Blues, 176
Late Show, The, 502
 Lateef, Yusef, world music explorations
 of, 517
 Later Alligator, 363
 Latimore, Benny, 584
 Latin jazz, bebop musicians playing, 513
 Laughin’ and Clownin’, 542
 Laughing Song, The, 693
 Laundromat Blues, 568, 930
 Laurie, Joe with Handy, William
 Christopher “W.C.,” 401, 402
 Laury, Booker T., 584
 LaVere, Stephen, Johnson, Robert, researching, 538
LaVern Baker Sings Bessie Smith, 42
 Lawdy (Lloyd Price), 783
 Lawdy Miss Clawdy, 783
 Lawhorn, Samuel “Sammy,” 585

INDEX

- Lawlars, Ernest “Little Son Joe,” 585
 Laws, Johnny, 585
 Lawson, Henry with Johnson, Pete, 535
 Lawyer Clark Blues, 305, 478
 Lay, Sam, 585–586
 with Butterfield, Paul, 16
 Layla and Other Assorted Love Songs, “Key to the Highway” on, 563
Layla and Other Assorted Love Songs, 209, 564
 Layla, 123
 Layton, Chris, 287, 876, 976, 1032
Lazarus, 133
Lazy Lester Rides Again, 586
 Lazy Lester Rides Again, 586
 Lazy Lester, 586
 syncretized blues with Latin rhythm, 436
 Lead Pencil Blues, 386, 536
 Leadbelly (film) with Harris, Hi Tide, 411, 412, 586
 Leadbelly (Huddie Ledbetter), 586, 754, 768, 866, 884
 Leadbelly, 3, 131, 153, 224, 325, 327, 394, 411, 434, 495, 586, 627, 671, 676, 768 crossover artist, 229, 502
 with Davis, Reverend Gary, 256–258
 film of, 325, 326, 327, 328
 Hispanic influences on, 432–437
 with Jefferson, Blind Lemon, 518–520
 Jesus Is a Dying Bed Maker (“In My Time of Dying”), 522
 levee blues, 596
 with Lomax, Alan, 131
 Leadbitter, Michael Andrew “Mike,” 587, 588
 writings of, 624
 Leake, Lafayette, 588
 Leaner, Bernice, 624–625
 Leaner, Ernest E., 588
 Leaner, Ernie, 589, 738, 746
 Leaner, George and Ernest, 588
 Leaner, George Willis, 588
 Leaner, George, 588
 with Burrage, Harold, 169 with Clay, Otis, 213
 Leaner, Tony, 738
Learned my lesson, 1106
 Leary, S.P., 589
 with Howlin’ Wolf, 9, 471
 with Jones, “Little” Johnny, 546
Leave Here Walking, 168
 Leave My Woman Alone, 121, 889
 Leave Your Hat On, 502
 Leavin’ Blues, 440
 Leavin’ Trunk Blues (book), 617
Leavin’ Trunk Blues, 617
 Leaving Here Walking, 168
 Leaving Home Blues, 3
 Leavy, Calvin, 589
 Leavy, Hosea, 590
 Lectric Chair Blues, 478, 869
 Lectures, interviews, LP recordings, collection, Wadenswil, Switzerland, 603 Led Zeppelin II, 590
 Led Zeppelin, 590
 Jesus Is a Dying Bed Maker (In My Time of Dying), 522
 Killing Floor (The Lemon Song), 565
Ledbetter Heights, 876
 Ledbetter, Huddie Leadbelly
 Hispanic influences on the blues, 432–438
 Ledbetter, Huddie. See Leadbelly, 590
 Ledbitter, Huddie (Leadbelly). See Leadbelly (Huddie Ledbetter)
 Lee Williams and the Spiritual QCs, 93
 Lee, Bertha, 687, 749
 Lee, Bonnie, 590
 Lee, Bryan, 876
 Lee, Frankie, 590
 Lee, George E. 559, 595
 with Leonard, Harlan, 631
 Lee, John A., 459
 Lee, Julia, 591
 as “First Lady of the Blues,” 559
 Lee, Julie, 558
 Lee, Leonard, 370, 595, 878
 Lee, Lovie, 591, 592
 with Bell, Carey, 70
 Lee’s Unleashed Blues (club), 865
 Leecan, Bobby, 592
 Leeds Music, Levy, Louis “Lou,” 597
Left Hand Brand, 357, 467
 Left Hand Brand, 357, 467
 Left Hand Frank, 592
 Lefty Bates Band, with Carmichael, James “Lucky,” 182
 Legal aspects, of recording, 711
Legend Live, 626
 Legend of Otis Redding, The, 833
Legend of Sleepy John Estes, The, 305
Legend Returns, The, 1107
 Legendary Blues Band, 592, 833, 961
 with Jones, Calvin “Fuzzy,” 543
 Legends (club), 59, 227, 234, 237, 558
 Leiber and Stoller, 744
 Coasters, The, 215
 Leiber, Jerry, 592, 782, 839, 882
 Leigh, Keri, 593
 Leighton Brothers/Shields, 344
 Frankie and Johnny, 114, 338, 344, 384
 Lejeune, Iry, 593
 Lembo, Kim, 594
 Lemon Song, The, 565
 Lennon, John at Blind Pig Cafe, 101, 1082
 Lenny, 1033
 Lenoir, J.B., 594
 AFBF European tours, 23
 with Below, Fred, 71, 72
 with Jones, Birmingham, 543
 postwar era, 119
 topical lyrics of, 120
 Leonard, Hal with Johnson, Robert, 409
 Leonard, Harlan, 595
 Leonard, Herbert, harmonica, 407
 Leroy, Baby Face (Leroy Foster), 341, 342, 588, 623, 745, 746, 846
 Les Blues de Crowley, 3
 Les Blues De Voyages, 3, 29
 Let It Be Me, 171, 306
 Let It Rain, 211
 Let It Rock journal, Leadbitter, Michael Andrew “Mike,” articles by, 587, 588
 Let It Rock, 531
 Let It Roll, 18
 Let Me Be the Man My Daddy Was, 6
 Let Me Go Home, Whisky, 691
 Let Me Hold Your Hand, 198
Let Me In and Hey, 1094
 Let Me Play with Your Poodle, 202
 Let Me Ride Your Mule, 1105
 Let the Doorbell Ring, 245
 Let the Good Times Roll, 370, 549, 595, 878, 979
Let the Good Times Roll, 595, 878
Let’s Dance, 1031–1032
 Let’s Have a Party, 836, 1060
Let’s Hide Away and Dance Away with Freddy King, 426
 Let’s Stay Together, 376
 Let’s Straighten It Out, 584
 Let’s Work Together, 937
 Let’s Go, Let’s Go, Let’s Go, 44
 Let’s Stick Together, 414
 Let’s Work Together, 179, 414
 Letter designations, describing song structures, 337
 Letter, The, 843
 Letters from Mississippi, 432
Lettin’ Go, 868
 Levee blues, 425, 596, 996, 1001
 Levee Bound Blues, 596
 Levee Camp Blues, 466, 596
 Levee Camp Moan, 320, 596
 Levee Work Song, 596
 Levees
 black labor, constructed by, 596 system, 1927 flood, 596
 Levine, Lawrence, 479 blues songs, ownership of, 3, 78, 209, 396, 457, 705, 767
 Levy, Louis “Lou,” 597
 Levy, Morris, 597
 Levy, Ron, 597
 Lewis, Bobby, 596, 597

- Lewis, Furry, 598
 guitar, 2, 3, 22, 24, 30, 47, 48
 humor in blues of, 476, 478
 with James, Steve, 505, 506
 “John Henry,” 57, 318, 340, 398
 lyrics of, 33, 106, 147, 337, 503
- Lewis, George with Charters, Samuel Barclay, 194
- Lewis, Jimmy, 867
- Lewis, John, 480
 cool jazz style, 164, 454, 515, 516, 517, 630, 705, 808
 influences of Davis, Miles sound, 551
- Lewis, Johnie (Johnny), 599
- Lewis, Meade “Lux,” 599
 with Ammons, Albert and Johnson, Pete, 24, 926, 1097, 1103
 boogie-woogie at house-rent parties,
 467, 468, 512
 “From Spirituals to Swing” concern,
 Carnegie Hall, 1938, 235, 408, 514,
 517, 535, 600, 770
 with Hammond, John Paul, 399–400
 with Humes, Helen, 474
 influential music of, 3
- Lewis, Noah, 601
 with Cannon, Gus, 179, 180, 601, 755
- Lewis, Pete “Guitar,” 475, 535, 601
- Lewis, Smiley, 601–602
 with Allen, Lee, 19
- Lewis, Stan, 65, 523, 963
- Lexington Kentucky, 495
- Liar, The, 889
- Liberty Memorial, center stage for Kansas City Blues and Heritage
 Festival, 559
- Liberty records, 207, 490
- Libraries, 13, 602 in Canada, 147, 171, 418, 602 in Germany, 602, 754, 944 in Norway, 602, 946
 Switzerland, 142, 156, 603, 630
 United Kingdom, 5, 66, 1019
- Library of Congress field studies, 131
- Library of Congress Music
 Division, 438
- Library of Congress, 10, 131, 154, 162, 204, 438, 538, 778, 851, 767, 873
- Boogie Woogie Trio, recordings of, 535, 600, 770
- Brown, Buster and, 154
- Brown, Gabriel, 157–158
- Brown, Willie Lee, 162
 field recordings, 10, 66, 306, 418, 423,
 439, 440, 741, 817, 849, 883, 886, 970, 997, 998
- Frazier, Calvin, 346
- Guthrie, Woodrow Wilson “Woody”
 and, 394
- Harris, Pete, 39, 869
- House, Eddie “Son” recordings, 298
- Leadbetter, Huddie and, 596, 795
 “March of Time” series, 325, 326
- Lick It Before You Stick It, 1097
- Lie to me*, 583
- Life and Legend of Leadbelly, The
 (book), 629
- Life Gave Me A Dirty Deal, 137
- Life Is a Bitch, 21
- Life of Ease*, 592
- Life Saver Blues, 885
- Life, Love and the Blues*, 502
- Life, Love and the Blues, 502
- Lifetime Achievement Awards (Rock and Roll Hall of Fame), Brown,
 Ruth, 161, 162, 212, 711, 850
- Lifetime achievement awards, 606
- Blues Foundation, 127, 156, 559, 622, 625, 687
- Liggins, Jimmy, 611
- Liggins, Joe, 611–612
 influential music of, 99
 with Jackson, Little Willie, 498
- Liggions, Dave, 612
- Lightfoot, Alexander “Papa
 George,” 612
- Lightnin’ & Co.*, 83
- Lightnin’ Blues, 999
- Lightnin’ Hopkins, 17, 77, 168, 220
- Lightnin’ Slim, 307, 392, 613
 with Lazy Lester, 586
- Lightnin’s Boogie, 463
- Lightnin’s Special, 463
- Lights Out, 623
- Ligon, Joe, 691
- Lil’ Ed and the Blues Imperials
 with Hutto, Joseph Benjamin
 “B.J.,” 484
- Limehouse Blues, 246
- Limehouse, 246
- Limited Love, 637
- Lincoln Center, New York City, jazz, preserving repertoire and fostering new compositions, 517, 978
- Lincoln, Charlie, 42, 221
- Lincoln, Laughing Charley (Charley Hicks), 775
- Lindenau, Donald Clark, 130
- Liner notes, 68, 444
 on Agram Blues/Old Tramp
 recordings, 13
 collection of, 272, 313
 by Guralnick, Peter, 393, 394 scholarly, Goldstein, Kenneth, 369
- Linkchain, Hip, 613
 with Kent, Willie, 563
- Lion and the Signifying Monkey,
 The, 131
- Lionel Hampton Orchestra, 215, 499, 861, 1052
 boogie-woogie adapted for, 15, 1019
 with Cobb, Arnett, 215–216
 with Jacquet, Illinois, 499
- Lippmann, Horst, 275, 689
- Lipscomb, Mance, 614
 blues revival, 1950s, 275, 312
 with Hawkins, Ernie, 414
 1960s folk revival, 257, 299, 440, 552
- LiPuma, Thomas A., 104
- Listeners Guide to the Blues*,
 The (book), 408
- Liston, Virginia, 615
- Lists in blues lyrics, 105, 109, 685
- Listservs, 126
- Literacy, 124, 126 in the blues, 389, 717 rise in, 113, 766
- Literary works, study of, 446
- Literature, blues in, 615–618, 753
- Literature, socially uplifting, demand
 for, 615
- Little B. B., 733
- Little Big Man (film), 400
- Little Bird Told Me, A, 58
- Little Bitty Gal’s Blues, 535
- Little Bitty Pretty One, 212, 412
- Little Bluebird, 931, 959
- Little Bobby, 25, 618, 720
- Little Boy Blue, 98, 386
- Little Brother, 9, 700, 701, 750, 940
- Little Buster, 313, 618
- Little by Little, 159, 205, 1065
- Little Charlie and the Nightcats with Hammond, John Paul, 122,
 399–400, 590
- Little Charlie, 399, 618, 809
- Little Cow and Calf Is Gonna Die
 Blues, 505
- Little Darlin’, 307
- Little Dave and Big Love*, 744
- Little Games*, 846
- Little Girl, 342, 576
- Little Italy, Kansas City, 535
- Little Laura Blues, 305
- Little Mike, 619
- Little Milton, 134, 253, 387, 529
 with Caron, Danny, 182
 guitar, 1950s, 2, 6, 68
 Japanese blues showcases, 506
- Little Miss Cornshucks, 620, 735, 859
- Little Old Log Cabin, The, 364
- Little Queen of Spades, 625
- Little Red Rooster, 275, 338, 472, 846, 1020
- Little Richard, 97, 159, 620, 621, 719
 with Allen, Lee, 19
 with Gipson, Byron “Wild Child,” 367
 with Hendrix, Jimi, 420–422
 with Hill, Michael, 431
 with Hughes, Joe “Guitar,” 474
 with James, Etta, 501–502
- Little Richard’s Greatest Hits, 621
- Little Sandy Review (periodical), 442
- Little School Girl, 448

INDEX

- Little Sister, 779
 Little Sonny, 422, 546
 Little Village, 916
 Little Walter Trio, 746–747
 Little Walter, 33, 50, 148, 178, 198
 with Below, Fred, 71–72
 with Brim, John, 147–148
 with Butterfield, Paul, 172
 with Campbell, Eddie C., 178
 “Catfish Blues,” 188, 244
 with Chess, Leonard, 199
 Chicago blues influences on, 44
 Chicago, postwar era, 49
 with Cotton, James, 228–230 film, 325
 with Gray, Henry, 373
 harmonica, 405
 with Jackson, Grady “Fats,” 496
 with Lee, Lovie, 591–592
 with Waters, Muddy, 1054–1058
 Little Wing, 420
 Little Woman You’re So Sweet, 775
 Little, 605
 Littlefield, “Little” Willie, 5, 130, 346, 593, 710, 829
 Littlejohn, John, 625
Live Again, 213
 Live Aid concerts with Clapton,
 Eric, 122
Live Alive!, 1033
Live Alive, 1032
*Live and Cookin’ at Alice’s
 Revisited*, 473
 Live and Cookin’ at Alice’s
 Revisited, 473
Live at Airport Grocery, 342
Live at Carnegie Hall, 847, 1033
Live at Lupo’s Heartbreak Hotel, 847
Live at Montreux 1982 and 1985, 1033
Live at Slim’s, 1042
Live at the Au-Go-Go, 133
Live at the Fillmore East, 934
Live at the Fillmore, 570
 Live at the Fillmore, 570
Live at the Gate of Horn, 689
Live at the Harlem Square Club, 225
Live at the Mint, 1095
 Live at the Mocambo, 1032
Live at the Mocambo, 1032–1033
 Live at the Regal, 84, 123, 575,
 657, 817
Live at the Regal, 85, 123, 575, 657
Live at the Topanga Corral, 865
Live at Winterland, 422
Live from Austin, Texas, 1033
Live from Cell Block, 722
Live from Chicago! Bigger Than Life!!, 82
 Live from Chicago, 82
Live from Chicago: Mr. Superharp Himself, 229
Live in Chicago!, 289
Live in Chicago, 21
Live in Europe, 358
Live in Japan, 220, 293
Live in NYC 1997, 1094
Live On, 876
 Live performances
 with Allison, Luther, 21
 Atlantic/Atco/Spark recordings,
 35–36
 Live the Life I Sing About in
 My Song, 90
Live Wire Blues Power, 657
Live Wire/Blues Power, 568
 Live Wire/Blues Power, 568
Live Yardbirds with Jimmy Page, 846
Live!, 213
 Living Blues Critics Awards Branch, William Earl “Billy” and,
 145–146
Living Blues magazine, 119, 121, 123,
 299, 737, 764, 787, 797
 Blue Smitty interview, 103
 critics’ Poll, 877
 Garon, Paul and, 360–361
 “Searching for Robert Johnson”
 (article), 394, 445
Living Blues, 609, 877
Living Chicago Blues (Anthology), 20, 122
 with Bell, Lurrie, 71 with Embry, “Queen” Sylvia, 303
 with Left Hand Frank, 236, 592
 vol. 3, with Lee, Lovie, 591–592
 Living Chicago Blues series, 125, 154,
 388, 592, 648
Living Chicago Blues, 125, 154, 875
 Living Chicago blues, 20
Living Chicago Blues, Vol. 3, 591–592
Living Chicago Blues, Vol. 4, 266, 303
 Living in America, 159, 352
 Living in the City, 253
 Loan Me a Handkerchief, 346
 Loar, Lloyd, 386
 Lobby, The, Juarez nightclub, with Hunter, Long John, 1053
Local color, 22
 Locale, adaptation of, in blues lyrics, 103
 Locke, Alain, 615, 980
 Lockwood, Arthur, 625
 influential music of, 103
 Lockwood, Robert Jr., 625–626
 with Boyd, Eddie, 142
 with Curtis, James “Peck,” 243–244
 “Dust My Broom,” 487
 with Harney, Richard “Hacksaw,” 445
 in Japan, 507
 with King, Freddie, 572 Lockwood, Robert, 386, 625
 influences on, 115
 Lofton, Cripple Clarence, 626
 boogie-woogie at house-rent parties, 468
 “goffer dust” and, 456
 Log Cabin Blues, 262, 639
 Logan, John “Juke,” 626
 Lollipop Mama, 882
 Lomax, Alan, 626–628
 Boogie Woogie Trio, recordings
 of, 770
 with Boy Blue, 141
 with Broonzy, Big Bill, 150–152
 with Cooke, Sam, 224
 field hollers and, 320
 film of, 1935, 325
 with Frazier, Calvin, 346 with Guthrie, Woodrow Wilson
 “Woody,” 394
 with Hemphill, Sid, 419
 highways and, 223
 with Hill, Rosa Lee, 431
 with House, Eddie “Son,” 465 with Hurston, Zora Neale, 474, 651
 with Johnson, Robert, 536–538
 with Leadbelly, 586 railroads, building, 394 with Suarez, Jose, 433
 Lomax, John Avery, 628
 Lomax, John, 628 with Harris, Blind Jesse, 3 highways and, 223
 with Leadbelly, 586
 Lomax, John, Mrs., 628
 London Blues, 708
 London dance clubs, 1980s, 517
 acid jazz and, 517, 597, 772
London Howlin’ Wolf Sessions, The,
 473, 841
*London Howling Wolf Sessions,
 The*, 209
London Sessions, 70
London Sessions, The, 358
 London, Mel, 19, 146, 204, 458, 501
 with Allen, Ricky, 19
 with Hooker, Earl, 458
 with James, Elmore, 500
 songwriting talent, 669, 738
 London. See United Kingdom and Ireland, 1019–1022
 Johnson, Lonnie with musical revue
 in, 532
 London-American, 628
Lone Star Shootout, 482, 1044
 Lonely Avenue, 121, 889
Lonely Girl (Blues On Blues), 497
 Lonely Hours, 916
 Lonely Schooldays, 750
 Lonely Teardrops, 840
*Lonesome as I Can Be: The Jewel
 Recordings*, 412
Lonesome Bedroom Blues, 544
 Lonesome Daddy Blues, 234
 Lonesome Day Blues, 503

- Lonesome Day Today, A, 869
 Lonesome Day, 407
 Lonesome House Blues, 714
 Lonesome Refugee, 544
 Lonesome Road Blues, 318
Lonesome Road Blues, 469
 Lonesome Sundown, 628, 693
 Lonesome Woman Blues, 425, 572
 Lonesome, 230
 Long Beach Blues Festival, 780
 Long Distance Call, 534
 Long Gone Lost John, 54, 495
 Long Gone, 695, 989
 Long Lonesome Blues, 385, 994
 Long Man Blues, 82
 Long Man, The, 82
 Long Old Road, 541
 Long Tall Mama, 297, 448
 Long Tall Sally, 621, 840, 890
Long Time Comin', A, 300
 Long Train Runnin, 840
 Long Ways from Home, 533
 Long, James Baxter "J.B.," 629
 Long, Worth, 778
 Longing for Daddy Blues, 385, 1061
 Look at the People, 507
 Look on Yonder Wall, 716
 Look Out Mabel, 240
 Look Out, Sister (film) with Jordan,
 Louis and his band, 549
Look Out, Sister, 549
 Look What You've Done For Me, 376 Lookie, Lookie, Here Comes Cookie, 157
 Looking Up at Down: The Emergence of the Blues Culture (book), 444
 Loomis Gibson Blues, 702
Loose Ends, 422
Loose Tonight, 251
 Loosen These Pains, 1051
 Lornell, Christopher "Kip," 629
 Los Angeles, 1
 Bass, Ralph and, 65
 blacks migrating to, postwar era, 119
 Olympics, 1984, 502
 Texas blacks migrating to, postwar era, 118
 Losers Weepers, 502
Lost American Bluesmen, 480
 Lost Child, 843
 Lost Highway (book), 393
Lost Highway, 561
 Lost in a Dream, 155
Lost in the Blues, 853
 Lost John, harmonica, 407
 Lost Love, 663
 Lost Lover Blues, 566, 775
Lost Sessions, 172
 Lost Train Blues, 407
 Lost Wandering Blues, 660
 Lost Weekend, 602
 Lost Without Love, 629
- Lou's Pier, 47, 857
 Loud Mouth Lucy, 194
 Louie Bluie, 31
 Louie Louie, 77, 841
 Louis Jordan and His Tympany
 Five, 549
 Louis, Joe Hill, 630
*Louis: The Louis Armstrong Story
 1900–1971* (book), 547
 Louisiana blues, 488
 Louise, 1085
 Louisiana blues piano, 702
 Louisiana Blues, 4, 701, 702, 846
 Louisiana Boogie, 1082
 Louisiana Medicine Man, 833
 Louisiana Music Festival, 876
Louisiana Red Sings the Blues, 636
 Louisiana Red, 551, 581, 636
 Louisiana State Penitentiary at Angola,
 Leadbelly, 586
 Louisiana, 2–4, 630–636
 Adams, Johnny, 8
 A.F.O., 10
 Allen, Lee, 19
 Ball, Marcia, 43
 Bayou region, 631, 634
 blues, Lazy Lester and, 60, 121,
 436, 586
 Catholicism in, 455
 Gulf Coast, K-Doe, Ernie and, 561 history and overview, 630–631
 New Orleans, 630–634, 636
 postwar era, 634, 635
 pre-World War II era, 633, 635
 Louisville, Kentucky, 116, 183, 924, 1061, 1069
 jug band origins in, 551
 jug bands in, 46
 Lovable, 225
 Love and Happiness, 502, 890
 Love Bones, 959
Love Can Be Found Anywhere, 219
Love Coming Down, 335
 Love Gone to Waste, 238
 Love Her with a Feeling, 201
 Love in Vain Blues, 537
 Love in Vain, 626, 841, 1022, 1075
 Love in Vain: The Life and Legend of Robert Johnson
 (screenplay), 444
 Love Is a Five Letter Word, 1095
 Love Is Like a Boomerang, 98
Love is Strange, 42
 Love Makes a Woman, 6
 Love Me Darlin', 585, 939
 Love Me Darling, 965
 Love My Stuff, 749
 Love Potion No. 9, 215, 593, 839
 Love Reputation, A, 583
 Love Sickness, 238
Love the Game, 251
Love You Live, 489, 670
- Love You Save [May Be Your Own],
 The, 266
 Love, Clayton, 637
 Love, Coy "Hot Shot," 637
 Love, Preston, 637
 Love, Willie, 637
 with James, Elmore, 500
 Loveless Love, 181
 Lovell, John, Jr., 443
 Lover's Holiday, 867
 Lover's Question, A, 673, 840
 Loves Me Like a Rock, 273
 Lovesick lues, 232
 Lovie Lee with Harrington/Clearwater family, 410
 Lovin' Blues, 287
 Lovin' Machine, 413
 Lovin' Guitar Man, 843
 Loving You Woman Is Everything, 145
 Low Cotton, 775
 Low Down and Dirty, 21
 Low down funky blues, 317
 Low Mellow, 643
Lowdown Back Porch Blues, 636
 Lowe, Frank with Brown, Oscar II
 "Bobo," 160
 Lowe, Sammy, 638
 Lower My Dying Head, 522
 Lowery, Robert "Bob," 638
 Lowery, Robert, 130, 869, 1000
 Lowry, Peter B. "Pete," 638
 LP recordings, 603, 610
 LPs (long playing) records, 439 ten-inch, revival of, 5 twelve-inch, 442, 608, 811
 LPs (long playing), 439
 archive, Bowling Green
 University, 603
 archive, Indiana University, 603
 Luandrew, Albert. See Sunnyland Slim
 Lubinsky, Herman, 859
 Lucas, Harold, 215
 Lucas, William "Lazy Bill," 638
 Lucena, Gef and Genny, 659
 Lucero-White, Aurora, 433
 Lucille, 338, 890
 "Lucille," guitar belonging to King,
 Riley "B.B.," 574
 "Lucille," 573
 King, Riley B. "B.B.," name of
 guitar, 573
 signed by King, Riley B. "B.B.," in Europe's Blues Library, Notodden,
 Norway, 603
Lucky 13, 79, 186
Lucky Charm, 712
 Lucky Lips, 839
 Lucky Lou, 1081
 Lucky Millinder and His Orchestra, 91 with Jackson, Benjamin Clarence
 "Bullmoose," 344
 Lucky Records, 856

INDEX

Lucky Strikes!, 763
 Lucy Mae Blues, 881
 Ludella, 244, 844
 Ludwig drums, 414
 Harvey, Ted and, 414
 Luke, Otis, 544
 with Jones, Casey, 544
 Lukumi, 455
 Lumber camps, 639
 Lumber Yard Blues, 639
 Lunar Records, 669
 Lunceford, Jimmie, 132, 210, 449, 513, 986
 big band, boogie-woogie adapted for, 513
 with Holiday, Billie, 449
 Lupine, 1048
 Lusk, "Professor" Eddie, 218, 396, 1034
 Lutch, Joe, 640
 Lutch, Nellie, 640
Luther's Blues, 21, 391
 Lyell, Charles, 883
 Lynching and the blues, 641
 Holiday, Billie, 642
 Lynn, Barbara, 239, 642, 678, 976
 Lynn, Loretta, 232
 Lynn, Trudy, 218, 377, 488
 Lyon and Healey, Washburn guitar, 385
 Lyons, Arthur, 776
 Lyons, Bob, 134
 Lyrics, 105, 488, 520
 African musical traditions of slaves, 112 building levees, describing, 596 collections of, 444 convict labor, describing experiences with, 223, 224
 dirty dozens in, 270
 eleven-twenty-nine prison sentences, 301
 evolution of the blues, 124
 "goffer dust," 465–466
 of Hopkins, Sam "Lightnin'," 462 humorous, 476
 I Believe I'll Make a Change (Dust My Broom), lyrics, antecedents, 487
 increasing role of, 128 inspired by house-rent parties, 468
 Jefferson, Blind Lemon, 521
 "killing floor" in, 565 migrating blacks, describing experiences of, 456
 Nichols, A.X. paperback collection
 of, 444 sexually graphic, 85 sexually graphic, Harris, Wynonie, 413 structures of, 336 superstitious beliefs and, 454 technical elements of, 114 topical, Lenoir, J.B., 120

M

24-7 Man, 238
 M & O Blues no. 2 (My Baby's Come Back), 643
 M & O Blues, 40, 162, 643
 M&M records, 646
 M&O, 878, 886
 M. Hohner Company, 404
 Ma Grinder, The, 773
 Ma Rainey's Black Bottom, 247
 Mabon, Willie, 643–644
 with Helfer, Erwin, 418
 Mac, Lou, 102, 859
 Macchio, Ralph, 127
 Maceo, Big, 79, 80, 104, 202, 265, 305,
 373, 546, 644, 679, 750, 770, 888,
 891, 916
 Maceo's 32-20, 1036
 Mack, Lonnie, 644, 1031–1033, 1048
 Mack, Red, 36
 MacLeod, Doug, 645
 Macmillan Company, 438
 Macomba Lounge (Chicago), 28, 189,
 991, 1025
 Macon, Albert, 645, 987
 Macon, John Wesley
 "Mr. Shortstuff," 645
 Macon, Q.T., 645
 Macon, Uncle Dave, 55, 179, 230, 920
 Macy's department stores, 177
 Macy's Record Distributing Company, 469, 789
 Macy's, 646
 Mad Love (I Want You to Love Me),
 454, 844
 Mad, 66, 303, 454, 644, 723
 MAD/M&M, 646
 Maddox Brothers, 231
 Madison Night Spot, 205
 Madison Square Garden concerts, with
 Hooker, John Lee, 461
 Madison Street Rag 54
 Madonna, with Crouch, Andrae, 93
 Magazines. See periodicals, 753–755
 blues revival, 1990, 126
 Guralnick, Peter and, 126, 351, 429, 443–445, 538, 908
 in Japan, 507, 737, 755
 postwar era, 121
 Maggie Campbell Blues, 540–541
 Maggie Mayall and the Cadillac, 521
 Maggie, 162, 466, 749
 Maghett, Samuel Gene "Magic Sam," 203, 387, 646–647, 737, 989
 "Do the Camel Walk," 425
 guitar, 1950s, 425, 705, 989
 with Guitar Jr., 391
 with Leary, S.P., 589
 with Odie Payne, Jr., 750
 "West Side Sound" and, 49, 203, 275, 387, 852

Magic Rockers, 391
Magic Sam Live, 647, 737
 Magic Slim, 83, 204, 346, 388, 426, 452,
 647–648, 651, 713, 733, 784, 820, 945, 1064, 1095 with Holt, Nick, 1095
 Magic, 737
 Magic, hoodoo and, 454, 455, 456, 457, 1068
 Magnificent Malucci, The, 304
Mahalia Jackson Recorded Live in Europe, 498
 Mahavishnu Orchestra, fusion and, 517
 Maiden, Sidney, 280, 331, 363, 648,
 855, 1048
 Mainstream jazz, 515, 859, 957
 Maison Du Soul, 648, 906
 Majic Sounds, 196
 Make It Easy on Yourself, 171
Make Me a Pallet on the Floor, 766
 Make Me A Pallet On Your Floor,
 648–649
 Make Me a Pallet, 648–649, 1104 Making People's Music: Moe Asch and Folkways Records (book), 446
 Malaco/Waldoxy, 380, 529, 649–650
 Bland, Bobby "Blue," 529
 Griffin, "Big" Mike, 380
 Hill, Z.Z., 650
 Johnson, Ernie, 529
 LaSalle, Denise, 538
 Latimore, Benny, 584
 Malaco/Waldoxy, 649–650
 Malcolm X, 122, 123
 Malcolm, Horace, 79, 403
 Mali, 10, 11, 12
 life force, conception of, 456
 "Malian Bluesman." See Toure,
 Ali Farka
 Mallard, Sax, 650
 Malo, Ron, 650
 Malone, "John Jacob" J. J., 650
 Malone, David, 650
 Malone, John Jacob "J. J.," 650
 Malted Milk, 537
 Mama 'Tain't Long fo' Day, 675
 Mama Blues, harmonica, 407
 Mama Didn't Lie, 336, 953
 Mama Don't 'low, 684
 Mama Don't Allow No Easy Riders
 Here!, 508
 Mama Don't Allow No Easy
 Riders, 234
 Mama Don't Allow, 250
 Mama Talk to Your Daughter, 120,
 122, 594, 888
 Mama Talk To Your Daughter, 651
 Mama What About Your Daughter, 651
 Mama's Advice, 1068
 Mama's Whoopin' Blues, 748
Mama's Blues, 101

- Mambo Baby, 668
Mamie, 775
Mamie's Blues, 436
Mamlish Blues, 116, 651
Mamlish Records, 651
Man and His Blues, A, 179
Man of My Word, 8
Man Sized Job, 583
Man Trouble Blues, 218
Manchild in the Promised Land
(book), 615
Mancini, Henry, with Johnson,
Plas, 536
Mandel, Harvey, 661
with Harris, Don "Sugarcane," 411
Mandolin, 651–652, 793
in black string bands, 45
in jug bands, 793, 794
Manhattan Beach March, 135
Manifest destiny, 14
Mann Act, Berry, Chuck and, 76
Mann, Kenny, 872
Mann, Woody, 257, 444, 538, 874
instructional books, 444
Johnson, Robert, transcriptions, 538
Manning, Leo, 859
Mannish Boy, 421, 454, 489, 1058
Mannish Boys, 785
Man's Temptation, 192
Manson, Marilyn, with Hawkins,
Screamin' Jay, 415
Mapleshade Records, 448, 652
Mapp, Eddie, 407, 1061
Mar Y Sol, Atlantic/Atco/Spark
and, 36
March of Dimes, 776
"March of Time" series, 325, 326
Marchan, Bobby, 226, 321, 330, 899
Marches, black string bands and, 45
Marcucci, Gianni, 741
Marcus, Greil, 538, 68, 935
Mardi Gras in New Orleans, 436, 786
Mardi Gras Indians, 237, 653
Mardi Gras Mambo, 436, 722
Mardi Gras, film footage, 325
Johnson, Al, song about, 526
Mardis Gras, 653
Margolin, Bob, 9, 388, 391, 653, 1058 with Johnson, Luther "Georgia Boy"
"Snake," 534
Marin County Blues Festival, 717, 857
Marine Band harmonica, 2, 404
Mark Hummel and the Blues Survivors,
857, 1055
Marketing, 1970–1990, 36, 124, 127 blues music in Kansas City, 557, 558, 559
Clark, Dave and, 522, 912
of Jefferson, Blind Lemon, 116, 148 newspaper advertisements, 86, 87, 115, 438, 754, 755, 1096
1990s and later, 127
race record advertisements, 87, 438, 682, 753, 1096
radio stations, Chicago, 508 Marketing, of the blues, 654–658 business of, 654 entrepreneurial, 654 and folk revival, 654, 656, 657 individualism vs. communality, 656–657
lack of, 88, 878 national chain clubs, 655–656 reception of, 656–657 retailing, 657
Marking piano, 791
Marquee Club, London, 673
Married Man's Blues, 991
Married Woman Blues, 450
Married, But Not to Each Other, 583
Mars, Johnny, 551, 658, 857
Mars, Mitzi, 644, 650
Marsalis, Brandford, experiments in funk and hip-hop, 517
Marsalis, Wynton, promoting jazz, 517
Marshall, Kaiser, with Jordan,
Louis, 549
Martin guitar, 389, 598
Martin Scorsese Presents the Blues: A Musical Journey (film), 394
Martin, "Fiddlin'" Joe, 659, 714
with House, Eddie "Son," 466
Martin, Bogan, and Armstrong, 31, 32, 34, 659
Martin, Carl, 659
Martin, Cora Mae, 347
Martin, Daisy Martin, 363, 734, 813
Martin, Johnny, 691
Martin, Lou, 357
Martin, Sallie, 119, 149, 659
Martin, Sara, 385, 424, 649, 659
Martino, Pat, with Jackson, Willis
"Gator" "Gator Tail," 499
Mar-V-lus label, 589
Mary Had a Little Lamb, 338
Mary Jo, 1025
Mason, Charles Harrison, 90
"Master of the Telecaster, The." See Collins, Albert, Matador label, 219, 251
Mastercharge, 476
Matassa, Cosimo, 621, 634, 771, 910
with Allen, Lee, 19
with Ford, Clarence J., 335
Match Box Blues, 660
Matchbox Blues, 116, 520, 586,
660, 1085
Matchbox, 659, 660
Mathilda, 981
Matriarch of the Blues, 502
Matrix (club), 857
Matterson, J.B., 272
Mattie Mae/Sante Fe, 102
Mattis, David James, 287, 288, 683
Maxwell, David, 534, with Johnson,
Luther "Georgia Boy" "Snake," 534, 660–661
Maxwell Street Alley Blues, 1100
Maxwell Street Blues, 201, 495, 1005
Maxwell Street, Chicago, 201
Brewer, Jim "Blind" and, 147
Burks, Eddie, 167
Cobbs, Willie, 216
Davis, "Maxwell Street" Jimmy, 255
Great Migration, 119, 167, 200, 285,
374, 375, 511
Jones, Floyd, performing on, 545
May, Roosevelt, 661
Mayall, John, 661
1960s, 661
with Clapton, Eric, 209, 245
with Harris, Don "Sugarcane," 411
with Harris, Hi Tide, 411
with Landreth, Sonny, 582
Mayall, Maggie, 251
Maybeline, 76, 199, 267, 275, 531, 1058
Mayer Octavia, 422
Mayes, Pete, 661–662
Mayfield Towns Memorial, Kansas
City Blues Society, 559
Mayfield, Curtis, 662
with Chandler, Gene, 192
with Garibay, Randy, Jr., 359 with the Impressions, 171, 389, 662
Mayfield, Percy, 663 with Blaylock, Travis "Harmonica
Slim," 100
Mayl, Gene, with Dixieland Rhythm
Kings, 37
Mays, Curley, 663
Mayweather, "Earring" George, 663–664
Mazzolini, Tom, 28, 857
M-BASE collective, Brooklyn, 517
MCA (Music Corporation of America),
Decca, 260
Decca/Coral/MCA, 261
Levy, Louis "Lou," 597
MCA, BluesWay, 1
McAvoy, Gerry, 375
McCain, Jerry "Boogie," 664
McCain, Mighty Sam, with Bennett, Wayne T., 73
McCall, Cash, 664
McCarthy, Albert, 547
with Jones, Max, 547
McClain, "Mighty" Sam, 36, 73, 665, 739, 1063
McClain, Arthur, 869
McClain, Mary "Diamond Teeth," 664–665
McClennon, Tommy, 665–666
with, 168
with Petway, Robert, 763–764, 844
McClinton, Delbert, 666
McClure, Bobby, 666–667, 855

INDEX

- McCollum, Robert. See Nighthawk, Robert, 724, 781, 928
- McCormick, Mack, 755, 984
with Hopkins, Joel, 461
Johnson, Robert, researching, 538
with Lipscomb, Mance, 614
- McCough & McGear, with Hendrix, Jimi, 422
- McCoy, "Kansas" Joe, 667
- McCoy, Charlie, 667
Depression-era recordings, 117
with Johnson, Tommy, 540
- McCoy, Ethel, 667
- McCoy, George, 667
- McCoy, James, with House, Eddie "Son," 501
- McCoy, Robert Edward, 667–668
- McCoy, Rose Marie, 668
- McCoy, Sid, 797
- McCoy, Viola, 668
- McCracklin, Jimmy, 668–669
with Bennett, Wayne T., 73
with Fulson, Lowell, 350
with Harris, Hi Tide, 411
- McCracklin, Jimmy, with Harris, Hi Tide, 411
- McCray, Larry, 31, 669
- McDaniel, Clara "Big," 669
- McDaniel, Floyd, 418, 669, 919
- McDaniel, Hattie, 304, 495, 670, 734
- McDaniels, Gene, Admirals, The, 9
- McDonald, Earl, jug playing of, 552
- McDowell, Fred, 670
- McDowell, Mississippi Fred, Jesus Is a Dying Bed Maker (In My Time of Dying), 522
1960s folk revival, 387–388
- McDowell, Mississippi Fred, 29, 340, 388, 427, 523, 670, 699, 805, 831, 857, 903, 914, 970, 990
with Kimbrough, Junior, 565
- McDuff, Brother Jack, with Jackson, Willis "Gator" "Gator Tail," 499
- McFadden, Specks, 885
- McGee, Cleo "Big Bo," 670
- McGee, Reverend F.W., 670
- McGhee, Brownie (Walter Brown McGhee), 670–671, 776, 865, 871 Alert, 17
black sacred music, influence of, 88
with Dallas, Leroy, 245
Depression years, 117, 811
with Fuller, Blind Boy, 347
with Guthrie, Woodrow Wilson "Woody," 394
international performances, 439
"John Henry," 524
"March of Time" series, 325–326
reissues of, 442
ten-inch blues LP, 476 with Terry, Sonny, 40
at Thursday Night Blues and Barrelhouse Club, London, 579
- McGhee, Granville "Sticks," 671
- McGill, Rollee, 671–672
- McGriff, Jimmy, 73, 861, 1031
- McGuirt, Clarence "Candyman," 672
- McHouston, Big Red. See Baker, Mickey
- McIlwaine, Ellen, 672
- McIntosh, Andra Faye, 652, 855
- McIntosh, Faye, 855
- McIntosh, Fred, 779
- McIntosh, Lonnie. See Mack, Lonnie
- McKaie, Andy, 127, 819
- McKay, Claude, 438
- McKayle, Donald, 246
- McKean County Blues Festival, 779
- McKenna, Ted, 358
- McKenzie, Red, homemade mirliton playing of, 560
- McKinley Mitchell, 699
- McKinley, Larry, 490
- McKinley, Morganfield. See Waters
- McKune, James, 672
- McLaughlin, John, fusion and, 517
- McLean, Jackie, jazz scholarship, 517
- McLeod, Robert, 446
- McMahon, Andrew "Blueblood," 672
- McMullen, Fred, 672
- McMurry, Lillian, 120, 664
with Carter, Bo, 185
"Dust My Brown" controversy, 523
with James, Elmore, 500
- McNeely, Cecil James "Big Jay," 67, 72, 207, 673, 860–861
with Belvin, Jesse, 72
- McPhatter, Clyde Lensley, 283, 572, 673, 840
- McPhee, Tony "T. S.," 673
- McQuater, Mathew, 215
- McShann, James Columbus "Jay," 673–674
- McShann, McShann "Jay," "Hootie," 673–674
with Brown, Walter, 162
Kennedy, Jesse "Tiny" as blues shouter for, 563
with Parker, Charlie, 745
- McShann's Boogie Blues, 475
- McTell, Blind Willie (William Samuel), 674–677
black sacred music, performances by, 88
box set reissues of, 551
Depression years, 117
Georgia roots, 803
guitar, 1920s, 115
with Johnson, Blind Willie, 527
postwar era, 119
pre-World War II era, 115
- McVea, John Vivian "Jack," 677
with Bass, Ralph, 65
- McVie, John, 133, 332, 661, 1021
- Me and Big Joe, 367
- Me and Bobby McGee, 548
- Me and My Captain (Chain Gangs)* (book), 439
- Me and My Chauffeur Blues, 687
- Me and My Gin, 895
- Me and the Devil Blues, 537
- Mean Black Moan, 749
- Mean Blues*, 744
- Mean Disposition, 77
- Mean Low Blues, 406
- "Mean Machine, The," 268
- Mean Mistreater Mama No.2, 677
- Mean Mistreater Mama, 677–678, 885
- Mean Ol' Train, 612
- Mean Old Frisco Blues, 242
- Mean Old Frisco*, 834
- Mean Old Twister, 999
- Mean Old World, 387, 1015, 1045
- Mean Red Spider, 202, 1056
- Mean Twister, 999
- Mean Women, 691
- Meat Shakin' Woman, 737
- Meaux, Huey P., 678
with Copeland, Johnny "Clyde," 226
- Medicine shows, 685, 722
black string bands, influences on, 45
- Medicine, hoodoo and, 455–456
Talaho, sponsoring "King Biscuit Time" on KFFA, 656
- Medley, 21
- Medwick, Joe, 226, 678–679
- Meet Me at Milton's, 559
- Meet Me at the Twisting Place, 708, 858
- Meet Me With Your Black Drawers On, 493
- Meet Me with Your Black, 721
- Meeting the Blues (book), 446
- Mel's Hideaway Lounge, Chicago, 572
King, Freddie, 572
- Melancholy Baby, 684
- Mellencamp, John, Jesus Is a Dying Bed Maker (In My Time of Dying), 522
- Mellow Down Easy, 275, 339
- Mellow Mama*, 1052
- Mellow Man, 378
- Mellow Man Blues, 836
- Mellowtones, 855
- Melodeon Records, 679
- Melodia records, 855
- Melody Lane Record Shop, Chicago, 485
- Melody Maker magazine
Leadbitter, Michael Andrew "Mike," articles by, 587–588
- Melody Maker* magazine, Jones, Max, writings in, 547
- Melody Maker, 754

- Melody, 84 elements of Melody, component of blues, compositions, dimensions of, 107–108
 jazz ballads and, 109
 melodic devices, Jackson, Charles, “Papa Charlie,” 494 popular music sources, 340–341
 pre-blues, 113
 religious influences, 339–340 work song sources, 340
- Melotone label, 679
- Melrose, Lester, 115, 679–680
 with Big Maceo, 79
 with Broonzy, Big Bill, 150
 Chicago blues and, 240
 with Crudup, Arthur William “Big Boy,” 241–243
 with Davis, “Blind” John, 251 with Leaner, George, assistant to, 588–589
 in postwar era, 119
Melvin Taylor & the Slack Band, 961
- Memphis Blues (“Mama Don” “Low” Or “Mister Crump”), 684–685
Memphis Blues Again, 210
Memphis Blues Again, The, 9
- Memphis Blues and Jug Bands
 (book), 441
- Memphis Blues Foundation,
 W.C., Handy Awards, 126, 127
 Block, Rory, 101
 Triple Threat Revue, 211
- Memphis Blues, The, 401, 402, 424, 684–685
- Memphis Country Blues Festivals, 744
- Memphis Earthquake, 1000
- Memphis Gospel Singer*, 1075
- Memphis Horns, with King,
 Albert, 573
- Memphis in the Morning*, 875
- Memphis Jug Band, 47, 116, 685–686 with Burse, Charlie, 170
 with Hart, Hattie, 414
 with Horton, Big Walter, 464
 legendary group, 588
- Memphis Minnie, 41, 667, 686–687
 with Baker, Laverne, 41
 biography of, 479
 with Black Bob, 85
 with Broonzy, Big Bill, 150–152
 in Chicago, 201
 Depression-era recordings, 117
 early recorded blues ensembles, 45
 guitar, 1940s, 423
 with Lenoir, J.B., 594
 pre-World War II era, 113
 reissues, 442
 writings about, 445
- Memphis Piano Red (John Williams),
 104, 688
- Memphis Recording Service, 683
 Gordon, Rosco(e), 371
- Memphis Slim, 82, 688–689, 865
 with Baker, Mickey, 42 with Below, LaMarr Chatman, 72
 with Broonzy, Big Bill, 150
 Gary, Indiana, 361–362
 international performances, 475
 with Laury, Booker T., 584
- Memphis Soul Stew, 570
- Memphis State University, 426, 629
- Memphis Swamp Jam—Memphis Blues
 Festival*, 104
- Memphis Swamp Jam—Memphis Blues
 Festival, 104
- Memphis Tennessee*, 371
- Memphis to Maxwell Street, 1100
- Memphis Yo Yo Blues, 414
- Memphis, 1940s, 68
 during 1970s and 1980s, 124
 Ace, Johnny and, 6
 Akers, Garfield and, 14
 Alabama and, 14–16
 artists, early recorded blues
 ensembles, 45
 Big Maybelle and, 80
 Bland, Bobby “Blue” and, 98
 blues harmonica and, 404
 Goldwax, 369–370
 Handy, William Christopher “W.C.”
 and, 400–402
 jazz, emergence of, 512
 jug bands, 46
 jug band scene, Lewis, Noah and, 601
 Lewis, Furry and, 598
 Penn, Dan and, 16
 in pre-World War II era, 131 whites attracted to blues clubs in, 88
See also Old Memphis
- Memphis, Tennessee, 680–684
 “Battle of the Bands,” 682–684
 radio stations, 682, 796
- Mendelsohn, Fred, 259, 423, 860
- Mendoza, Lydia, 434
 Hispanic influences on the blues, 432
- Mercer, Johnny, 132, 180
- Mercury Boogie, 280, 363
- Mercury Radio and Television
 Corporation, 689
- Mercury Record Corporation, 689–690
- Mercury/Fontana/Keynote/Blue Rock, 689–690
 Butler, Jerry, 171
 Daniels, Jack, 248–249
 Hogg, John, 447
 Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” 462–463
 Humes, Helen and, 474
 Jackson, Little Willie, 498
 Johnson, Buddy, 528–529
 Jones, Carl, 543
 Jordan, Louis, 548–550
 King, Eddie, 571
- Mercy Mr. Percy, 269
- Meredith, Jack, 660
- Meredith, James, 122
 “black power” and, 351
- Meritt label, 690
 Kimbrough, Lottie, 566
- Merman I’d Like to Be, A, 189
- Merriweather, Big Maceo, 644, 750
- Merry Christmas Baby, 155
- Mesner, Edward (Eddie), 871
- Mesner, Edward and Leo, 16
- Mess Around, 234
- Messin’ Around, 688, 695
- Messin’ with the Kid, 1065
- Messina, Robert White Joe, 389
- Messing with the Kid, 205
- Mestizos, 468
- Meteor label, 158, 500
- Meter, blues melodies, 105, 107
- Meters, The, 124, 282, 353
- Metfessell, Dr. Milton, 325
- Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer (MGM), 1035
- Metropolitan Theater, Chicago
 with Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 508
- Metzger, “Memphis” Mike, 779
- Mexican ballads, 433
- Mexican street singers, 432, 433
Mexico Bound Blues, 260
- Mexican Waltz, The, 434
- Mexico Bound Blues, 260
- MGM (Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer), 1035
- Miami, 207
- Michael Montgomery Collection,
 Southfield, Minnesota, 610
- MichiganWater Blues, 436
- Mickey & Sylvia, 42
- Mickle, Elmon “Drifting Slim,” 690
- Microtonal inflections, African languages, 11
- Middel, Willy, 243
- Midnight Baby*, 303
- Midnight Blues, 707
- Midnight Hour Blues, 183
- Midnight Landing*, 422
- Midnight Special, 224, 923
- Midnight Special, The, 587
- Midnight Stroll*, 238
- Midnight Train to Georgia, 890
- Midnight, Vol. 2*, 44
- Midnighters, with Ballard, Hank, 43
- Midnite Club, Chicago, with Jaxon,
 Frankie “Half Pint,” 508
- Mighty* (film), 36
 “Let the Good Times Roll,” 595
- Mighty Clouds of Joy (group), 691
- Mighty Clouds of Joy, 56, 92
- Mighty Flyers, 772, 992
- Mighty Long Time, 1012
- Mighty Man*, 1105
- Migration. See Great Migration southern blacks to northern urban centers, 48

INDEX

- Milburn, Amos, 691, 866
 Gary, Indiana, 361
 with Houston, Edward Wilson
 “Bee,” 469
- Miles, Buddy, 300
 with Hendrix, Jimi, 421, 422
- Miles, Josephine “Josie,” 692
- Miles, Lizzie, 692
- Miles, Luke “Long Gone,” 692
- Milk and Water, 691
- Milk Cow Blues, 33, 231, 304, 737, 782
- Milk Cow Blues Boogie, 119
- Millar, Chris, 314
- Miller Nichols Library/Marr Sound
 Archive, University of Missouri-
 Kansas City, 605
- Miller, Booker, 748
- Miller, Emmett, 231, 232
- Miller, Jay D. “J. D.,” 307, 692–693
- Miller, Polk, 693
- Miller, Steve, 661, 857
 with Cotton, James, 229
- Millet, McKinley “Li’l,” 694
- Millinder, Lucky, 694, 882
 with Glover, Henry, 368
 with Greer, “Big” John Marshall, 379
 with Harris, Wynonie, 413
- Million Dollar Secret*, 1064
- Mills Blue Rhythm Band, 144
- Mills Brothers, with Golden Gate Quartet and, 369
- Mills, Artis, with James, Etta, 502
- Mills, Charlie, 768
- Milton, Little, 855, 861, 875
- Milton, Roy, 694
- Milton’s Boogie, 694
- Milton’s on Troost, Kansas City, 559
- Miltone label, 695
- Mind Your Own Business, 207
- Minglewood Blues, 845
- Mingus Ah Um*, 124
- Mingus, Charles, 124, 313
 bebop pioneer, 513
 hard bop and, 515
- Miniatures, with Bland, Bobby “Blue,” 98
- Ministers, 640
- Minit records, 490, 561
- Minnie the Moocher, 177
- Minnie’s Can-Do (club), 857
- Minstrel shows, 766
 Big Memphis Ma Rainey and, 80
 blackface, performers in, 113
 black string bands, influences on, 45
 country music and, 230, 231
 jug bands and, 552 music of, gospel quartets and, 91
 pre-World War II era, 116
- Miracle label, 870
- Miracle/Premium label, 695
- Miramar Ballroom, Gary, Indiana, 361
- “Mirliton” kazoo type of, 560
- Miss Brown Blues, 1015
- Miss Fine Brown Frame, 540
- Miss Kitty’s, Cincinnati club, Jarrett,
 James “Pigmeat,” 507
- Miss Lavelle*, 1073
- Miss Martha King, 167
- Miss Rhapsody, 695
- Miss Rhythm* (book), 161
- Miss You So, 733
- Miss You, 502, 938
- Mississippi, 696
 accordionists from, 2
 Allison, Mose, 22
 “Black Belt,” 15
 cultural history, website documenting, 602 earliest written description of
 blues, 114
 early guitarists, W.C. Handy’s
 description of, 45
 musicians covering “How Long How Long,” 470
 pre-World War II era, Lacey, Rubin “Rube” instrumental to, 581 tradition music, resilience of, 418
- Mississippi Blue Yodeler, 843
- Mississippi Blues, The, 544, 996
- Mississippi Blues: Bukka White*, 1070
- Mississippi Bo Weavil Blues, 748
- Mississippi Boweavil Blues, 337
- Mississippi County Farm Blues, 466
- Mississippi Delta, 400, 748
 Adelphi Records, 9
 Allison, Mose, 22
 Bell, Carey, 70
 “Black Belt,” 15
 blacks migrating from, 429 blacks migrating from, Depression years, 117
 blacks migrating from, postwar era, 48, 119
 blues fiddling, 317
 blues revival, 1950s, 121
 blues revival, 1990s, 126
 diddley bow, 268
 emergence of blues in, 510
 Harney, Richard “Hacksaw” and,
 409
 Jefferson, Blind Lemon and, 518
 Johnson, Robert and, 536
 Johnson, Tommy and, 540 musicians, Depression-era recordings
 of, 117 musicians, myth about, 107 in 1920s, Kizart Lee and, 578 from 1970s and 1980s, 122
 postwar era, 124
 pre-World War II era, 117
- Mississippi Delta blues. See Delta
 blues, 268, 317
- Mississippi Fire Blues, 999
- Mississippi Flood Blues, 1000
- Mississippi Heat, 234
- Mississippi Heavy Water Blues, 57, 996, 1001
- Mississippi Jail House Groan, 465
- “Mississippi Joe.” See Callicott,
 Joe, 177
- Mississippi John Hurt Today*, 923
- Mississippi John hurt Today, 923
- Mississippi Jook Band, 373, 696
- Mississippi Low-Levee Blues, 996
- Mississippi Mass Choir, 93
- Mississippi Matilda, 696–697, 781
 phrase-formulas in lyrics, 105
- Mississippi Mud Steppers, 667
- Mississippi River Commission levee maintenance, 596
- Mississippi River, levee-building
 on, 113
- Mississippi Rust College (where?),
 blacks, education of, 113
- Mississippi Sheik, The*, 698
- Mississippi Sheiks, 45, 104, 241, 651, 697–698
 with Alexander, Algernon
 “Texas,” 17
 with Carter, Bo, 185
 with Chatmon family, 195
 Johnson, Tommy, royalties from, 541
 melodies, eight-measure harmonic
 progression in, 110
 pre-World War II era, 116
 “Sitting on Top of the World,” 470
 style kept alive by, 125
- Mississippi State Penitentiary
 Kimbrough, David, Jr., incarcerated
 in, 565
- Mississippi Storm, 999
- Mississippi to Mali*, 411
- Mister Charlie, 1000
- Mister Crump Don’t Like, 684
- “Mister Jack,” with Burrell, J.C., 169
- Mister Livingood, 1067
- Mister Rock & Roll* (film), 326
- Mister Tee’s (club), 301
- Mistreated Blues, 480, 1007
- Mistreater, 678
- Misty Blue, 649, 890, 912
- Misunderstood Blues, 885
- Mitchell, “Little” Walter. See Little
 Walter, 699
- Mitchell, Billy, 781
- Mitchell, Bobby, 698
 with Henry, Clarence
 “Frogman,” 422
- Mitchell, George, 443, 698–699
 with Burnside, R.L., 168
- Mitchell, Joni, 192, 335
 Lewis, Furry, tribute to, 595
- Mitchell, McKinley, 699
- Mitchell, Mitch, 421
- Mitchell, Willie, 424, 699–700, 751

- with Green, Al, 375 with Johnson, Syl, 540
- Mitchell's Christian Singers, 91
- Mixolydian mode, 864
harmonica, 407
- Moanin' at Midnight, 199
- Moanin' for My Baby, 765
- Moanin' the Blues, 18
- Moaning the Blues, 923
- Moans and Blues*, 692
- Mobile Strugglers, 194
- Mockingbird, 343
- Modal blues, 515–516
- Modern Blues Recordings label, 700
- Modern blues
Kimbrough, Junior, idiosyncratic style in, 602
- Modern Chicago Blues*, 1100, 1105
- Modern Jazz Quartet
influences of Davis, Miles sound, 515
- Modern Music Records, 150, 700
- Modern Records, 72, 139, 412, 700, 1014
- Modern Sounds in Country and Western Music*, 341
- Modern/Flair/Meteor/Kent/RPM, 700
- Belvin, Jesse, 72–73
- Berry, Richard, 76–77
- Brooks, Hadda, 149–150
- Caesar, Harry “Little,” 175–176
- Carter, Goree, 186
- Crayton, Curtis Connie “Pee Wee,” 238
- Dickerson, “Big” John, 266
- Dixon, Floyd, 273
- Fields, Bobby, 321
- Gayles, Billy, 362
- Hammond, Clay, 398
- Harris, Peppermint, 412
- Hill, Z.Z., 431
- Hooker, John Lee, 459–460
- Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” 462
- Horton, Big Walter, 464
- Houston, Edward Wilson “Bee,” 469
- Howlin’ Wolf, 120
- Humes, Helen, 474–475
- James, Elmore, 500–501
- James, Etta, 501–502
- King, Earl, 570–571
- King, Saunders, 576
- Lance, Major, 582
- Turner, Big Joe, 117
- Mojo Boogie*, 301
- Mojo Boogie, 301, 594
- Mojo Hand*, 834
- Mojo Hands Call and I Must Go The*, (book), 444
- Mojo, hoodoo and, 454
- Mojo, The, 301, 594
- Molly and Tenbrooks, 172
- Molten Ice*, 220
- Molton, Flora, 700
- Mona, 1081
- Monestier, Jean-Marie, 83
- Money Honey, 673
- Money Hustlin’ Women, 691
- Money Never Runs Out, 54
- Money Taking Woman, 1105
- Money Tree, 266
- Money, Marbles, and Chalk, 844
- Monk, Thelonious, 123, 512
bebop pioneer, 513
hard bop and, 509
stride piano style, influenced by, 512
- Monkey and the Baboon, The, 880
- Monkey Time, 582
- Monkey Woman Blues, 1104
- Monroe, Bill, 231, 232
- Monsters Festival, with Allen, Ricky, 19
- Monterey Jazz Festival, 717, 740, 882
- Monterey Pop Festival, 647, 990 with Electric Flag, 300
- Montgomery Ward label, 702
- Montgomery, Eurreal “Little Brother,” 9, 58, 116, 248, 418, 701–702, 770, 859, 1091
Japanese blues festivals, 506
- Montgomery, Sam, 39
- Montoya, Coco (Henry), 702
- Montrell, Roy, 702
- Montreux Jazz and Pop Festival
Atlantic/Atco/Spark and, 35
with Brown, Clarence “Gatemouth,” 156
with Chenier, Clifton, 197
with Hutto, Joseph Benjamin “B.J.,” 484
- Montreux Jazz Festival, Best Blues Album of the Year award
with Collins, Albert, 220
- Mooch Piddle, 234
- Moody Woman, 171
- Moon Going Down, 106, 540, 749, 904
- Mooney, John, 703
with House, Eddie “Son,” 465–467
- Moonglows, with K-Doe, Ernie, 561
- Moonshine Blues, 747
- Moore, Aaron, 703
- Moore, Alexander “Whistlin’ Alex,” 703
- Moore, Alice “Little,” 704
- Moore, Arthur Dwight “Gatemouth,” 705–706 with Houston, Joe (Joseph Abraham), 469
- Moore, Carman, 441
- Moore, Dave, 13, 57
- Moore, Dorothy, 125, 704
- Moore, Gary, 704
- Moore, Johnny B., 704–705
- Moore, Johnny, 16, 308, 704
with Brown, Charles, 155–156
“Drifting Blues,” 283
- guitar, 1940s, 386
- Philo Records, 16
- Moore, Monette, 14, 39, 705, 1038
with Jones, Clarence M., 544
- Moore, Oscar, 36, 103, 155, 705, 722
- Moore, Rosie Mae, with Johnson, Tommy, 540
- Moore, Samuel David “Sam,” 706
- Moore, William “Bill,” 706–707
- Moore, William, 442
- Morand, Herb, 118, 403
- More Blues on the South Side*, 33
- More Than You Can Chew*, 856
- More Than You Chew*, 856
- More, More, More, 18
- Morehouse College, blacks, education of, 113
- Morello, Jimmy, 707
- Morgan, Mike, 96, 707
- Morgan, Teddy, 707
- Morganfield, “Big” Bill, 707–708
- Morganfield, McKinley. See Waters, Muddy
- Morisette, Johnny “Two-Voice,” 708
- Morning Star, 237
- Morning, Noon, and Night, 1015
- Morris, Danny, 726
- Morris, Milton, Kansas City club owner, 558–559
- Morris, Thomas, 39
- Morrison, Jim, with Ailey, Alvin, 246
- Morrison, Van, “I Just Want to Make Love to You,” 488
- Morton, Jelly Roll, 28, 115, 383, 509, 547, 708–709, 767, 768 with Handy, William Christopher “W.C.,” 400 “Hesitation Blues,” 423–424 with Professor Longhair, 436 recordings, collective improvisation in, 511 “Spanish Tinge” of, 517
- Mosaic records, 709
- Mosley, Walter, 617, 753
- Mosquito Moan, 476
- Moss, Eugene “Buddy,” 709
- Moten Stomp, 595
- Moten, Benjamin “Bennie,” 117, 709–710
Depression-era blues, 117
with Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 507–508
Kansas City jazz band style, 512
with Leonard, Harlan, 595
at Panama Club, The, Kansas City, 559
Sunset Club, Kansas City, 558
- Mother Blues, 962
- Mother Earth (band), 695, 721, 857
- Mother Earth, 695
- Mother of Gospel, The (Sallie Martin), 659

INDEX

- Mother of the Blues: A Study of Ma Rainey* (book), 443
 “Mother of the Blues.” See Rainey, Gertrude “Ma” Mother’s Children Have a Hard Time, 527
 Mother’s Son, 778
 Mother-in-Law Lounge, New Orleans, 561
 Mother-in-Law, 561
 Motherless Children Have a Hard Time, 675, 1085
 Motion pictures, with Burnside, R.L., 168
 Motley, Frank Jr., 710
Motor City R&B Pioneers, The, 103
 Motor Head Baby, 222, 1059
 Motown Records, 21, 265, 691, 829, 908
 Motown, 1, 710
 Abner, Ewart, 1
 Allison, Luther, 20–21
 Funk and, 351
 Hi Records and, 424–425
 Soul guitar, 389
 Mound City Blue Blowers, kazoo on early jazz recordings, 560
Mourning in the Morning, 853
 Mouse and the Traps, 419
 Mouth Organ Coon, 405
 Move It on Over, 232, 338, 991
 Move On Up a Little Higher, 147, 498, 870
 Movin’ Out, 148
 Moving, 473
 Moye, Don, with Brown, Oscar III “Bobo,” 160
 M-Pac label, 303, 589, 738, 991
 Mr Crump Don’t Like It, 932
 Mr R and B, 945
 Mr. and Mrs. Swing, 41
 “Mr. and Mrs. Swing,” 41
 Mr. Big Stuff, 910, 912
 Mr. Carl’s Blues, 487
 Mr. Crump, 400, 401, 767
 Mr. Downchild, 1012, 1074
 Mr. Freddie Blues, 507
Mr. Freeze, 785
 Mr. Johnson, 114
 Mr. Johnson’s Blues, 533
 Mr. Lucky, 461, 1094
 Mr. Moonlight, 772
 Mr. Pitiful and the Ter-Drops, 647
 Mr. R&B Records, 711
 Mr. Soul, 283
 Mr. Sykes Blues, 643
 MTV Video Music Award, King, Riley B. “B.B.,” 575
 Muddy Stream Blues, 996
 Muddy Water, 1000
 Muddy Waters Band, 753
 with Guitar Jr., 391
 Muddy Waters Tribute Band, with Landreth, Sonny, 582
Muddy Waters Woodstock Album, 653
Muddy Waters Woodstock Album, The, 368
 Muddy Waters, 28
 Muddy Waters: The Mojo Man, 445
Muddy, Brass, and Blues, 1058
 Muddy, McKinney, Bob, 114, 926
 Mugge, Robert, 328, 744, 820
 Muldaur, Maria, with Adams, Arthur, 7
 Mulebone (Broadway production), 253
Mules and Men (book), 131, 438
 Multiple-row accordion, 3
 Mumford, Jefferson “Brock,” 385
 Mundy, Jimmy, 276
 Munich Records, 735
 Murder, 477
Murderers Home, 871
 Murmur Low, 921
 Murphy, Matt “Guitar,” 711–712
 Murphy, Willie, 712
 Murray, Albert, 268, 441, 616 dance, audience participation, 247–248
 Murray, Bobby, 712
 Murray, David, 517
 Murry, Bobby and Pat, 583
 Muscle Shoals Sound, 16
 Muscle, Shoals
 Calloway, Cab, 177
 Fame, 312
 James, Etta, 501–502
 Muscles Shoals Studio, 60, 650
 Museums
 Alabama Music Hall of Fame, 16
 Country Music Hall of Fame and Museum, 507
 W.C. Handy Birthplace, 16
Music and Some Highly Musical People: Sketches of the Lives of Remarkable Musicians of the Colored Race (book), 438
 Music City U.S.A. See Nashville
 Music Corporation of America (MCA)
 Decca, 260
 Decca/Coral/MCA, 261
 Music Division, New York Public Library for the Performing Arts, 608
Music from the South, 440
 Music from the South, 440
 Music hall songs, African-American community, 100
 Music lessons, Davis, Reverend Gary, 257
 Music Library and Sound Recordings Archive, Bowling Green State University, 603
 Music Maker Relief Foundation, 776, 930
 Buckner, Willie (Willa) Mae and, 165
 Guitar Gabriel and, 391
 Music of Man Archive, Wadenswil, Switzerland, 603
Music of New Orleans, 194
 Musical characteristics of the blues, 107, 127
 Musical forms, blues, 63, 109–111 compositions, dimensions of, 110–111
 Musicians
 from Kansas City, 557
 from Sunset Club, Kansas City, 558
 Muskee, Harry “Cuby,” 243
 Musselwhite, Charlie, (Charley), 683, 712–713, 857
 with Bloomfield, Michael, 101 with DeLay, Paul, 262
 with Hammond, John Paul, 399
 with Jones, Andrew “Junior Boy,” 543
 South Side blues clubs, 442
 Must Be Jelly, 212
 Mustang Sally, 713, 830, 910
 Muszynski, Violet (Vi) Harville, 44
 My Answer, 669
 My Babe, 275, 623, 981–982
 My Baby Walked Out, 1105
 My Black Mama Part 2, 1006
 My Black Mama, 386, 465, 466, 714, 884
 My Blue Heaven, 278
 My Buddy Blind Papa Lemon, 430
 My Buddy Doctor Clayton, 213
 My Daddy Rocks Me, 107, 508
 My Dearest Darling, 501
 My Ding a Ling, 76
 My Dog Can’t Bark, 585
 My Doggone Lazy Man, 407
My Feeling for the Blues, 572
 My Foolish Heart, 198
 My Gal’s a Jockey, 1015
 My Head Is Bald, 951
 My Heart Belongs to You, 932
 My Journey to the Sky, 978
 My Life, 1089
My Life, 342
 My Love Is Here to Stay, 350
 My Love Is Real, 366
 My Love Will Never Die, 853
 My Next Door Neighbor, 664
 My Old Pal, 97
 My Pencil Won’t Write, 479
My Pleasure, 785
 My Song, 6, 287, 288
My South, My Blues, 391
My Story, 1007
 My Story, 1089
 My Time After a While, 363
 My Toot Toot, 648, 880–881
My Turn to Cry, 418
 My Tu-Tu, 583
My Way or the Highway, 392
 My Wish Came True, 481
 My Woman Blues, 1080

- Myers, Bob, 715
 Myers, Dave “Thumper,” 715 with Aces, The, 6
 Myers, David, 63
 influential music of, 72
 Myers, Jack, AFBF European tours, 23
 Myers, Louis and Dave with Aces, The, in Japan, 506
 with Baker, Mickey, 42
 Myers, Louis, 592, 715
 with Aces, The, 6
 Myers, Sam, 125, 716
 with Aces, The, in Japan, 506 with Brooks, Columbus, 149 with Funderburgh, Anson, 350
 MyGreyPony, 1077
Mystery Lady: The Songs of Billie Holiday, 502
 Mystery Train (film), 538
 with Hawkins, Screamin’ Jay, 415
Mystery Train, 538, 935
 Mystery Train, 711, 712, 746
 Mystic Knights (band), 779
- N
- N’awlinz: Dis, Dat or D’udda*, 282
 NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People), 122, 641, 795
 Nadine, 750
 Naftalin, Mark, 663, 717, 857
 with Clay, Francis, 212
 Nalls, Jimmy, 726
 Nancy Jane, 231
 Napier, Simon, 441, 718
 Napoleon Strickland Day, Como, Mississippi, 323
 Nappy Chin (Clarence Richard Evans), 718
 Nardella, Steve, 718
 Nardini, Norm, 779
 Narmour, Willie, with Hurt, John Smith “Mississippi John,” 482
 Narrowcasting, of music genres, 658
 Nashville Jump, 167
 Nashville
 Allen, Ricky and, 19 music genres affiliated with, 507
 Young, Ernest L. (“Ernie”) and, 307–308
 Nashville, Tennessee, 718–719
 Nat King Cole Trio, 36, 217
 Natchez [Theatre] Fire Disaster, The, 999
 Natchez Burnin, The, 1000
 Natchez Burnin’, The, 999, 1001
 Natchez Fire, The, 999
 Natchez Mississippi Blues, 999
 Nathan, Sydney Sid, 208, 571–572, 657, 1098
- Nation of Islam, 122
 National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences Lifetime Achievement Award, Bland, Bobby “Blue,” 99
 National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, 99, 621
 National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), 122
 National Association of Black Journalists, 86
 National Association of Jazz, R&B, and Gospel DJs of America, Gibson, Jack. See Black Music Association
 National Baptist Convention, early composers of gospel and, 90
 National Endowment for the Arts, National Heritage Fellowship
 Brown, Charles, 156
 Chenier, Clifton, 197
 Cotten, Elizabeth, 228
 Edwards, David “Honeyboy,” 299
 King, Riley B. “B.B.,” 573
 National Heritage Award, 741
 National Heritage Fellowship
 Brown, Charles, 156
 Chenier, Clifton, 197
 Cotten, Elizabeth, 228
 Edwards, David “Honeyboy,” 299
 King, Riley B. “B.B.,” 573
 National Jazz Service Organization, mid-1980s, 517
 National Public Radio Blues Stage, Ruth, Brown, 161
 National Records, 551, 860
 National Recovery Administration (NRA), 374
 National Scala, Rome, with Hunter, Alberta, 480
 National Steel resonator guitar, 386
 National Tricone guitars, 645
 Native Americans
 Alabama, 15
 Blackfoot tribe, Hawkins, Screamin’ Jay, 415
 Cherokees in Georgia, 364
 Clearwater, Eddy, 250
 Creeks, 321, 364
 Creole blues, influences on, 3
 hoodoo and, 454–455
 Native Son (book), 616, 980
 Natural Man, 594
 Nature of the Beast, 914
 Naughty Lady of Shady Lane, The, 1025
 Ndegeocello, Meshell, 353
 Neal, Isaac, Jr., 491
 Neal, Kenny, 719–720
 with Lazy Lester, 586
 with Lucky Peterson, 763
 Need to Belong, 171
- Need Your Love So Bad, 525
 Neely, “Little” Bobby, 720
 Neely, Jimmy, with Baker, Mickey, 42
 Nefario (book), 444
 Neff, Pat, Leadbelly performing for, 586
Negro and His Songs, The (songbook), 438
 Negro Art label, 720
Negro Folk Music of Alabama, 440
Negro Folk Songs as Sung by Lead Belly (book), 439
 Negro Jig, 316, 340
Negro Songs of Protest (book), 439
 “Negro spirituals.” See black sacred music
 Negro tune, 316
Negro Workaday Songs (songbook), 438
 Nehi Blues, 932
 Nelson Street Blues, 637
 Nelson, Chicago Bob, 720
 Nelson, Jimmy “T-99,” 721
 Nelson, Peppermint. See Harris, Peppermint
 Nelson, Romeo, 117, 721, 769 eleven-twenty-nine prison sentences, 302
 Nelson, Sonny Boy (Eugene Powell), 185, 696, 781, 815
 Nelson, Tracy, 390, 721–722, 857 with Ball, Marcia and Thomas, Irma, 43
 Neptunes, with Latimore, Benny, 584
 Nettle, Bruno, 12
 Nettles, Isaiah, 722
 Never [Come Running Back to You], 858
 Never Give You Up, 171
 Never Let Me Go, 6
 Neville Brothers, 722
 Neville, Aaron, 121, 722
 Neville, Art, 526
 Neville, Charles, 722
Neville-Ization, 722
 Nevins, Richard, 124, 874
 New Church, 580
 New Deal era, 363, 374, 439, 641, 1003
 New Delta Blues Museum, The, Clarksdale, Mississippi, 604
 New Down Home Blues, The, 281
 New Fallin’ Rain Blues, The, 996
New Generation of Chicago Blues, The, 705
New Grove Dictionary of Jazz (book), 56, 602
 New Hope Baptist Church, 90
 New Hound Dog, 147
New King of the Blues, The, 155
 New Legacy Duo, 870
 New Life Community Choir, 93

INDEX

- New Masses* (periodical), 399, 439, 537–538
 Johnson, Robert, initial release described in, 536
New Mean Mistreater Blues, 678
New Mississippi Sheiks, The, 698
New Orleans (film), with Lewis, Meade “Lux,” 600
New Orleans Blues, 436, 708
New Orleans Hall of Fame, K-Doe, Ernie, 561
New Orleans Jazz & Heritage Festival, 634, 874
 with Booker, James, 139
 with Chenier, Clifton, 197
 with Davis, Quint, 255
 with Jones, Little Sonny, 546
 Professor Longhair, and, 434
New Orleans Piano Wizard: Live!, 139
New Orleans Rhythm Kings, recordings, collective improvisation in, 511
New Orleans Swing Club, San Francisco, 856
New Orleans Tribune (newspaper), 86
New Orleans, 653, 668–670, 766
 blues, “Let the Good Times Roll,” 631 blues pianists, Cuban influences on, 432 and blues tradition, 767 blues, writings about, 443
 Crawford, James “Sugar Boy” and, 237
 Domino, Fats and, 277–278
 Dr. John and, 282
 drumset, evolution of, 284–285
 Dupree, Champion Jack and, 290 early jazz performers in, 511
 Gayten, Paul and, 363
 Guitar Slim and, 392–393
 Hispanic influences on the blues, 434–436
 Jacque, Beau and, 499
 jazz, 766
 jazz, emergence of, 509–511 jazz musicians migrating to Chicago, 511 jazz, revival of, 514–515
 K-Doe, Ernie and, 561
 Kid Stormy Weather, 564
 Lenoir, J.B. and, 594
 music, importance of King, Earl to, 570
 postwar era, 121
 recorded and printed jazz and blues, collections of, 602 rhythm and blues scene, Imperial label, 490
 sound, 785–786
 Voodoo in, 454
New Pittsburgh Courier (newspaper), 88
New Prison Blues, 471
New Shake-Em On Down, 872
New Strangers, The, with Charters, Samuel Barclay, 194
New Thing, jazz style, 124
 See also jazz
New Violin Summit, 411
New World Cafe, Atlantic City, Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 508
New Yardbirds, 590
New York Amsterdam (newspaper), 86
New York City, 784
 Alabama and, 15
 Armstrong, Louis big band in, 512
 Broonzy, Big Bill, 152
 first jazz recording in, 511 institutions, preserving jazz repertoire and fostering new compositions, 517 Lower East Side, artists from, 127
 southern blacks migrating to, 410 syncopated orchestras in, 509510
New York Really Has the “Blues Stars” Vol. 2, 70
New York Recording Laboratories, 148, 423, 744, 788
New York Times, 744
Newbern, Willie “Hambone Willie,” 116, 304, 386, 608, 722
Newborn, Calvin, 722–723
Newborn, Phineas, Jr., 723
Newell, “Little” Eddie, 723
Newman, David “Fathead,” with Leary, S.P., 589
Newman, Randy, 671
Newport Blues, 530
Newport Folk Festival, 388
 with Bloomfield, Michael, 102
 with Cotton, James, 229
 film of, 327
 with Hammond, John Paul, 400
 with Hooker, John Lee, 460
 with House, Eddie “Son,” 466 with Hurt, John “Mississippi John,” 482
 with Lay, Sam, 686
Newport Jazz and Folk Festival, blues artists, featuring, 442
Newport Jazz Festival, 861
 with Clay, Francis, 212
 with Hooker, John Lee, 460
 with Humes, Helen, 474
 with Jackson, Mahalia, 498
Newsletters, 126, 754–755, 758
Newspapers
 advertisements in, 86, 128
 Chicago, 200
 clippings, collections of, Bremen archive, 602 race record advertisements in, 438
 See also black newspaper press
Newspapers, blues in, 754
Newsweek, 478, 754
 House, Eddie “Son,” 466
Next Generation, 20
Next Hundred Years, The, 416
Next Time You See Me, 746
 Nichols, A.X., paperback collection of lyrics, 444
 Nicholson, James David “J. D.,” 723–724
 Nigeria, 10
 Night Life Club, 205
Night Life, 21
Night Time Is the Right Time, 159, 948
 “Night Train to Nashville: Music City Rhythm & Blues 1945–1970” show, Country Music Hall of Fame and Museum, 507
Night Train, 124, 164, 1025
Nightcats, with Baty, “Little Charlie,” 16, 346
 Nightclub owners. See club owners, 127
 Campbell, Carl, 178
 Davis, Tiny, 258
 Nightclubs, 200 in Detroit, 265
 in downtown Kansas City, 558
 Kansas City, jazz and blues fusion in, 512
Nighthawk Blues (book), 394, 444
Nighthawk Records, 437, 724, 777
Nighthawk, Robert, 30–31, 84, 724–725, 868
 with Bell, Carey, 70
 with Carr, Sam, 184
 with Curtis, James “Peck,” 244
 with Davis, Carl, 252
 with Gayles, Billy, 362
 with Granderson, John Lee, 372
 harmonica, 408
 with Hooker, Earl, 458
 with Horton, Big Walter, 464 with Lane, Mary, 582
 with Pinetop Perkins, 761
Nighthawks, The, 725–726, 856
 with Hammond, John Paul, 399
Nine Pound Hammer, 524, 525
Nine to the Universe, 422
1999, 891
 Nineties (1990s), 123–125, 388 guitar styles since, 388, 390
 James, Etta, 501
 jazz musicians, options available to, 510
 Lang, Jonny as representative of new generation of blues-rock, 583
 Nite Owl, 192
 Nix, Willie, 125, 1074
 Nixon, Elmore, 892
 music of, Hispanic influences, 433

- Nixon, Hammie, 122, 137, 794
 influential music of, 500
 in Japan, 506
 kazoo playing of, 561
 Nketia, Kwabena, 12, 352
No Foolin', 1062
 No Good Blues, 530
 No Good Woman, 880
No Mercy, 20
 No Money, No Luck, 481
 No More Doggin', 371, 460
 No No Blues, 1061
 No One Special, 238
 No Particular Place to Go, 750
 No Place to Go, 765
 No Special Rider, 701
 No Stranger to Love, 343
 No Teasing Around, 303
 No. 29, 1047
 No. 3 (My Baby Called the Police), 643
 No. 9 Train, 925
 Nobel Peace Prize, King, Martin Luther, Dr., 1964, 122, 351
 Nobles, Gene, with Allen, Bill "Hoss," 18
 Nobody But You, 21, 211
 Nobody in Mind, 1015
 Nobody Knows You When You're Down and Out, 339, 841, 895
 Nobody Loves Me But My Mother, 477
 Nobody, 688
 Nolan, Lloyd, 727–728
 Nolen, Jimmy, 728
 guitar, 1950s, 562
 Noone, Jimmie, with Alix, May, 18
 Norfolk Jubilee Quartet, 91
 Norman, Gene, with Humes, Helen, 475
 North America, slaves imported to, 111
 North Carolina Folk Heritage Award, Baker, Etta, 41
 North Carolina. See Piedmont region, North Carolina Arts Council Folk Heritage Awards, Higgs, George, 426
 North Mississippi Allstars, 324, 820
 North Mississippi hill country sound, 390
North Star, The (newspaper), 84
 Northern California State Youth Choir (Church of God in Christ), 93
 Northern industrial cities, housing available in, 468
 Northern Wonders, 783
 Norvo, Red
 with Bailey, Mildred, 41
 with Humes, Helen, 475
 Norwood, Dorothy, 92
 Norwood, Sam "Peg Leg," "R. D.," 728–729
 Nosey Joe, 593
- Notes on the State of Virginia* (book), Thomas Jefferson, 384
Nothin' but the Blues, 218, 1094
Nothing But the Blues (book), 444
 Nothing Can Stop Me, 192
 Nothing In the World Can Hurt Me (Except You), 5
Nothing Personal, 666
 Notre Dame Blues Festival, with Griffith, Shirley, 381
 Now Run and Tell That, 583
 Now Sound label, 862
 NPR (National Public Radio), 796
 NRA (National Recovery Administration), 374
 Nulisch, Darrell, 707
 Number Forty-Four Blues, 1036
 Number One, 1033
 NYNO label, 871
- O
- O Brother Where Art Thou?* (film), 233
 with King, Chris Thomas, 631
O Brother Where Art Thou?, 569
 O, Gwine Away, 339
 O'Jays, with Garibay, Randy, Jr., 359
 O'Neal, Jim, 444, 445
 Blue Smitty interview, 103
 O'Neal, Winston James "Jim," 737–738, 741
 Oak City labels, 669
 Oak-Cliff T-Bone, 1045
 Oakland, California, 731–732
 Oakley, Giles, 443
 OBC (Original Blues Classics), 313
 Oberlin, 29
 Oberstein, Eli, 241, 859–860
 Obscenity, in blues music, 753
 Ocean Front, Venice Beach, Hawkins, Ted and, 416
 Ode to Billie Joe, 570
 Oden, "St. Louis" Jimmy, 331, 732–733
 Odetta (Odetta Felios Gordon), 733
 Odom, Andrew ("Big Voice," "Little B.B.," 733
 Odum and Johnson, 869
 Odum, Howard, 181, 648 earliest written description of blues, 114
 "Odyssey" CBS television series, 326
Of Rivers and Religion, 312
 Off the Wall, 407
 Office of Road Inquiry, Department of Agriculture, 1893, 427
 Offitt, Lillian, 761
 Oglethorpe, James, 364
 Oh Happy Day, 93
 Oh Pretty Woman (Can't Make You Love Me), 568, 734
 Oh Pretty Woman, 734, 842
- Oh Red, 403
 Oh Well, 1021
 Oh, Lord, Stand by Me, 330
 Ohio Untouchables, 389
 Oil It Up and Go, 170
Oil Man, The, 526
 Oil Man, The, 526
 OJC (Original Jazz Classics), 313
 OJL (Original Jazz Library), 817
OKeh Race Records, the 8000 "Race" Series (book), 446
 Okeh Records, 734–735
 Okeh
 acoustic guitar recording, 398 advertisements for "race records," 87
 Bentley, Gladys, 74
 Big Three Trio, 80
 Brockman, Polk, 149
 Brooks, Hadda, 150
 Carter, Bo, 185
 Cox, Ida, 236
 Davis, Carl, 582
 Gates, Reverend James M., 362
 Hawkins, Screamin' Jay, 415
 Hollins, Tony, 450
 Horton, Big Walter, 545
 Humes, Helen, 474
 Hunter, Alberta, 480
 Hurt, John Smith "Mississippi John," 482
 Jackson, Charles "Papa Charlie," 494
 Jaxon, Frankie "Half Pint," 507
 Jefferson, Blind Lemon, 495
 Johnson, James "Steady Roll," 566
 Johnson, Lonnie, 532
 "Key to the Highway," 563
 Lance, Major, 582
 Leonard, Harlan, 595
 Liston, Virginia, 313
 Martin, Sara, 39
 Mississippi Sheiks, 734
 Smith, Bessie, 398
 Smith, Mamie, 440
 See also Sony/Legacy/Columbia/Epic/
 Okeh, Okeh Phonograph Corporation, 734–735
 Okie Dokie Stomp, 120, 156
 Oklahoma dust bowl, 394
 Old Blue, 869
 Old Country Rock, 706
 Old Country Stomp, 984
 Old Dan Tucker, 113
 Old Dog Tray, 385
Old Enough, 60
Old Friends, 545
 Old Hen Cackled, Laid a Double Egg, 323
 Old Jay Gould, 187
 Old Kokomo Blues, 97
 Old Maid Boogie, 1037

INDEX

- Old Memphis, King, Willie and, 16
 Old Number, The, 189
 Old Organ Blues, 1067
 Old Original Kokomo Blues, 33
Old School, The, 653
 Old Ship of Zion, The, 90
 Old Stinkin Blues, 318
 Old Swing-Master/Master label, 735
 Old Timbrook Blues, 172
 Old Time Fox Chase, 407
 Old Time Rock and Roll, 496
 Old Time Shuffle, 367
 Old Town label, 355
 Old Veen', 869
 Oldie Blues label, 735
 Oldies circuit, with Hammond, Clay, 398
 Ole Sonny Boy, 612
 Oliver, King, with Alexander, Algernon
 "Texas," 17
 recordings, collective improvisation
 in, 679
 Oliver, Paul, 439–440, 801
 with Blind Blake, 100
 "good-time flats," 468 highways, songs about, 429 lower-class African-American communities, blues as fantasies
 of, 552
 songbooks by, 444
 Olsson, Bengt, 441
 Omar and the Howlers, 736
 Omar Hakim Khayyam. See
 Alexander, Dave, Omar the Magnificent. See Alexander, Dave
 Omn-Americans, The, 441
On A Night Like This, 165
On Tap, 396
On the Case, 154
On the Corner, 353
 On the Hook, 843
 On the Wall, 234, 533
On the Waterfront, 865
 On the Waterfront, 865
 Once I Had a Woman, 421
 One Bad Apple, 496, 910
 One Believer, 179
 One Bourbon, One Scotch,
 One Beer, 991
 One Dime Blues, 519
 One Family Band, 160
One Foot in Texas, 785
One Foot in the Blues, 8
One for the Road, 165
 One Kind Favor, 870
 One Meatball, 1071
 One Mint Julep, 215
One More Blues, 350
One More for the Road, 156
 One Night (of Sin), 601
One Night in America, 713
 One Night, 602
 One of These Mornings, 623
 One Scotch, One Bourbon, One Beer,
 16, 691
One String Blues, 194
 One String Blues, 194
 One Time Blues, 736, 742
 One Time/Kokomo/Honey
 Dripper, 737
 54321, 1020
 44 Blues, 948, 1035–1036
 49 Highway Blues, 1077
 4-11-44, 917
 One Track Mind, 82, 597
 One Way Out, 240
 One-derful/M-Pac/Mar-V-lus/Toddlin'
 Town, 738
 Leaner, George, 589
 Only a Fool, 502
 Only a Hobo, 1005
 Only in America, 593
 Only the Strong Survive, 171
 Only Women Bleed, 502
 Ooh Poo Pah Doo, 430
 Ooze Up to Me, 676
Open All Night, 725
 Open the Door Richard, 65, 84, 677
 Open Up the Back Door, 376
 Open-reel tapes, archive, Bowling
 Green University, 603
 Opera label, 738
 Operation Blues, 691
 Operator, 355
 Ora Nelle label, 738
 Oral history materials, archive, Indiana
 University, 603
 Oral tradition, harmonic progression of chords, 109
 rhythmic patterns in blues melodies, 107
 spirituals and, 89
 Orchestra of Memphis, "Hesitation
 Blues," 424
 Oree, 323
 Oregon (world music group), 517
 Origin Jazz Library (OJL), 734 Origin Jazz Library, Patton, Charley,
 reissues, 442
 Original Blues Classics (OBC), 313
 Jones, Curtis and, 544
 Original Dixieland Jazz Band recordings, collective improvisation in, 511
 Original Gospel Harmonettes, 92
 Original Jazz Classics (OJC), 313
 Original Memphis Five, with Hunter,
 Alberta, 480
 Original Old Kokomo Blues, 106, 1008
 Original Paradise Ten, 39
 Original Stack O' Lee Blues, 605
 Oriole label, 738–739, 752
 Oriole, 84
 Orioles, The, 739
 Orleans label, 739
 Ory, Kid, with Austin, Claire, 37 first recordings of, 511 recordings, collective improvisation
 in, 511
 Osby, Greg, experiments in funk and hip-hop, 517
 Oscher, Paul, 739
 Oster, Harry, 441, 631 with Cage, James "Butch," 176 with Johnson, Herman E., 530
 OT label, 2
 Otis Luke and the Rhythm Bombers,
 with Jones, Casey, 544
 Otis, Johnny (John Alexander Veliotos),
 739–740
 Otis, Johnny, 308, 445, 860–861 with Adams, Marie, 8 with Green, Normah G. "Guitar
 Slim," 378
 with Hopkins, Linda, 462
 with James, Etta, 501 labels licensed by Ace (UK), 5 with Lewis, Pete "Guitar," 601
 Otis, Shuggie, 740
 Our Father, 288
Out of Nowhere, 293
Out of the Dark, 1054
 Outside Woman Blues, 827, 841
 Ovations, 370, 416
 Over and Over, 212
 Over the Road I'm Bound to Go, 179
 Overbea, Danny, 740, 877
 Overbending technique, harmonica, 405
 Overstreet, Nathaniel "Pops," 741 Overtones, tempo of blues
 melodies, 109
 Owens, Calvin, 741
 Owens, Fred, 272
 Owens, Henry, 369
 Owens, Jack, 116, 741
 Owens, Jay (Isaac Jerome Owens), 742
 Owens, Marshall, with Bogan,
 Lucille, 15
 with Hill, King Solomon, 466
 pre-World War II era, 113
 Owens, Tary, with Grey Ghost, 380
 Owens, Terry, 85
 Owston, Chuck, 779

P

- .38 Pistol Blues, 794
 Pace & Handy, 401
 Pace, Harry, 95
 with Handy, William Christopher
 "W.C.," 401
 Pachuko Hop, 222
 Pacific Jazz, 295, 866
 Pack Fair and Square, 783
 Pack Square, Asheville, 256

- Padlock on the Blues*, 661
Page, Jimmy, 36, 590
Page, Oran Thaddeus “Hot Lips,” 743
 as blues shouter, 512
Page, Walter, 60, 743
Pain in My Heart, 985
Painful Hearted Man, 737
Palace Theater (Memphis), with Bland,
 Bobby “Blue,” 98
Palm, Horace M., 743
Palmer, Earl, 743–744
Palmer, Robert (author), 744
 Chicago blues sound, 488
 Delta blues, writings about, 443
 humor in blues, 476
Palmer, Robert, 744
Palmer, Sylvester, 744
Palms, The (club), 265
Pan American Blues, 40
Panama Club, The, Kansas
 City, 559
Panic Is On, The, 373
Panther Squall Blues, 105
Papa Blues, 318
Papa Charlie and Blind Blake Talk
 About It, 495
Papa, If You Can’t Do Better, 668
Papa’s Lawdy Lawdy Blues, 994
Papa’s Got a Brand New Bag, 124
Paper in My Shoe, 3, 44, 195,
 369, 648
Paradise Theater, Detroit, 264
Paradise Valley, Detroit, 264
Paramount All Stars, with Jefferson,
 Blind Lemon, 520
Paramount Book of Blues, The (book), 235, 438
 Jackson, Charles “Papa
 Charlie,” 494
 Jefferson, Blind Lemon in, 518
Paramount Book of Blues, The, 438
Paramount Records, 600, 701, 756, 814, 856, 914 acoustic guitar recordings, 533
 Austin, Lovie, 37
 Black Swan Records and, 95
 Blanks, Birleana, 99
 Blind Blake, 100
 Broadway 500 Race series, 148
 Burns, J.C., 103
 Cannon, Gus, 179
 Champion (Indiana), 191
 Cox, Ida, 235
 Crown and, 235
 Darby, Teddy, 249
 Davenport, Cow-Cow, 286
 Dean, Joe “Joe Dean from Bowling
 Green,” 260
 Dorsey, Thomas A., 279–280
 Easton, Amos, 294–295
 Hill, King Solomon, 430
 House, Eddie “Son,” 465
 “How Long How Long” (“Sitting on Top of the World”), 470
 Hunter, Alberta, 480
 Jackson, Bo Weavil, 494
 Jackson, Charles “Papa
 Charlie,” 494
 James, Nehemiah “Skip,” 503
 Jefferson, Blind Lemon, 518–520
 “Jesus Is a Dying Bed Maker” (“*In
 My Time of Dying*”), 522
 Johnson, Robert, 536
 Johnson, Tommy, 540
 Lewis, Meade “Lux,” 599
 Paramount folds, 466
 Patton, Charley, 748
 race records, 438
 race records, advertisements for, 86
 Rainey, Gertrude “Ma,” 802
 Williams, Jabo, 1080
Paraphrasing in blues lyrics, 106
Parchman Farm Blues, 224
Parchman Farm prison,
 Mississippi, 259
Parchman Farm, 1070
Parchman Farm, 22, 1070
Pardon Denied Again, 1085
Paredes, Americo, 433
Parisian Room, Los Angeles, with
 Holloway, Red, 451
Park Tower Blues Festival, Japan, 506
Parker, Charlie (“Bird,” “Yardbird”), 745–746
Parker, Charlie, 118, 558
 bebop, development of, 123
 bebop, origins of, 513
 with Brown, Walter, 162
 with Callender, Red, 176
 with Jackson, Willis “Gator” “Gator Tail,” 499
 JATP performances, 515
Parker, Herman, Jr. (“Little Junior,” “Junior”), 746
Parker, Jack “The Bear,” 871
Parker, John “Knocky,” 433
Parker, Junior, 662
 with Ace, Buddy, 5
 with Bland, Bobby “Blue,” 98
 with Houston, Edward Wilson
 “Bee,” 469
 with Howlin’ Wolf, 471
Parker, Little Junior, harmonica, 405
Parker, Sonny, 746
Parks, Barney, 272
Parkway label, 746–747
Parr, Elven “L. V.,” 747
Part Time Love, 398, 751, 862, 960
Part Time Love, 751
Parth, Johnny, 125, 276, 446 reissued recordings and, 127
Partnership Blues, 990
Parton, Dolly, 232
Party After Hours, 691
Party Doll, 161
Party Hearty, 856
Partymakers Inc., The, 221
Pasley, Frank, with Hite, Les, 447
Pass Me Not, 858
Passis, Monroe, 746
Patches, 15
Path, Charles and Emile, 747
Pathé Phonograph and Radio Corporation, Ajax and, 27
Patience Like Job, 941
Patt, Frank “Honeyboy,” 918
Patterson, Bobby, 747
Pattersonaires, The, 427
Pattman, Neal, 748
Patton, Big John, 377
Patton, Charley, 748–749
 black sacred music, performances
 by, 87
 with Block, Rory, 101
 with Booker, James, 139
 box set reissues of, 551
 with Brown, Willie Lee, 162
 Depression years, 117 with Fahey, John, 312
 guitar, 1920s, 383–384
 with House, Eddie “Son,” 460
 with Howlin’ Wolf, 472, 473
 “Jesus Is a Dying Bed Maker” (“*In
 My Time of Dying*”), 522
 with Johnson, Louise, 533
 with Johnson, Tommy, 540
 with Lewis, Homer, 3
 with Speir, H.C., 429
Paul Butterfield Blues Band, 16,
 717, 842
 1960s, 49
 Alabama, artists from, 16 with Bishop, Elvin, 83
 with Bloomfield, Michael, 101
 with Lay, Sam, cofounder, 585
Paul Gayten Band, with Allen, Lee, 19
Paul Oliver Collection of African American Music and Culture, future archive, European Blues Association/Archive of African American Music, Cheltenham, 603
Paul, Les, 386
Paulus, George, 59
 Blue Smitty interview, 100
Pawn Broker Blues, 1067
Payne, Felix, juke joint owner, 558
Payne, John W. “Sonny,” 750
Payne, Odie, Jr., 750
Payola scandals, 388
Payton, Asie, 751
Payton, Dion, with Connor,
 Joanna, 222
Payton, Nicholas, 518
P-Bass, 63
PBS (Public Broadcasting Service),
 656, 657

INDEX

- PBS series, American Promise, The, 253
Austin City Limits, 125, 211, 376, 1032
Martin Scorsese Presents the Blues, 127
- PBS series/specials, "Good Mornin' Blues," 464
- Peace in the Valley, 90, 119, 280, 782, 887, 978
- Peach Tree Blues*, 970
- Peaches, with James, Etta, 501
- Peacock Records, 621
- Peanut the Kidnapper, 667–668
- Pearl Harbor Blues, 213
- Pearl*, 548
- Pearl, Bernie, 409
- Pearly Gates, 676
- "Pearly Gates" (McTell), 676
- Pearson, Barry Lee, 132
- Pedal steel guitars, sacred steel trend, 127
- Peebles, Ann, 751
- Peeples, Robert, 885
- Peer, Ralph, 654
- Peg Leg Howell and His Gang, 45
- Peg Leg Pete. See Peg Leg Sam (Arthur Jackson)
- Peg Leg Sam (Arthur Jackson), 751–752 with Anderson, Pinkney "Pink," 26
- Peg o' My Heart, 1038
- Pejoe, Morris, 752
- Peña, Manuel, 433
- Pendergast, Thomas, political machine, 117
- Penguins, with Belvin, Jesse, 72
- Penitentiary Moan Blues, 17
- Penitentiary, 1013
- Penn Cafe, Pittsburgh, 779
- Pensacola Blues, 1091
- Pentatonic scale, 11, 12, 49, 108, 863–865, 869, 887, 888
 Africa and, 11
- Pentecostal church, 339, 640
 worship in, 90
- People Get Ready, 124, 351, 890, 911
- Percussion
 Below, Fred and, 71–72 drums as bass line, 64
 polyrhythmic drumming, 124
- Perdue, Chuck, with Jackson, John, 497
- Perfect 100s, 752
- Perfect label, 752
- Perfect, Ajax and, 14
- Performances in 1940s, 550
 archive, Indiana University, 603 in blackface, 113
 blues, primary source of, 104
 Collins, Albert and, 253
 energetic showmanship, Lenoir, J.B., 594 of Hooker, John Lee, 521, 531, 555
 Hopkins, Sam "Lightnin'," 497
 Howlin' Wolf's last, 473
 Jackson, Mahalia, 498
 King, Riley B. "B.B.," 574
 of Leake, Lafayette, 588 lengths of, 110, 111 live music, venue provided by European Blues Association/
 Archive of African American Music, Cheltenham, 603 typical, in Kansas City, 591
- Performers, 475, 480, 482
- Periodicals, 752–760
 1950–today, 753–755 blues magazines, 755 fanzines, 755, 758
 jazz magazines, 754–755 list of, 755–761
 Living Blues, 744, 746, 748, 755
 newsletters, 754, 755, 758
 pre-1950, 753
- Perkins, "Dancin'" Robert, 647
- Perkins, Al, 761
- Perkins, Carl, 839, 841
- Perkins, Joe Willie "Pinetop," 761–762
- Perkins, Pinetop, 762
- Perls, Nick, 125, 126, 442, 466, 817, 874, 1054
- Perry, Oscar, 762
- Perryman, Rufus, 35, 270
- Perryman, Speckled Red, 35, 264, 772, 918
- Perryman, William Lee (Piano Red), 35, 314, 840, 919
- Personality, 1
- Petard, Gilles, 212
- Peter Chatman, 688
- Peterson, James, 762
- Peterson, Judge Kenneth. See Peterson, Lucky
- Peterson, Lucky, 763, 853, 945, 961
- Petties, Arthur, use of "killing floor" in lyrics, 565
- Petway, Robert, 104, 188, 298, 357, 665, 844, 872, 886
- Peverett, Dave "Lonesome," 334
- Pharaoh, Jaarone. See Jenkins, Gus
- Phelps, Arthur. See Blind Blake
- Phelps, Kelly Joe, 169, 764, 854, 870
- Phelps, Walter, 764
 with Davis, Reverend Gary, 257
- Phillip Walker Blues Band, 350
- Phillips, Brewer, 64, 703, 764–765, 959
- Phillips, Cora, with Baker, Etta, 41
- Phillips, Dewey, 120, 656, 683, 839
- Phillips, Earl, 548, 825
 with Jones, Willie, 548
- Phillips, Esther, 65, 121, 290, 601, 624, 739, 765, 887, 975
- Phillips, Flip, JATP performances, 515
- Phillips, Gene, 129, 222
- Phillips, George Washington. See Phillips, Washington
- Phillips, Little Esther (Esther Mae Jones), 260, 601, 624, 739, 765, 887
- Phillips, Marvin, with Belvin, Jesse, 72
- Phillips, Sam, 31, 123, 370, 394, 402, 578, 726, 746, 848, 939, 987
 with Hare, Auburn "Pat," 746
 with Hunt, Daniel Augusta
 "D.A.," 479
- Phillips, Washington (George Washington Phillips), 121, 224, 766, 889
- Philo Records. See Aladdin/Score
- Philosopher of Soul, 959
- Phone Booth, 237
- Phonetic imitation in blues lyrics, 105, 537, 1008
- Phonograph Blues, 537, 678
- Photographs of blues artists
 Adins, Joris "Georges," 9
 daguerreotype of early accordionist, 2
- Photographs
 in advertisements for race records, 87
 archive, Indiana University, 603
 by Bruynoghe, Yannick, 153, 163–164 of Flerlage, Raeburn, 332–333, 970, 1063
- Phrase-formulas in blues lyrics, 105
 Jefferson, Blind Lemon and, 518
- Physical Graffiti*, 523
- Piano, 766–771
 African antecedents, 766
 amplification, 771
 barrelhouse, 768
 barrelhouse and brothel music, Johnson, James "Stump" and, 530
 bass line on, 61, 63–64
 in black string bands, 45
 and blues recording, 768–769
 boogie-woogie, 544, 767–768, 770
 in Chicago, 769
 in early blues era, 115 and European traditions, 766 future, in blues, 771 with guitar, duets in early blues ensembles, 45–46
 Harlem stride style, of play, 774 history and technical description, 766 impact of recording industry on, 769, 770 jazz instrument, development as, 177, 515, 992
 Johnson, Robert and, 487, 561, 565, 643
 Jones, "Little" Sonny, last two-handed blues pianist, 546
 in jug bands, 46
 marking, 791

- New Orleans, 767, 785
 in pre–World War II era, 114
 Professor Longhair, style of, 477
 ragtime, 766–767
 ragtime pianists, 509 recordings, postwar, 770–771 recordings, prewar, 770 rural, 770 soul, 771
 in St. Louis, 769–770 technique, James, Nehemiah “Skip,” 503–504 transition, 768
 West Coast musicians, 36
- Piano accordion, 2 advantages over button accordion, 2
 Chenier, Clifton, 4
- Piano C. Red (James Wheeler), 772
- Piano Parade, 600
 “Piano Parade” concerts, with Lewis,
 Meade “Lux,” 600
- Piano Players Rarely Ever Play
 Together* (film), 328–329, 786, 1006
- Piano players, 30, 35, 64, 152, 200, 202, 264, 290, 328, 468, 631, 674, 691,
 703, 704, 775, 916, 1006
 Gary Davis, 774
 Professor Longhair (Henry Roeland Byrd), 785–786
 Sammy Price, 784
- Piano Red (William Lee Perryman), 772
- Piazza, Rod, 772
- Piccolo, Greg, 772
- Pichon, Walter G. “Fats,” 773
- Pickens, Buster (Edwin Goodwin), 773
- Pickett, Dan (James Founty), 773
- Pickett, Wilson, 92, 96, 783
- Picture This*, 251
- Pieces of Peace, 874, 1017
- Piedmont blues style, 182, 957, 1011
- Piedmont blues, 118, 182, 192, 426, 445, 448, 652, 671, 773, 774, 776, 931,
 957, 1011, 1066
 Carolina Slim and, 182
 Depression years, 117
 guitar playing, 48
- Piedmont label, 1075
- Piedmont region, 773–776
- Piedmont style, 41, 118, 228, 497, 709, 775, 776, 867, 1011, 1072, 1073
 Higgs, George and, 426
 Jackson, John and, 497
 singers, 886
- Pierce, Billie (Wilhelmina Goodson), 777
- Pierson, Eugene, 777
- Pierson, Leroy, 777
- Pigmeat Jarrett Day, Cincinnati, 507
- Pilgrim Jubilees, 92–93, 95
- Pilgrim Travelers, 81, 92, 225
- Pine Grove Blues, 2
- Pine Top Blues, 117
- Pine Top Boogie Woogie, 599
- Pine Top’s Boogie Woogie, 24, 117,
 202, 660, 769, 897
- Pine Top’s Trouble, 897
- Pineapple Rag, 234, 768
- Pinetop’s Boogie Woogie, 157, 247,
 721, 761
Pinetop’s Boogie Woogie, 762
- Pinewood Tom, 775
- Piney Records, 671
- Ping label, 777–778, 873
- Ping Pong, 1011
- Pink Champagne, 612
- Pink Floyd, 230, 775, 776 with Council, Floyd “Dipper
 Boy,” 230
- Pino, Babe, with Johnson, Luther “Georgia Boy” “Snake,” 534
- Pinson, Reverend Leon, 778
- Pipeline, 1032
- Pirated recordings, West Africa, 11
- Pit Man, The*. See Bartholomew, Dave
- Pitch, blues melodies. See tone, blues melodies
- Pitchford, Lonnie, 127, 269, 778, 820, 847
- Pitter Patter, 159
- Pittman, Sampson, 778
- Pittsburgh Blues Festival, 779
- Pittsburgh Blues Society, 779
- Pittsburgh Blues, 297
- Pittsburgh, 86, 88, 115, 297, 693, 779–780
- Placksin, Sally, women musicians,
 writings of, 443
- Plagiarism, lyric choruses, appropriation of, 105
- Plain, Stony, 33, 43, 371, 664, 674, with Gordon, Roscoe(e), 371
- Planned Obsolescence*, 133
- Plant, Robert, 590, 841, 889
- Plantation Club, Chicago, with Cox,
 Ida, 235
- Play Misty for Me* (film), 740
- Play Parties in Song and Dance*, 34
- Playboy Club, Greenville,
 Mississippi, 59
- Playing of Keeps, 82
- Playing the Dozens, 270
- “Playlet songs,” of Leiber and Stoller, 593
- Pleadin’ for Love, 307
- Pleading For Love, 497
- Please Come for Christmas, 156
- Please Come Home for Christmas, 155
- Please Don’t Leave Me, 278
- Please Don’t Cry Anymore, 481
- Please Forgive Me, 6
- Please Help Get Him Off My Mind, 895
- Please Listen to Me, 602
- Please Love Me, 864
- Please Ma’am, 471
- Please Mr. Johnson, 528
- Please Please Please, 159, 907
- Please Send Me Somebody to Love, 663
- Please Send Me Someone to Love, 332
- Please Settle in Vietnam, 542
- Please, Please, Please, 124
- Pleasin’ Man Blues, 475
- Pledging My Love, 6, 840
- Plumpp, Sterling, 444
- Plunkett, Robert, 170, 779
- Po Lazarus, 385
- Poetry of the blues, 131, 194, 441
Poetry of the Blues, The (book), 194, 441
- Pointer Sisters, 104, 1006
- Poison Ivy, 644, 839
- PoKempner, Marc, 446
- Poland, AFBF, tours in, 23–24
- Polaris*, 727
- Police Dog Blues, 100, 775
- Police in Mississippi Blues*, 781
- Policy Blues, 626
- Politics, contemporary, free jazz musicians active in, 516
- Polk, Charlie, jug playing of, 552
- Polly Wolly Doodle, 466
- Pollock Blues, 1080
- Polydor labels, 594
- Polyphony
 in early jazz, free jazz and, 516 early New Orleans jazz replaced by antiphonal big band styles, 510, 511
 melodic/harmonic aspects of blues, 110
 transition to homophonic approach, 118–119
- Polyrhythmy, jug bands and, 47
- Pomus, Doc, 27, 711, 793
 with Blackwell, Otis, 96
- Pomus, Jerome “Doc,” 779–780
- Poncio, Steve, 646
- Ponty, Jean Luc, 411
 with Harris, Don “Sugarcane,” 411
- Pony Blues, 116, 162, 386, 466, 540, 1077
- Poonanny (Joe P. Burns), 780
- Poontang Little, Poontang Small, 936
- Poor Boy a Long Ways from Home, 114
- Poor Boy, Long Ways from Home, 179
- Poor Monkey’s Lounge, Merigold,
 Mississippi, 554
 juke joint, 554
- Poor Mourner, 54
- Pop Eye, 899
- Pop Singles charts, James, Etta, 501
- Popa Chubby (Theodore Joseph Horowitz), 780
- Poplin, Stan, 192
- Poppa’s Got a Brand New Bag, 727
- Popular African Music*, 12

INDEX

- Popular culture, 153, 415, 520, 602, 632, 972, 1097
 Popular Front, 439 Popular music blues and, 44
 British Invasion, 123
 jazz musicians performing in 1920s, 512
 LP recordings, collections of, 603, 610
 women guitarists and, 101
 Popularization, of the blues, 24, 232, 267
Porgy & Bess, 215
Porgy and Bess, 177, 515
 Porkchop, 289, 664
 Porter, David, 780, 908
 Porter, Jake (Vernon), 222, 490, 780
 Porter, King (James A. Pope), 781
 Portius, Bryce, 859
 Portnoy, Jerry, 408, 543, 592, 781, 969, 1058
 Portrait of Billie, 246
Portrait of a Delta Bluesman, 762
Portraits in Blue (radio program), 796
 Posters, archive, Indiana University, 603
 Postwar era, 78, 119, 124, 205, 208, 269, 853, 911, 1099
 Alabama, 14–16
 banjo, revival of, 52–56
 Bass, Ralph and, 65
 Bell, T.D. and, 71
 Below, Fred and, 71–72
 Chicago blues, 44, 49
 electric guitar pioneers, 387
 fiddlers, 315–318, 802, 974
 Foster, “Baby Face” Leroy and, 286, 341–342 gospel quartets in, 119, 331, 666, 676, 1081 harmonics
 James, Elmore in, 165
 Japan, blues and, 506, 755
 “Key to the Highway,” recorded versions of, 152, 209, 367, 563–564
 “Killing Floor” (“The Lemon Song”), 565
 Southwest blues bands, 51
 upheavals, 1954–1970, 121
 Post–World War II, folk music, 55
 Pot Likker, 637
 Powell, Bud, 513, 516, 1078
 Powell, Eugene (Sonny Boy Nelson), 125, 185, 696, 721, 781, 815, 929
 Powell, Richard J., 446
 Powell, Vance “Tiny,” 781
Power and The Glory, The, 498
 Praise God I’m Satisfied, 311
 Praise songs, field hollers and, 320–321, 385, 883
Praise the Blues, 243
 Prater, Dave, 782
 Prather, Ida. See Cox, Ida
 Pratt City Blues, 1080
 Pray, 739
 Preachers, 91, 433, 838
 Preachin’ the Blues, 465–467, 478
 Preaching Blues (Up Jumped the Devil), 537
 Preaching the Blues, 118
 Pre-blues era, 972 accordion in, 2
 guitar, 421
 Precious Lord, 90, 280, 349, 978
 Precious Memories, 978
 Premier. See Atlas
 Premium records, 695, 992
 “President of Soul, The,” 193
 Presidential Medal of the Arts, 573
 Presley, Elvis, 33, 78, 96, 119, 121, 156, 232, 242, 277, 339, 340, 341, 345, 350, 365, 371, 394, 424, 472, 865, 982, 1089 cover, 657
 with Blackwell, Otis, 96 early career, 683 rockabilly, emergence of, 939 and sexuality, 872
 use of scales, 865
 “Press roll” technique, 286
 Preston, Jimmy, 782
Presumed Innocent, 145
 Pretty Baby Blues, 9, 481
 Pretty Girls Everywhere, 207, 212
 Pretty Polly, 385
 Pretty Thing, 250, 1020
 Pre–World War II era
 Adelphi Records, field recordings, 9
 African cultural influences, 285
 Alabama, 14–16
 automobile industry, 427
 banjo, 52–56
 black newspaper press, 86–88, 754
 blues, Japan releases, 506
 CD releases, 9, 618, 877
 classic blues, 134, 172, 327, 769
 country music, 27, 40, 230–232
 Depression years, 117
 Dorsey, Thomas A., 152, 214, 279–280, 331
 fiddle, 315–320
 guitar, 383–390
 jazz, eruption of, 509–518
 Mississippi Delta, 9, 15, 22, 29 racism, Gates, Reverend James M. sermons, 362
 reissued recordings, 816
 transcribing performances in, 101, 446, 1007
 Pre–World War II recordings, 858
 Prez Kenneth (Kenneth Kidd), 783
 Price, “Big Walter,” “The Thunderbird,” 783
 Price, Alan, with Animals, 26
 Price, Lloyd, 783–784
 ABC-Paramount/BluesWay, 1
 with Allen, Lee, 19
 Price, Rod, 334
 Price, Sam, 532 with Johnson, Lemuel Charles “Lem,” 531–532
 Price, Sammy, 967, 986
 Priest, Charles, 295
 Primer, John, 294, 648, 669, 1095
 Primettes, 640
 Primich, Gary, 505, 785, 976
 Prine, John, alternative country, 232
 Priority label, 856
 Prison Bound Blues, 678
 Prison Bound, 189
 Prison
 Davenport, Cow Cow, 117, 191, 234, 250 eleven twenty-nine sentencing, 301
 Green, Cal, 377
 Hare, Auburn “Pat,” 30
 Hawkins, Ted, 542
 Henderson, Billy, 494
 Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” 461
 House, Eddie “Son,” 23, 131, 298
 James, Jesse, 208
 Kimbrough, David, Jr., 388, 565–566
 Leadbelly, 28, 586–587
 Leavy, Calvin, 314, 507, 589, 789
 Levy, Morris, died while appealing sentence, 597
 White, Bukka, 1070–1071
 Prisoner of Love, 840
 Prisoner’s Plea, 33
 Prisoner’s Song, 307
 Prisoners Talking Blues, 1085
 Proactive standpoint in hoodoo, 455
 Prodigal Son, 773, 1075
 Prodigal Son (That’s No Way to Get Along), 598 Professionalism in 1930s recorded ensembles, 47
 in jug bands, 47
 Professor Longhair, “Fess” (Henry Roeland Byrd), 36, 43, 121, 133, 171, 234, 255, 328, 416, 434, 551, 564, 633, 785–786
 with Ball, Marcia, 43 with Cow Cow Blues, 234
 with Davis, Quint, 255–256
 Hispanic influences on, 434
 Progressive jazz, Africa, imported to, 11
Projections, 133
 Protestantism, Southern, hoodoo and, 455
 Proto-blues, 181, 519, 649, 766, 966
Provincial Freeman, The (newspaper), 86
 Prowling Night-Hawk, 724
 Pryor, Alice, 345

Pryor, James Edward “Snooky,” 786–787
Pryor, Snooky, 102, 169, 300, 346, 545,
547, 623
Prysock, Arthur, 528, 536, 735, 787, 893
with Johnson, Buddy, 528
Prysock, Wilbert “Red,” 787–788
Public Enemy, 127, 806
Public Works Administration (PWA),
374, 1004
Publications
blues artists, autobiographies/biographies of, 439 blues children books, 441, 444
Guralnick, Peter and, 126, 351, 538 instructional, blues playing, 382, 404, 405, 506
black music, 112, 113, 123, 127
Handy Brothers Music
Company, 115
Pucker Up Buttercup, 840
Puerto Rican Santeria, 455
Pugh, Joe Bennie “Forrest City Joe,”
31, 407, 843
Pulaski Lounge, Gary, Indiana, 361
Pullum, Joe, 104, 371, 374, 378–379, 1000
Pure Cotton, 1013
Pure Food and Drug Act, with Harris,
Don “Sugarcane,” 411
Puretone label, 788
Puritan labels, 788
Purple Haze, 420
Purple Rain, 891
Put It In Your Ear, 368 Put It Right Here (Or Keep It Out
There), 479
Put Your Arms Around Me,
Honey, 235
Put Your Money Where Your Mouth
Is, 397
Putnam, Bill, 489, 1038
P-Vine Special label, 507
P-Vine, 507, 783, 1100
Pye/Nixa label, 789, 871
Chess license with, 123

Q

QRS label, 693
Qualls, Henry, 791
Quartets, gospel, 91, 629
Quarts of Joy, 508
Quattlebaum, Doug, 349, 776, 791–792, 831, 1063
Queen Latifah, 127, 807
“Queen of Gospel Music.” See Jackson,
Mahalia
Queen of Hits, 646
Queen of the Blues, 506

“Queen of the Blues”, Adams,
Alberta, 7
Quicksand (book), 616
Quincy Jones Orchestra, with Big Maybelle, 80
Quinichette, Paul, with Baker,
Mickey, 42
Quinn, Bill, 368, 462
with Jackson, Lil’ Son, 497
Quit My Drinkin’, 361
Quittin’ My Man Today, 670

R

R & B Panorama (periodical), 441
R + B = Ruth Brown, 161
R and B (1), 793
R and B (2), 793
R&B at the Marquee, 43
R&B from the Marquee, 132
R&B Record of the Year
Brown, Charles, 155
R. M. Blues, 471
Rabbit Foot Minstrels with Butterbeans and Susie, 172 with Hunt, Van Zula Carter, 480
with Jordan, Louis, 549
Rabson, Ann, 855
with James, Steve, 506
Race catalog, dime-store labels, 752
Race Horse, 258
Race Horse/Bug Juice, 258
Race record, 623
Race records, 654, 655, 736, 753, 795
ABC-Paramount/BluesWay, 95 advertisements for, 87
books about, 444–445
Columbia, Johnson, Blind Willie, 527
Hooker, John Lee and, 460
Jefferson, Blind Lemon and, 519
O’Keh, Johnson, Lonnie, 532
Speir, H.C. and, 503
Race riots, 86, 926
Rachell, James “Yank,” 47, 348, 445, 660, 793–794
with Lewis, Noah, 601
Racial diversity, 128
Racial issues and the blues, 794–796 integration, 859
Racial segregation, of music, 652
Racial stereotypes, 657
Rack ‘Em Up, 351
Radcliff, Bobby, 796
Radio One, 422
Radio Parade of 1935
with Hunter, Alberta, 480
Radio programs
BBC Radio One with Korner,
Alexis, 580
“Blues Before Sunrise,” 444

Camel Caravan, 41
CBS, Jackson, Mahalia, 498
First Church of Deliverance
(Chicago), 93
Grand Ole Opry, 408
with Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 508
Johnson, Pete, band of, 535
King Biscuit Time, 656, 750, 761
“King Biscuit Time,” KFFA, 500
Leadbelly on, 587
Lewis, Stan and, 523
NBC, with Hunter, Alberta, 480
New Orleans, K-Doe, Ernie, 561
Williamson, Sonny Boy II (Aleck Miller), 574
Radio stations
black, advent of, in postwar era, 48 blues, reluctance to play, 506
Chicago, Cooper, Jack L., 225–226 in Gary, Indiana, 361
Georgia, 364
KCOH, Houston, 176
KDIA (Oakland, California), 731
KFFA, Arkansas, 243–244
KFFA, Helena, Arkansas, 439, 500, 656, 724, 750, 797
KFRC, San Francisco, 164
KKJZ-FM, Long Beach, CA, 645
KPFA, San Francisco, 857
KWEM, West Memphis, Arkansas,
472, 500, 574
Memphis, 682
NPR (National Public Radio), 796
payola scandals, 388
U.S. Armed Forces. See Far East
Network
W9XBY, 535
WAVN-AM, Memphis, 796
WCAP, Washington D.C., 225
WDIA, Memphis, 575, 656, 796
WIHN, Gallatin, Tennessee, 18
WJLB, Detroit, 345
WLAC, Nashville, 18, 718, 719
WMPR-FM, Jackson,
Mississippi, 796
WSM, Nashville, 40
WVON (Voice of the Negro),
Chicago, 199
WXOK, Baton Rouge, 395
Radio, and the blues, 796
Raelettes, with Charles, Ray, 193
Rafferty, Carl, “I Believe I’ll Make a Change” (“Dust My Broom”), 487
Rafal, Neal, 720
Rag Mama Rag, 182
Rage Against the Machine, 353
Rage in Harlem, A (film)
with Hawkins, Screamin’ Jay, 415
“Let the Good Times Roll,” 595
Ragtime Millionaire, 707

INDEX

- Ragtime, 509–510
 black string bands and, 45
 jazz and, 509–510
 Johnson, Pete, 535
 Morton, Jelly Roll and, 708
 pianists, 509
 recordings, collections of, 602 stride piano and, 511
- Railroad Bill, 114, 129, 801, 1037
- Railroad Porter Blues, 965
- Railroad blacks building, “gandy,” 358 building of, “John Henry”
 and, 524
 sound of, imitating, 404
See also train blues
- Railroads
 Bailey, DeFord imitating sounds
 of, 40
 Casey Jones and, 187 in Cincinnati, 207
 sounds of, Hurt, John Smith
 “Mississippi John,” 484
 sounds of, Lewis, Meade Lux, 247
- Rainbow Bridge*, 422
- Rainbow Quest* (television), with Hurt, John Smith “Mississippi
 John,” 482
- Rainbow Round My Shoulder*
 (book), 438
- Rainbow Round My Shoulder, 246
- Rainbow, 124, 192, 890
- Raindrops, 7, 211
- Rainey, Gertrude “Ma,” 802–804 with Austin, Claire, 37
 biography of, 443
 with Blind Blake, 100 blues-style vocals in non-blues songs, 510
 with Butterbeans and Susie, 172
 “C.C. Rider,” 189
 dance and, 247
 Georgia roots, 365
 humorous lyrics, 476
 influential music of, 80, 92, 498
 music of, Hispanic influences, 433 songs of, hoodoo in, 456
- Raining in My Heart, 410, 412
- Raining in the Heart, 307
- Rainwater, Randall Lee, 870
- Rainy Night in Georgia, 75
- Raitt, Bonnie, 805
 with Block, Rory, 101
 with Brown, Ruth, 161
 with Crudup, Arthur William “Big Boy,” 243
 with Curtis Salgado, 856
 with Hooker, John Lee, 460
- Ralph Gleason Award for Music
 Journalism, Brown, Ruth, 161
- Ralph J. Gleason Book Award, Cohn,
 Larry, 216
- Ramblin on My Mind, 626
- Ramblin’ Mind*, 845
- Ramblin’ on My Mind, 283
- Ramblin’, 878
- Rambling on My Mind, 537, 625,
 643, 841
- Ramey, Ben, kazoo playing of, 560
- Ramos, Kid, with Fabulous
 Thunderbirds, 311
- Ramsey, Frederic, 440
 with Charters, Samuel Barclay, 194
 postwar-era recordings, 440
- Randini’s Club, Los Angeles, with
 Lewis, Meade “Lux,” 600
- Randolph, Boots
 with Henry, Clarence
 “Frogman,” 422
- Rainey Gertrude “Ma,” 802
 with Austin, Clane, 37
- Randolph, Robert, 127, 728
- Randy’s Record Shop, 719, 798
- Range in My Kitchen, 17
- Rap music, origins of, 127
- Rastus on Parade, 135
- Ration Blues (film), with Jordan, Louis and his band, 549
- Ration Blues*, 549
- Rationing, of phonograph record material. See also gas rationing, 514
- Rattlesnake Daddy, 231
- Rattlesnake, 148
- Rau, Fritz, 581
 AFBF, produced by, 23
- Rawls, Johnny, 807, 808
- Rawls, Lou, 808
- Ray, David, 442
- “Razor, The.” See Collins, Albert, 219, 220
- RCA, 79, 96
- RCA/Victor/Bluebird/Camden/Groove/
 X/Vik, 809
 Allen, Annisteen, 18
 Bailey, DeFord, 40
 Big Maceo, 104
 Charles Johnson’s Original Paradise
 Ten, 39
 Cooke, Sam, 224–225
 Crudup, Arthur William “Big Boy,” 241–243
 Dinwiddie Colored Quartet, 89
 Estes, John Adam “Sleepy John,” 304–305
 Gates, Reverend James M., 362
 Green, Lil, 378
 Hunter, Alberta, 480–481
 Jacquet, Illinois, 499
 Jones, Curtis, 544
 Jordan, Louis, 548–550
 Lewis, Furry, 598
 Lewis, Meade “Lux,” 599–600
 releases, 1927, 117
- Washboard Sam, 1070
- Williams, Big Joe, 39
- Reaching Out, 21
- Read My Lips*, 60
- Ready Teddy, 782
- Reagan, Ronald, Chenier, Clifton
 and, 197
- Reaganomics, Edwards, “Good Rockin,” Charles and, 299
- Real Deal: Greatest Hits 2, The*, 1033
- Real Folk Blues, The*, 1024
- Real Gone Lover, 602
- Real Old-Fashioned Blues Singer, 654
- Real Raw & Blue*, 103
- Real Thing, The*, 952
- Real Ugly Woman, 593
- Real, Raw & Blue, 103
- Really Chicago’s Blues*, 9
- Really the Country Blues*, 734
- Really! The Country Blues*, 442
- Rebecca, 535
- Rebennack, Mac “Dr. John,” 10, 36, 60, 102, 799 with Adams, Johnny, 8
 A.F.O., 10
 with Bloomfield, Michael, 102
 with Lastie, David, 584
- Reckless*, 21
- Reconsider Baby, 350, 782
- Reconsider Me, 8
- Reconstruction era accordionists, concentration of, 2
 black newspaper press, 86
 convict labor, 223
 country music, 230–233
 pre-blues styles, 2, 113
 ragtime and, 509
- Reconstruction period, 794–795
- Record Changer* (magazine), 672
- Record collectors
 78 issues, 706
 “78 mafia,” 216
 Davis, “Blind” John, 251
- Record companies, independent, 48, 203, 657
- Record company catalogs, collections of, Bremen archive, 602
- Record industry
 in Chicago, 199, 200, 201, 202 in Chicago, after, 1970, 203, 204 compact disc format, 126
 Depression years, 117 digital recordings, 127, 812
 influences on, 44, 812
 in postwar era, influences on, 48, 269,
 853, 911, 1099
- Record King of the Delta Blues
 Singers*, 935
- Record labels, Jarrett, Theodore “Ted,” owner of, 507
- Record Research* (magazine), 755, 885
- Record Research, 441

- Record, Eugene, with Acklin, Barbara, 6
- Recording industry and blues artists, 768, 769 impact, on music, 769, 770 and Piedmont region, 774, 775, 776
- Recording the Blues* (book), 441, 445
- Recording, early, 631, 769
- Recordings, 810
78-rpm, 811
AFM ban on, 815
Alligator “comeback” recordings, 20 from American Folk Blues (& Gospel) Festivals, 23 archive of 650,000, Bowling Green University, 603 collection, Notodden, Norway, 602–603 collections of, York University, Ontario, 602
early blues, 35, 488, 507, 631, 641 first blues discography, 439 first jazz, 272, 944, 963
of Hooker, John Lee, 459–461
of Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” 462 of Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 403, 943, 953
Jefferson, Blind Lemon, 518, 519, 520 of Johnson, Lonnie, 1920s, 358
jug bands, 46, 47
kazoo heard on, 560
King, Riley B. “B.B.,” first, 575
“Kitchen” variant, “How Long How Long,” 470
Leadbitter, Michael Andrew “Mike,” compiling/annotating, 588 of Lewis, Smiley, provided hits for other performers, 601 LP collections, Bremen archive, 602
in postwar era, 439–440 postwar era, “Key to the Highway,” 564 race labels, books about, 440 ten-inch LPs, revival of, 5
- Records companies, independent, 657
- Recovery, 65
- Red Cross Blues, 737, 845
- Red Cross Man, 117, 742
- Red Cross Store Blues, 596
- Red Cross Store, 919
- Red Cross the Disciple of Christ Today, 996
- Red Devil Trio, 879
with Gray, Henry, 373
- Red Hot & Blue*, 592
- Red Hot Louisiana Band, The, 196
- Red Hot Red, 953
- Red Hot, 303
- Red House, 421
- Red Mud, 569
- Red River Blues* (book), 256
- Red River Blues: The Blues Tradition in the Southeast* (book), 445
- Red Rooster, The, 546, 844
- Red Sails in the Sunset, 278
- “Red Summer” race riots, 86
- Red, Hot and Blue (band), 779
- Red’s Boogie, 772, 919
- Red’s Got the Piccolo Blues, 348
- Redding, Noel, 421
- Redding, Otis, 121 with Cropper, Steve, 389
Georgia roots, 365
influential music of, 123
- Reddy Teddy, 621
- Redeaux, Albert, 377
- Redman, Joshua, 518
- Red’s Rhumba, 436
- Reed, A.C., 822–823
with Jones, Casey, 544
- Reed, Jimmy, 823–826
with Anderson, Jimmy, 25
with Brim, John, 148
with Campbell, Eddie C., 178
Gary, Indiana, 361
with Gray, Henry, 373
harmonica, 406
with Howlin’ Wolf, 122
influential music of, 240
with King, Albert, 568
- Reed, Johnny, 739
- Reed, Lou, 870
- Reed, Willie, with Alexander, Algernon “Texas,” 17
- Reeder, S.Q., 304
- Reese, Della, gospel quartets, origins in, 91
- Reese, James, “Hesitation Blues,” 424
- Reet, Petite and Gone (film), with Jordan, Louis and his band, 549
- Reet, Petite and Gone, 549
- Reet, Petite and Gone*, 549
- Reeves, Jim, 232
- Regal Theater, Chicago, 549
“Chitlin circuit” and, 205–206
with Holloway, Red, 451
with Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 507–508
- Regent Records, 860
- Regional blues
Adelphi Records, 9
Chenier, Clifton, 4
Southern, early recorded blues ensembles and, 45
- Reid, Vernon, with Hill, Michael, 431
- Reig, Teddy, 859
- Reiner, Lillian Drosd, 84
- Reiner, Paul, 84
- Reissued recordings
Atlantic/Atco/Spark and, 22, 228, 344
of Bear Family, 68
Black & Blue/Isabel/Riverboat, 83
by Black Magic, 71, 77, 150
Bluebird and, 104
Blue Moon and, 103
by Charters, Samuel Barclay, 194 of Chess, 123
Collectables and, 218–219 of Collins, Albert, 219–220
Decca and, 305
by European labels, 142
by Evidence, 307
Excello/Nashboro and, 307–308 of Fahey, John, 389 Fantasy/Prestige/Bluesville/Galaxy/Milestone/Riverside and, 732 from Heritage, 442
Jackson, Charles “Papa Charlie,” 633
James, Elmore, 537
James, Nehemiah “Skip,” 536
Johnson, Lonnie, 651 of Johnson, Robert, 105, 106
JSP box sets, 578 from K.O.B. (Kings of the Blues), 578 by Perls, Nick, 125, 126 from pre–World War II era, Kokomo, 500 rhythm and blues, King Records, 657 rock fans, influence on, 506
78s, 442
transcribing, 446
- Religion
blues and, conflict between, 503
James, Nehemiah “Skip” and, 503–504 as target of satire in blues songs, 527
- Remember Me, 90
- Remember My Name* (film)
with Hunter, Alberta, 481
- Renaissance Ballroom (New York City), 144
- Rendezvous with the Blues*, 961
- Rene, Googie, 212
- René, Leon, 308, 815
- René, Otis, 308
Hurt, John Smith “Mississippi John,” tribute to, 504, 525
- Requia*, 312
- Requiem for John Hurt, 484
- Rescue Me, 65, 124, 199, 890
- Research, venue provided by European Blues Association/Archive of African American Music, Cheltenham, 603
- Respect Yourself, 830, 890
- Respect, 570, 890
- Return of a Legend*, 302
- Return to Forever, fusion and, 517
- Reuben, 752
- Reunion in Central Park*, 133
- Reverend James Cleveland Singers, 215
- Revolution Records, 876

INDEX

- Rex label, 664
 Reynolds, Big Jack, 827
 Reynolds, Charlie, 331
 Rhapsody in Rhythm, 695
 Rhapsody in Song, 695
Rhinestones & Steel Strings, 101
 Rhino Records, 827–828
 Rhino, Guy, George “Buddy,”
 395–396
 Rhode Island Black Heritage Society,
 Providence, 610
 Rhodes, Sonny, with Lee, Frankie,
 590–591
 Rhodes, Todd, 711, 871
 with Baker, Laverne, 41
 Rhodes, Walter “Pat” early Delta blues, 2
 with Harney, Richard “Hacksaw,” 409
 Rhymes, 1101
Rhythm & Blues (magazine)
 Flerlage, Raeburn, photographs
 of, 333
 Rhythm & Blues Foundation
 Rhythm & Blues Jamboree, Shrine Auditorium, New York City
 with Humes, Helen, 475
 Rhythm and blues, 829
 Ace, Buddy, 5
 Ace, Johnny, 6
 Adams, Faye, 7–8
 Africa, imported to, 11
 Aladdin/Score, 16
 Alexander, Arthur, 17
 Allen, Annisteen, 18
 Allen, Lee, 20
 Animals, 26
 Atlantic/Atco/Spark and, 22,
 228, 344
 August, Joe “Mr. Google
 Eyes,” 36–37
 Baker, Laverne, 41–42
 Baker, Mickey, 42
 Baldry, “Long” John and, 43
 Ball, Marcia, 43
 Barton, Lou Ann, 60
 Bates, Lefty and, 66
 Bea & Baby and, 67
 Big Maybelle and, 80
 Black Top, 96
 Blackwell, Robert “Bumps”
 and, 96–97
 Bland, Bobby “Blue” and, 98–99
 Blue Moon, 103
 Brown, James and, 365
 country music and, 230–232
 Duke/Peacock/Back Beat, 288 electric bass and, 63
 Gayten, Paul and, 363
 Glover, Henry and, 368
 Hawkins, Screamin’
 Jay, 415–416
 hits on Federal Records, 572 influence of Hendrix, Jimi on, 420–422
 jazz and, 558
 JOB (J.O.B.) hits, 523
 jug bands influences on, 46–47
 Lance, Major and, 582 in Memphis, pioneer of, 406 mid-1960s, Lance, Major and, 252 musicians, United Kingdom, 603
 New Orleans, 1950s, Lewis, Smiley
 and, 601–602
 New Orleans “sound,” Cuban influences, 434
 Queen Records, subsidiary of King, 571
 Rebennack, Mac “Dr. John,” 36 recordings, archive, Bowling Green State University, 603
 reissues, 5
 of rock and roll era, Leadbitter, Michael Andrew “Mike” inspired by, 587–588, 718
 Ruth, Brown and, 161–162 staple of, “Let the Good Times Roll,” 595–596
 star, LaSalle, Denise, 583–584
 Washington, Dinah, 15
 dance bands, 860–861
 Rhythm of the Saints, 196
Rhythm on Record (magazine), 754
 Rhythm Rascals, with Caston, Leonard “Baby Doo,” 188
 Rhythm Records, 857 Rhythm Rockers with Berry, Richard, 76–77
 with Collins, Albert, 219, 251
 with Heartsman, Johnny, 417
 Rhythm sections, blues melodies, homophony in, 110
 Rhythm, 582
 drums, 322
 homophonic approach, adoption
 of, 118
 melody, quality of, 105 time signatures, 105
 Rhythmic conversion, blues lyrics, 106
 Rhythmic patterns in blues melodies
 AAB scheme, 110
 early blues, 1890–1920, 111
 sixteen-measure forms, 110
 Rhythms
 African, ragtime and, 497
 Brazilian, jazz and, 517
 Rib Tips (band), 865
 Rice, D.C. “Dot”
 Alabama and, 15
 with Blackwell, Scrapper, 97
 Rice, Sir Mack, 103, 714
 Rice, Thomas D., 112–113
 Rich Woman, 694
 Richards, Keith, 36, 388, 421, 501
 with James, Etta, 501–502
 with Johnson, Johnnie, 531
 Richbourg, John with Allen, Bill “Hoss,” 18
 Blues Hall of Fame, 18
 Rickenbacher company, 386
 Ricketts, Bob, 438
 Rickholt, Paul, 301
 Ride ‘Em On Down, 872
 Ride a Wild Horse, 211
 Ride to Your Funeral in a
 V-8 Ford, 775
Ride With Me, 482
 Riders on the Storm, 840
Riding with the King, 209, 658
 Riffs, Kansas City jazz band style, part of, 512
 Right Next Door (Because of Me), 237
Right on Time, 618
Right Place, Wrong Time, 853
 Right String—But the Wrong Yo Yo,
 The, 918
 Right Time, The, 159
Right Time, The, 502
Rights of All, The (newspaper), 86
 Rillera, Bobby, with Berry, Richard,
 76–77
 Rillera, Rocky. See Berry, Richard
 Rinzler, Ralph, 862
 Riot in Cell Block #9, 77, 839
 Riot in Cell Block No. 9, 215
 Rip and Run, 355
 Rip It Up, 621
 Rising High Water Blues, 996
 Rising River Blues, 1000
Rising Son, 708
 Rising Sons, with Cooder, Ry, 257
 Rising Star Fife and Drum Band,
 322–324, 1016
 Rising Star Gospel Singers, 81, 189
 Rita, SQ, 304
 Ritter, Tex, 232, 574, 670, 750
 Ritz Cafe, Chicago, with Jaxon,
 Frankie “Half Pint,” 507–508
Riverboat, 42
 Rivingtons, 398
 RKO theater circuit, with Crippen,
 Katie, 240
RL’s Dream (book), 617
 Roach, Max
 bebop percussion style, 513 experiments in funk and hip-hop, 517
 jazz scholarship, 517
 Road Is Rough and Rocky, The, 297
 Road of Love, 699
 Road of the Phoebe Snow, 246
 Road Runner, 267
Road We’re On, The, 582
 Roadhouse Blues, 644
Roadhouse Research, 580
 Roadhouse Research, 580

- Roadmasters, 458, 1054
 RoadRunner, 916
 Rob Hoeke Rhythm and Blues Group, 447
Robben Ford & The Blue Line, 335
 Robben Ford & The Blue Line, 335
Robert "Jr." Lockwood Plays Robert & Robert, 625
Robert Johnson (book), 194
Robert Johnson: King of the Delta Blues Singers, 538
Robert Johnson: The Complete Recordings, 126
Robert Johnson: Trick the Devil (off-Broadway production), 253
 Roberts Show Lounge, 859
 Roberts, Helen. See Hunter, Alberta
 Roberts, Luckey, stride piano style, influences of, 512
 Robertson, Sherman, 36
 Robey, Don D., 205, 228
 with Bland, Bobby "Blue," 98
 Robillard, Duke, 833
 with Brown, Ruth, 161
 with Copley, Al, 277
 with Fabulous Thunderbirds, 311
 with Gordon, Sax, 371–372
 with Hammond, John Paul, 399
 1970s, 388
 Robins, The. See Coasters, The Robinson, Bob (Alexander), 701
 Robinson, Bob
 with Black Bob, 85
 with James, Elmore, 500–501
 Robinson, Bobby, 329–330, 834
 Robinson, Fenton, 85, 834–835
 with Jones, Calvin "Fuzzy," 543
 Robinson, Frank, 869, 974
 Robinson, Hubert, 646
 Robinson, Jimmy Lee, 44
 Robinson, Oscella, with James, Nehemiah "Skip," 503
 Robinson, Robbie, with Hammond, John Paul, 399
 Robs, Gerrit, 85
 Roche, Betty, with Houston, Edward Wilson "Bee," 469
 Rock 'n' Roll Call, 586
 Rock 'n' Roll Jubilee with Baker, Laverne, 42
Rock 'N' Roll Call, 550
 Rock 'n' Roll Lily, 226
 Rock 'n' Roll, Hoochie Koo, 1094
 Rock and Ride, 595
 Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum, Cleveland, Ohio, 604
 Rock and Roll Hall of Fame
 Baker, Lavern, elected to, 42
 Ballard, Hank, 43–44
 Bass, Ralph, 65
 Berry, Chuck, 76
 Brown, Charles, 155
 Brown, Ruth, 161
 Cooke, Sam, 224–225
 Diddle, Bo, 266
 Domino, Fats, 277
 Hooker, John Lee, 459
 Leiber and Stoller, 592–593
 Soul Stirrers, 225
 Rock and Roll Music, 275
 "Rock and Roll Review" (film short), 326
 Rock and Roll Sermon, 194
 Rock and roll
 Africa, imported to, 11
 Alexander, Arthur and, 17
 Allman Brothers Band and, 22
 Atlantic/Atco/Spark and, 35–36
 blues guitar techniques, adaptation of, 384 development of, influence of Jordan, Louis, 548
 fiddle, postwar era, 318–319
 Guy, George "Buddy" and, 395–396–432
 homophonic approach, adoption of, 119
 Jordan, Louis, 548
 King, Riley B. "B.B." performing for, 573 performer, Mercury promoting Johnson, Buddy as, 528
 postwar era, 1954–1970, 121
 staple of, "Let the Good Times Roll," 595
Rock and Roll: An Unruly History (PBS series), 744
Rock Around the Clock (film), 326, 329, 344
 Rock Around the Clock, 106, 267, 839
 Rock Awhile, 186, 346
 Rock Baby Rock It (film), 326
Rock et Folk (magazine), 754
 Rock Everybody Rock, 699
Rock in' and Shoutin' the Blues, 721
 Rock Island Blues, 598
 Rock Island Line, 1019
 Rock Little Baby, 359
 Rock Me Baby, 21, 340, 498
 Rock Me Mamma, 498
 Rock Me, 498, 978
 Rock Me, Baby, 421
 Rock Me, Mama, 242
 Rock music, 675
 blues influence, 654, 655, 657–658, 795–796, 857, 865 early, 673
Rock My Soul, 42
 Rock of Ages, 1006
 Rock On!, 528
Rock Rock Rock (film), 326, 868
 Rock Round the Clock, 121
 Rock the Bottle, 287
Rock the House, 488
 Rock the Joint, 389
Rock This House, 451
 Rock This House, 844
 Rock This Joint, 121, 782
 Rockabilly
 Crockett, G.L. and, 240
 emergence of, 232
 Guralnick, Peter, writings on, 393
 Rocket 88 Parts 1 and 2, 535
 Rocket 88, 120, 121, 146, 199, 389, 431, 578, 841, 939, 1014
 Rockets, 350
 Rockette Swing Unit, with Johnson, Pete, 535
 Rockin' Chair, 41
 Rockin' Daddy, 472
 Rockin' Good Way, A, 75
 Rockin' Robin, 212
 Rockin' the Boogie, 150
Rockin' the Juke Joint Down, 184
 Rockin' and Rollin', 498
 Rockin' Dopsie Jr, 842
 Rockin' Good Way, A, 787, 1052
 Rockin' Pneumonia and the Boogie Woogie Flu, 899
 Rockin' Red, 837
 Rockin' Reptiles, 779
 Rockin' Robin, 259
 Rock-in' Robin, 308
Rockin' the Blues (film), 362
Rockin' the Boat, 211
Rockin' the Juke Joint Down, 526
 Rockin' with Red, 772
 Rocking Pneumonia and the Boogie Woogie Flu, 5
 Rockinitis, 33
 Rocks the House, 524
 Rocks, The, 117, 768, 984
 Rockwell, Thomas J., with Hurt, John Smith "Mississippi John," 518
Rocky IV, 1032
 Rod, Lightnin', with Hendrix, Jimi, 420–422
 Rodgers and Hammerstein Archives of Recorded Sound, New York, 608–611 Rodgers, Jimmie, 676 with Gibson, Clifford, 366
 Roeland, Henry. See Professor Longhair
 Rogers, Jimmy, 843–845
 Austin performances, 122
 with Baker, Mickey, 42
 with Blue Smitty, 100
 with Horton, Big Walter, 464
 with Leary, S.P., 589
 with Left Hand Frank, 236, 592
 with Waters, Muddy, 1055
 Rogers, Lula, with James, Etta, 501 Rogers, Roy, with Hooker, John Lee, 461, 845

INDEX

- Roland, Walter, 845 with Bogan, Lucille, 15 with Williams, Jabo, 114
- Roll ‘Em Pete, 535
- Roll ‘Em, Pete, 1015
- Roll and Tumble Blues, 106, 116, 608, 722, 845–846
- Roll ‘Em Pete, 291
- Roll Jordan Roll, 112, 113
- Roll Over Beethoven, 76, 531
- Roll with Me Henry, 501, 1098
- Roller Coaster, 407
- Rollin’ Stone, 198, 307, 489, 764
- Rollin’ and Tumblin’, 239, 340, 342, 589, 747, 840–841, 845–846
- Rollin’ and Tumblin’, Parts 1
 and 2, 623
- Rolling Log Blues, 566
- Rolling Stone* (magazine), 644, 737, 754
- Rolling Stone, 189, 1075
- Rolling Stones, 846
 1960s, 424
 with Broonzy, Big Bill, 150
 “Catfish Blues,” 188
 with Fabulous Thunderbirds, 311
 with Howlin’ Wolf, 471
 with Lewis, Furry, 598
 “Mannish Boy,” 488
 as opening act, 431
- Rolling Stones, The, 655, 670
- Rolling Water, 1000
- Rollins, Sonny, hard bop and, 515
- Romance in the Dark, 378
- Romance Without Finance*, 346
- Romark, 412
- Ron Dels, 666
- Ronnie Earl and the Broadcasters, 294
- Roolin’ and Tumblin’, 488
- Room to Breathe*, 666
- Room with a View of the Blues*, 8
- Roomful of Blues, 847
 1970s, 424
 with Ellis, Tinsley, 338
 with King, Earl, 606
- Rooming House Boogie, 836
- Roosevelt, Franklin Delano, 410
- Roosevelt’s Blues: African-American
 Blues and Gospel Songs on FDR*
 (book), 445
- Rooster Blues, 307, 613, 847
- Rooster
 Buford, George “Mojo,” 166
 Campbell, Eddie C., 178
 Cobbs, Willie, 216
 Guitar Jr., 391
 Johnson, Big Jack, 526
 Kinsey, Lester “Big Daddy,” 577
- Roosters, the, with Clapton,
 Eric, 208
- Root Doctor, 213
- Rootin’ and Tootin’, 602
- Roots of the Blues: An African Search*
 (book), 194
- Rose, Cynthia, 352
- Rosebud (club), 767
- Rosen, Howard, 307
- Rosenbaum, Art, with Blackwell,
 Scrapper, 97
- Rosenthal, Carol, 9
- Rosenthal, Gene, 9
- Ross, Bertha, 364, 407
- Ross, Charlie, with House, Eddie
 “Son,” 465
- Ross, Dr., 873, 914
- Rotante, Anthony, 441, 755
- Rothner, Nathan, 485
- Rough Ragged Blues, 294
- Roughhousin’*, 1078
- Roulette/Rama
 Johnson, Buddy, 528
 Jones, Joe, 546
 Levy, Morris, 597
- Rounce, Tony, 5, 871, 1066
- Round House Boogie, 158
- Rounder, 849
 Adams, Johnny, 8
 Ball, Marcia, 43
 Booker, James, 139
 Brown, Clarence “Gatemouth,” 156–157
 Carbo, Hayward “Chuck,” 180
 Copeland, Johnny “Clyde,” 226
 Hammond, John Paul, 399–400
 Hawkins, Ted, 416
 Holmes Brothers, 4451
 Jackson, John, 497
 Jacque, Beau, 499
 Legendary Blues Band, 529
 Levy, Ron, 597
- Route 66, 119, 217, 887
- Roving Gambler, The, 471
- Rowdy Blues, 40
- Rowe, Mike, 188, 443, 878
- Roy Byrd and His Blues Jumpers, 786
- Roy C. Knapp School of Percussion
 Below, Fred and, 71
- Roy Milton Blues, 694
- Roy Milton Orchestra, 471 with Howard, Camille, 470
- Roy Milton Record Company, 695
- Roy Newman and his Boys, 660
- Roy’s Matchbox Blues, 660
- Royal Albert Hall, Clapton, Eric, concerts, 209
- Royal Recording Studio, 424, 909
- Royals, with Ballard, Hank, 43–44
- Royalties
 Crudup, Arthur William “Big Boy”
 and, 241
 Handy, William Christopher “W.C.”
 and, 400
 James, Etta and, 501–502
- Johnson, Johnnie and, 531
- Rhythm & Blues Foundation, 161
- RPM Records, 376
- RST/RST Blues Document/Fantasy By,
 276, 850
- RTB (Radio Television Belge),
 Bruynoghe, Yannick, 163
- Rub board, 3
 Rosenthal, Gene and Carol, 9
- Rub Me Until My Love Come
 Down, 1085
- Rubin, Chuck, with Berry, Richard, 77
- Rubino, John, 452
- Ruby Baby, 593, 839–840
- Ruby Duby Du, 205
- Ruler of My Heart, 985
- Rum & Coca Cola, 691
- Rumba rhythm, blues musicians, played by, 4436
- Run, But You Can’t Hide, 858
- Runnin’ Wild, 238
- Running Wild, 882
- Rupe, Art, 36, 881
- Rush* (soundtrack), 209
- Rush*, 209
- Rush, Bobby, with Jackson,
 Vasti, 498
- Rush, Otis, 852–853
 with Below, Fred, 71–72
 with Bennett, Wayne T., 73–74
 with Butterfield, Paul, 172
 with Campbell, Eddie C., 178
 with Christian, Johnny “Little,” 207 with David Maxwell, 534 with Green, Jesse, 378
 guitar, 1950s, 423
 with Holloway, Red, 487
 with Horton, Big Walter, 500
 influential music of, 137
 Japanese blues festivals, 542
 with John Mayall, 661 with Kolax, King, 615
 with Lay, Sam, 622
 with Odie Payne, Jr., 750
 “West Side Sound” and, 49, 275, 387
- Rushing, James Andrew (Jimmy), 114, 853–854
 big band singers, swing era, 513
 with Count Basie Orchestra, 448,
 475, 490
 “From Spirituals to Swing” concern,
 Carnegie Hall, 1938, 152, 399
 with Humes, Helen, 474
 vocalist with Count Basie band, 887
- Russel Street Hussel, 781
- Russell, Archie, 145
- Russell, Doc, 370
- Rust College (Holly Springs, Mississippi), blacks, education of, 113
- Ryder, Mitch
 with Grossman, Stefan, 382

S

- 10th Street Rag, 648
 S. K. Blues, 576
 78 mafia, record collectors
 Cohn, Larry and, 216
 78s, archive, Bowling Green
 University, 603
 Sackheim, Eric, 441
 Sacred black music
 Amerson, Richard, 24
 sacred steel trend, 94
Sacred Island, 952
 Sacred music, 88–95
 “Sacred steel,” 93–94
 Sad and Blue, 691
 Sad and Lonesome Day, 869
 Sad Feeling, 98
 Sad Hours, 407
 Sadler, Haskell Robert “Cool Papa,” 855
 Safara club, 873
 Safe and Sounds, 65
 Saffire—The Uppity Blues Women, 855
 Safronia B, 143
 Sagefield Woman Blues, 487
 Sahara, southern, 10
 Sahel, roots of blues in, 11
 Sail Away, 671
 Sail On Boogie, 295
 Sail On, Little Girl, Sail On, 295
 Sain, Oliver, 855–856
 with Bass, Fontella, 65
 Carr, Barbara and, 183
 Saka Acquaye and his African Ensemble, 12
 Sales Tax, 478
 Salgado, Curtis, 856
 Sallows, Mike, 779
 Sally May, 137
 Salt Lake City Bounce, 190
 Salty Dog Blues, 231, 495
 Salty Dog, 923
 Salty Papa Blues, 564
 Saltzman, Scott, Photographer, New Orleans, 607
 Sam and Dave, 683, 706, 713, 908
 Samples, John T., 856
 Sampson, Deryck, 67, 326, 524
 Sampson, Sammy, 752
 Samson and Delilah, 257
 Samuel and Ann Charters Archives of Blues and Vernacular African American Music, 195
 Samuels, Charles, 439
 Samuels, Clarence, 67, 226, 346
San Francisco '83, 568
 San Francisco Bay Blues Festival,
 Douglas, K.C., 281
 San Francisco Blues Festival, 126, 138,
 291, 658, 857, 1107
 San Francisco Blues, 81
 San Francisco, 856–857
 blacks migrating to, postwar era, 116
 Fillmore district, 856
 KFRC radio, 164
 Texas blacks migrating to, postwar era, 48
 Sanctuary group, 871
 Sanders, Pharoah, 124
 Sanders, Will Roy “Wilroy,” 427, 857, 1042
 Sane, Dan, 858
 early recorded blues ensembles, 45
 Sanford, Amos “Little,” 858
 San-Ho-Zay, 21
 Sankfield, Little Buddy, with House,
 Eddie “Son,” 465–467
 Santa Claus Wants Some Lovin, 830
 Santa Fe, 1104
 Santana, Carlos, 283, 460, 864
 with Hooker, John Lee, 460
 Santelli, Robert, 446, 892
 Santeria, 455
 Sar/Derby label, 263
 Sar/Derby, 858
Sassy Mama, 990
Satan's Horn, 41
 Satherley, Arthur E., 791
 Satherly Art, 858
 Saturday Blues, 143
 Saturday Night Fish Fry, 549 Saturday Night Live (television program), 126, 130, 328
 Saunders, Red, 858–859
 with Holloway, Red, 451
 Saunders, Wallace, 187
 Savage Boys, the, 166
 Savannah Mama, 118
Savannah Syncopators (Oliver), (book),
 445, 736
 Savannah Syncopators, 12, 316
 Save the Last Dance for Me, 593, 779
 Saved, 839
 Saving My Love for You, 6
 Savoy Ballroom, Chicago
 with Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 544
 with Jordan, Louis, 585
 Savoy Ballroom, New York, with Rockets, 1940, 631
 Savoy Bearcats, 141
 Savoy Brown, 334, 859, 873, 1012, 1070
 Savoy Record Mart, Club 51 label, 215
 Savoy Records, 159, 239, 315, 637, 673,
 784, 834, 859
 Savoy Theater, Clarksdale
 Johnson, Big Jack, performing
 in, 526
 Savoy/National/Regent/Acorn labels,
 859–860
 Baker, Mickey, 42
 Brown, Nappy, 156
 Carolina Slim, 218
 Jacquet, Illinois, 535
 Johnson, Pete, 571
 K-Doe, Ernie, 597
 Lang, Eddie, 619
 Savoys, with King, Al, 566
 Sawdust Alley Records, 741
 Sawmill Blues, 639
 Sawyer, Charles, 205, 443
 Sax, Adolphe, 860
 Saxman Brown, 158
 Sax-ony Blues, 158
 Saxophone, 860–861
 Jordan, Louis and, 585
 Saxton, Bobby, 67
 Say It Loud, I'm Black and I'm Proud, 352
 Say Man, 267
Say What You Mean, 396
 Saydak, Ken, 862
 Saydisc Records, 659
 Sayles, Johnny, 862
 Scaggs, Boz, with Hinton, Edward
 Craig “Eddie,” 432
 Scale combining, 864–865
 Scale, blues melodies, 862–863, 886
 Scales, 862–865
 chromatic, 863, 865
 diatonic, 863–864
 Dorian mode, 864
 mixolydian mode, 864
 pentatonic, 863–864
 swing bands, 864
 Scales, Alonzo “Lonnie,” 865
 Scandalmonger Mama, 75
 Scarborough, Dorothy, 438, 998
 Scat singing, Armstrong, Louis and, 32, 512
 Scepter/Wand label, 865
 Scherman, Robert, 36
 Schiele, Herbert and Edwin, 423
 Schlesinger, Al, 793
 Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture, New York, 609
 School Days, 76
 School of Love, 957
 Schuller, Gunther, songbooks by, 444
 Schustedt, Jim, Johnson, Robert, transcriptions, 538
 Schwall, Jim, 879
 Schwartz, Seymour, 872
 Scootle De Doo, 236
 Score. See Aladdin/Score
 Scorsese, Martin, 124, 447, 653, 657
 with King, Chris Thomas, 569
 Scott, “Little” Jimmy, 867
 Scott, Buddy (Kenneth Scott), 865
 Scott, Clifford, 866
 Scott, Ecrettia Jacobs “E. C.,” 866
 Scott, Esther Mae “Mother,” 866
 Scott, Hammond and Nauman, 96
 Scott, James, Jr., 866
 Scott, Joe, 866–867
 Bland, Bobby “Blue” and, 96–97

INDEX

- Scott, Marilyn (Mary DeLoatch), 867
- Scott, Sonny, 867 with Bogan, Lucille and Roland, Walter, 117
with Owens, Marshall, 15
- Scott-Adams, Peggy (Peggy Stoutmeyer), 867
- Scotty's Radio, San Francisco, 857
- Scouts
Speir, H. C., 920
- Screamin' and Hoolerin' the Blues*, 312
- Screamin' and Cryin'*, 1057
- Screamin' and Hollerin' the Blues* (Charley Patton), 312, 749
- Screamin' and Hollerin' the Blues*, 749
- Screaming and Crying*, 752
- Screaming Eagles squad, 101st Airborne Paratroopers, 421
- Screening the Blues* (book), 441
- Screening the Blues: Aspects of the Blues Tradition* (Oliver), 736
- Scruggs, Faye, 7
- Scruggs, Irene, 867–868
with Blind Blake, 100
- Scruggs, Leazar “Baby,” 867
- SD (Steiner Davis) label, 816, 868
- Sea Cruise, 5, 899
- Seaberry, Willie “Monkey,” Poor Monkey's Lounge, owner of, 554
- Seals, Son, 868
with Gooden, Tony, 370
with Guy, Phil, 396
- Search for Robert Johnson, The* (documentary), 400
- Search Is Over, The*, 313
- Search Is Over, The*, 376
- Searchin, 593
- Searching for Robert Johnson* (book), 394, 445
- “Searching for Robert Johnson” (Living Blues, 1982), 394
- Sears Roebuck & Company, 223
- Sears, “Big” Al, 868
- Sears, Al, with Humes, Helen, 474
- Sease, Marvin, 868–869
- Seattle Pop Festival, Collins, Albert, 219–220
- Second Album*, 165
- Second Time Around*, 905
- Second Winter*, 189, 907
- Section Gang, 320
- Security, 502
- See My Grave Is Kept Clean, 519
- See See Rider Blues*, 271, 1096
- See See Rider*, 42, 140, 189, 475
- “See See Rider.” See “C.C. Rider”
- See That My Garave Is Kept Clean*, 115, 116, 337, 466, 520, 869, 1085
- See the Light*, 417
- See the Light*, 417
- See There!*, 450
- Seeger, Mike, Cotten, Elizabeth and, 228
- Seeger, Pete
with Broonzy, Big Bill, 326 film by, 327
Flerlage, Raeburn and, 332
with Guthrie, Woodrow Wilson “Woody,” 394
- Seeger, Ruth Crawford, Cotten, Elizabeth and, 228
- Seeley, Bob, 870
- Seeman, Richard, 103
- Segar, Charlie
“Key to the Highway,” first recording by, 564 lyrics of, interracial influences, 469
- Seger, Bob, with Jackson, George Henry, 496
- Segregation, racial, 113, 511
juke joints as reminders of, 552
- Seidenberg, Sid, with King, Riley B. “B.B.,” 573–575
- Self Portrait*, 865
- Sellers, Brother John, 870
- Sellin' the Jelly, 480
- Semien, Lee “King Ivory,” 870
- Sending Up My Timber, 676
- Senegal, Paul “Lil' Buck,” 871
- Senor Blues*, 952
- Sen-Sa-Shun, 426
“Sen-Sa-Shun,” 426
- Sensation label, 5, 168, 460
- Sensational Nightingales, 92–93, 119
with Cheeks, Reverend Julius, 196
- Sensationals, with Lee, Lovie, 591
- Sense of Place, A*, 251, 661
- Sent for You Yesterday (And Here You Come Today), 854
- Sent for You Yesterday, 60
- Separation Day Blues, 1067
- Sepia Series, 711
- “Sepia Sinatras,” 359
- Sepia, 754
- Sequel Records, 551
Jubilee Records, rereleased on, 551
- Serenade to a Poodle, 356
- Serious Intentions*, 211
- Serious*, 21
- Set Me Free*, 346
- Seven Long Days, 155
- Seven Year Itch*, 502
- Seventh Son, The, 644
- Seventh Street Boogie, 238
- Seventies (1970s), 479 changes of, 121–123 fusion movement, 553
guitar, 424
James, Etta, 538
Japan blues bands, first, 542
Japanese enthusiasm for soul, 542
- Sevilles, 451
- Seward, Alexander T. “Alec,” 871
- Sex as lyric concept, 871–872
- Sexual Telepathy*, 570
- Sexuality, most prominent comic topic in blues songs, 479
- Sexy Ways, 44
- Seymour, 872
- Seymour's Record Mart, 872
- Shad, Bob, 872
- Shadow and Act* (book), 441
- Shaft* (film), 353
- Shaft*, 909
- Shahn, Jonathan, 441
- Shaka, Tom, 660
- Shake 'Em On Down, 118, 598, 666, 670, 872–873, 1022, 1070
- Shake 'Em On Down*, 598
- Shake 'Em, 873
- Shake a Hand, 7
- Shake a Tail Feather, 738, 862
- Shake for Me, 275, 585
- Shake Hands with Shorty*, 727
- Shake Rattle and Roll, 512, 782, 840, 933, 1015
- Shake Sugaree, 228
- Shake Sugaree*, 952
- Shake That Thing, 54, 116
- Shake Your Moneymaker, 501
- Shakey Jake (James D. Harris), 873
with Hollywood Fats, 451
- Shakin' the Shack, 63
- Shakti, 517
- Shama, 873–874
- Shame + a Sin*, 238
- Shame, Shame, Shame*, 601
- Shame, Shame, Shame, 669, 1020
- Shanachie/Yazoo/Belzona/Blue Goose, 874, 1104 reissued 78s, 874
- Shangri-Las, Leiber and Stoller, songs by, 839
- Shannon, Mem, 874–875
- Shannon, Preston, 875
- Shanty Blues, 984
- Shape of Jazz to Come, The, 124
- Shapleigh Hardware Co., 403
- Sharecropping, blacks leaving, 428
- Sharing the Night Together, 17
- Sharp, Alexander, 739
- Shave 'Em Dry, 117, 479, 495
- Shaw, Allen, 875
with Hart, Hattie, 414
- Shaw, Arnold, biographical history of, 443
- Shaw, Artie
with Holiday, Billie, 449
white band, dance bands competing with, 513
- Shaw, Eddie “Vaun,” Jr., 875, 1095
- Shaw, Robert, 282, 876, 967, 975
- Shaw, Thomas “Tom,” 521, 660, 869, 876
- She Put the Hurt on Me, 10

- She Walks Right In, 752
 She Wants to Rock, 77
 She's 19 Years Old, 1013
 She's All Right, 844
 She's Got It, 621
 She's Got Me Hook, Line and Sinkers, 602
 She's Nineteen Years Old, 212
 She's Tough, 664
 Shearing, George, influences of Davis,
 Miles sound, 515
 Sheatsley, Paul, 441, 755
 Sheet music blues, earliest publication of, 114 as home entertainment, 509
 Mexican ensembles in New Orleans
 and, 436
 Shelton, Joe, 660
 Sheik of Araby, The, 698
 Sheik Waltz, The, 698
 Shelby County Blues, 546
 Shep and the Limelites with Holmes Brothers, 451
 Shepherd, Kenny Wayne, 127, 388, 390, 876, 1063
 Shepp, Archie
 free jazz and, 516
 jazz scholarship, 517
 Sheppard, Bill "Bunky" (William Edward Sheppard), 252, 877
 Sheridan, Art, 1, 191, 726, 1034
 Sherrill, Billy, 312, 909
 She's About a Mover, 213
 She's Gotta Wobble (When She Walks), 237
 Shetland Pony Blues, 466
 Shields, Lonnie, 30, 820, 847, 877
 with Belvin, Jesse, 72
Shindig television series, with Howlin'
 Wolf, 473, 966
 Shine On Moon, 33
 Shines, Candy Martin, 878
 Shines, Johnny (John Ned Lee Shines), 877–878
 film of, 327
 with Horton, Big Walter, 464, 559
 with Howlin' Wolf, 748, 886
 influences on, 538
 with Johnson, Robert, 346
Shining Trumpets (book), 439, 538
Shining Trumpets, 538
 Ship Titanic, The, 998
 Shirelles, 570, 865
 Shirley & Lee, 139, 370, 878–879
 "Let the Good Times Roll," 595–596
 Shirley Jean, 783
 Short Fat Fanny, 840
Short Fuse Blues, 448
 Short Hair Blues, 564
 Short Haired Woman, 462
 Short, J.D., 117, 327, 366, 374, 1006, 1077
 Shorty George, 1046
 Shorty's Got to Go, 44
 Shot Gun Boogie, 359
 Shot of Rhythm and Blues, A, 17, 909
 Shot on James Meredith, 122, 594
 Shotgun Blues, 462
 Shotgun, 1043
Shoulda Been Home, 238
 Shout Sister Shout, 242, 276
 Shouters. See blues-shouting vocalists
 Blue Moon, 103
 Kansas City, 512
Show Boat (theater production), with Hunter, Alberta, 480
Show Me Money, 580
 Show Me Money, 580
 Show Me the Way to Go, 6
Showdown! Featuring Robert Cray, Johnny Copeland, and Albert Collins, 20, 125, 226, 237, 818 with Cray, Robert, 237
Showdown!, 20, 125, 220, 226, 237
 Shower, "Little" Hudson, 879
 "Showtime at the Apollo" (film short), 326
Shreveport Downhome Blues, 412
 Shreveport Farewell, 702
 Shrewsbury Blues, 831
 Shuckin' Sugar Blues, 477
 Shuffle boogie, Tympany Five,
 style of, 515
 Shuffle Bug, 1060
 Shuler, Eddie, 3, 369, 880, 1092
 Shultz, Arnold, 231
 Shuman, Mort, 779
 Shurman, Richard, (Dick), 85, 151
 Heartsman, Johnny, comments about, 417
 Sick with the Blues, 1007
 Sidewalks of New York, The, 323
 Siegel, Corky, 879
 Siegel, Hy, 27
 Siegel, Peter, 382
 Siegel-Schwall Band with Lay,
 Sam, 586
 Signature, 879
 Signifying Monkey, 81, 167
 Signifying Monkey, The, 106, 274, 880
 Silencers, 779
 Silhouettes, 671
 Sill, Lester, Leiber and Stoller, mentored by, 592–593
 "Silver Fox of the Blues." See Ace,
 Buddy
 Silver Fox, 5
 Silver, Al, 423
 Silver, Horace, hard bop and, 515
 Silverman, Jerry, 440
 Silvio's, Chicago, 473
 Simien, "Rockin'" Sidney, 880–881
 Simien, Terrance, with Carrier, Roy Jr.
 "Chubby," 184
 Simmonds, Kim, 859
 Simmons, Malcolm "Little Mack," 67,
 154, 175, 300, 493, 543, 571,
 881, 1082
 Simms, Frankie Lee, lyrics of, interracial influences, 433
 Simon, Paul with Chenier, C.J., 196 with Dixie Hummingbirds, 273
 Simons, James, 406
 Sims, Frankie Lee, 881
 influential music of, 220
 Sims, Henry "Son," 317, 882
 Sims, Zoot, with Allison, Mose, 21–22
 Sinatra, Frank, big band singers, swing
 era, 513
 Since I Fell for You, 363, 528
 Since I Lost My Baby, 464
 Since I Met You Baby, 481, 840, 882
 Since I've Been Loving You, 123
Since the Blues Began, 832
 Sinclair, John, 420
Sinful Tunes and Spirituals: Black Folk Music to the Civil War (book), 443
Sing Out (The Folk Music Magazine), 754
 Sing Out magazine, 442, 754
Sing Out, 722
 Singer, Hal, 156, 475, 551, 882
 with Baker, Mickey, 42
Singers of the Blues (book), 441
 Singers
 early unamplified blues, 883–884 microphone amplified, 885–886
 unamplified, 884–885
Singin' with the Sun, 289
 Singing Brakeman, 843
Singing Straight from the Heart, 234
 Singing, 107, 883–891 definition, 883 field holler singers, 883–884 importance of, 883
 Single-key harmonica diatonic scale, 2
 Singles, recordings, 501 Singleton, Shelby, 123, 939 with Leavy, Calvin, 589
 Sinking of the Titanic, 998
Sippie Wallace Sings the Blues, 1047
 Sir Douglas Quintet, with Clay, Otis, 213
 Sissle, Noble, first blues recording,
 "Careless Love," 181
Sittin' in With, 462
 Sittin' on It All the Time, 413
 Sittin' on Top of the World, 386
Sittin' and Waitin', 1107 Sittin' Here Drinkin', 578
 Sittin' In With label, 245, 872, 1061
Sittin' in With, 642
 Sitting Down Thinking Blues, 732
 Sitting on the Dock of the Bay, 890
 Sitting on Top of the World, 110, 116,
 317, 339, 470, 698, 1008

INDEX

- Six Cold Feet in the Ground, 183
Six Early Blues Guitarists (book), 444
 Six Feet in the Ground, 470
 Six Wheel Chaser, 600
 Six White Horses, 869
 Sixteen Tons, 964
 Sixteen-measure form, 337
 rhythmic patterns, blues melodies, 105–107
 Sixteenth Amendment, U.S.
 Constitution, 109
 Sixth Street, Austin, Texas, 125
 Sixties (1960s), 614, 731–732, 746, 777, 796, 1019, 1031
 Chicago, 239
 Davis, Reverend Gary, 257–258
 elder statesmen, blues revival, 36 gospel quartets in, 90
 guitar, 423–424
 James, Etta and, 537–538
 James, Nehemiah “Skip,” 540, 541 jazz, evolution of, 120
 jazz in, 552
 Sixty Minute Man, 673, 839
Sketches of Spain, 515
 Skin Game Blues, 471
 Skinny Legs And All, 266
 Skinny Woman Blues, 751
 Skull and Crossbone Blues, 542
Sky Is Crying, The, 1033
 Sky is Crying, The, 330, 546, 834
Sky Like a Broken Clock, 764
Sky Songs, 1070
Slaughter’s Big Rip-Off (film), 353
 Slave culture, 752–753
 Slave narratives, collected by WPA, 2
Slave Songs of the United States (book), 112, 438
 Slaven, Niel, 367, 441, 588, 1021
 Slavery, 794
 blues antecedents, 1830–1865, 112–113
 cotton gin, increasing demands for slaves, 11
 economic during Reconstruction, 223
 in Georgia, 364
 in history of the blues, 111
 hoodoo and, 455
 literacy, freedom of, 86
 North America, importing slaves
 to, 630
 slave trade, 10
 spirituals and, 608
 Sledge, Percy, with Hinton, Edward Craig “Eddie,” 432
 Sleep, 525
 Sleeping in the Ground, 716
 Sleepy, 1000
 Slevin, Dick, kazoo playing of, 560
 Slide guitar
 Hole, Dave, 448
 of Homesick James, 453 House, Eddie “Son,” changed
 life of, 465
 Johnson, Blind Willie, pocketknife as slide, 522
 Lewis, Johnie (Johnny) and, 599 penknife technique, Lee, John A., 591 rock adaptations of, 389
 Slides, feature of blues music, accordions, difficulty of playing, 3
 Slim, Bumble Bee. See Easton, Amos Slim, Harpo, 410
 Slim, Memphis, 688
 Slim, Sunnyland, 940 with Blackwell, Willie “61,” 97
 with Helfer, Erwin, 418
 with Henderson, Mike (I), 420 with Hollins, Tony, 450
 with Jones, Floyd, 545
Slingshot Professionals, 764
 Slippin’ and Slidin’, 621
Slippin’ In, 396
 Sloan, Henry, 115, 748
 Slop, The, 1060
 Sloppy Drunk Blues, 134
 Sloppy Drunk, 844
 Slotnikoff, Joel, 85
 Sloven, Larry, 427
 Slow and Easy, 1072
 “Slow burn,” Brown, Roy James
 and, 161
 Slow Down and Cool It, 772
 Slow Leake, 588
 Slow Motion Part 1, 1081
 Slow Walk, 1011
 “Slowhand.” See Clapton, Eric
 Sluefoot, Joe. See Bell, Ed, 70
 Sly and the Family Stone, 352
 with James, Etta, 501
Smash Hits, 422
 Smile on My Face, 941
Smiling Like I’m Happy, 73
 Smith, “Thunder,” with Hopkins, Sam
 “Lightin’,” 462
 Smith, Al, 78, 743, 782
 reissues of, 442
 Smith, Bessie, 894–895
 biographies, 440, 443
 blues-style vocals in non-blues songs, 510
 Depression years, 117
 with Hammond, John Henry, 398
 “Hesitation Blues,” 424
 Hopkins, Linda, tribute to, 462
 humor in music of, 476
 humorous lyrics, 479
 influential music of, 92
 with Johnson, Lonnie, 317, 532
 writings about, 441
 Smith, Big Maybelle, postwar era, 121
 Smith, Byther, Blue Smitty and, 103
 Smith, Carl, 874
 Smith, Charles Edward, 439
 Smith, Chris, 446
 Smith, Clara, 897
 Smith, Clarence “Pine Top,” 761, 897
 boogie-woogie at house-rent
 parties, 468
 in Chicago, 202
 with Lewis, Meade “Lux,” 117,
 247, 599
 Smith, Dan, 793
 Smith, Eddie, with Henry, Clarence
 “Frogman,” 422
 Smith, Ethel, 267
 Smith, Floyd, electric guitar pioneers, 387
 Smith, Francis, 439
 Smith, George “Harmonica,” 898
 Smith, George, 405, 407
 harmonica, 408
 Smith, Harry, 328, 440, 442, 484, 656, 816
 Smith, Hobart, 870
 Smith, Huey “Piano,” with Lewis,
 Smiley, 602
 Smith, Huey, 899
 Smith, Irvin, 490
 Smith, Jimmy, 236, 861, 1027
 Smith, Lucius, 900
 Smith, Mamie, 813, 884, 900 earliest recording of blues, 114
 early recorded blues ensembles, 45
 film of, 325
 film short, produced by, 325
 Smith, Reverend Utah, 91
 Smith, Six Cylinder, lyrics of, interracial influences, 433
 Smith, Stuff, with Humes, Helen, 474
 Smith, Trixie, 902
 film of, 325
 Smith, Willie “Big Eyes,” with
 Hummel, Mark, 475
 Smith, Willie “The Lion,” 116, 322
 with Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 508
 stride piano style, influences of, 512
 Smithsonian Festival of American
 Folklife, 862
 Smithsonian Institution, Washington,
 D.C., jazz, preserving repertoire and fostering new compositions, 517
 Smitty, Big Bad, 77–78
 Blue Smitty and, 103
 Smitty’s Red Top Lounge, Clarksdale, Mississippi
 juke joint, 555
 Smoke Gets in Your Eyes, 840
Smoke N’ Fire, 1093
Smokes Like Lightning, 83
 Smokestack Lightnin’, 939, 1020
 Smokestack Lightning, 106, 339, 472, 765, 903
 Smokey Joe’s Café, 593, 839
 Smokin’ Gun, 237

- Smokin' in Bed*, 583
 Smoking Gun, 125, 365, 889
 Smooth jazz, 517
 Smythe, Billy, 424
 Snake Stretchers, 779
 Snap Your Fingers, 584
 Snatch and Grab It, 559
 Snatch It Back and Hold It, 1065
 Snatchin' Back, 67
 Sneakin' Around, 836
 Sno-Cone, 219
 Snooky and Moody's Boogie, 787
 Snowhill Institute, Alabama, 290
 Snyder, Gil, 779
So Cold in Vietnam, 970
So Goes Love, 156
 So Long Blues, 886
 So Long, 940
 So Long, Goodbye, 1014
 So Many Roads, 853
So Many Roads: Live, 853
 So Mean to Me, 619
 So Tired, 505
 SOBs (Sons of Blues), 906 Social changes and highways, 428 commentary in lyrics of Lenoir, J.B., 594 contexts of humor, 478 criticism, lyrics of Allison, Luther, 21 dynamics, juke joints, 552 environment, New Orleans, 607 history of the blues, book about, 444 mediator, hoodoo as, 456 political and, issues, Hill, Michael and, 431 status, second-class, 121
 upheavals. See Civil Rights Movement
 Soft, 788
 Soileau, Floyd, 905–906
 Solberg, James, with Allison, Luther, 21, 906
 Solo improvisation, 511
 Solo performers in bebop ensembles, 513
 Coltrane, John, 516
 hard-swinging, in Count Basie band, 512 jazz, adventurousness of, 514
 Jefferson, Blind Lemon as, 519
 new roles in free jazz, 516
 Solo tuning, harmonica, 404
Some Current Folk-Songs of the Negro (book), 438
 Some Day Baby, 295
 Some Summer Day, 470, 1008
 Somebody Done Stole My Cherry Red, 1037
 Somebody Loan Me a Dime, 835
Somebody Told the Truth, 1073
Somebody's Angel Child (book), 441
 Somebody's Got to Go, 1037
 Someday Baby Blues, 305
 Someday Pretty Baby, 21
 Someday, 602
 Someone Else Is Steppin' In, 165
Something for Everybody, 211
Something Gonna Jump Out the Bushes, 159
 Something Within, 90
 Something You Got, 563
 Something's Got a Hold On Me, 199, 501
 Something's Wrong, 989
 Sometime I Worry, 941
 Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Child, 89
 Son Sims Four, 882
Son, antiphonal musical form from Cuba, 434
 Songbooks, 438, 608
Songs of My Life, 161
Songsters and Saints: Vocal Traditions on Race Records (Oliver) (book), 445, 736
 Songwriters, 116, 232, 254, 305, 353, 375, 668, 683, 719, 796, 1030, 1079
 Jefferson, Blind Lemon as, 519
 Johnson, Big Jack, gifted as, 526
 Leiber and Stoller, success of, 592
Sonny and Brownie, 671
 Sonny Boy Williamson, 1020
 Sonny Thompson Revue, with Blake, Cicero, 98
 Sony/Legacy/Columbia/Epic/Okeh, 906–907
 Allison, Mose, 22
 Bass, Fontella, 65
 Cohn, Larry, 216
 Fabulous Thunderbirds, 311
 Jacquet, Illinois, 499
 Johnson, Lonnie, 532
 Johnson, Robert, masters, 537
 Vaughan, Stevie Ray, 1033
 Soo Cow Soo, 686
 Soon Forgotten, 732
 Soon This Morning Blues, 915
Sooner or Later, 431
 Soothe Me, 858
Soul Bag magazine, 122, 442
 Soul Brother No 1, 158
Soul Brothers, 193
 Soul Fixin' Man, 21
Soul Fixin' Man, 21
 Soul Hootenanny, 192
 Soul Liberation, 164
 Soul Man, 130, 706, 780–781
 Soul Mates, 375
Soul Meeting, 193
Soul of a Man, The (film), 870
 with King, Chris Thomas, 569
 Soul of A Man, The, 65
Soul of Big Maybelle, The, 865
 Soul Plus, 37
Soul Sensation, 450
 Soul Serenade, 375
Soul Shake, 935
 Soul Stirrers, 91, 119, 225
 Aladdin/Score, 16
 with Cheeks, Reverend Julius, 224–225
 with Cooke, Sam, 260, 261
 Soul to Soul concert, 36
Soul to Soul, 1032–1033
 Soul Twist, 330, 570
 Soul, 771, 782, 859, 862, 907–913
 Ace, Buddy, 5
 Africa, imported to, 11
 Alexander, Arthur, 17
 Allen, Ricky, 19
 Kip, 25
 bass and, 64
 Bass, Fontella and, 65
 Black Top, 96
 blues style of, 19, 63, 98
 Brown, James, 158
 Brown, Ruth and, 161
 Cooking, chitlins, 205
 Divas of, tours, 7
 Goldwax, 370
 Gospel quartets and, 119
 Guitar, 388
 Japanese enthusiasm for, 1970s, 506
 Southwest ensemble style, influences on, 48 vocalist, LaSalle, Denise, 583 vocalist, Leavy, Calvin, 589
 Soul-blues, LaSalle, Denise and, 583
 Sound and Moving Image Library, York University, Toronto, 602
 Sound Machine, 168
Sound of Jazz, The (television program)
 with Holiday, Billie, 449
 Sound of Young America, The, 710
 Sound Stage 7, Alexander, Arthur, 17
 Sound tracks, with “Let the Good Times Roll,” 596
Souder (film), with Hopkins, Sam
 “Lightin’,” 463
 Sousa, John Philip, 860
 South Bound Backwater, 1000
 South Bound Water, 996
 South Carolina Rag, 1041
South Saturn Delta, 422
 South Shore Drive, 1060
 South Side, Chicago
 1920s, 200
 Bloomfield, Michael and, 101
 book about, 446
 Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint” and, 508
 Lawhorn, Samuel “Sammy” and, 585
 Laws, Johnny and, 585 musicians, whites learning from, 442 recorded and printed jazz and blues, collections of, 602

INDEX

- South, 595
 Southbound Blues, 262
 Southern acoustic guitar blues, African musicians, impact on, 11
 Southern blues-rock. See also blues-rock, Allman Brothers Band and, 22
Southern Casey Jones, 503
 Southern Christian Leadership Conference, 122
 Southern Feeling, 211
 Southern Flood Blues, 1000
 Southern Folklife Collection, JEMF, the, 521
 Southern Folklife Collection, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill JEMF, the, 521
 Southern Girl Blues, 1067
 Southern High Waters Blues, 1000
Southern Nights, 1006
 Southern Rag Medley No. 1, 648
 Southern Rag, 100
 Southern Troubadours, 383
 Southernaires, with Jones, Clarence M., 544
 Southwest, American, swing bands from, 512
 Southwest, American. See American Southwest
 Space Guitar, 1059
Space in Time, A, 969
 Spand, Charlie, with Blind Blake, 100
 Spaniels, the, 144
 Spanish Castle Magic, 841
 Spanish Harlem, 570, 593, 839
 "Spanish Tinge," jazz musicians and, 517
 Spanish-American War, 1898, 434
 Spann, Otis, 915
 Charters, Samuel Barclay and, 194
 with Clapton, Eric, 209
 with Fleetwood Mac, 332
 with Fulson, Lowell, 350
 international performances, 439
 with Leary, S.P., 589
 publications about, 393
 with Waters, Muddy, 1057
 Sparks, Lindberg, 795
 Sparks, Pinetop, 770
 Spasm bands, 46
 Speakeasies, Chicago, 240
 Special Agent 34-24-38, 254, 305
 Special Delivery Blues, 769, 897
 Specialty/Fidelity/Juke Box
 Ace (UK) and, 5
 Allen, Lee, 19
 Blackwell, Robert "Bumps," 97
 Chenier, Clifton, 4
 Church, Eugene, 207
 Cooke, Sam, 225
 Easton, Amos, 295
 Henderson, Duke "Big," 419
 Higgins, Charles William "Chuck," 426
 Hogg, Smokey, 448
 Jenkins, Gus, 522
 Jones, Little Sonny, 546
 King, Earl, 570
 King, Saunders, 576
 Liggins, Joe, 611
 Speckled Red, 35, 264, 442
 Specter, Dave, 919
Speculatin', 919
 Speir, Henry "H.C.," 920 with Harris, William "Big Foot," 413 with James, Nehemiah "Skip," 503
 with Johnson, Robert, 536
 with Johnson, Tommy, 540
 traveling to find talent, 429
 Spence, Joseph, Charters, Samuel Barclay and, 194
 Spencer, Jeremy, 332, 1021
 Spencer, Jon Michael, 87, 445
Spend Some Time with Me, 875
Spider in My Stew, 22, 75
 Spiders, with Carbo, Hayward "Chuck," 180
 Spike Driver Blues, 482, 484, 524
Spinning Blues into Gold (book), 446
Spinning Coin, 661
 Spinning Wheel, Kansas City, 535
 Spires, Benjamin "Bud," 741, 921
 Spires, Big Boy, 921
 Spirit Feel label, 874
 Spirit of Memphis Quartet, The, 427, 921
 Spirit of Memphis, 92
Spirit of the Century, 331
Spiritland, 833
 Spirits of Rhythm, with Bunn, Teddy, 167
 Spirituals to Swing, 24
 Spirituals. See black sacred music, 89 of Jefferson, Blind Lemon, 519
 pre-blues, 113
 Spiro, Phil, with House, Eddie "Son," 466
 Spivak, Charlie, 750
 Spivey, Victoria, 115, 884, 922
 AFBF tours in, 23
 Bell, Brenda and, 69
 writings about, 445
 Splish Splash, 570
 Spo-Dee-O-Dee, 979
 Spoonful Blues, A, 923
 Spoonful, 239, 275, 339, 472, 477, 923-924
 Spottswood, Dick and Louisa, 679, 773, 818
 Spread My Raincoat Down, 298
 Sprey, Pierre, 652
 Springsteen, Bruce, with Hammond, John Henry, Jr., 398
 Spruel, Rossell "Hattie Bell," Big Maceo and, 79
 Spruell, Freddie, 116, 736-737
 Spruill, "Wild" Jimmy, with Holmes, Wendell, 451
 Squires, The, 411
SRV, 1033
Ssssh, 969
 St. Augustine School for the Blind, 193
 St. George label, 881
 St. James Infirmary Blues, 576
St. James Infirmary, 418
 St. Louis, Missouri, 926-927
 southern blacks migrating to, 119
 urban blues, development of, 122
St. Louis Argus (newspaper), 86
St. Louis Blues (film), 325
 St. Louis Blues, 45, 115, 231, 236, 400, 401, 402, 424, 436, 506, 598, 681, 685, 767, 840, 925
 St. Louis Cyclone Blues, 996
 St. Louis National Folk Festival
 Brown, Gabriel, 157
 St. Louis Stomp, 919
 St. Louis World's Fair, with Handy, William Christopher "W.C.," 400
 St. Paul Baptist Church Choir (Los Angeles), 93
 St. Paul's Walking Through Heaven with You, 210
 Stack Lee, 129, 344, 928
 Stack O Lee, 1037
 Stack-a-Lee, 28
 Stackhouse, Houston, 928-929 style of, Lawhorn, Samuel "Sammy," 585
 Stackolee, 483
 Stafford, Mary, 221, 752
 Stafford, Tom, 312, 909
 Stage productions
 Davis, Guy, 253
 with Keb' Mo', 561
 Stagger Lee, 1, 28, 106, 114, 115, 338, 783, 928
Staggerlee (Broadway musical), 161
 Stag-O-Lee, 1037
 Stagolee, 298
 Stairway to Heaven, 590
 Stan's Record Shop, Shreveport, 523
 Stand By Me (film), "Let the Good Times Roll," 596 Stand By Me Father, 858
 Stand By Me, 90, 593, 839
Stand by Me, 98
Standback!, 25
 Standing Around Crying, 844
 Standish, Tony, 423
 Staple Singers, 353, 662
 Stardust (club), 205
 Stardust, 512

- Stark, John, 767
 Starr Piano Company, Richmond, Indiana, 191, 930
 Herwin (pre-1943), 423
 Starr, Edwin, 353
 Stars of Faith, 92
 State farms, field hollers, 320
State of the Blues, The (book), 446
 Statesboro Blues, 365, 675, 842
 Stax Studios, 121, 782
 Stax, 782, 908
 Stax/Volt, 930
 Blues Brothers, 130
 Cannon, Gus, 180
 Clark, Dave, 210
 Fantasy/Prestige/Bluesville/Galaxy/Milestone/Riverside, 313
 Johnson, L.V., 531
 King, Albert, 568
 soul guitar, 389
 Stay Away Love, 6
Staying Power, 547
Steady Rollin', 653
Steal Away to Jesus, 691
 Steal Away, 909, 959
 Stealin' Blues, 317
 Stedman, John, 551
 Steel Guitar Rag, 385
 Steel production, Gary, Indiana, 361
 Stefan Grossman Guitar Workshop, 382
Stefan Grossman Live, 382
 Steiner, John, 931
 Stella and Washburn guitar, 383
 Step It Up & Go, 775
 Step It Up and Go, 348
 Stepfather Blues, 1077
 Stephenson, Gerald "Wolf," 649, 912
 Steppin' Out, 133
 Steppin' Out Texas Style, 580
Stereo '57, 668
 Stevens, Tony, 334
Stevie Ray: Soul to Soul (book), 593
 Stewart, Mike, film of, 327
 Stewart, Shelley "The Playboy," 205
 Stewart-Baxter, Derrick, 439, 755
Sticky Fingers, 670
 Stigwood, Robert, with King, Freddie, 573
 Still a Fool, 189, 337, 842, 1058
Still Bad, 583
Still Got the Blues
Still River, 294
 Still River, 294
Still Trapped, 583
 Stills, Stephen
 with Bloomfield, Michael, 102
 with Hendrix, Jimi, 422
 Stockyard Blues, 545, 547
 Stokes, Frank, 932
 early recorded blues ensembles, 45
 guitar, 1920s, 385
 with Horton, Big Walter, 464
 Stoller, Mike, 592, 782, 882
 Stole Rider Blues, 676
 Stoller-Leiber, 624
 Stone Good Lover, A, 365
 Stone, Henry David, 193 labels owned by, 193, 843
 Stone, Joe, 879
 Stoop Down Baby, 1090
 Stop and Listen Blues, 541, 698
 Stop and Listen, 317
 Stop Breaking Down Blues, 537
 Stop the Wedding, 501
 Stop Watching Your Enemies, 1097
 Storm in Arkansas, 1000
 Storm Is Passing Over, The, 90
 Storm Thru Mississippi, 997
Storm Warning, 302
 Stormalong, 869
 Stormy Monday, 120, 340, 584, 933
 Story of the '93 Storm, 1000
Story of the Blues (Oliver) (book), 440 Storyville district, New Orleans closing of, 511
 Davenport, Cow-Cow and, 234
 jazz and, 511
 Storyville Records, Dallas, Leroy, 245
 Stovepipe Daddy no. 1 early blues recordings, 11
 Stovepipe No. 1, in Cincinnati, 208
 Strachwitz, Chris, 104, 327, 441–442, 469, 736
 Chenier, Clifton and, 197
 film and, 327
 with Hopkins, Sam "Lightnin'," 462 with Houston, Edward Wilson "Bee," 469 with Jackson, John, 597
 with Jackson, Lil' Son, 498
 with Lipscomb, Mance, 614
 Straight Alky Blues, 183, 934
 Straight Alky, 935
Straight from the Heart, 751
 Straight Love, No Chaser, 540
Straight Out of Chicago, 951
 Straighten Up and Fly Right, 217, 887
 Stranded in the Jungle, 850
 Strange Brew, 568
Strange Brew, 734
 Strange Fruit, 449, 641–642
 Strange Things Happening Every Day, 978
 Stranger Blues, 692
 Stratocaster, Gallagher, Rory, 357
 Strawberry Letter 23, 740
 Stray Cats, with Allen, Lee, 19
 Streamline Train, 234, 626, 1073
 Street musicians, 433, 519, 774
Street Parade and New Orleans Street Talkin', 570 Street Party, 82
 Street singers, 432
 Johnson, Blind Willie, 527
 Strehli, Angela, 935
 with Ball, Marcia and Barton, Lou Ann, 43
 with Clark, W.C., 211
 with James, Steve, 505
 Stretch My Money, 218
 Strickland, Napoleon, 323
Strictly Live in '85, 403
 Stride piano playing, 774
 Stride piano, 511
 house-rent parties, 468
 Stride, Allison, Mose, 21–22
Strike Like Lightning, 1032
 Strike Like Lightning, 644
 String bands
 fiddle, 316
 ragtime and, 509
 Strings of Rhythm, with Johnson, Joe, 531
 Stroger, Robert, with Hummel, Mark, 475
 Strong Persuader' 388
Strong Persuader, 125, 237, 238
 Strong, Ezekiel "Zeke," 190
Stronger Than Dirt, 990
 Struck, Nolan, 540, 874
 Struggle Here in Houston, 137
 Stuckey, Henry, 116, 124
 with James, Nehemiah "Skip," 505
Stuff Like That, 474
 Stumble and Fall, 243
 Stumble, The, 21, 426, 572
 "Stumble, The," 426
Stumbling Blocks and Stepping Stones, 1106
 Styles of playing, postwar era in Louisiana, 119
 Styn, Sadie, 871
 Suarez, Jose, 433
 Suburbans, with Cole, Ann, 217
 Subway Club, Kansas City
 juke joint, 558
 Sudan west central, 12
 western, 10, 12
 SudWestFunk TV, 327
 Sue Records, A.F.O. and, 10
 Sugar Babe, 155
 Sugar Bee, 240
 Sugar Blue, 671 with Brown, Oscar II "Bobo," 160
Sugar Coated Love, 60
Sugar Hill (film), 783
 Sugar Mama, 1086
 Sugar on the Floor, 502
 Sugar, 480
 Suitcase Blues, 768
 Sukey jumps, Ledbetter, Huddie Leadbelly, 3
 Sullivan, Charles, 857

INDEX

- Sumlin, Hubert, 102
 AFBF European tours, 23
 Austin performances, 125
 in Chicago, 203
 with Cotton, James, 229
 guitar, 1950s, 387
 with Howlin' Wolf, 387, 472
 Summer, Barbara, 228
 Summers County, West Virginia,
 "John Henry" describing events
 in, 524
 Sun Down, 338
 Sun Gonna Shine in My Door
 Someday, 3
 Sun label, 987
Sun of Our Lives, The, 256
 Sun Ra, 124
 free jazz and, 516
Sun, Moon & Herbs, The, 282
 Sun/Phillips International/Flip
 Binder, Dennis "Long Man," 82
 Carr, Sam, 184
 Charly and, 193
 Cotton, James, 229
 country music, 232
 Davis, "Maxwell Street" Jimmy, 255
 Emerson, William Robert "Billy the Kid," 303
 Hare, Auburn "Pat," 402–403
 Hooker, Earl, 458
 Howlin' Wolf, 472–473
 Hunt, Daniel Augusta "D.A.," 479
 King, Riley B. "B.B.," 573–575 postwar-era blues and, 119
 Singleton, Shelby and, 123
 Yardbirds, 123
 Sunday Morning Blues, 1015
 Sunflower River Festival, Davis,
 "Maxwell Street" Jimmy, 255
 Sunny Road, 155
 Sunny Side of Love, 720
 Sunny South Gospel Singers, with Blaylock, Travis "Harmonica
 Slim," 100
 Sunnyland Slim, 940
 Austin performances, 125
 in Chicago, 202
 with Covington, Robert, 233
 Edmonds, Elga and, 296
 with Horton, Big Walter, 408
 Sunnyland Train, 940
 Sunset Cafe, Chicago, with Jaxon,
 Frankie "Half Pint," 508
 Sunset Café Stomp, 18
 Sunset Club, Kansas City, juke joint, 558
 Sunset Crystal Palace, Kansas City, 535
 Sunshine of Your Love, 239, 842
Super Session, 102
 Super Suds of Rhythm, 422
Superfly (film), 124, 353
Superfly, 662
 Supreme Angels, 92
 Surfin with Bo Diddley, 267
 Surge, Frank, 441
 Suspicion, 779
 Swamp blues
 Excello/Nashboro, 307
 King Snake recordings, 576
 Swamp Boogie Queen, 1062
Swamp Boogie Queen, 1062
 Swan Silvertones, 92
 Swanee Inn, West Coast, with Lewis,
 Meade "Lux," 600
 Swanee Quintet, 93
 Sweatman, Wilbur, 654
 Sweden, AFBF tours in, 23
 Sweet Angel (Original Sweet Black Angel), 85
 Sweet Angel, 843
Sweet as the Showers of Rain
 (book), 443
Sweet As the Showers of Rain: The Bluesmen Part II (book), 194
 Sweet Baby Blues, with Callender, Red, 176
Sweet Baby Blues, 196
 Sweet Bitter Love, 246
 Sweet Black Angel, 84, 201
 Sweet Brown Angel, 85
 Sweet Child, 648
 Sweet Dreams, 665
 Sweet Goddess of Love and Beer, 780
 Sweet Home Chicago, 21, 33, 97, 106,
 118, 338, 386, 537, 625–626, 666,
 737, 1008, 1080
 Sweet Jenny Lee, 434
 Sweet Little Angel, 84, 85, 134, 340, 546, 575
 Sweet Little Sixteen, 275
 Sweet Lucy, 1056
Sweet Patuni, 503
 Sweet Patunia, 134
 Sweet Potato Blues, 477
 Sweet Sixteen, 588, 1015
Sweet Soul Music, 351, 721
 Sweet Soul Music, 908
Sweet Soul Music: Rhythm and Blues and the Southern Dream of Freedom (book), 393–394, 721
Sweet Tea, 396, 1024
 Sweet Woman Like You, A, 266
 Sweet Woman's Love, 253
Sweetheart of the Blues, 590
 Sweethearts of the Blues, 878
 Sweets for My Sweet, 779
 Swing bands, 318, 512, 650
 decline in pre-World War II era, 514 musicians, bebop as elitist style, 515 prevailing jazz sound, 512 rhythm and blues and, bridging gap between, 515 void left by, rhythm and blues filling, 515
 Swing era, 864
 Swing Low Sweet Chariot, 89
 Swing Time records, 67, 668
 Swing, musicians, bebop pioneers
 and, 513
 Swingin' the Boogie, 150
 Swingin', 576
 Swinging Cats, 591
 Swingmaster label, 168, 667, 699
 Swinton, Paul, 188
Switched On Blues, 711
Switchy Titchy, 366
 Sykes, Roosevelt, 948 with Butler, George "Wild Child," 170
 Depression years, 117
 with Gibson, Clifford, 366
 with Hammond, John Paul, 399
 with Holloway, Red, 451
 "I Believe I'll Make a Change"
 ("Dust My Broom"), 487
 with Jackson, Lee, 497
 with Johnson, Edith North, 529
 with Johnson, Robert, 536
 with Kolax, King, 579
 Symphonic No. 4, 769
 Symphony orchestras, jazz in repertoire
 of, 517
 Syncopated orchestras, ragtime piano
 and, 509
 Szmczyk, Bill, Collins, Albert, 220

T

- (Take Your Burden to the Lord and)
 Leave It There, 90
 T. Model Boogie, 287
 T.N.T., 194
 T-99 Blues, 721
 Tabby Thomas Blues' Box, 447
 Taft, Michael, 444
 Taggart, Blind Joe, 951
 Tahmazian, Jean-Pierre, 83
 Tail Dragger, 951
 Tain't Nobody's Business If I Do, 932
 Taj Mahal, 124, 719, 951–952
 with Cooder, Ry, 224
 Take a Little Walk With Me, 386
 Take Care of Your Homework, 959
Take It Easy, Baby, 165
 Take It Easy, Baby, 637
 Take Me Back Baby, 854
Take Me Back, 229
 Take Me to the River, 540
 Take My Hand, Precious Lord,
 119, 887
 Take Out Your False Teeth Baby, 1060
 Take This Hammer, 524
 Take Your Best Shot, 580
Take Your Pick, 721
Take Your Shoes Off, 238

- Take Your Time, 1072
Taking It Home, 166
 Talbot, Johnny, 952
 Talent scouts, 161, 261, 745, 769
 Hammond, John Henry, Jr., 398
Tales from the Austin Motel, 251
 Tales from the Austin Motel, 251
 Talib, Abu, 952
 Talk to Me, Talk to Me, 525
Talk to You by Hand, 350
 Talk to You by Hand, 96, 350
Talk to Your Daughter, 335
 Talking blues, 141
Talking Jazz (book), 547
Talking Timbuktu, 1005
 Tall Cool One, 841
 Talladega Institute for the Negro Blind, 330
 Tallahatchie River Blues, 262, 1000
 Talty, Don, 953
 Tampa Kid, 39
 Tampa Red, 39, 47, 79, 84, 103, 434, 953–955
 with Black Bob, 85
 Brim, John and, 147
 in Chicago, 201
 Chicago blues, 374
 Depression-era recordings, 118
 Georgia roots, 365
 hokum blues, 476
 How Long How Long (“Sitting on Top of the World”), 470
 with Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 508
 with Jones, “Little” Johnny, 546 kazoo playing of, renowned, 561
 “Tan Canary.” See Adams, Johnny
 Tangerine label, 550, 663, 826
 Tangerine Records, 955
 Tango, Willie, 875, 877
 Tannehill, Frank, 104
 Tanzania
 Hooker, John Lee and, 461
 On Tap, 396
 Tap dancing, 112
 Tappin’ That Thing, 794
 Taradash, Scott L., 299
 Tarheel Slim, 955
 Tarleton, Jimmie, 676
 Tarnopol, Nat, 955
 Tarrant, Rabon, 955–956
 Tarter And Gay, 956
 Tasby, Finis, 956
 Task songs, 883
 Taste of New Orleans, A, with Lastie,
 David, 584
 Tate, Buddy, 956–957
 Tate, Charles Henry “Baby,” 957
 Tate, Tommy, 957
 Tatum, Art
 with Grimes, Lloyd “Tiny,” 381
 with Hume, Helen, 475
 stride piano style, influenced by, 512
 Tax Paying Blues, 594
 Taxes, on cabarets and dance halls, smaller bands result of, 514
 Tay May Club, Chicago, 546
 Taylor, Arthur “Montana,” 769, 770
 Taylor, Cecil, free jazz and, 516
 Taylor, Eddie, 957–958
 Austin performances, 125
 with Burrow, Cassell, 169
 influential music of, 71
 with Jones, Floyd, 545
 Taylor, Eva, 958
 Taylor, Fingers, 251
 Taylor, Gene, with Fabulous
 Thunderbirds, 311
 Taylor, Hound Dog, 20, 123, 958–959
 bass and, 64
 with Brewer Phillips, 764
 with Harvey, Ted, 414
 with Iglauer, Bruce, 20
 Taylor, Johnnie Harrison, 959–960
 Taylor, Johnny Lamar “Little,” 960
 Taylor, Koko, 960–961
 with Allison, Bernard, 20
 with Dixon, Willie, 274
 with Guy, Phil, 396
 Iglauer, Bruce and, 125 with King, Eddie, 571
 Taylor, Larry, with Hollywood
 Fats, 451
 Taylor, Little Johnny, 751, 862
 Taylor, Melvin, 961
 Taylor, Mick, 133, 661
 1960s, 388
 Taylor, Montana, 962
 Taylor, Otis, 962
 Taylor, Robert “Dudlow,” with Curtis,
 James “Peck,” 244
 Taylor, Sam “Bluzman,” 962
 Taylor, Sam “The Man,” 962
 Taylor, Ted, 962–963
 Taylor, Theodore “Hound Dog,” 388
 Taylor, Walter, with Byrd, John, 173
 Taylor’s Boogie, 425
 T-B Blues, 922
 T-Bone Blues, 447, 1030, 1045
 T-Bone Shuffle, 340, 1046
 Tchula’s Midnight Grill, Tchula,
 Mississippi, with James,
 Elmore, 500
 Tear Drop Blues, 611
 Tear It Down Rag, 298
 Teardrops from My Eyes, 161
 Teardrops on Your Letter, 44
 Teardrops, The, 648, 651, 784
 Tearing Hair, 986
 Tears in Heaven, 209
 Technical elements of blues lyrics,
 105–107
 Technical elements of blues blues forms, 109–111
 lyrics, 105–107
 Teddy Bear Blues, 723
 Tedeschi, Susan, 963 with Costello, Sean, 228
Teenage Blues from Baton Rouge, 1016
 Tee-Nah-Nah, 602
 Telarc, 963
 Telephone Blues, 273, 898
Telephone King, 703
 Telephoning the Blues, 923
 Telescoping, blues lyrics, 106
 Television programs
 Bruynoghe, Yannick and, 163
 Devils Music—A History of the Blues, The, 180
 with Keb’ Mo’, 561
 Korner, Alexis on, 579
 with Lewis, Meade “Lux,” 597
 Television, 963–968
 Tell Her About Me, 917
 Tell It Like It Is, 722
 Tell Mama, 199, 502
Tell Mama, 502
 Tell Me Darlin’, 1100
Tell Me How You Like It, 896
 Tell Me Man Blues, 317
 Tell Me So, 739
 Tell Me, 765
 Tell Your Story, 600
Tell Your Story: A Dictionary of Jazz and Blues Recordings 1917–1930
 (book), 444
 Telson, Bob, 330
 Temple, Johnny “Geechie,” 968
 Temple, Johnny, 968
 Tempo, blues melodies, 105, 106
 Tempo-Tone, 968
 Temptations, 353
Ten Days in November, 334
 Ten Years After, 969
 Tender Hearted Woman, 291
 Tenderly, 695
 Tennessee Chocolate Drops, 659
 Tennessee Dog, 936
 Tennessee Woman, 835
 Tennessee
 Alabama and, 14
 Pre-World War II era, 112
 Tennessee, 969
 Terkel, Studs, Broonzy, Big Bill
 and, 152
 Terraplane Blues, 118, 299, 536, 537
 Terrell, Sister Ola Mae (O.M.), 91
 Terrible Flood Blues, 1000
 Territory bands, Kansas City important center for, 512
 Terry, Cooper, 969
 Terry, Dewey, 411
 Terry, Doc, 969–970
 Terry, Mike, 366
 Terry, Sonny (Saunders Terrell), 970

INDEX

- Terry, Sonny, 115, 669, 871, 970 with Council, Floyd “Dipper Boy,” 230
 film of, 362
 “From Spirituals to Swing” concern, Carnegie Hall, 1938, 436
 with Fuller, Blind Boy, 347
 with Guthrie, Woodrow Wilson “Woody,” 430
 with Hammond, John Henry, Jr., 434
 harmonica, 441, 444
 with Hughes, Joe “Guitar,” 510
 international performances, 475
 “John Henry,” 534
 “March of Time” series, 325 with McGhee, Brownie, 40
 reissues of, 478
 at Thursday Night Blues and Barrelhouse Club, London, 615
- Testament label, 970
 Testament, 970
 Testify (I Wanna), 959
 Texas and Pacific Blues, 312
 Texas blues acoustic style, 450
 Bramhall, Doyle and, 145
 Carolina Slim and, 182
 Herald/Ember, 423
 Jackson, Lil’ Son and, 497
 Larkin, Milton “Tippy” and, 583
 1930s recorded ensembles, developing new style, 47 pre-World War II era, Kemble, Will Ed and, 563
Texas Bluesman, 136
Texas Cadillac, 580
 Texas Cadillac, 580
Texas Cannonball, 573
Texas Flood, 1032–1033
 Texas Flood, 31, 254, 388, 1000, 1032
Texas Guitar Slinger, 474
 Texas Hop, 238
 Texas Houserockers, 662
 Texas Music Group, Antone’s and, 27
Texas on My Mind, 412
 Texas roadhouse blues, Hunter, Long John and, 482
 Texas Slim. See Hooker, John Lee
Texas Soul, 211
 Texas Upsetters, 662
 Texas, 971–977
 African Americans in, Mexican street singers and, 469
 Barton, Lou Ann, 60
 Black Magic, 71
 Bland, Bobby “Blue,” influences on, 98
 blues rediscovery movement, folk music revival, 119 classics of Texas blues, 17 guitar style, Jones, Andrew “Junior Boy,” 542
 Hispanic influences on the blues, 432
 Jefferson, Blind Lemon, 518
 1930s recorded ensembles, developing new style, 47
 Thackery, Jimmy, 388, 725–726, 977
 Thank Your Lucky Stars (film), 132
 Tharpe, Sister Rosetta, 91, 977–979
 Doggett, Bill and, 276
 “From Spirituals to Swing” concern, Carnegie Hall, 1938, 399
 That Ain’t Right, 153
 That All, 766
 That Awful Day Will Surely Come, 89
 That Crawling Baby Blues, 520
 That Lonesome Train Took My Baby Away, 234
 That Mean Old Twister, 1000
 That Mellow Saxophone, 702
That RhythmThose Blues, 156
 That Thing Called Love, 900
 That Train Is Gone, 1089
 That Wasn’t Me, 238
That Woman Is Poison, 763
 That’ll Be the Day, 839
 That’s a train blues, 601
That’s All Right, 293
 That’s All Right, 844
 That’s All Right, Mama, 48, 241, 242, 782
 That’s All, 887
 That’s Alright Mama, 841
That’s Big, 1107
 That’s How It Is, 738
 That’s How Strong My Love Is, 370, 1101
 That’s It, 623
That’s My Partner, 905
That’s My Story: John Lee Hooker Sings the Blues, 460
 That’s No Way to Get Along, 1075
That’s Right, 847
 That’s the Stuff You Gotta Watch, 528
That’s the Stuff: The Recordings of Brownie McGhee, Sonny Terry, Stick McGhee and J.C. Burris (book), 446
That’s What I’m Here For, 779
 That’s What Love Will Make You Do, 931
 That’s What the Blues Is All About, 930
 That’s What the Good Book Says, 593
 That’s What They Want, 664
That’s When I Know, 178
 That’s All Right, Mama, 339
 That’s How It Is, 213
That’s What They Want, 350
 That’s What You Think, 300
 Thaw Out, 219
 “The Beat,” Allen, Bill “Hoss,” 18
 “The Chief.” See Clearwater, Eddy
 “The Father of the Blues.” See Handy, W.C.
 “The Nation’s Youngest Blues Singer.” See August, Joe “Mr. Google Eyes”
 The sepia Sinara. See Gant, Cecil
 Theard, Sam “Spo-Dee-O-Dee,” 979
 Theater, Blues In, 979–981
Their Eyes Were Watching God (book), excoriated by critics when published in 1937, 616
 Theme from the Pink Panther, 535
 Themes in blues songs, humorous treatment of, 476
 There Goes My Baby, 593
 There Goes That Train, 671
There Goes the Neighborhood, 847
 There Is Something On your Mind, 330, 673, 899
 There Must Be a Better World Somewhere, 470
 There’ll Come a Time, 306
There’s Gotta Be a Change, 220
 There’ll Come a Time, 145
 Theresa’s Tavern, 784
 Theresa’s, South Side, Chicago
 Jones, Carl, 543
 with Lawhorn, Samuel “Sammy,” 585
 Theron, 981
 They Call It Stormy Monday, 1045
 They’re Red Hot, 337
 Thierry, Huey Peter “Cookie,” 981–982
 Thieves and Robbers, 589
 Thin Man, 330
Things Have Changed, 9
 Things I Used to Do, The, 120
 Things That I Used to Do, The, 393
 Think Twice Before You Speak, 566
 Think, 331, 669
 Thinking and Drinking, 691
 Thinking ‘Bout Comin’ My Way, 470
 Think Twice, 42
 Third Degree, 142
 Third Ward, Houston
 Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” 498
 Thirties (1930s)
 blues ballads of, 114
 Carter, Bo and, 185
 Johnson, Robert and, 500
 Jones, Curtis, impact during, 429 jug, disappearance from commercial recordings, 588 polyphonic to homophonic transition in blues, 107 recording industry and, 114 recordings in, country blues, 47 swing bands, instruments in, 548
 32–20 Blues, 79, 948
 32–20 Blues, 948
This Is Elvis (film)
 with Lewis, Furry, 598
 This Land Is Your Land, 394
 This Love Is Real, 704

- This Magic Moment, 779
 This Tavern Boogie, 84
 This Train (My Babe), 982
 This Train, 167, 982
 Thomas J. Dodd Research Center,
 University of Connecticut, 195
 Thomas, B. J., 865
 Thomas, Blanche, 983
 Thomas, BoBo, 500
 with James, Elmore, 536
 Thomas, Carla, 980
 with Hill, Michael, 431
 Thomas, Chris, 983
 Thomas, Earl, 983
 Thomas, Elmer Lee, 983
 Thomas, Frank Jr., 983
 Thomas, George, 983–984
 New Orleans Hop Scop Blues, 768
 Thomas, Henry “Ragtime Texas,” 984
 Thomas, Henry, 984
 with Dylan, Bob, 972 early blues recordings, 11, 631
 humorous lyrics of, 476
 “John Henry,” 524–525
 postwar-era recordings, 476
 Thomas, Hersal, 984
 Thomas, Irma, 985
 with Ball, Marcia, 43
 Thomas, James “Son” “Ford,”
 985–986
 Thomas, Jesse “Babyface,” 986
 Thomas, Joe, 986
 Thomas, Lafayette “Thing,” 387
 with Heartsman, Johnny, 417
 Thomas, Lafayette Jerl “Thing,” 986
 Thomas, Leon, 986
 Thomas, Robert, 987
 Thomas, Rufus, 987–988
 with Lucky Peterson, 763
 Thomas, Sharde, 324
 Thomas, Son, 985
 Thomas, Tabby, 988
 Thomas, Will, 438
 Thomas, Willard “rambling,” 988
 Thomas, Willie B., 988
 Thompson Community Singers, 93
 Thompson, Alphonso “Sonny,” 989
 Thompson, David “Little Dave,” 989
 Thompson, Edward, 116
 Thompson, Lil’ Dave, 551
 Thompson, Mac, 989
 Thompson, Odell, 989–990
 Thompson, Ron, 990
 Thornhill, Claude, with Evans, Gil, 515
 Thornton, Eli, 732
 Thornton, Willa Mae “Big Mama,” 990–991 with Cheatham, Jeannie, 196
 with Hollimon, Clarence, 450
 with Houston, Edward Wilson
 “Bee,” 469
 with Howlin’ Wolf, 119
 with Katz, Bruce, 560
 with Lewis, Pete “Guitar,” 601 with White, Lynn, 15–16
 Thorogood, George, 991
 Those Lonely, Lonely Nights, 1059
 Thought I Heard My Banjo Say, 936
 Threadgill, Henry, in AACM, 517
 Threadgill’s, Austin, with Joplin,
 Janis, 548
 Three Blazers, 16, 36, 155, 183
 with Dixon, Floyd, 273
 “Drifting Blues,” 283
 Three Dots and a Dash, with Belvin, Jesse, 72
 Three Fingered Jack, 856
 Three Hundred Pounds of Joy, 476, 939
Three Kings and the Queen, 922
 3 O’Clock Blues, 350, 387, 575, 1014
 3–6 and 9, 948
 Three Sheets in the Wind, 412
 Threw Your Love on Me Too
 Strong, 230
 Thrill Is Gone, The, 123–124, 338, 506, 655
 Through Train Blues, 953
 Throwing Water on a Drowning
 Man, 370
 Thunder and Lightnin’, 462
Thunderbird, 499
 Thunderbird, 623
 Thunderbird, The, 783
Thunderbroad, 60
 Thursday Night Blues and Barrelhouse
 Club, London, 579
 Tibbs, Andrew, 991
 Tiger in Your Tank, 212
 Tiger Jack, 366
 Tiger, 842
Tigerman, 1107
 Tight Like That, 116, 119, 270, 338, 886, 992
 Tightrope, 865
 Til, Sonny (Earlington Carl Tilghman), 739
 Till Tom Special, 864
 Till, Emmett, 170
 Tim Moore’s Farm, 462
Time Is on My Side, 722
 Time Is on My Side, 891, 985
Time magazine, 379
 Grey Ghost, 379
 Timmons, Terry, 992
 Tin Pan Alley, 363, 378, 544
 “Baby Please Don’t Go/Don’t You Leave Me Here,” 39
 black string bands and, 45
 Handy, William Christopher “W.C.”
 and, 401
 Holiday, Billie and, 448
 Tina Turner Show, 663
 Tindley Temple United Methodist Church, 90
 Tindley, Charles Albert, 90
 Tinsley, John E., 992
 Tiny Bradshaw Band, 378
Tip of the Top, 211
 Tip Top, 992–993
 Tipitina, 786
 Tisdom, James “Smokestack,” 993
 Titanic [God Moved on the Waters],
 The, 998
Titanic Blues, 970
 Titanic Blues, 998
 Titanic Man Blues, 998
 Titanic, 440, 998
Titanic, 998–999
 Titanic, The, 998
 Titon, Jeff Todd, 443
 T-Model Blues, 462
To Be Continued, 909
 TOBA theater circuit, 37
 with Butterbeans and Susie, 172
 with Crump, Jesse “Tiny,” 243
 with Davenport, Cow-Cow, 250
 Johnson, Lonnie and, 532
 Toba, 993–994
 Toby, 6
 Todd Rhodes band, with Baker,
 Laverne, 42
 Toddlin’ Town label, 738
Together Again!, 499
 Toles, Nat, with Holloway, Red, 451
 Tom Cat Blues, 436
 Tom Rushen [i.e., Rushing] Blues, 749
Tomato Delta Blues Package, 994
 Tomato Records, 994
Tomato Sampler, The, 994
 Tommy Dorsey’s Boogie Woogie, 407
 Tommy Jenkins & the Rising Star
 Gospel Singers, 81
Tommy Johnson (book), 305
 Tomorrow Night, 1065
 Tonal music, Western, 862
Tone for My Sins, A, 346
 Tone, blues melodies, 104–105, 107
 compositions, dimensions of, 107
 Tone-Cool, 126, 994
 Hummel, Mark, 475
Tonight show (television program) with Hurt, John Smith “Mississippi
 John,” 518
 with James, Etta, 538
 Tonight Show, 763
 Ton-Ton Macoute!, 522, 558
 Too Bad Jim (R.L. Burnside), 744 Too Bad Jim, 744
Too Hip to Be Happy, 98
Too Late, Too Late Blues, 43
 Too Long, 231
Too Many Cooks, 238
 Too Many Cooks, 341
 Too Much Jelly Roll, 593
 Too Much, 338
 Too Tight Henry, 995

INDEX

- Too Weak to Fight, 496
 Toombs, Rudolph (Rudy), 871
 Tooth Ache Blues, 477
 Tooze, Sandra, 445
 Top Cat, 995
 Topical Blues: Disasters, 995–1002
 Topical Blues: Sports, 1002–1003
 Topical Blues: Urban Renewal, 1003–1005
Topsy Turvy, 392
 Tore Up Over You, 376
Tore Up, 159, 302
 Tore Up, 409
 Tornado Groan, 996
 Toscano, Eli, 216
 Tossin' and Turnin', 597
 Touch Me Lord Jesus, 90, 372
Touching Me, 1072
 Tough Tenors, 252 with Griffin, Johnny, 380
 Tough Times, 148
 Tough Tittie, 891
 Toure, Ali Farka, 1005
 Tours
 AFBF, 23
 American Folk Blues Festival, 23 of American southwest, Kubek, Smokin' Joe, 580
 Black & Blue/Isabel/Riverboat, artists with, 83
 Bland, Bobby "Blue," band of, 98 blues festival circuit, 96
 blues festivals, 30
 Bohee Brothers, 135
 British club tour, 123
 Broadway Express, 462
 chitlin circuit, 123
 coffeehouse circuit, 133
 Cotton Club European, 480
 Diddley, Bo, 266
 European, American Folk Blues (& Gospel) Festivals, 581 European, Broonzy, Big Bill, 147 gas rationing and, 514 with Handy, William Christopher "W.C." and, 400
 with Hooker, John Lee, 459
 Hopkins, Sam "Lightnin'," 462
 with House, Eddie "Son," 465
 with James, Elmore, 500
 with James, Etta, 501 in Japan by prominent blues artists, 506
 JATP jam session, 515
 Jazz Train, 462
 Johnson, Lonnie, with musical revue in London, 532
 King, Riley B. "B.B.," demanding schedule of, 575
 King, Riley B. "B.B." in Japan, 506 with Laurie, Joe, 402
 oldies circuit, 398
 TOBA circuit, 115
 TOBA theater circuit, 37
 university sacred music vocal groups, 88
 Toussaint, Allen, 1005
 with Ball, Marcia, 43
 with Brown, Ruth, 158
 with Dorsey, Lee, 279
 with Dr. John, 282
 with Hill, Jessie, 418 with K-Doe, Ernie, 561
 with Landreth, Sonny, 582
 Toussaint, Allen, 1005–1006
 Tower of Power, The, 124
 Tower Records, import CDs, 507
 Town Hall Memorial Concert
 Davis, Reverend Gary, 257
 Town I Live In, The, 699, 738
 Townley, Eric, 444
 Townsend, Henry, 1006
 electric guitar, development of, 383
 Townsend, Henry, 1006–1007
 Townsend, Vernell Perry, 1007
 Trace of You, 844
 Train blues, Lewis, Meade "Lux," 599
 Train Fare Home, 1057
 Train Imitation, harmonica, 405, 407–408
 Train Is Coming, The, 9
 Train Kept a Rollin', The, 144
 Train Kept-A Rollin, 838
 Train Train Train, 740
Train Whistle Guitar (book), 444
 Tramp, 350, 669
 Tramps (New York City), Brown, Charles, 155
 Transatlantic, 1007
 Transcription, 1007–1010
 Transcriptions of blues melodies rhythm and, 106
 Transcripts, archive, Indiana University, 603
 Transformation in hoodoo, 455
 Trap tables." See trapsets Trapped by a Thing Called Love', 583 Trash Talkin', 219
 Traum, Artie, 194
 Travel
 hoodoo and, 454
 rambling bluesmen, 458
Travelin' Light, 1106
 Traveling Blues, 283
 Traveling Coon, 131
 Traveling Four, with Harris, Tony, 413
 Traveling Riverside Blues, 565, 841, 846
Traveling Through the Jungle: Negro Fife and Drum Band Music from the Deep South, 323, 970
 Travelling Blues, 430
 Travers, Nick, mystery novel character, 617
 Travis picking, 774
 Travis, Merle, 232
 Travis, Virginia
 with Johnson, Robert, 536
 Treasure of Love, 673
 Treat Me Like Your Only Child, 762
 Treat Me Nice, 593, 839
 Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, 1848, 432
 Trees, 695
 Treniers, 366, 494, 1010
 Trent, Alphonso, 784
 Tribble, Thomas E. "Tnt," 1010
 Tribute to Elmor James, 165
Tribute to Huddie Ledbetter" (magazine article), 754
 Trice Brothers, 256
 Trice, Richard, 1011
 Trice, William Augusta "Willie," 1011
 Trick Bag, 570
 Tricks Ain't Walkin No More, 871
 Trilby Rag, 234
 Trilon records, 668
 Trilon, 1011
 Trinity River Blues, 1045
Trip, The, 300
Triple Play, 763
 Triple Threat Revue
 with Clark, W.C., 211
 Tri-Sax-Ual Soul Champs, 1011
 with Jackson, Grady "Fats," 496
 Tristano, Lennie, bebop pioneer, 513
Tri-State Defender (newspaper), 85–86
 Triumvirate, 102
Triumvirate, 282
 Trix, 751, 1011–1012
 Johnson, Henry "Rufe," 529
 Trombone Cholly, 377, 895
 Tross, Clarence, 2
 Trotter, James, 438
 Trotts, Ralph, 644
 Trouble Blues, 155, 699
Trouble Blues, 544
 Trouble in Mind, 248, 430, 1071, 1104
Trouble in Mind, 248
Trouble Is ..., 876
 Trouble Man, 353
 Trouble No More, 305
Trouble Time, 302
 Troublesome Blues, 262
 Trout, Walter, 1012
 Troy Seals Band, 644
 Troy, Randall, 779
 Truck 'Em On Down, 873
 Truckin' My Blues Away, 348, 775
 Trucks, Butch, 22
 Trucks, Derek, 390, 1012
 True Endeavor Jug Band, with Charters, Samuel Barclay, 194
 True, 363
 Trumpet Records, 664
 McCain, Jerry and, 15

- Trumpet Records/Globe Music/
Diamond Record Company,
1012–1013
“Dust My Broom,” 487
Huff, Luther and Percy, 473
Trumpets, early jazz ensembles, New Orleans, 511
Trust in Me, 234
Try a Little Tenderness, 890
Tryin’ to Make a Livin’, 67
Trying to Earn a Living, 543 Trying to Live My Life Without
You, 213
Trying to Make a Living, 175
Trying to Please, 307
T-Town Twist, 694
Tuba, in cool jazz groups, 515
Tu-Ber-Cu-Lucas and the Sinus
Blues, 899
Tucker, Bessie, 1013
Tucker, Ira, 1013
Tucker, Luther, 1013
guitar, 1950s, 387
Tucker, Tanya, 232
Tucker, Tommy, 78, 1013–1014
Tuff Enuff, 311, 1092
Tuff Enuff, 388
Tupelo Blues, 997
Tupelo Destruction, 997
Tupelo, 997
Turk, Will, 768
Turkey in the Straw, 113
Turn Back the Hands of Time, 249, 258, 704
Turn On the Bright Lights, 1051
Turn on Your Love Light, 73, 98
Turn Out the Lights, 293
Turn Up the Heat, 266
Turn Your Light Down Low, 40
Turner, Big Joe, 39, 117, 557, 634, 779, 1076
with Bailey, Ray, 41
with Baker, Mickey, 42
as blues shouter, 512
Depression years, 117
with Harman, James, 403 with Houston, Edward Wilson
“Bee,” 469
humor in music of, 476
with James, Elmore, 500
with Johnson, Pete, 535
publications about, 393
Sunset Club, bartender at, 558
Turner, Ike and Tina, 97
with Hendrix, Jimi, 420
Turner, Ike, 1014
with Bland, Bobby “Blue,” 98 with Emerson, William Robert “Billy
the Kid,” 303
with Gayles, Billy, 362
with Hill, Raymond, 431
Turner, Ike, 1014–1015
Turner, Joseph Vernon “Big Joe,” 1015
Turner, Othar, 1016
Turner, Troy, 1016
Turner, Twist, 1016–1017
Turnham, Floyd, with Hite, Les, 447
Turning Point, 165
Turning Point, 165
Turning Point, The, 661
Turpin, Tom, Harlem Rag, 767
Tuskegee Institute Singers, 89
Tutmarc, Paul, Sr., 63
Tutti Frutti, 267, 782
Tutti Frutti, Good Booty, 621
Tuxedo Junction, 415
TV Mama, 500, 546, 1015
TV Slim, 1017
Tweedle-Dee, 42
Twelve Year Old Boy, The, 205, 501
Twelve-bar blues
Japan, lacking in, 506
jazz/blues overlap/crossover, 510
Jefferson, Blind Lemon and, 518 standards based on, bebop repertoire, 513
Twelve-bar format, accordion/
harmonica and, 3
Twelve-inch LPs, classic blues on, 442
Twelve-measure form, 337
Twelve-measure harmonic progression, 107
African musical traditions of slaves, 112
early blues, 1890–1920, 114
Twenties (1920s), Armstrong, Louis, recordings of, 512
blues ballads of, 187
four perspectives on blues, 438
guitar, 388–390
jazz musicians performing waltzes and popular songs, 512
Johnson, Lonnie, most important blues guitarist in, 532
kazoo popularity in, 560
20th Century Fox Records,
877, 1030
“Twentieth Century Gabriel.” See
Hawkins, Erskine
24 Hours, 142
Twenty Grand Blues, 692
22nd of November, 494
22–20 Blues, 536
Twine Time, 738
Twilight label, 874
Twilight/Twilight, 1017
Twist, The, 43–44, 839
Twister Blues, 999
Twister, The, 1000
Twistin’ Fools, 44
Twistin’ the Night Away, 225
Twitz, Conway, 232
Two Bugs & A Roach, 458
Two Bugs & A Roach, 458
Two Poor Boys, 524
Two Steps from the Blues, 162
Two Steps from the Blues, 98
Two Time Blues, 565, 737
Two Track Mind, 505
Two Track Mind, 505
Two Trains Running, 842
Two White Horses (in a Line), 869
Two Years of Torture, 663
Two-Fisted Mama, 1062
Tyler, Alvin “Red,” 1017
with Allen, Lee, 19
Tympany Five, 119, 329, 515
with Jordan, Louis, 548–550
- U
- U.S. Armed Forces radio. See Far East Network
U.S. Congress highway legislation, 427
YOTB and, 127
U.S. Postal Service, 427
Ulman, John, 327
Ultra label, 269
Um Um Um Um Um Um, 582
Uncle John, 267, 489
“Uncrowned Queen of the Blues, The”
See Cox, Ida
Undead, 969
Under a Hoodoo Moon (book), 282
Under a Hoodoo Moon, 282
Underwood, Little Melvin, 665
Undisputed Truth, 353
Union Man Blues, 198
United Artists, 673
United Distributors, Leaner, George and Ernest, 589
United Kingdom and Ireland,
1019–1022
United Kingdom
AFBF tours in, 23
African colonies in history of the
blues, 111
journals, Leadbitter, Michael Andrew “Mike,” 587
Korner, Alexis and, 579 libraries in, 603
publications, 754–755
rhythm and blues musicians, 580
United Kingdom, music of, 102
AFBF, influences of, 23
Animals, 26
Baldry, “Long” John and, 43
Bronzy, Big Bill and, 150–153
flatted thirds and sevenths in, 12
Fleetwood Mac, 332
influences on, 20, 123
1960s, 387–388
United Phonographs
Corporation, 788

INDEX

- United States, evolution of the blues in, 507
 United States, 1022–1026
 United/States, 1027
 Universal Recording Studio, “I’m a Man” (“Mannish Boy”), 489
 University of Chicago Folk Festivals blues artists, 442–443
 University of Illinois Press, blues studies, 443
 University of Memphis. See Memphis State University University of Mississippi, 122, 125
 Blues Archive, 444
 blues films by, 328
 graduates of, Malaco and, 125 white students, weekend visits to Junior Kimbrough’s, open weekends for, 554 University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, 66, 438, 521 University sacred music vocal groups, 89
 quartets, 91
 Uni-Vox Uni-Vibe, 422
 Unknown Blues, 956
 Unlucky Blues, 54
 Unlucky Woman, 475
Unwanted Child, 669
 Up Above My Head, 978
 Up in Heah, 343, 1065
 Up the Country Blues, 1046
 Upchurch, Phil, 104, 1027
 Uppity Blues Women, 855
 Upsetters, 356
 with Hughes, Joe “Guitar,” 474
Upside Your Head! (book), 445
Urban Blues (book), 132, 477
 Flerlage, Raeburn, photographs of, 332
 Urban blues, 861, 884, 886
 Alert, 17
 Bluebird, 104
 Chicago style, Bland, Bobby “Blue” and, 98 country blues bridging, Blackwell, Scrapper and, 97 development, independent labels as outlet for, 488 development of, St. Louis, 114
 drums and, 322–323
 electrified bands, influences of early blues ensembles, 45
 harmonica in, 404
 recordings of, pre-World War II classic blues, 84
 Urban renewal, 1003
 Urbaniak, Michael, with Harris, Don “Sugarcane,” 411 Urgent, 1043
 USA label, 205, 961, 1028
 USA Union, 411
 USA, 1027–1028
 Usher, Fredrick A., with Jones, Eddie “One-String,” 545
 Utica Normal and Industrial Institute, 89
 Utrecht Festival, Holland, 662
- V
- Vagrancy, 429, 800
 Vai, Steve, 126, 420
 Valens, Ritchie, 744
 Valentine, Billy, with Baker, Mickey, 42
 Valentine, Cal, 1029
 Valery, Joe, 1029
 Van Olderen, Martin, 251, 735
 Van Rijn, Guido, 13, 481
 Fuller, Blind Boy and, 349
 Van Ronk, Dave, 257, 1029
 Van Sickle, Lucy, 779
 Van Singel, Amy, 1029
 Van Wijngaarden, Kees, 85
 Vanderpool, Sylvia, with Baker, Mickey, 42
 Vanessa label, 666
 Vanguard label, 733
 Vanguard, 229, 1030
 Charters, Samuel Barclay and, 194
 Fahey, John, 257
 Guy, George “Buddy,” and Wells, Junior, 122
 Vanity Fair, The, Kansas City, 559
 Vanleer, Jimmy, 1030
 Vann Walls, Harry Eugene “Piano Man,” 1030
 Vann, Eddie, 877
 Vann, George, 36
 Vaudeville, 26
 black performers, Johnson, Lonnie as, 532
 Brunswick releases, 84
 Cow Cow Blues and, 270
 Dorsey, Mattie, 279
 “Frankie and Johnny,” 338
 Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint” and, 507
 women vocalists with Johnson, James Price, 530 Vaughan, Jimmie, 311
 with Bramhall, Doyle, 145
 1980s, 388
 Vaughan, Jimmy, 1031
 Vaughan, John, 388
 Vaughan, Sarah
 big band singers, swing era, 513
 JATP performances, 515
 Vaughan, Stevie Ray, 36, 125, 127, 390, 644, 876, 1031–1033
 with Barton, Lou Ann, 60
 with Bramhall, Doyle, 145
 Chicago and, 200
 with Clapton, Eric, 208, 209
 with Clark, W.C., 211
 Japanese audience, attracting new, 506
 with King, Albert, 597
 use of scales, 862–864
 with Vaughan, Jimmie, 311
 Vaughn, Jimmy, 1034
 Vaughn, Maurice John, 103, 396, 1034
 Vault, 1034
 V-Disc program (U.S.), 119
 Vee-Jay label, 144, 361, 829, 890
 Vee-Jay/Abner/Falcon, 1, 144, 203, 1034
 Bates, Lefty, 66
 Black Bob, 85
 Burrage, Harold, 169
 Butler, Jerry, 171
 Carter, Vivian and, 186
 Cobbs, Willie, 216
 Gary, Indiana, 361–362
 Gordon, Rosco(e), 371
 Hooker, John Lee, 459, 460
 Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” 462
 Howard, Camille, 470
 James, Elmore, reissues, 500
 Jones, Floyd, 545
 Jones, Willie, 548
 Kittrell, Christine, 578
 Kolax, King, 579
 Lenoir, J.B., 594
 Reed, Jimmy, 144, 362
Velvet Vampire (film), 878
 Venables, Ralph G.V., 439
 Venson, Tenner “Playboy” “Coot,” 1035
 Verbal/nonverbal substitutions in blues lyrics, 106
 Verdict, The, 8
 Vernacular music, American
 Jefferson, Blind Lemon and, 518
 Vernon, Michael (Mike) and Richard, 102
 Verve
 Brown, Charles, 155, 156
 Brown, Pete, 160
 Earl, Ronnie, 294
 Green, Al, 375, 376
 Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” 462
 Verve, 1035
 Verve/Gitanes, Garner, Larry, 360
 Very Best of Buddy Guy, The, 395
 Very Best of Buddy Guy, The, 395
 Very Rare, 593
 Very Rare, 593
 Very Thought of You, The, 341
 Very Thought You, The, 787
 Vest, Alabama, original design of, 560
 Vestapol Video/DVD 13016, 325
 Vestapol Videos, 327, 382

- Viagra, 664
Vibe magazine, 754
 Vicious, Vicious Vodka, 691
 Vicksburg Blues, 116, 440, 701–702, 1035–1036
Vicksburg, 417
 Victor Military Band, 654
 Victor Records, 643
 Victor, 1036
Victoria and Her Blues, 922
 Videos
 archive, Indiana University, 603
 collection, Notodden, Norway, 602
 Vienna, Austria, record labels, 276
 Vietnam War, 120
 Vihuela de mano, 433
 Vincent, Johnnie, 881
 Vincent, Johnny, 5, 214, 1066
 Vinson, Eddie “Cleanhead,” 1036 with Creach, Papa John, 239
 with James, Etta, 501, 502
 with Larkin, Milton “Tippy,” 583
 Vinson, Mose, 1037
 Vinson, Mose, with Laury, Booker T., 584
 Vinson, Walter,” 231, 1037
 Depression era, 349
 pre–World War II era, 131
 See also Chatmon, Armenter “Bo
 Violence as Lyric Concept, 1037–1038
 Violence, 1037
 Violin. See fiddle
 Violinaires, 92
 Vip Vop Band, 403
 Vipers, 101
 Virgin/Pointblank, Hammond, John Paul, 399–400
 Virginia Minstrels, 113
Virginia Piedmont Blues (book), 445
 Virginia Serenaders, 113
 Vita, 1038
 Vitacoustic, 1038
 Viva Las Vegas, 779
 Vocalion records, 262, 677
 Vocalion, 1038–1039
 advertisements for “race records,” 87, 753
 Akers, Garfield, 14
 Alexander, Algernon “Texas,” 17
 Alix, May, 18
 Black Bob, 85
 Blackwell, Scrapper, 97
 Brunswick and, 163
 “Catfish Blues,” 188–189
 Count Basie, 318, 398
 Cox, Ida, 235–236
 Delaney, Mattie, 262
 “How Long How Long” (“Sitting on Top of the World”), 470
 “I Believe I’ll Make a Change” (“Dust My Broom”), 487
 Jackson, Bo Weavil, 494
 Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 507–508
 Johnson, Merline, 39
 Johnson, Robert, 536–538
 Jones, Curtis, 544
 “Key to the Highway,” 563–564
 Lewis, Furry, 598–599
 Thomas, Henry, 984
 White, Bukka, 1070–1071
 Vocalists, blues-shouters, 237, 273
 Vocals Admirals, The, 9
 African musical traditions of slaves, 53
 Aladdin/Score and, 16
 biographies of vocalists, 440 black sacred music and, 88–95
 Carr, Leroy, influences on, 183–184 distinctive, of Jefferson, Blind Lemon, 518–520
 doo-wop, 9
 in early recorded blues ensembles, 45 gospel, 307–308
 Holiday, Billie and, 448–450
 of Hooker, John Lee, 459–461
 of Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” 462–463 of Howlin Wolf, 471–473
 Vodun, 455
 Vogue, 1039
 Vogue, Hemphill, Jessie Mae, 418
 “Voice disguisers,” ritualistic use of, in West Africa, 46
Voice of the Blues (O’Neal), 737, 1029
Voice of the Blues: Classic Interviews from Living Blues Magazine (book), 445 Voice records, 669
 Voice Throwin’ Blues, 416
Voices of Africa, 12
 Voices of Victory, 93
 Voodoo Child, 421
 Voodoo Party, 988
 Voodoo, 454, 455
 in history of the blues, 111
 Vos, Marcel, 85
 Voting Rights Act of 1965, 364, 795
 Voting rights, early blues and, 115
 Vox wah-wah pedal, 422
 Vreede, Max, 439, 444 race releases on Paramount, 444
- W
- W & W label, 668
 Johnson, Pete, 535
 WAAF, Chicago, 226
 W.C. Handy Awards, 738, 786, 946, 962, 1032
 Ball, Marcia, 145
 Branch, William Earl “Billy” and, 145
 Brown, Andrew, 154
 Clark, W.C., 211
 Clarke, William, 211, 212
 Collins, Albert, 219, 220
 Davies, Debbie, 251
 Dixon, Floyd, 273
 Dr. John, 282
 Ferguson, Robert “H-Bomb,” 314
 Fulson, Lowell, 350
 Gordon, Rosco(e), performing at, 371
 Guitar Shorty, 392
 Guy, George “Buddy,” 395, 396
 Hemphill, Jessie Mae, 418
 Hill, Z.Z., 431, 432
 Keb’ Mo’, 561
 King, Riley B. “B.B.,” 573–576
 Lazy Lester, 586
 Rockets, 350
 Triple Threat Revue, 211
 W.C. Handy Birthplace, 16
 W.W. and the Dixie Dance Kings (film) with Lewis, Furry, 538
 Wagoner, Porter, 232
 Wailers, with Berry, Richard, 77
 Wait for Me, 963
 Waitin’ for My Ya Ya, 165
 Waits, Tom, with Hammond, John Paul, 399
 Wake Up and Live, 273
 Wake Up Call, 661
 Wake up, Baby, 476
 Walcott, Collin, world music explorations of, 517
 Walden, Phil, with Jenkins, Johnny, 522
 Waldoxy label, 649–650
 Walk Around Heaven: New Orleans Gospel Soul, 985
 Walk Around, 149
 Walk on the Wild Side, 861
 Walk Right In, 179
 Walk, The, 425, 668, 964
 Walker, Albertina, 92, 93
 Walker, Blind Willie, 1041, 1044
 Walker, Charles, 1041
 Walker, Dennis, 1041–1042
 Walker, Earnest “Big E.,” Do Drop Inn, opens on Friday and Saturday nights, 554–555
 Walker, Eddie “Bilbo,” 127
 Walker, Freddy, with Bailey, Ray, 41
 Walker, George “Chicken George,” 1042
 Walker, James, 273
 Walker, Jimmy, 1042
 Walker, Jimmy, with Helfer, Erwin, 418
 Walker, Joe Louis, 1042–1043
 Walker, Johnny Mayon “Big Moose,” 1043
 Walker, Junior, 1043
 Walker, Lucille, 872
 Walker, Phillip, 1043–1044
 Walker, Robert “Bilbo,” 1044

INDEX

- Walker, T-Bone, 1044–1046
 with Bass, Ralph, 65
 black sacred music, influence of, 91
 with Blaylock, Travis “Harmonica Slim,” 100
 with Brooks, Lonnie, 150 with Carter, Goree, 186
 with Copeland, Johnny “Clyde,” 226
 with Crayton, Curtis Connie “Pee Wee,” 238 electric guitar pioneers, 387
 with Gaines, Roy, 356
 with Glenn, Lloyd, 367
 guitar, 1940s, 386
 guitar amplification, 47 guitar-playing of, 247 with Hite, Les, 447
 influences on, 97, 532
 influential music of, 71, 182
 with Jefferson, Blind Lemon, 519
 with Larkin, Milton “Tippy,” 583
 in postwar era, influences on, 48
- Walker, Willie, with Davis, Reverend Gary, 256
- Walkin and Talkin, 267
- Walkin’ by Myself, 464
- Walkin’ the Streets, 194
- Walkin*, 515
- Walkin’ and Talkin’, 843
- Walkin’ Blues, 585
- Walkin’ By Myself, 844
- Walkin’ the Back Streets and Crying, 125
- Walkin’ with Mr. Lee, 19
- Walkin’*, cool jazz to hard bop, transition from, 515
- Walking a Blues Road* (book), 195
- Walking and Drifting Blues, 283
- Walking Blues (1), 714
- Walking Blues (2), 714
- Walking Blues (My Black Mama), 118
- Walking Blues, 105, 466, 536–537, 714
- Walking by Myself, 339, 844, 916
- Walking on a Tightrope*, 8, 663
- Walking the Back Streets and Crying, 931
- Walking the Blues, 290
- Walking the Dog, 988
- Walking to New Orleans: The Story of New Orleans Rhythm and Blues* (book), 443
- Walking with Frankie, 881
- Wall Flower, 1098
- Wall Street Crash of 1929, 373
- Wallace Coleman, 218
- Wallace, Sippie, 1046–1047
 writings about, 445
- Wallace, Wesley, 1047
 with Peeples, Robert, 751
- Waller, Fats
 with Hunter, Alberta, 480
 stride piano style, influences of, 511–512
- Wallflower (Dance with Me Henry), The, 77
- Wallflower, The, 121
- Wallichs, Glenn, 180
- Walls, Harry Eugene Vann “Piano Man,” 1047
- Walls, Vann “Piano Man,” 1030, 1047
- Walter, Little, with Aces, The, 6
- Walton, Mercy Dee, 1048
- Walton, Wade, 122, 328, 817, 873, 901, 1048
- Wand label, 865
- Wand, Hart, earliest publication of blues sheet music, 114
- Wander this world*, 583
- Wang Dang Doodle, 106, 199, 275, 477, 888, 961
- War Blues, 192
- War Heroes*, 422
- Ward Singers. See Clara Ward and the Ward Singers
- Ward, Billy, 572, 673, 839
- Ward, Clara
 with Bass, Fontella, 65
 gospel stylist, 92
- Ward, Robert, 96, 389, 640, 1048
- Wardlow, Gayle Dean, 143, 430, 444, 445, 591, 776, 920, 1049
 with Hill, King Solomon, 430
 Johnson, Robert, researching, 500
 with Lee, John A., 591
- Ware, Charles Pickard, 438
- Ware, Leonard, with James, Elmore, 500
- Warm It Up to Me, 676
- Warner Brothers, 17, 27, 132, 163, 502, 805
 Alexander, Arthur, 17
 Brunswick and, 163
 James, Etta, 502
- Warren, Robert Henry “Baby Boy,” 1049
- Wartime Blues, 519
- Warwick, Dionne, 450, 865
 with Hollimon, Clarence, 450
- Washboard Doc, 1049–1050
- Washboard Sam, 39, 47, 104, 650, 793, 1050
 with Broonzy, Big Bill, 152
 Depression era, 349
 Depression-era recordings, 115
 “I Believe I’ll Make a Change” (“Dust My Broom”), 487
- Washboard Slim, 1050
- Washboard Walter, Jefferson, Blind Lemon, tribute to, 520
- Washboard Willie, 59, 221, 265, 422, 555, 1050
- Washboard, 776, 1049
 in jug bands, 560
- Washburn guitar, 383, 385
- Washington (State), 1050–1051
- Washington Blues Festival, 442
- Washington Post, 135
- Washington, Aaron, 256
- Washington, Albert, 208, 1051
- Washington, Dinah, 857, 859, 1052
 with Baker, Mickey, 42
 with Chamblee, Edward Leon “Eddie,” 190
 influential music of, 119
- Washington, George (Bull City Red), 775
- Washington, Isidore “Tuts,” 1052
- Washington, Leroy, 1053
- Washington, Marco, 246
- Washington, Marion “Little Joe,” 1053
- Washington, Toni Lynn, 1053
- Washington, Walter “Wolfman,” 1054
 with Adams, Johnny, 8
- Wasn’t It Sad About Lemon?, 520
- Wasn’t That a Mighty Storm, 999
- Watch Your Step*, 416
- Watch Your Step, 542
- Water Bound Blues, 996
- Water Coast Blues, 298
- Waterford, Charles “Crown Prince,” 1054
- Watergate Blues, 521
- Waterman, Dick
 with Crudup, Arthur William “Big Boy,” 241
 with House, Eddie “Son,” 465, 466
 House, Eddie “Son,” birth of, 465
- Waterman, Richard A. “Dick,” 1054
- Waterman, Richard Alan, 872, 1054
- Watermelon Party, The, 693
- Waters, Ethel, 95, 1055
 autobiography, 439
- Waters, Mississippi Johnny, 1055
- Waters, Muddy, 40, 104, 119, 126, 653, 654, 658, 708, 725, 747, 857, 875, 881, 886, 1055–1058
 with Allison, Luther, 20 with Allison, Ray “Killer,” 22 with Bell, Brenda, 69, 70
 with Below, Fred, 71, 72
 black sacred music, influence of, 88
 with Blue Smitty, 103
 with Brim, John, 147, 148
 with Buford, George “Mojo,” 166
 with Butterfield, Paul, 172
 with Campbell, Eddie C., 178
 “Catfish Blues,” 188
 with Chess, Leonard, 199
 Chess, royalties and, 199
 with Clay, Francis, 212
 with Cotton, James, 228–230
 with Curtis Salgado, 856 with Edmonds, Elga, 296
 film of, 328
 first song learned by, 117
 Gary, Indiana, 361

- “Going Down Slow” (“I’ve Hand My Fun”), 368
 guitar, 1950s, 387
 with Guy, George “Buddy,” 395
 with Hollywood Fats, 451
 “Hoochie Coochie Man,” 453, 454
 with Horton, Big Walter, 404, 464
 humor in music of, 476, 478, 479
 “I Just Want to Make Love to You,” 488
 influences on, 534
 influential music of, 119
 international performances, 434
 with Johnson, Luther “Georgia Boy” “Snake,” 534
 with Jones, “Little” Johnny, 546
 with Leary, S.P., 589
 with Lee, Lovie, 591, 592
 Legendary Blues Band and, 592
 with Lenoir, J.B., 594
 “Mannish Boy,” 489
 1960s folk revival, 424–425
 and Odie Payne, Jr., 546 performance, White House, 126
 photographs of, 332
 with Pinetop Perkins, 725
 polyphonic to homophonic transition in blues melodies, 110 slide guitar technique, 119 with Son Sims, 882 with Spann, Otis, 122, 1081 with Sunnyland Slim, 212
 W.C. Handy Awards, 21
 writings about, 393
 Watkins, Beverly “Guitar,” 1058–1059
 Watkins, John “Mad Dog,” 1059
 Watson, Eddie Lee, 1059
 Watson, Johnny “Daddy Stovepipe,” 1059
 Watson, Johnny “Guitar,” 1059
 with Belvin, Jesse, 72
 with Copeland, Johnny “Clyde,” 226
 with James, Etta, 501, 502
 with Lee, Frankie, 590
 music of, Hispanic influences, 432
 Watson, Johnny “Guitar,” 1059–1060
 Watson, Mike “Junior,” 1060
 Watson, R.L. with Jones, Josiah, 104
 Watts, Isaac “Doctor,” spirituals and, 89
 Watts, Louis Thomas, 1060
 Watts, Noble “Thin Man,” 1060
 Waves of Rhythm, 508
 WAVN-AM, Memphis, 796
 Wawzyn, Dietrich, 327
 Way Back Home, 80
Way Down South, 712
Way It Is, The, 990
 Way You Been Treating Me, The, 395
 Waylo label, 751
 Wayward Girl Blues, 566
 WBBM, Chicago
 Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 507, 508
 WCAP, Washington D.C.
 Cooper, Jack L., 225, 226
 WDIA (radio station), 656, 683, 796
 WDIA, Memphis
 King, Riley B. “B.B.” on, 576
 We Ain’t Got Nothin’ (But the Blues), 493
 We Are Almost Down to the Shore, 936
 We Did It, 540, 704
 We Gonna Move (to the Outskirts of Town), 489
 We Got to Get That Fixed, 919
 We’re a Winner, 911
 We’re Getting Careless with Our Love, 959
 We’re Gonna Make It, 619
 We’re Gonna Rock This Joint, 494
 Weak Minded Blues, 550
Weasels Ripped My Flesh, 319, 411
 Weathersby, Carl, 1060–1061
 Weaver Sylvester, 1061–1062
 Weaver, Curley, 672, 676, 775
 Weaver, Joe, 103
 with Bassett, Johnnie, 65, 66
 Weaver, Savannah “Dip,” 42, 613, 775, 1061
 Weaver, Sylvester, 385, 1061, 1062
 Web, the, 126
 Webb, “Boogie” Bill, 1062
 Webb, Chick, 868 big band, boogie-woogie adapted for, 513
 with Jordan, Louis, 548
 Webb, Jordan, 776
 Webb, Simeon, 187
 Webb, Willie “Jitterbug,” 1062
 Websites, 755
 Webster, Ben
 big band era, 512
 with Holiday, Billie, 448
 Webster, Katie, 1062
 Webster, Katie, with Jackson, Vasti, 498
 WEDC, Chicago, 226
 Wedding concert, 978
 Wee Wee Baby, 395
 Wee Wee Hours, 76
Week in the Real World, A, 452
 Weekly Blues, 1104
 Weepin’ Willie, 1063
 Wein, George, 255
 Weinstock, Bob, 313
 Weiss, Hy, 735
 Weiss, Max, 313
 Weiss, Sol, 313
 Weize, Richard, 68
 Welch, “Monster” Mike, 1063
 Welch, Mike, 127
Welcome Home, 673
 Welcome to the Club, 1082
 Welding, Pete, 1063
 Welding, Pete, 494, 532, 538, 755
 House, Eddie “Son,” comment about Johnson, Robert, 500 with Jackson, Bill, 494
 with Johnson, Lonnie, 532
 Weldon, Casey Bill, 374, 489, 1064
 Weldon, William “Casey Bill” “I’m Gonna Move to the Outskirts of Town,” 489 Welfare Blues, 391, 919
 Welk, Lawrence, 4
 Well All Right, 1015
Well Spent Life, A (film), 327
 We’ll Understand It Better By By, 90
 Well Well Baby, 291
 Wellington, Valerie, 1064
 Wells, Ida B., 86, 200
 Wells, Junior, 122, 1064
 AFBF European tours, 23
 with Allen, Pete, 19
 with Burton, Aron, 170
 in Chicago, 203
 Chicago blues, 374
 with Clearwater, Eddy, 214
 guitar, 1960s, 387, 388
 with Guy, George “Buddy,” 104, 395, 396
 harmonica, 404–406
 influential music of, 135
 with James, Elmore, 500
 Japanese blues showcases, 506
 with Johnson, Luther “Georgia Boy” “Snake,” 534
 with Koester, Robert, 440–442
 with Odie Payne, Jr., 546
 photographs of, 312
 Sixties (1960s), 122
 with Waters, Muddy, 229
 Wells, Michael “Lightnin’,” 1066
 Wells, Viola Gertrude. See Miss Rhapsody
 Wells, Viola, 1066
 Wenders, Wim, 569, 870
 Wenner, Mark, 652, 725
 We’re a Winner, 351
 Wesley, John hymn of, importance to African Americans, 112 West Africa, 10 instruments in jug bands, 46 languages, 10, 11
 West Africans
 in history of the blues, 107
 life force, conception of, 456 voice-modifying mirlitons in, 560
 West Coast artists, Blind Pig and, 101
 West Coast Blues, 775
 “West Coast Harmonica Sound,” 408

INDEX

- West Coast style, 188, 861
- West Coast
 artists, Hightone recordings of, 427 artists, Imperial recordings of, 490
 blacks migrating to, postwar era, 119
 Clarke, William, 211
 Collins, Albert and, 219, 220
 Guthrie, Woodrow Wilson “Woody”
 and, 394
 Hollywood Fats and, 451
 record industry, 126
 Walter, T-Bone, influences on blues
 in postwar era, 48
- West End (club), 784
- West End Blues, 420, 533
- West End, Cincinnati, 208
- West Indies, in history of the blues, 107
- West Lake Street, Chicago, 301
- West Memphis, Arkansas
 with Cotton, James, 228
 Howlin’ Wolf, 471, 472
- West Road Blues Band, 506
- West Side Soul*, 123, 647, 651, 737, 890, 944
- West Side Soul, 989
- West Side, Chicago, 122
 blues scene, King, Freddie and, 618
 Burrage, Harold and, 169
 with Campbell, Eddie C., 178
 Guitar Jr. and, 391, 392
- West, Charlie, 1066
- West, Robert L., 640
- Western Historical Collection and State Historical Society Manuscripts, Jefferson Library, University of Missouri, St. Louis/, 610
- Weston, John, 1066
- Westside, 1066
- Wet Match, 1097
- Wexler, Jerry, with James, Etta, 501, 502
- WGES, Chicago, 226
- WGRY, Gary, Indiana, 361
- Wharton, Gib, 451
- What a Difference a Day Makes, 1052
- What a Price, 278
- What Am I Living For, 1089
- What are They Doing in Heaven, 90
- What Are You Gonna Do When There Ain’t No Jazz?*, 248
- What Can I Do?, 992
- What Else Is There to Do, 253
- What Happened to My Blues*, 63
- What Have I Done Wrong?, 21
- What I’d Say, 889
- What Is It That Tastes Like Gravy?, 337
- What Kind O’ Man Is You, 41
- What Kind of Man Is This, 961
- What’s Happenin’ in Here, 727
- What’s the Matter with the Mill, 687
- What’d I Say, 121, 193, 365, 502, 907
- What’s Going On, 353
- Wheatstraw, Peetie (William Bunch), 105, 886
- Wheatstraw, Peetie
 Depression years, 117
 humor in music of, 476, 478, 479
 with Johnson, Robert, 500 with Jordan, Charley, 548
 phrase-formulas in lyrics, 105
 pre-World War II era, 117
- Wheatstraw, Peetie, 1067–1068
- Wheel of Fortune, 263
- Wheeler, Golden “Big,” 1068–1069
- Wheeler, James, 1069
- Wheeler, Thomas James “T. J.,” 1069
- Wheels of Fire, 239
- Wheels of Fire*, 239, 470, 924, 935
- Whelan, Pete, 442, 734
- When a Guitar Plays the Blues*, 165
- When a Man Loves a Woman, 909
- When a Woman Gets the Blues*, 101
- When a Woman Loves a Man, 765
- When Do I Get to Be Called a
 Man?, 153
- When I Survey the Wondrous Cross, 89
- When It’s Sleepytime Down
 South, 308
- When Love Comes to Town, 575, 841
- When Love Is New, 787
- When My Baby Left Me, 598
- When My Dreamboat Comes
 Home, 278
- When My Man Comes Home, 528
- When That Great Ship Went Down, 998
- When the Levee Breaks, 596,
 686–687, 841
- When the Saints Go Marchin’ In, 970
- When the Saints Go Marching In, 502
- When You Got a Good Friend, 537, 643
- When You Wake Up, 664
- Where Do I Go from Here?, 237
- Where Have You Been (All My Life), 17
- Where Shall I Go, 81
- Where the Action Is*, 335
- Where There’s Smoke There’s Fire*, 166
- Where Were You When the Archeta River Went Down?, 1000
- Where’s the Money*, 906
- Where’s Your Brother*, 1094
- WHFC, Chicago, 226
- Which Way Is Texas?*, 351
- Whipped Cream, 1006
- Whiskey Head Woman, 666
- Whispers (Gettin’ Louder), 6
- Whistler & His Jug Band, 116, 317
 film of, 325
- Whistler’s Jug Band, 1069
- Whistling Blues, 599
- Whitaker, “King” Herbert, 1069
- White & Clark Black & Tan Minstrels
 with Cox, Ida, 235, 236
- White Americans, “John Henry,” spreading among, 524
- White blues (blues rock), 857
- White blues artists
 1990s, 126
 Atlantic/Atco/Spark and, 35
 country music, 230–232
 Dane, Barbara, 248, 440, 442
 Korner, Alexis, 476
 southern fiddlers, 318
- White blues. See blues-rock; white blues artists
- White fans. black dance performances
 for, 110
 black sacred music appealing to, 88–91
 blues revival, 1990s, 126
 “Chitlin circuit” and, 205, 206
 Hooker, John Lee and, 459, 460
 Hopkins, Sam “Lightnin’,” 462
 Jones, Curtis and, 544
 juke joints, undetected by, 552
 Lacey, William James “Bill,” performances of, 581 new audience, 1960s, 49
 rediscovering blues, 122
See also blues societies
- White House Blues, 129
- White musicians, 676, 684
 bebop pioneers, 513 with Davis, Miles, cool jazz style
 of, 515
 with Johnson, Robert, 500
 jug bands and, 441
 recordings, collections of, 333
- White performers, “John Henry,” favorite among, 534
- White Room, 239
- White singers, 885, 888, 889
- White, Artie “Blues Boy,” 1069
- White, Booker Washington
 “Bukka,” 872
- White, Bukka, 1041, 1070–1071
 AFBF European tours, 23
 biography of, 443
 Depression-era recordings
 Depression years, 117
 with Dylan, Bob, 442
 electric guitar, development of, 386
 film of, 328
 with Lewis, Furry, 598
 recordings, 123
- White, Cleve “Schoolboy Cleve,” 1071
- White, Clif, 389
- White, Edward “Gates,” 859
- White, George L., 89
- White, Georgia, 117, 1071
 Georgia roots, 365
- White, Granville, 343

- White, Josh, White, Joshua, 91, 337, 775, 885, 1072
 Depression years, 117
 “I Believe I’ll Make a Change” (“Dust My Broom”), 487
 international performances, 434
 “Jesus Is a Dying Bed Maker” (“In My Time of Dying”), 522
 White, Joshua Daniel “Josh,” 1072
 White, Lavelle
 with Green, Clarence, 377
 with Hollimon, Clarence, 450
 White, Lynn, 1072
 White, Miss Lavelle, 1073
 White, Newman Ivey, 474
 White, Uncle Jessie, 265
 White, Wilbur “Hi-Fi,” 44
 Whitehill, Dave, Johnson, Robert, transcriptions, 538 Whiteman, Paul
 with Bailey, Mildred, 40
 white band, dance bands competing with, 513
 Whitfield, Norman, 353
 Whitman Sisters, The, 60, 279
 Whitter, Henry, 230, 405
 Who Could Be Loving You Tonight, 299
 Who Do You Love, 902
 Who Do You Love?, 267, 1081
 Who Dun it, 426
 Who May Your Regular Be, 299
 Who Threw the Whiskey in the Well, 413
 Who Will Be Next?, 939, 1081
Who’s Been Talkin’, 237, 238
 Who’s Been Talking, 765
 Who’s Making Love, 959
 Who’s the Fool, 710
 Whole Lot of Shaking Goin’ On, 80
 Whole Lotta Love, 590
 Whole Lotta Loving, 277
 Whole Lotta Shakin’ Goin’ On, 841
 Whole Lotta Woman, A, 858
 Whoopin’ and Hollerin’, 287
 Who’s Been Talking, 472
Whup It! Whup It!, 664
 Why Be So Blue, 81
 Why Did I Have to Go, 306
 Why Do Fools Fall in Love, 840
 Why Don’t You Do Right?, 378
 Why Don’t You Eat Where You Slept Last Night?, 136
 Why I Sing the Blues, 210
 “Why Monkeys Live in Trees” (African folk tale), 880
 Wichita Falls Blues, 1045
 Wiggins, Phil, 118, 776, 869, 1073
 with Cephas, John, 190
 WIHN, Gallatin, Tennessee
 Allen, Bill “Hoss,” 18
 Wilborn, Nelson (“Red Nelson,” “Dirty Red”), 1073
 Wild Kingdom
 with Levy, Ron, 597
 Wild Magnolias, 255, 653
 Wild Ox Moan, 398
 Wild Tchoupitoulas, 653
 Wild Water Blues, 1000
 Wild Woman, 192
 Wild Women Don’t Have the Blues, 236
 Wiley, Geechie, 108, 115, 116, 884, 1073 pre-blues style, modal scales in, 108
 pre-World War II era, 131
 Wilkins Street Stomp, 918
 Wilkins, Joe Willie, 1074
 with Boy Blue, 141
 with Horton, Big Walter, 464
 with James, Elmore, 500
 Wilkins, Lane, 1074
 Wilkins, Reverend Robert Timothy “Tim,” 1075
 Wilkins, Robert, 91, 122
 Will It Ever Change?, 21
 Will My Man Be Home Tonight, 205
Will Sayden: African-American Banjo Songs from West Tennessee, 55
 Willette, Baby Face, 377
 Williams, “Big” Joe Lee, 1076–1077
 Williams, Andre “Mr. Rhythm,” 1075
 Williams, Andy “Too-Hard,” 1075
 Williams, Arbess, 1076
 Williams, Arthur Lee “Oscar Mississippi,” 1076
 Williams, Big Joe, 39, 47, 104, 117, 430, 440, 442, 643, 701, 873
 as blues shouter, 512
 Depression-era recordings, 117
 diddley bow, 268
 with Estes, John Adam “Sleepy John,” 304 with Harney, Richard “Hackaw,” 409
 with Helfer, Erwin, 418
 influential music of, 119
 Japanese blues festivals, 506
 Jesus Is a Dying Bed Maker (“In My Time of Dying”), 522
 photographs of, 332
 Williams, Bill, 1078
 Williams, Buster
 with Chess, Leonard, 199
 Williams, Charles Melvin “Cootie,” 1078
 Williams, Clarence, 116, 884, 1078
 with Dorsey, Thomas A., 279 house-rent parties, expenses for, 467
 Williams, Claude “Fiddler,” 318
 Williams, Cootie
 bebop pioneer, 513
 with Jackson, Willis “Gator” “Gator Tail,” 499
 Williams, Dennis “Nate,” Jr., with Brown, Oscar III “Bobo,” 160
 Williams, Dinah, with Thornton, Willa Mae “Big Mama,” 15
 Williams, Douglas, 879
 Williams, Ed “Lil’ Ed,” 1078–1079
 Williams, Eddie, 283
 Williams, Emery, 1079
 Williams, Freddie, 485
 Williams, George “Bullet,” 1079
 Williams, Hank
 honky tonk, emergence of, 232
 influences on, 15
 Williams, Henry “Rubberlegs,” 1079
 Williams, Henry, with Howe, Joshua Barnes “Peg Leg,” 471
 Williams, J. Mayo, 88, 163, 295, 784, 1079
 with Broonzy, Big Bill, 150
 Decca, 260
 with Dorsey, Thomas A., 279, 280 with Lee, Bonnie, 590
 Williams, Jabo, 1080
 Williams, Jimmy Lee, 1080
 Williams, Jody
 Depression years, 117
 guitar, 1950s, 387
 with Howlin’ Wolf, 16
 Williams, Joe, 793, 859, 886, 1081
 Williams, John “Red”, with Johnson, Louise, 533, 534
 Williams, John. See Memphis Piano Red (John Williams)
 Williams, Johnny (1), 1081
 Williams, Johnny (2), 1081
 Williams, Joseph “Jo Jo,” 1081
 Williams, Joseph Leon “Jody,” 1081–1082
 Williams, Junie Bug, with Jordan, Louis, 548–550
 Williams, L. C., 1082
 Williams, Larry, 1082
 Williams, Lee “Shot,” 1082–1083
 Williams, Lee, 93
 Williams, Leroy, with House, Eddie “Son,” 465
 Williams, Lester, 646, 974, 1083
 Williams, Little Ed, 485
 Williams, Louis, 370, 1080
 Williams, Lucinda, 233
 Williams, Marion, 92
 Williams, Mary Lou, 117
 Georgia roots, 365
 jazz scholarship, 517
 Williams, Mayo, 116, 118, 769
 Williams, Nathan, 4, 1083
 Williams, Paul “Hucklebuck,” 1083 with Acey, Johnny, 6
 with Baker, Mickey, 42
 Williams, Paul, 859
 Williams, Rabbits Foot. See Coleman, Jaybird

INDEX

- Williams, Robert Pete, 388, 393, 631, 869, 1084–1085
- Williams, Roosevelt Thomas, 1085
- Williams, Walter “Dootsie,” 278
- Williams, Walter, 1086
- Williams, Willie “Rough Dried,” 1086
- Williams, Willie, 866, 1086, 1087
- Williamson, James, 1086
- Williamson, John Lee. See Williamson, Sonny Boy I
- Williamson, Sonny Boy I (John Lee Williamson), 1086
- AFBF European tours, 23
- with Altheimer, Joshua “Josh,” 23
- with Broonzy, Big Bill, 150
- with Burns, Eddie, 168
- in Chicago, 202
- Chicago blues, 374
- Chicago, postwar era, 48, 49
- death of, 123
- Depression-era recordings, 115
- Depression years, 117
- with Granderson, John Lee, 372
- with Guy, George “Buddy,” 395
- harmonica, 404–406
- humor in music of, 476
- influential music of, 100
- with Williams, Big Joe, 39
- Williamson, Sonny Boy II (Alec Miller), 120, 122, 123, 581, 1087
- bass line in gospel blues and, 64
- with Below, Fred, 71, 72
- with Brooks, “Big” Leon, 149
- Burns, Eddie and, 168
- with Butler, George “Wild Child,” 170
- with Carr, Sam, 184
- with Carson, Nelson, 184
- with Carter, Bo, 185
- Chicago blues, 374
- Chicago postwar era, 48, 49
- with Cotton, James, 228–230
- with Curtis, James “Peck” and, 243
- early blues history, 444
- “Fattenin’ Frogs for Snakes,” 313
- harmonica, 404–406
- with Homesick James, 453
- with Howlin’ Wolf, 471, 472
- with James, Elmore, 500
- with Johnson, Big Jack, 526
- with Johnson, Lonnie, 526
- with King, Riley B. “B.B.,” 574
- with Leary, S.P., 589
- with Lenoir, J.B., 594
- Willie and the Hand Jive, 727, 839
- Willie Love and His Three Aces
- with James, Elmore, 500
- Willie, Joe. See James, Elmore
- Willis, Aaron, 1089
- Willis, Eddie, 389
- Willis, Harold “Chuck,” 1089
- Willis, Larry, 652
- Willis, Ralph, 349, 879, 1089, 1090
- Willis, Robert Lee “Chick,” 1090
- Willow Weep for Me, 339
- Wills, Bob, 118
- polyphonic to homophonic transition
- in country music, 110
- Willson, Michelle, 1090
- Wilmer, Val, 1091
- Wilson Pickett and the Falcons, 96
- Wilson, Al, 179, 1091
- with Hooker, John Lee, 459, 460
- with House, Eddie “Son,” 465
- Wilson, Carl, with Jackson, Willis
- “Gator” “Gator Tail,” 499
- Wilson, Cassandra, 498, 670
- Wilson, Charles, 488, 619, 1082, 1091
- Wilson, Edith, 115, 221, 445, 813, 859, 1019, 1091, 1092
- writings about, 393
- Wilson, Elder Roma, 91, 407, 778
- Wilson, Harding “Hop,” 1091–1092
- Wilson, Hop, 870
- Wilson, Jackie
- with Baker, Laverne, 42
- with Hendrix, Jimi, 421
- video of, 327
- Wilson, Jimmy, 491, 871, 1092
- Wilson, Kim, 1092
- Wilson, Lena, 1092–1093
- Wilson, Nancy
- with Hollimon, Clarence, 450
- Wilson, Orlandus, 369
- Wilson, Quinn, 1093
- Wilson, Smokey, 1093
- Wilson, Teddy
- with Humes, Helen, 475
- stride piano style, influenced
- by, 511
- Wilson, U.P., 1093
- with Jones, Tutu, 547
- Wilson, Willie, with House, Eddie
- “Son,” 465
- Wilson, Woodrow, highway
- legislation, 428
- Wind Cries Mary, The, 420
- Window Pane Blues, 317
- Wine, Women & Whiskey, 612
- Wine-Headed Woman, 1086
- Wings of a Dove, 1051
- Winin’ Boy Blues, 436
- Winin’ Boy, 234
- Winley, Harold, 215
- Winner Records, 717
- Winslow, Vernon, 1094
- Winter, Jim, with Jordan, Louis, 549
- Winter, Johnny, 643, 1049, 1094
- 1960s, 189
- with Cotton, James, 228
- Winterland Club, 647
- Winterland concerts
- with King, Albert, 568
- Wintertime Blues, 646, 1083
- Winwood, Steve
- with Clapton, Eric, 209
- Wisconsin Chair Company, 810, 814
- Wisner, Steve, 299
- Withers, Ernest C., 1094
- Witherspoon, Jimmy, 119, 551, 593, 854, 1054, 1094
- with Katz, Bruce, 560
- Witherspoon, Matilda. See Mississippi Matilda
- Without a Woman, 25
- Wives Night Out*, 98
- WJJD, Chicago, 226
- Jaxon, Frankie “Half Pint,” 507
- WJLB, Detroit, 345
- WJOB, Gary, Indiana, 361
- WLAC (radio station), 718, 719
- WLAC, Nashville
- Allen, Bill “Hoss,” 18
- WMPR-FM, Jackson, Mississippi, 796
- Wobbling Baby, 194
- Woe Is Me, 355
- Woke Up This Mornin’* (book), 444
- Woke Up with the Blues*, 592
- Wolf label, 255, 562, 585, 784
- Wolf Tracks*, 1054
- Wolf/Best of Blues, 1095
- Davis, “Maxwell Street”
- Jimmy, 255
- Wolfe, Charles, 445
- Wolfman Jack, 1095–1096
- Womack, Bobby, 353
- Woman Across the River*, 573
- Woman with Guitar: Memphis Minnie’s Blues* (book), 361
- Women and the Blues, 1096–1097
- Women artists, 884
- guitarists, 1990s, 388
- guitar styles since 1990, 388
- Holiday, Billie, 448–450
- hoodoo and, 457
- James, Etta, 501–502
- Joplin, Janis, 548
- Kimbrough, Lottie, 566
- Memphis Minnie, 1940s guitar, 386
- writers claiming blues as viable
- means of expression, 617
- Women As Lyric Subjects, 1097
- Women Be Wise, Don’t Advertise Your Man, 1047
- Women musicians
- Blind Pig recordings by, 101
- country blues, 101
- Women vocalists
- changes, 1970–1990, 124
- country music, 232
- Cox, Ida, 235–237
- early blues recordings by, 45
- gospel quartets, style of, 90
- postwar era, 119
- pre-World War II classic
- blues, 117

Women, as artists, 654, 668, 669, 670, 672, 692, 696–697, 700, 704, 705, 719, 721–722, 733, 745, 751
 Dinah Washington, 857
 Ecretia Jacobs “E. C.” Scott, 866
 Esther Mae “Mother” Scott, 866
 Janis Joplin, 857
 Women, as songwriters, 668, 768
 Won’t Don’t Blues, 533
 Wonder, Stevie, funk and, 353
 Wonderful, 225
 Wood, Randy, 719
 Woodchuck, The, 303
 Woodfork, “Poor” Bob, 1097
 Woods, Hosea, kazoo playing of, 560
 Woods, Johnny, 104, 699, 1097
 Woods, Kipori, 582
 Woods, Mitch, 1097–1098
 Woods, Oscar “Buddy,” 1098 with Black Ace, 84
Woodstock Album, The, 1058
 Woodstock Festival, with Hendrix, Jimi, 422
 Woodstock, Atlantic/Atco/Spark and, 35
Woodstock, 422
 Woolingham, Louise, 267
 Woolworth stores, records sold in, 104
 Woops Now, 332
 Work chants, 883, 886, 891
 Work House Blues, 714, 884
 Work songs, 246
 blues antecedents, 1830–1865, 112
 as melodic source of blues, 339
 Work with Me Annie, 44, 121, 839, 1098
 Work, John W., 439
 Working class, blues as expression of, 456, 4457
 Working in a Coal Mine, 279
 Works Progress Administration (WPA)
 Hurt, John Smith “Mississippi John”
 employed by, 482
 whites, works given to, 374
World Don’t Owe Me Nothing, The (book), 299
 World music groups, 517
 World Music Institute concert with Dale, Larry, 245 World music, jazz musicians exploring, 517
 World of Trouble, 687
 World Pacific, Alexander, Dave, 18
 World War II era, 548, 870, 884
 Japanese Americans, 856
 World War II, James, Elmore and, 500
 World War II, 1099
 World Wide Web. See web, the World’s Greatest Blues Singer, The, website, 461
 Worn Down Daddy, 236
 Worried Life Blues, 298, 305

Worried Life Blues, 79
 Worried Man Blues, 1105
 Worried, 751
Worried, 751
 Worsome [sic] Baby, 230
 Wortham Black Cemetery, 869
 Wortham, Wilbur Clarence
 “Red,” 166
 WPA (Works Progress Administration)
 Hurt, John Smith “Mississippi John”
 employed by, 482
 shovel gang, Lewis, Meade “Lux” working on, 600 slave narratives collected by, 2
 slave narratives collected by, 322
 Whites, works given to, 374
 WREC (radio station), 683
 Wrencher, “Big” John Thomas, 1099–1100
 Wrencher, Big John, 265, 372
 Wright, Billy, 1100
 Wright, Billy, 496, 859, 1100
 Wright, Early, 1100
 Wright, Laurie, 446
 Wright, Marva, 1100
 Wright, O.V., 92
 with Davis, James “Thunderbird,” 253
 with Hollimon, Clarence, 450
 soul performances in Japan, 506
 Wright, Overton Ellis “O. V.,” 1101
 Wright, Peter, 874
 Wright, Richard, blues as too passive an expression, 440, 615, 616
 Wrinkles, 588
Write Me a Few of Your Lines: A Blues Reader (book), 132
 Write Me a Few of Your Lines: A Blues Reader (book), 445 writers, 735–736, 744, 776
 See also publications
 Write Me a Letter Blues, 576
 Wrong Blues, 544
 WSB, Atlanta, 364
 WSBC, Chicago, 225, 226
 WSM, Nashville, 40
 WVON (Voice of the Negro), Chicago, 199
 WWAE, Chicago, 225
 WWCA, Gary, Indiana, 361
 WXOK, Baton Rouge, 395, 396
 WXRT, Chicago, 226
 Wyman, Bill, 399, 444, 846, 1020, 1022
 with Hammond, John Paul, 399
 Wynette, Tammy, 232

X

X-bracing systems, guitar, 383
 X-temporaneous Boogie, 471

Y

Ya Ya, 279, 330, 834
 Yakety Yak, 570, 593, 839
 Yale honorary doctorate King, Riley B.
 “B.B.,” 573
 Yancey Special, 601, 1103
 Yancey, James Edward “Jimmy,”
 influential music of, 1103
 Yancey, James Edward(S)
 “Jimmy,” 1103
 Yancey, Jimmy, 770, 1103
 boogie-woogie at house-rent
 parties, 467
 boogie-woogie pianists, return
 of, 36, 513
 with Lewis, Meade “Lux,” 599, 600
 Yancey, Mama Estelle, 1103–1104
 Yancey, Mama with Helfer,
 Erwin, 418
Yardbirds Ultimate!, The, 1104
 Yardbirds, 1104
 1960s, 123
 with Clapton, Eric, 209
 influences on, 123
 Yazoo Delta, 374, 375
 Yazoo Fraud, 364
 Yazoo label, 874
 Yazoo, 125, 1104
 Year of the Blues (YOTB), 127
 In Yo Face, 856
 “Year of the Blues,” 2003, 411, 656
 Yellow Dog Blues!, 87
 Yellow Dog Blues, 401
 Yola My Blues Away, 536
 Yonder Come the Blues (book), 445
 Yoruba, West Africa, life force, conception of, 456
 You Ain’t Nothin’ but Fine, 880
 You Always Hurt the One You Love, 422
 You Are My Sunshine, 77
 You Better Be Sure, 19
You Better Keep Still, 189
 You Better Move On, 17, 312, 909
 You Can Have My Husband (But Please Don’t Mess with My
 Man), 985
You Can Make It If You Try
 (book), 507
 You Can Make It If You Try, 507
 You Can Talk About Me, 328
You Can’t Do That, 715
 You Can’t Get Stuff No More, 676
 You Can’t Keep a Good Man
 Down, 900
 You Can’t Sit Down, 1027
 You Can’t Judge a Book by Its
 Cover, 267
 You Cant Lose What You Ain’t, Never Had, 965
 You Can’t Sleep in my Bed, 479

INDEX

- You Don't Know Like I Know What that Woman Has Done for Me, 908
 You Don't Know Like I Know What the Lord Has Done for Me, 908
 You Don't Love Me, 216, 471
 You Done Lost Your Good Thing
 Now, 864
 You Gone Need Somebody [when you]
 Gone to Die, 106
 You Gonna Be Sorry, 623
 You Gonna Need My Baby, 752
 You Got to Fix It, 919
 You Got to Reap What You Sow, 470
 You Gotta Move, 670
 You Know, Yeah! Tiger, 366
 You Left Your Homework
 Undone, 1072
 You Make Me Feel Like a Natural Woman, 890
 You May, 1081
 You Need Love, 339, 590
 You Need to Live a Little, 360
 You Ought to Be with Me, 376
 You Oughta' Be Here With Me, 266
 You Pleases You, 145
 You Put the Hurt on Me, 148
 You Send Me, 121, 225, 389
 You Shall, 54, 479
 You Shook Me, 275, 458, 590,
 841, 1021
 You Sure Look Good to Me, 81
 You Talk Too Much, 546
 You Walked Out, 6
 You Were Wrong, 431
 You'll Lose a Good Thing, 239,
 642, 678
 You're Always Messin' Round with My
 Man, 692
 You're Going to Walk That Lonesome
 Valley, 482
 You're Gonna Make Me Cry, 1101
 You're Gonna Miss Me, 653
 You're Gonna Miss Me, 81
 You're Gonna Need Somebody When
 You Die, 749
 You're Having My Baby, 910
 You're Looking Good, 964
 You're Mine, 740
 You're My Baby, 344
 You're No Good, 306
 You're So Fine, 623
 You're the One, 180, 844
 You're Tuff Enough, 1065
 You've Got Me Wrong, 33
 You've Got My Mind Messed Up, 370
 You've Got Something There, 348
 You've Gotta Reap What You
 Sow, 167
 Youlden, Chris, 859
 You'll Miss Me (When I'm Gone), 65
 Young Blood, 225
 Young Girl Blues, 334
 Young, "Mighty" Joe, 1105
 Young, Ed, 323
 Young, Ernest L. ("Ernie"), 307 with Garrett, Robert "Bud," 361
 Young, John, 872
 Young, Johnny, 1104, 1063
 with Bell, Carey, 70
 with Horton, Big Walter, 464
 Young, Johnny, 1104–1105
 Young, Larry, 377
 Young, Lester, 42, 449, 512, 515
 with Baker, Mickey, 42
 with Count Basie band, 512
 with Holiday, Billie, 449
 JATP performances, 515
 Young, Marl with Glenn, Lloyd, 367
 Young, Mighty Joe, 370, 378, 862
 with Gooden, Tony, 370
 with Green, Jesse, 378
 Young, Robert (Washboard Slim), 776
 Young, Snooky with Crockett, G.L., 240
 Young, Zora, 1105–1106
 Youngblood, Alvin with James,
 Steve, 506
 Youngblood, Lonnie with Hendrix,
 Jimi, 422
 Your Arms Too Short to Box with God, 376
 Your baby Ain't Sweet Like Mine, 495
Your Blues Ain't Like Mine (book), 617
Your Blues Ain't Like Mine, 617
Your Blues, 617
 Your Funeral and My Trial, 476, 888
 Your Heart Is So Cold, 253
 Your Love Is Important to Me, 306
 Your Love's Got Power, 704
 Your Man Is Home Tonight, 165
 Your Time to Cry, 1072
 Yukadan, 506
- ## Z
- Zachary, John, 874
 Zaentz, Saul, 313
 Zanibar, The, Chicago, 453
 Zappa, Frank, 740
 with Harris, Don "Sugarcane," 411
 Zemula (singer), 742
Ziegfeld Follies (film), 246
 Ziegler, John Lee, 1107
 Zinn, Rusty, 857, 1107
 Zinnerman, Ike with Johnson,
 Robert, 500
 Zip Coon, 113
 Zither, 52, 91, 268, 384, 766
Zoso, 590
 Zr Heide, Karl Gert, 441
 with Davis, "Blind" John, 251
 Zukowski, Jan, 725, 726
 Zwahlen and Bazin, 404
 Zydeco Hi-Rollers with Jacque,
 Beau, 499
 Zydeco music, 165, 197, 499, 851, 906
 Zydeco, 3
 with August, Lynn, 37 with Ballou, Classie, 44
 with Carradine, William
 "Cat-Iron," 184
 with Charters, Samuel Barclay, 194 with Chavis, Boozoo, 195
 Eunice Playboys, 261 with Garlow, Clarence "Bon Ton," 360
 influences on, 237, 432, 434
 king of. See Chenier, Clifton
 in pre-World War II era, 84, 131, 271, 988
 Zydeco, Buckwheat, 165, 699, 880
 ZZ Top, 1107–1108

 Routledge
Taylor & Francis Group
www.taylorandfrancisgroup.com

270 Madison Avenue
New York, NY 10016
2 Park Square, Milton Park
Abingdon, Oxon OX14 4RN, UK

Cover design: Christian Muñoz
Cover image: Chuck Berry. Courtesy Gene Tomko Printed in the U.S.A.

