Electronic emission notices classification correction

This Technical Update contains important information about the electronic emission notices in your system documentation.

The electronic emission notices section in the IBM® IntelliStation® Z Pro Type 6223 system documentation that comes with your computer is incorrect. The system was identified incorrectly as a Class B system but instead, the system is a Class A system. You can obtain the latest version of the system documentation from the IBM Support Web site. The latest version of the documentation contains the updated electronic emission notices section with the correct system classification.

To download the latest version of documentation for your computer, complete the following steps:
